In addition, it's easy to see why this new Dodge is called the "Beauty Winner" of 1936. I have never had a car that has given me such complete all around satisfaction.

J. A. Headley Writes About "New Deal"

Following is a letter from J.A. Headley, a typical farmer of Chilton County who has been aided by the Democratic "New Deal" and says so in no uncertain terms:

Well, I am going to leave it to the good old citizens of America to be the judges, by their ballots in November, as to who gets the cocoa. I feel just like they feel as to who rules or as to who they put in the White House to see whether we live or half starve. I feel that the biggest majority of people have their eyes open in that direction, inasmuch as they were wounded practically to death as I was from 1928 to 1932 by that bunch of money-grabbers and poor man robbers. That bunch fixed one in such shape that it took all the figuring and planning that me and my family of six could do, all of the hard labor that could have been done on a farm the size of mine, which was at that time 114 acres all paid for, to pay the taxes on it and to keep and to have anything over just bread. That is not saying a thing about our clothes. We just wore the rags which we had on hand at that time.

I had my wife and boy operated on during that period of time and couldn't pay a dollar. I died 18 acres to the hospital for the services, leaving me 96 acres. At the present time since 1933 I have been coming back up hill, thank God. I call the 96 acres mine, with plenty all around me and money in the bank. I go to bed every night with my mind at rest. I get up every morning, start a sweet song and go about my work rejoicing.

As Brother Marvin Martin accused me of meeting Roosevelt's bread wagon once a week and getting my flour and canned beef. I want to tell Mr. Martin right here that I meet it every day and get plenty. There is one more word that I would like to say to Mr. Martin. From 1928 through 1932 I met Mr. Hoover's hand wagon and got disappointed after his spending several billions of dollars a year of the taxpayers' money and the poor class did not receive the first penny of it, but the rich got the last nickel of it. Do you remember that, Mr. Martin?

Now, what you said about my making false statements or cussing anybody such as our old grandfathers wrongfully in my letter of July 23, is a willful mistake of yours. You said you had me pictured. I think you gave me a clear picture of yourself. You are a man who wants to dodge the truth in every issue. Now, Mr. Martin, if either you or me get the cocoa, let's get it friendly and with the naked truth, then it won't ulcerate our stomach when we take it down in November.

Now, as to Mr. A.A. Jackson telling me that I ought not to blame him for reaching out after the $200 a month. I do not, Mr. Jackson, but you seem to want to take what I have for me and my family along with you as you go after it. And I am not willing for you to do that. So boys, let's hustle along. I hear the whistle on the Roosevelt wagon.

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Theodor's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets.

Mrs. C. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Theodor's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

Nearly Two Miles Of Dodge Trucks In Big Drive-Away

Huge Caravan of 349 Units Leaves Detroit For Kansas City Region; Trucks Arrive

Detroit, Mich., July 22.—Last week marked the arrival in the Kansas City region of the 349 Dodge trucks and commercial cars which constituted the largest drive-away of trucks that has ever left Detroit. The big drive-away left several days ago from the Dodge truck plant on Lynch road and continued intact until it approached the vicinity of Kansas City, at which point various dealers in the parade branched out on the shortest routes to their respective cities. Trades in the drive-away represented more than a quarter of a million dollars.

Following the arrival in Detroit of the 250 dealers who drove away the 349 truck units, a full program of activities was arranged and carried out through the office of Joseph D. Burke, director of truck sales of the Dodge division of Chrysler Corporation. Most of the various features of the program were carried out by George A. Orphal, assistant director of truck sales, and Tom Jarrard, Kansas City regional manager. The program came to a close with a dinner at the Fort Shelby hotel at which Mr. Orphal and Mr. Jarrard were the principal speakers. Mr. Burke was detained on business at Duluth, but wired his regrets to the assembly.

Early the next morning the dealers went by special bus to the Dodge drive-away yard where the caravan was made up.

NO PASSENGER LOST BY RIGID AIR LINES

All Landed Safely Even in Zeppelin's Early Days.

Washington.—Since Count Zeppelin began to carry passengers in crude small craft, around the turn of the century, no single passenger has been lost in any Zeppelin airship service and about 800,000 have been carried, including those on short sight-seeing hops here and abroad. An airship, the Graf Zeppelin, has circled the world in 21 days and another, the Norge, crossed the North pole.

On the debit side of the ledger stand the spectacular losses of huge military and experimental ships.

The British started on an ambitious airship construction program of their own. The ZR-2, which had been purchased by the United States, fell into the Humber river, just as it was about to be delivered in August, 1921, causing the death of 34 persons. The R-34, which had electrified the world by her crossing of the North Atlantic in July, 1919, under command of Major G. H. Scott in 68 hours, to blaze that trail for lighter-than-air craft, was blown to pieces in a gale while moored at her mast at Howden, in January, of that year. Fortunately, no one was on board.

Crashed into Hill.

The R-100, first of two proud 5,000,000 cubic foot ships to fly for England, made the North Atlantic round trip in 1930, crossing to Canada and return. In October of that year her sister ship, R-101, crashed into a hill at Beauvais, France, when on a demonstration flight to India and 46 British officers and men including some of the aviation leaders of the world were killed.

In December, 1923, the French suffered the loss of 52 lives in the crash of the Dixmude off the Sicilian coast while she was on her way to Africa.

The Italia, carrying General Umberto Nobile and fellow-explorers, fell during a flight to the North pole in May, 1928, and eight persons were killed.

In the United States the record of losses has been even greater. The Roma, built in Italy but assembled in this country and under test for the United States army, dived out of control when a rudder cable broke at an altitude of 1,000 feet, fell into high-tension wires and 34 lives were lost in the resultant fire.

In September, 1925, the ZR-1, the Shenandoah, in commission for the navy, broke in two during a squall near Caldwell, Ohio, and 14 were killed.

Akron and Macon.

The Akron, first of the two 6,500,000-cubic-foot airships built for the navy by the Goodyear Zeppelin corporation at Akron, in the world's largest building, was christened August 3, 1931, and commissioned October 27. On April 4, 1933, caught in severe squalls off the New Jersey coast, she broke in the sea and was lost. There were only three survivors.

Less than three weeks later her sister ship, the Macon, made her maiden flight, staying up 12 hours and giving an excellent account of herself. But on February 12, 1933, she too was lost at sea, going down in the Pacific off the California coast. Fortunately, only two of her company were lost.

On the favorable side of the account stand many fine flights by rigid airships, however. Both the Akron and the Macon, while in commission, made long flights, crossing the continent and flying along the coast lines in all sorts of weather.

Meantime, abroad, the Graf Zeppelin had begun the series of flights which has been chiefly responsible for the abiding faith which German experts and many American authorities hold in lighter-than-air craft.

Ladybugs' Sex Becomes Real Problem in Oregon

Estacada, Ore.—An enticing get-rich-quick scheme fell through recently because no one in this small town knew how to tell a lady ladybug from a gentleman ladybug.

A report by Fred Brown, forest ranger, that thousands of the tiny creatures were swarming near Camp One, about eight miles from here, was quickly followed by a second report—the source of which was vague—that males of the species are valued at $1 each.

Then arose the disturbing question of how to tell a male from a female ladybug.

A canvass of the library and all available bookstores failed to reveal any scientific method of discerning between the two sexes. Examination of several members of the species also proved in vain—no apparent difference could be discovered.

Students Will Hear How They Really Talk

Middletown, Conn.—Installation of recording and reproducing apparatus for the use of classes in oral English is under way at Wesleyan university. Next year's classes will be able to hear themselves as others hear them.

The new speech apparatus is designed to aid students who have speech difficulties by revealing to them how their speech faults sound to others and to enable instructors in public speaking to demonstrate the point which they wish to make about the presentations of their students. Many other uses of the equipment are also visualized.

Increase In Federal Revenues To June 30 Exceeds Interest Charge On National Debt

"There are a number of interesting features about our increased national debt which the critics of the Roosevelt administration fail to say anything about," said Assistant Attorney General John Dickinson in a speech at Charlottesville, Va., Thursday. "For example, so skillful and successful has the Roosevelt administration been in refunding the principal at record low interest rates that actually the total interest burden for the last fiscal year has been less than for any year between 1920 and 1927, in spite of the increased amount of outstanding principal.

"The annual interest charge for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1936, was $742,000,000. No critic of the President has mentioned the fact that during that fiscal year, as a result of the general increase of business activity, the ordinary federal taxes resulted in an increase of $750,000,000 in ordinary government receipts, or more than enough to defray the entire interest charge on our present national debt.

"A second interesting fact, never referred to of course by the President's critics, is that the increase of approximately $12,000,000,000 in our national debt since March, 1933, has been accompanied by practically no increase at all in the debts of our states and localities. The entire increase in the total public debt represents only one-third of the increase in the value of the stocks and bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange during the same period, leaving wholly out of account the vastly greater restoration of values in all other sorts of property. A business man who by borrowing a certain sum could thereby triple his capital would consider that he has made a splendid bargain.

"A third fact, never alluded to by Roosevelt critics, is that a very considerable proportion of the increase in federal indebtedness, which has been incurred for the purpose of making

NEGRO FINDS IT TOUGH JOB TO EVADE HIGHWAY OFFICERS

There is one negro in Chilton County who has no doubt decided that it is of no use to attempt to dodge Chilton County's Highway Patrolmen, Waites and Henley.

The officers received a report of a burglary and that the burglar was somewhere on the road. They immediately began a search and within a few minutes sighted the negro in a car, gave chase and soon the negro was in jail after surrendering the stolen goods. He was charged with grand larceny.

AUTO WRECKS

cident was reported as happening five miles south of Verbena. Those in the Livingston car were given first-aid treatment in Clanton.

Then, on last Friday morning a head-on collision by two automobiles, about one mile north of Clanton, at Sims Grove, sent six persons to the Central Alabama Hospital in ambulances from Martin & Sons and Spigener Funeral Home. This was possibly the most serious of the nine that occurred, and is said to have been caused when one of the cars attempted to go around a wagon on the crest of the hill at the Grove, with the driver's vision cut off on account of the hill.

In one car was Dr. R. L. Hill of Winfield and member of the Legislature from Marion County. He had just picked up Dolphus Lovett, of Jemison, while in Clanton, who was catching rides to his home. They were both seriously injured. Dr. Hill was carried to Birmingham Tuesday in a Martin ambulance from the local hospital, while Lovett is still in the hospital here in a serious condition with a fractured skull. In the other car which was going south were Francis Brawley, his son, Edwin Brawley, Mrs. Agnes Roberts and Mrs. Mary Nolan, all of Wylam, Ala. They were rushed to the hospital here for first aid. None were seriously injured. Both cars were almost demolished.

At South Clanton last Friday, two cars said to have been driven by Mr. B. Gamillion, of Ohio and F. L. Millhouse of Selma, collided, doing considerable damage to both cars and fracturing one of Millhouse's arms. Gamillion was accompanied by his wife. Neither received serious injury.

Last Friday afternoon, a car said to have been driven by Dr. B. Q. Rawls, of Red Level, Ala., collided with the rear end of a truck said to have been driven by a Mr. Owen, of near Clanton, with considerable damage. This accident occurred near Jemison on the highway.

The next accident occurred Saturday night when a negro driver of an automobile is said to have fallen asleep while driving near Thorsby, running off the road, overturning and injuring several occupants of the car. They were given first aid in Thorsby.

Two more cars, driven by negroes, giving their names as Charlie White, of Ensley, and Eddie Bowman, of Birmingham, side-swiped near Jemison, doing considerable damage to both cars. No serious injuries were reported to occupants of the two cars.

Monday morning of this week a car driven by W. H. Harris was struck by a truck at North Clanton, as the car entered the highway from a side road. The truck is said to have been driven glad to see us. I feel that it would be interesting to some to know that he is getting along all right and appears to be doing nicely.

TO WASHINGTON AND RETURN

"We left Asheville the next morning, June 12, 1936, and reached Natural Bridge, Virginia, for our stop the next night. As a child in school I had read much of this place. It is known to all that this is a natural bridge formed out of rock and a large creek runs under this bridge. George Washington surveyed this ground about the year 1750 and on the 5th day of July, 1774, King George III of England sold 157 acres of land, on which is located the natural bridge, to Thomas Jefferson for $8.50. You will remember that this about two years before Thomas Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence. This service at the bridge is a night service, and is very impressive.

"The bridge is 215 feet high and is 90 feet wide and carries Lee Highway, U. S. No. 11. Chief Justice John Marshall said concerning the bridge: 'God's greatest miracle in stone,' and Henry Clay in speaking of the bridge said this: 'The bridge not made with hands, that spans the river, carries a highway and makes two mountains one.' I looked at the bridge and thought here is where George Washington and Thomas Jefferson used to meet and talk over things. Jefferson wanted to own the property, for what reason history does not disclose and just how he got rid of it we do not know.

"On the morning of June 13th, which was Saturday, we started for Washington and when we came to Lexington, Virginia, we stopped for breakfast and when we had eaten breakfast we went to the grave of 'Stonewall' Jackson there walked over the grounds of Washington and Lee University. General Robert E. Lee is buried in the chapel on the college grounds. This chapel was built under the direction of General Lee in 1867, about two years after his surrender to General Grant at Appomattox. We reached Washington on the afternoon of the same day.

"The first thing we had to do after reaching Washington, D. C., was to get a place to stay, and the Rev. S. J. Ezell had told me before leaving home to go to the Francis Scott Key Apartments and I found this a comfortable place. It was not long before we saw our good friend, Miss Vera Jones. We were glad to see her of course, and she appeared glad to see us. It may be of interest to all of you to know that Miss Vera is doing very nicely and she appears to like Washington.

"The next day was Sunday and I wanted to see Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, if possible, and I went to the preaching service at the Calvary Baptist Church, which church he sometimes attends (though he did not attend church on that day as the weather was unfavorable. I listened very attentively to an interesting short sermon by the pastor, his subject being, 'And Enoch Walked With God.'

"In the afternoon we went to Mount Vernon, and you could hardly see the place for the people. It appears to me that more people go to this place than any other place I have ever seen. Every school child knows that Mount Vernon is just down the river from Washington on the Virginia side. The home faces the Potomac River and is owned by some society of ladies, and these ladies maintain it in exactly the condition in which Washington left it. We went to the tomb of George Washington and his wife, Martha Washington. They are lying in a vault some one hundred yards from the river. George by a Johnnie Mack, of New Brocton. No one was injured.

Monday night a car carrying several passengers from Ohio ran off the highway near Lomax, turning over and injuring the occupants to such an extent they were brought to the hospital here for treatment but were soon dismissed. The driver is said to have fallen asleep.

Last Tuesday morning a car said to belong to R. W. Graham of Talbot, Ga., was wrecked when it ran off the highway just south of Clanton, after striking several concrete guard posts. It was reported that Graham had picked up two hitch-hikers, and one of these was driving at the time of the accident, without a driver's license. Graham is reported as having paid the young man's fine for this offense.

Also on Tuesday morning, a young negro who was riding a bicycle across the highway near Collins Store, north of Clanton was struck by an automobile—said to have been driven by R. C. Wiggins of Birmingham. The negro received a fractured skull. Wiggins was absolved of all blame by eyewitnesses as the highway patrolmen who investigated immediately.

All in all Patrolmen Waites and Henley have had a very, very busy week with accidents occurring at one end of the road and then at the other—one after the other, at that. State Highway Patrolmen Wallace Waites and Earl Henley have reached the conclusion that the past week brought a jinx of some kind to motorists on the highway through this county which is their territory, also. Despite their untiring efforts to try to show drivers that it is just as easy to drive safely as recklessly—and much more economical—the accidents just had to happen. However, these two patrolmen are due considerable praise for their promptness in appearing at the scenes of accidents. The past few days demonstrated their ability to cope with situations of this kind.

Washington died during the year of 1799, just about two years after he left the presidency. George Washington was a very wealthy man. In politics he was a Federalist. He believed with Alexander Hamilton that the average man was not capable of participating in his government but that some other and wiser man should rule. Thomas Jefferson, as we know, was opposed to this theory of government and he was called an Anti-Federalist, and which is known now as the Democratic principles of government. Jefferson contended that the people can be trusted when they are properly informed and the people are best governed who are least governed.

Our "Puppet" Railroads

In a recent address, R. V. Fletcher, General Counsel of the Association of American Railroads, declared that Federal regulation of rail transportation has gone too far, and urged that a curb be placed on further encroachment by Federal authorities into the managerial powers of those responsible for the operation of American railroads.

"I have long been of the opinion that the future of the railroads would be brighter and their success more assured if there was applied to their situation less regulation and more practical common sense—and by this I mean that the railroads should be free, consistent with the maintenance of reasonable and non-discriminatory rates, to adapt their practices and methods to the needs and demands of modern business," he said.

"I am altogether optimistic as to the future, particularly if the American people can come to understand that the railroads are entitled to fair treatment at the hands of legislative and administrative bodies, and provided they are left free to work out their problems, in the light of their useful experience and in accordance with the dictates of justice and fair dealing."

Mr. Fletcher made it clear that he has no criticism of the men entrusted with railroad regulation—he believes it is the principle, not the administration, of the various laws involved that has often proved bad. The railroads have been regulated to the hilt in every phase of operation, while their competitors have been entirely or largely free from any regulation whatsoever.

In some instances, railroad regulation has become "constriction" managements have been turned into mere puppets, with public officials pulling the strings.

Further legislative manipulation will kill, not cure, the patient. The lines deserve more of a chance to manage their own show free from the blighting hand of the bureaucrat.

While the Democrats find no difficulty in pointing out flaws, errors and omissions in Governor Landon's speech of acceptance, the Republicans are having a hard time countering by calling attention to the "high lights" in their candidate's address.

Indeed his friends' encomiums are as vague and general as the Governor's own declarations. They applaud his charges of waste and extravagance in dispensing relief but have no answer to the challenge that he specify how he would remedy these alleged faults. They echo his complaint that the President has usurped Congressional powers, and get as reply quotations from the minority party candidate's own speeches insisting that the delegation of these powers to the Chief Executive was wise and necessary.

Mr. Landon's difficulty lies in the circumstance that he was running for the Kansas Governorship as an ardent New Dealer when he made these approving speeches and no small part of his solicitation of votes then was his support of and cooperation with President Roosevelt in effectuating the New Deal policies.

For that matter, his chief backer and most influential adviser, Mr. William Randolph Hearst, recorded in his own newspapers his appreciation of President Roosevelt's greatness and wisdom. This was, of course, before the tax law, raising the levies on huge incomes, was enacted. Part of the incongruity of the Republican candidate's position lies in the fact that the very laws at which he now looks askance were voted for by many Republican Senators and Representatives, some, but by no means all, of whom are now backing Mr. Landon to the limit.

Freedom Of The Press

On the first page of all Republican metropolitan newspapers August 1; Rumor that former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio, Democratic nominee for President in 1920, would support Landon.

Buried on inside pages of a few of the same August 3, not published at all by most of them: Statement from Gov. Cox in obscure fishing camp in Idaho, repudiating such rumor, announcing he "will vote for the President and wholeheartedly support him."

REPUBLICANS ON THE JOB

The Republican Union-Banner asks, "What will we do when Landon and Knox and a Republican Congress are elected this Fall?" Well, honestly, if we do like we did when we have Republicans on those jobs, we will go barefooted eat in soup lines, make our shirts of guano sacks and sleep on grass beds trying to make our 5-cent cotton pay the landlord and our fertilizer bill and the seed go as far as possible on the ginning, bagging and ties, wondering all the while which bank will break tomorrow.

To The 9,000,000

To the 9,000,000 young men and women who will have the right of ballot this year for the first time, we urge that you REGISTER and that you VOTE.

We are primarily concerned with the registration of Democratic voters, but are not so blindly partisan as to proceed to urge you to stay away from the registration booths if you do not have Democratic inclinations.

We believe, however, that the Democratic party offers to the youth of America its most advantageous route to direct and countable participation in the affairs of local and national government; and that the new order that now prevails was built largely upon the demands and spirit of the youth of America.

As 9,000,000 more young men and women prepare to exercise their voting rights this year, we quote the words of Frank Wickham, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of America:

"American youth of today has shown a spirit of governmental participation almost without parallel in the political history of the country.

"Participation in primary and general election voting is a duty of the qualified citizen, equally as binding as is the duty of a local, state or national government to guarantee the unencumbered and untampered right of the ballot so traditional with the American people."

And this sharp Wickham point:

"Neglect of the privilege of the ballot on the part of an individual is no less a cause for censure than the tampering with a ballot is cause for indictment of an election official."

Lo! He Speaketh Not!

What's this? Have the silent movies returned?

Apparently they have.

Take a look at the current news reel. There you may see the Hon. Alfred Landon of Kansas beaming, smiling, fishing, throwing rocks, flashing his leather boots—but speaking? Ah, never!

No word—not even a friendly "howdy"—comes from his thin-set lips.

By the time the next set of news reels are shown, perhaps his lips will part and words of wisdom—or less—will spring from his heretofore silent voice, for it is reported that the gentleman from Kansas is taking a hurried course in "elocution" prior to his electrocution at the polls in November.

Incidentally, the silent movie belonged to a day and an order long since gone.

So does Alfred Landon. — National Young Democrat.

Gov. Alf M. Landon And Constitutionality

Mr. Hearst's New York Evening Journal uses the Social Security constitutional amendment proposed by Gov. Alf M. Landon's legislature as a peg on which to hang a "comparison" of the Kansas executive with President Roosevelt. The Journal seeks to create the impression that the Governor has always been careful not to violate the Constitution, while the President has "jammed through" emergency legislation "regardless."

"Just to keep this record straight," remarks the Philadelphia Record, (Ind.), "Gov. Landon has on five different occasions run head-on into the Kansas Supreme Court during his three and a half years as Governor of that State.

"Five bills signed by Landon were declared 'unconstitutional' by the Court. Not a bad record for a Governor who has managed to do as little as Landon."

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskell

On nearing what I thought to be a herd of cattle on the highway I discovered that it was just a team of oxen. There were six yoke of them being driven by a barefoot negro boy who was not over twelve years of age. I observed that at the swing of the boy's whip and at the command spoken to the team that they drifted over to their side of the road and I passed with perfect ease. Any one of the twelve was many times larger than the negro boy and yet they obeyed without question. That boy in his ignorance and rags could manage his team because the oxen had a mind to obey. And yet, we see on the highway of life human beings who should be directed by the Divine Wisdom according to the laws of obedience, as they refuse to be controlled. God, in all of His wisdom and power, is unable to keep us in the straight and narrow path and all because we do not have a mind of obedience. "The ox knoweth his master's crib, but my people do not harken," laments the Lord.

It was a good time to sleep at an early hour in the morning. However a white-backed woodpecker decreed otherwise. He perched himself on the water gutter of the parsonage roof. He decided to try that tin out with his bill and it rattled like a drum. It pleased the woodpecker very much and he screamed like a boy who had found a nice watermelon and I knew that there would be more drumming. Sure enough he would rattle his drum and scream, keeping it up like a boy at play, until all sleep had gone the way of the noise producer. We think that we are so much superior to the other living things of this world, but I can see the boy nature in beast and bird. What cared the woodpecker for the sleepy preacher below if he could have fun with his drum?

At eleven o'clock in the morning a beggar knocked on the kitchen door. He said that he was hungry and wanted us to give him something to eat. The lady of the house informed him that she had nothing but some bread and a bottle of sour milk. He said that would go mighty good to him and so he was given all that was in store. He ate and drank and went on his way. The hot sun beaming down upon him was not good for his sour milk and soon he was a sick man by the roadside. He informed those who came to his rescue that a lady gave him sour milk and he would never go back to that house and ask for something to eat. Verily, verily, I say unto you, if you are troubled with tramps feed them sour milk and they will not return. Sometimes they do not return because they were fed "sour" words.

A mob formed in a mining town of Alabama and matters looked stormy for a few hours. The city authorities decided to use the water hose to scatter the mob. It was attached and the stream was directed toward one man who appeared to be the leader. It was thought that if they could drown out the leader that the mob would disperse. The splash of water went to where he was standing but it did not hit him alone. It drenched the men in front and behind, those to the right and to the left. In fact they had to drown out the whole crowd before peace had been restored. World conditions today have almost reached to mob state and there are folks who are saying, "Sack the rich." Some are saying "Sack the poor." Many are clamoring for this class and that class to be drowned out, but that can't be done. To drown out the rich, you will drown the poor along with them.

In Chicago a short time ago a wrecking company was asked to go to a certain block and number and raze a building. On reaching the spot the crew ordered the house vacated and in a short time the house was coming down. Just as the last piece of lumber was being loaded on the trucks, the owner of the building dashed up and entered a heated argument. It developed that the wrecking company had torn down the wrong building. That seems to be a picture of our government in recent years. To be sure there were some old buildings in our American life that needed to come down, but it seems to a man who thinks that in a few cases at least the wrong building has been torn down. The time has come when both government and religion should be out of the experimental age. Stop razing the wrong building.

The last request of A. L. Milburn of Loganport, Ind., was that all persons attending his funeral be awarded 10c each.

After spending $10 to have his car repaired, A. H. Beardsley of Elkhart, Ind., found two quarts of grasshoppers in the radiator.

Arthur Bond Yockney of New Orleans stated in his 13-word will, "I leave all to my sister, Augusta, and no Tommy rot about it."

Rev. R. C. Clayton of Chicago stated in an address the following epitaph for a married man: "Another good fellow gone."

Tennessee Reports 84 Active Clubs

Nashville, Tenn.—From one 10-member club in 1932 to 84 active clubs, 1936, with an average of more than 100 members each, is the record of the Young Democratic organization in Tennessee.

The immediate goal of the state club in each of the 95 counties before the November general election. Only 11 counties are now organized. First under the presidency of W. B. Parkey of Nashville, then Joe C. Carr of Nashville, and now under David P. Murray of Jackson, Tennessee division of the Young Democratic Clubs of America has an organization that is approached by but a line-up of the states in the national line-up.

In addition, the organization publishes its own monthly newspaper, "Tennessee Young Democrat," maintains full-time state headquarters in Nashville.

Your Voice CAN Travel More Quickly Than Ever

THE average time required to complete all long distance telephone calls is now only 1.5 minutes, as compared to 7.5 minutes in 1925. Place a long distance call, and almost every time the connection will be made at once, while you hold the receiver to your ear.

While the speed of the service has been steadily increased, the cost remains low. New operating methods and improved equipment have made the service as clear and convenient as on local calls.

Bettering the service while extending hours for reduced rates and actually decreasing the cost have prompted many customers to comment to the operators or write to the Company expressing appreciation of the service and surprise at the low cost.

You, too, will be pleased with the speed, clearness and low cost of long distance telephone service. Use it to keep in touch with friends, relatives and business associates in other cities.

For information, just call the "long distance" operator.

PRODUCERS URGED TO CO-OPERATE

SERVE SEED FOR 1937 PLANTING

"With seeds of many soil-conserving crops nearly ready for harvest, it is time for Chilton farmers who expect to take part in the Agricultural Conservation Program in 1937 to begin plans for conserving seed supplies for next year," says County Agent J. Pant.

"The farmer who saves an ample supply of legumes and grass seeds will be in a better position to take part in a conservation program in 1937," he continues.

Not only will the effects of drought be reflected in the supply of seed, the need for those crops will be greater next year because of the drought.

Where it is practicable for farmers to harvest the seeds of soil-conserving crops such as cowpeas, soybeans, crochets, velvet beans, etc., they should not only supply their own needs, but also those of their neighbors.

On the other hand, he points out that in cases where a farmer does not have sufficient acreage in soil-conserving crops to yield enough seeds for his own uses, he may be able to add to his supply by harvesting his neighbor's seed on shares.

"This office will be glad to give advice on the seed situation in the state and how to harvest, cure, store, and clean seed crops," says Mr. Pant.

'$1.08 a Week!' - - An Editorial - - 'It's Enough!'

The hurried build-up that the Hearstic and Republican press had to give to the Honorable Alfred M. Landon of Kansas in order to puff him overnight into national proportions now has, of course, the natural aid of the general press dealing with Mr. Landon as a Republican presidential nominee and therefore a Page One piece of news.

Any little item counts.

The other day the Associated Press even disclosed a 70-year-old gentleman who proudly claimed the distinction of being the fellow who taught Mr. Landon how to swim.

Numerous papers have blazoned the Kansas' prowess as a fisherman.

William Allen White, the Kansas editor who got permanently famous over one editorial back in the days before Dewey shelled Manila, contributed several pages of "I knew Him When" copy about Landon to The Saturday Evening Post the other week.

Of course, in going back over a man's career with the fine tooth comb wielded zealously and sometimes perhaps carelessly by the energetic press, some things are discovered that perhaps that gentleman would prefer to have remained buried with the dead.

Such matters have a pesky habit, however, of popping up at an inconvenient time, and even if a friendly portion of the press might attempt to pass it over or gild it with a glorious explanation, there is always another section of the press that prints what it finds without adulteration.

It must have pained the Hon. Mr. Landon, therefore, to have been faced with the ghost of a certain statement that he made back in the old days when he was more concerned with how much money he could make out of his oil interests than what he could do with a Republican presidential nomination.

$1.08 A WEEK, SAYS AL

In the belief of Mr. Landon, according to a statement attributed to him by a Kansas State Senator and not denied by Mr. Landon as this issue of The National Young Democrat went to press, a family of three, if on relief, can live on $1.08 a week!

That's enough for them, as $1.74 a of political dodging.

Sen. McDonald proceeded further. He gave the exact details of the con- week is enough for a family of four, said the distinguished gentleman who seeks to administer national affairs.

We will pass over, for the moment, the fact that Mr. Landon is an extremely wealthy man, the figure being put at something around the half-million mark by Landon's friend William Allen White in the Saturday Evening Post article.

Rich men, of course, have little trouble in seeing how easy it is for a jobless, hungry family of three to live on $1.08 a week.

HERE'S THE CONVERSATION

Here's the detailed $1.08 a week indictment against Mr. Landon:

State Senator Joseph S. McDonald of Kansas made the charge on the floor of the senate. Landon replied through a spokesman:

"I do not feel that charges made during the heat of partisan debate merit any reply whatsoever."

Of course that is not an answer. It does not even constitute a good evasion. It was merely a bumbling piece of interference with Landon at which the $1.08 a week reference was made.

'OUGHT TO BE ENOUGH'

"I want to see him with a delegation from my county on Dec. 11," said Sen. McDonald.

"My county was broke, and we came to ask him to call a special session of the legislature right away to enact social security laws."

"We put it up to him, and he told me that the needy in our county were getting adequate relief."

"I said to him: 'Why, Governor, do you know that we are able to provide only $1.08 a week for a family of three, and $1.74 a week for a family of four?'"

"Well, that ought to be enough," he said.

"By God," I told him, 'maybe you think it's enough, but down in Wyandotte County we know the difference.'"

LANDON STILL SILENT

That, in brief, is the attitude on the national problem of relief held by a man to whom the Republican nomination for President has been given.

His failure to deny it completes the indictment.

His evasive answer marks him as an artful political dodger at a time when this country is not in a humor to entertain political dodgers on vital questions.

The attitude of President Roosevelt on relief is frank and clear. He believes in prevailing wages on relief projects—and he does not believe that $1.08 a week will feed, clothe and house a family of three.

The people have a simple choice to make:

They have a humanitarian in President Roosevelt—or an administration by an oil millionaire who would feed an unfortunate American family on $1.08 a week—National Young Democrat.

"The Man Who-o-o"

Tales and Traditions from American Political History

BY FRANK E. HAGIN AND ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ORIGINAL STEAM-ROLLER
THE steam-roller may not cover a ground with the speed of an antelope, but it gets there just the same.

First of the steam-roller tacticians to appear on the American political scene was the illustrious Marcus A. Hanna of Ohio.

Steam-roller methods of attaining the objective, which in this case was the nomination of William McKinley for President, were first utilized by Mark Hanna in the Republican convention of 1896. And they succeeded.

Hanna had observed the amazing switch of delegates to James A. Garfield in 1880 when the latter was earnestly and honestly pleading the cause of John Sherman of Ohio. Sherman tried again in 1888, this time employing McKinley as his convention manager.

At one stage of the proceedings, the report spread that if McKinley would say the word the strength of the delegates would be thrown to him. He promptly put an end to the movement, his vigorous interruption of the roll-call, for he already had received a vote, ending with a demand that: "No delegate who would not cast reflection upon me shall cast a ballot for me."

Hanna was impressed, as were many others. From that day he moved his support from Sherman, who had been defeated three times, and began to groom McKinley for the presidency.

The opportunity came in 1896. When the convention met, only "regular" delegates were seated. The national committee o.k'd them one by one, by the vote of 35 to 15. And it just happened they all were McKinley men.

Newspaper reports of the times describe the proceedings as a farce. But at any rate they were successful for McKinley's principal opponent was courting the southern vote, many of whom could not prove an unbroken chain of party fealty, and therefore were not seated.

The result was an outstanding majority for McKinley on the first ballot, Thomas B. Reed of Maine running a tired second, flattened under the weight of the original steam-roller, today an accepted part of our national politics.

Dispelling The Fog

From now on we must expect the newspapers to be filled with straw votes, sample balloting and other attempts to forecast the result of the Presidential election. In addition, various agencies have announced their purpose of telling the trends of public opinion over the radio.

That is all right provided the methods of making these alleged tests are of such a character as to indicate an honest purpose of forecasting the election even though the cross-section theory of arriving at a conclusion by no means gives a certain augury of the outcome.

When, however, the auspices under which the polls are being conducted are analyzed—as is the case of some already published or in prospect—these must be looked on with some suspicion at least. For example, there is the Farm Journal poll, which purports to give a survey of the sentiment of the farmers throughout the country. The Farm Journal happens to be the property of Mr. Joseph N. Pew, head of the Sun Oil Company. The Pew family was a heavy contributing member of the duPont Liberty League.

The Farm Journal was having financial troubles and was hawked about for sale. It was offered to Secretary Wallace for example, at the outset of the campaign, as Secretary Wallace told the newspaper men at one of his conferences. It was finally bought by Mr. Pew.

A Part of the Landon Build-up
In fact quite a number of newspapers throughout the country in the same situation have been acquired by the high Republican financial command in the same manner and for kindred reasons. The protagonists of Governor Landon feel as a primary necessity the creation of an impression that there is a general public sentiment for the Republican candidate. This they deem requisite not only for the attraction of what politicians call the "hand-wagon vote" but to give to their local organizations something on which they can erect a structure of confidence. So Mr. Pew issued his poll and gave as a result a considerable predominance of sentiment for Landon over Roosevelt among the farmers.

To do this he had to omit from his questionnaire seven Southern states. In the report made public he only canvassed 91 farmers in Arkansas, though that state has more than a quarter of a million farmers. The Farm Journal polled nearly 4,000 in New York, which has 172,000 farms; and only 155 farmers in Texas, which has half a million farms. There are numerous other discrepancies which indicate how this poll engineered to get a certain result. In addition to that, there is the circumstance that various farmers wrote in to the Farm Journal asking for ballots, stating that they were for Roosevelt, but instead of a ballot received a note from the editor of the paper, of which the following is a sample:

"You seem to believe very thoroughly in Mr. Roosevelt and his methods and, if so, I am sure you are going to be very unhappy if you continue to read the Farm Journal. We expect to do our best to stop Mr. Roosevelt's borrowing, spending, budget deficits and increasing taxes, which is about the only contribution that Mr. Roosevelt has made to returning prosperity. "Would you not be happier reading some other farm magazine which supports Mr. Roosevelt, if you can find one?"

This particular letter was sent to Walter A. Hoenes at Cologne, New Jersey. The New York Evening Post and Philadelphia Record hunted up Hoenes and checked the whole incident.

This particular episode gives a line on the sort of polls that we must be-

Method of a Liberty Leaguer

Here is another: One of the national advertisers on the radio chartered a radio theatre in New York for his broadcast of his product and let it be known that the audience was to be polled on the election, and that the result would be announced as part of the broadcast. That sounds fair enough on the face of it, until one is advised that the president of the company whose product is being advertised, is also a high contributor to the Liberty League and by virtue of his charter controls seventy per cent of the admissions to the theatre.

One more instance that gives rise to suspicion is that the sponsor of one of the great national straw votes has sold the radio rights for promulgating the results of its poll as part of an advertising program. The purchaser is one of the great corporations and the purchase price is reported to be $75,000.

Ordinarily the polling list for this forecast has been made up largely from the telephone directories and from holders of automobile licenses. That was not a perfect system because the percentage of people who have telephones and automobiles is a relatively small fraction of the total number of voters. It now appears that the system has been changed and that instead they are taking their names from the official voting lists.

That, too, sounds all right. But there arises the question of selecting the precincts. It would be quite easy to balance such a poll to give any desired result by picking the precincts in which there was a large preponderance of votes one way or the other.

So it all comes back to the question of how the job is going to be done.

The confidence of a large price to be paid for the broadcasting rights and the ability of the directors of those rights, some of the directors of which are conspicuous in the Liberty League class and its affiliates, makes one doubtful about the sincerity of the poll. By and large, the straw votes now being taken inevitably suggest that they are all right for light summer reading but far from reliable as indices of how the country is going next November.

Federal Expenditures Cut Almost In Half And Huge Repayments To Treasury During July

The United States Government ended the first month of the new fiscal year on July 31 with a cut of almost 50 per cent in expenditures compared with July, 1935. The Treasury statement reflects enormous repayments from the various recovery agencies, whose private borrowers are now beginning in earnest to retire their loans.

Expenditures, both regular and emergency, during July were $417,108,643, compared with $727,535,077 in July last year. Government income for the month was $293,886,769. A year ago the July figure was $278,908,944. Of these receipts, income tax collections last month totaled $39,120,833, as against $23,192,504 in July, 1935. The miscellaneous internal revenue collection, which includes liquor, tobacco and manufacturers' excise taxes, was $300,807,756, compared with $164,634,100 in July of last year. These items reflected constantly increasing recovery in personal and corporate income and broadened business activity.

But the more significant evidence of better times generally, as applied to both agriculture and industry alike, was shown in the repayments by private interests of advances that had been made by the recovery and relief agencies. During July these totaled more than a quarter of a billion dollars. The AAA turned in $3,929,828 from the sale of 690,000 bales of cotton and contracts for 1,000,000 additional bales held by the cotton pool. In contrast, the Government had paid $7,779,697 to AAA in July, 1935.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation turned back to the Treasury last month $175,572,578, while last year it got credits amounting to $4,683,094.

The Commodity Credit Corporation, which finances farmers crop planting and harvesting, received $115,863,270 from the Treasury in July, 1935. During July, 1936, this agency reimbursed the Treasury to the extent of $67,213,993. The Farm Credit Administration, against its $2,627,810 debt a year ago, showed a $2,853,717 credit last month. And the credit of the Export-Import Bank amounted to $443,244, as compared with a debit of $2,589,649 in July, 1935.

The gross deficit, due to emergency expenditures, was $123,221,873 in July, a considerable reduction from the July deficit of $448,626,133 last year. The public debt which stood at $33,788,543-493 on July 1, 1936, was reduced during the month to $33,443,975,237, while in July, 1935, the public debt increased $418,876,903.

The Treasury in July issued $388,601,033 in new securities, against $1,477,096,041 in the same month last year.

1,788 Alabama Debts Adjusted

$297,830 Reduction Is Effected By Federal Agency In State

Washington, Aug. 9.—The Resettlement Administration announced Sunday 1,788 farm debts in Alabama had been adjusted through the voluntary farm debt adjustment committees.

A report on the groups' activities said between September, 1935, and June 1936, a reduction of $297,830 was effected in debts which originally totaled $1,418,047. It added that taxes amounting to $14,591 were paid to local governments as a result of these adjustments.

The resettlement agency took over the administration's adjustment program last September and set up state and county committees to assist in working out agreements between creditors and debtors. The committees have no authority to enforce their recommendations.

The Resettlement Administration said its committees took over 2,503 cases in Alabama, dropped 228 of them, and had 487 cases pending July 1.

In 723 cases, it was reported, the debts were reduced, and 938 agreements extended. Other methods of adjustment were used in 127 cases coming before the various committees composed of farmers and business men, throughout the state.

SOIL SERVICE GROWING TREES, SHRUBS AND VINES

In an effort to meet the demands during the next planting season, the soil conservation service is growing about 47,000,000 trees, shrubs, and vines in nurseries at Atmore and Dadeville, reports Samuel R. Morgan, Jr., soil conservation forester in Alabama.

In addition to those being produced in Alabama, approximately 118,000,000 seedlings are being grown in nurseries in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Mississippi.

Stocks At Best Level Since 1931

Upturn In Rails, Steels And Industrial Aid Bull Sentiment

New York, Aug. 9.—Braced by trade and industrial improvement the stock market advanced over a broad front last week to the highest point since June, 1931.

Confronted early in the week with cross-currents of selling which swept motors and aircrafts downstream, the general list was a little hesitant in getting under way.

Later, however, an upturn in the steels, rails and industrial specialties generated wider buying enthusiasm and the market drove forward for the best net weekly gain since early June.

Carriers Lead Gains Measured by The Associated Press average of 60 shares, the market rose 1.9 points to 69.6. Chart readers said the action of carriers was particularly impressive in that this group scored a wider percentage gain than industrials or utilities, although the averages of the latter groups also reached new peaks.

Some said the rise to new highs of such leading rail issues as New York Central, Santa Fe and Union Pacific afforded a bullish signal.

Since the year's low at the end of April the market has moved higher. Irregularity of recent weeks, however, promoted the comment in some circles that if shares were to continue upward fresh and vigorous leadership would be needed.

Army Worms Strike State Cotton Crop

Cotton leaf worm (commonly known throughout the State as the army worm) has already made its appearance in Alabama and threatens to do considerable damage to young cotton, advises Prof. J. M. Robinson, head of the zoology-entomology department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

First reports of the cotton pest came from Calhoun and Greene Counties. Specimens of the insect have been definitely identified as the cotton leaf worm.

"The cotton pest can be controlled by dusting the cotton with calcium arsenate," says Prof. Robinson.

"Dusting should be done whenever worms appear in large numbers on cotton with immature bolls. The dust may be applied undiluted with dust gun at the rate of 5 to 6 pounds per acre or it may be shaken from cloth bags at ends of poles. If bags are used each pound of calcium arsenate should be mixed with 9 pounds of hydrated lime to prevent loss of large quantities of the arsenical. An application made with a dust gun is cheaper and more effective than one made by poles and bags.

Cotton farmers may expect serious damage if the worms become numerous before the bolls mature.

"I am the father of 24 children, all living," is the proud boast of J. M. Patterson of Whitesburg, Ky. He has been married seven times, and just recently made his last trip to the altar. He says he will rear a new family to establish a record for his state.

An Interesting Article Prepared By Hon. G. C. Walker, Attorney Of Clanton

This is the second part of a most interesting and instructive article prepared by Hon. G. C. Walker, prominent attorney of Clanton, who recently made an extended motor trip to the nation's capital and other points of interest.

"On Monday, June 15, we went to Arlington, the home of General Robert E. Lee. This place is now owned by the Government and is used as a cemetery for those who have had some part in governmental affairs. Any soldier or sailor may be buried in Arlington who will make a request to be buried there. President Taft is buried at Arlington. The story goes that some two weeks before he died he went over to Arlington and selected the place where he wanted to be buried and after he died his people had him buried at this place. William Jennings Bryan is buried in Arlington. The old Lee home just across the river can be seen from Washington. General Lee was in the service of the U. S. Government when the South seceded and President Lincoln called for him and offered him full command of all the Union forces. General Lee did not reply until later in the afternoon of the same day, and it is said that on the morning of that day he went upstairs in his home and got down on his knees and prayed during the entire day and later in the afternoon he came downstairs and sent word to President Lincoln to this effect: "I will have to go with my native State of Virginia."

"In Arlington Cemetery can be found the grave of the Unknown Soldier. This grave is just in front of or to the east of the great open stadium which has a seating capacity of 9,500. This theater is an open-air affair and is sometimes referred to as the Arlington Amphitheater. All Memorial exercises are held in this open-air stadium. President Woodrow Wilson has spoken here, President Harding has spoken here, President Hoover and our great President Franklin D. Roosevelt have spoken here.

"It will be interesting to some to know that after the beginning of the Civil War General Lee and his family vacated this property, and it was taken over by the National Government and it is said that after the close of the Civil War General Lee never returned to his home. This property was sold for its taxes by the National Government, the amount of which was $97.02. About the year 1875 George Washington Curtis Lee asked Congress for a return of his property and Congress paid not attention to his request. He then brought suit in the United States District Court at Alexandria, Virginia, in an effort to get possession of his property. The Court decided in his favor, and the case was carried to the Supreme Court of the United States. The Supreme Court upheld the decision of the District Court, which said that the property should be returned to its rightful owner upon the payment of the taxes then due. This decision of the Supreme Court created a great dissatisfaction in the North and George Washington Curtis Lee, to whom the property had been left by will, agreed with the representative of the Government to sell this property to the Government and proper deed was executed and the Government paid Mr. Lee $150,000 for this property. When the wife of Gen. Robert E. Lee left her home in April, 1862, she took her personal effects with her but a great amount of the household goods were stored in the basement of the home and the Federal soldiers came and took this property and destroyed it or gave it to the Negroes in the District of Columbia. It might be interesting to some to know that General Lee was never punished by the United States Government for and on account of his activities during the Civil War, while it is told he lost all of his personal estate and died a poor man in 1874, while President of the Washington and Lee University at Lexington, Virginia.

On this same day we visited the National Zoological Park. This is a large zoo where one can find most any sort of animal, reptile or fowl.

Tuesday—June 16

On this day we visited the White House. We were shown into all of the rooms on the first floor, which includes the Blue Room, the Green Room, the Ball Room and the State Dining Room where all of the dinners are served by the President with the government officials. No one is allowed to go upon the second floor as this is the private apartment of the President and his family. This building was designed and laid out by George Washington and was destroyed by the British soldiers in our second war with Britain, and of course was rebuilt, but the building was not completed until the year 1820 when James Monroe was President of the United States. The story goes that after it was rebuilt and was so white and beautiful it was called the "White House" but all along the stationery of the President bore the name of "Executive Mansion" until the great Theodore Roosevelt occupied the White House and the stationery no longer carried the name as "Executive Mansion" but President Roosevelt had placed on the stationery the "White House." This man Theodore Roosevelt was, in the minds of many, possibly the greatest man as far as initiative and personal power and force goes than any man who has ever occupied the White House.

We next went to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and there we saw the money being made and how all of the postage stamps were made and we were told that $20,000,000 a day was being turned out in this department of the Government. From this building we visited the Smithsonian Institute and in many respects this is one of the most wonderful sights in our Capital City of Washington. We saw the plane "Spirit of St. Louis" that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh made his lone flight across the Atlantic. This is a very small plane, not any larger than the plane owned and flown by our own Mr. Leo Thompson. In connection with this plane we saw the shoes and clothes worn by Col. Lindbergh. We next saw the plane used by Wiley Post in his two flights around the world. This is a larger plane than the one used by Col. Lindbergh. In this building one could spend a week and never see all that is to be seen. There is nothing placed in this building unless it has a historical setting. I asked for the plane in which Wiley Post and Will Rogers lost their lives and was told that this plane was still in Alaska and that the Government would make no effort to get this plane because it had no historical connection. We saw many things of course, in this building, among them were the dresses worn by the different presidents' wives over a period dating back to the beginning of the Nation.

From here we went to the Nation's Capitol Building and went to the gallery of the Senate Chamber and I believe there were two Republicans on the floor and some 13 Democratic senators. Senator Wagner of New York was making a speech in favor of some social secretarial legislation he was interested in for the poor people of New York City and Senator Couzens from Michigan was asking Senator Wagner about the constitutionality of the bill. They talked a while and Senator Couzens sat down and Senator Wagner proceeded with his discussion of his measure. Senator Couzens is a very good man, a very wealthy man and a very great man. He, too, sees things in many respects as does Senator Wagner, but he was trying to impress upon Senator Wagner that he must be careful and have his measure comply with the constitution.

From this place we went to the gallery of the House and there were only a very few of the Representatives on the floor and nothing appeared to be going on and after remaining there for a short time we left. One should never visit the Capitol Building without going through what is known as the Statuary Hall of Fame. As I understand it, this is where the Congress used to meet and in this place is where Mr. John Quincy Adams died. You will remember that after John Quincy Adams was President of the

Refreshing Relief

When You Need a Laxative

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. Lester Roberson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Va., writes: "I certainly can recommend Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."

BLACK-DRAUGHT

From the Romantic

GULF of MEXICO

to TURUKHANSK, Siberia

(as the crow flies)

FROM reading the newspapers you'd think that rural electrification is something brand-new. Yet, if you were to take the rural lines built by this Company since it pioneered rural electrification away back in 1923 and place them in a straight line, they would reach from Mobile, Ala., across Mt. McKinley, Alaska, and into the Bering Sea.

And then, if you'd extend the line to include the 3,000 miles of rural electric lines included in our present construction program, you'd find yourself ending up in the vicinity of Turukhansk on the Yenisei River in Siberia.

Or, if you don't like the direction we suggest, try extending our rural electric lines southwestward from Mobile and you'd be near Cuyaba, Brazil, when you came to the end of the line. Perhaps you'd prefer extending the lines eastward across the Atlantic Ocean and North Africa. If so, you'd find yourself near Tripoli on the Mediterranean Sea when you finished.

- So you see thousands of Alabama farmers have been enjoying electric service for years, long before "rural electrification" became a political catch phrase.
- Rural electrification is nothing new with us. We went through the "experimentation" period years ago.
- When our present construction program is completed, we will have built 6,100 miles of rural lines! And by that time we'll probably be extending them further.

ALABAMA POWER COMPANY

Electrify Now -- Electricity Is CHEAP in Alabama

United States he was sent to Congress from his Massachusetts District until the end of his life. One of the great outstanding principles of this man's life was that he felt that the people always had a right to petition Congress and that Congress should pay attention to any petition from the people. In this Hall of Fame is our own General Joe Wilson. He is in the dress of a Confederate soldier. In this Hall of Fame from the State of Georgia is the statue of Alexander H. Stephens, who was Vice-President of the Southern Confederacy and at the time Georgia seceded from the Union he was in the U. S. Senate from the State of Georgia. On this statue is a saying of this great man and it is this: "I fear nothing upon the earth; I fear nothing under the earth; I fear nothing above the earth; the only thing that I do fear is to do wrong." This is a great feeling for any public official to have and if every public official, whether he be a national official, a state official, a county official or a municipal official, would have this feeling and carry out this feeling we would have a safe government.

We, of course, visited the office in the Senate Office Building of our own Hugo L. Black. His secretary, Mr. Hollis Black, was very nice to us. We did not find Senator Black in his office as he was on the floor of the Senate attending to his duties there. We visited the office of our member of Congress in the House Office Building, that of Honorable William B. Oliver, his secretary, Mrs. Futh Folsome, was very nice to us and while Mr. Oliver was not present, he was on the floor of the House attending to his duties there, but after we had returned to our apartment Mr. Oliver called and insisted that we have lunch with him the next day. We accepted and were with him at luncheon at the Congressional dining room in the main Capitol Building. Mr. Oliver answered in fine shape physically, though he was a little bit older than the people of his District but to the people of Alabama as a whole.

Mr. Oliver answered to be interested in being electrified, and to the homes of the people in the rural section of his District. He so much as said he was going to make some effort to get the rural people interested in this undertaking. He said that our great President was deeply interested in seeing that the people in the country had the comforts and conveniences of a full and comfortable life. Mr. Oliver also talked of our school situation in Alabama and was very hopeful that some plan could be worked out whereby the schools could be kept open and our children given the educational advantages which they must have in order to make useful citizens. While he did not suggest any plan but was hopeful that one could be devised whereby the schools could be kept going, I told Mr. Oliver that personally, I felt that sufficient money was now being appropriated by our state to keep our schools going, and that the trouble was in the management of the money. Not that any of the money was being used illegally but that before any school building was to be repaired or built those in authority should see to it that sufficient money had been set aside with which to pay the teachers and if there is some left over then to repair a school building worth if you have no and build school buildings. What is money with which to pay the teacher. This is one of the great question which now confronts the people of our State and has caused considerable argument one way and another.

Farmers Called in Mass Meeting at the Court House Next Saturday, Aug. 15th at 10 O'Clock

Chilton to cooperate with twelve other counties in Alabama in marketing cotton.

Are you a cotton farmer? If so surely you are interested in getting the best price for your cotton. Definite and practical plans are being worked out through which Chilton County may cooperate with twelve other counties in Alabama in selling their cotton directly to mills, and to national and international buyers. Since cotton is the principal money crop of the South, and since the value of this product is, to a very large extent, based on the grade and staple, we believe that you are interested in having your cotton graded and stapled by a licensed and bonded grader. By selling in bulk a graded and stapled cotton, we should be able to get the true value of our grades and staple as well as the highest market price. We believe it to the interest of every cotton farmer to attend this meeting and hear the plan explained. Mr. W. P. Gordon of Oneonta, Ala., who is a practical farmer, and who has had much experience in grading, stapling and marketing cotton both for himself and for cooperative associations of farmers of various states, will be here to explain fully the proposed plan. Every cotton farmer in Chilton County is urged to attend this meeting.

PASSING FOOTPRINTS

Of The Times

— Billy Smith

What We See
We shall see what we see. We know that this newspaper will continue to be one of those far-famed straw men of the presidential election, and the first ballot appears on the next page this week. Cut out the straw man, mark your choice and mail to Chilton County News. After a sufficient number have been mailed in the News will start publishing the straw men each week not only from Chilton County, but from the entire nation. We shall see what we shall see—especially how Chilton County is interested in the Presidential election.

Have Shoes
We can see no reason in particular why the people of Chilton County go without shoes this fall—nor even now. We went in The Leader today to see Maurice Lande, and found him, eventually, behind one of the largest stacks of new shoes we have ever seen in our life. "There's a thousand pairs of Star Brand shoes in this store," he told us. And he was rubbing our eyes for awhile in admiration we believed him. Yes, Maurice has the shoes for the people of this section.

The Ring
We were given authority this week to make the statement that Mayor C. F. Jones is now a candidate to succeed Mayor M. J. Soberg as Mayor of the City of Clanton, and it looks as if his hat will be the only one in the ring and that the people of Clanton are going to see that becomes Clanton's permanent mayor. So far, we have not heard even rumor that anyone will oppose Mr. Jones.

Done It
Dewey Rockett has scored again. According to an announcement in the News this week, Dewey Rockett, of the Clanton Building Supply Co., has one better on the sale of automobiles.

Wanting To You
We take pleasure in presenting to you this week, Mrs. Lucile Adams. She has just accepted a position with the News and will be on hand to our friends and customers. Mrs. Adams comes from Thorsby, and is a daughter of one of the oldest families in the county. She has had considerable experience in business and is now headway in learning the newspaper business at the News. She was chosen for the place from a list of thirty applicants in response to a small advertisement which appeared in last week's News. We would like for our friends to come around and introduce themselves to Mrs. Adams at any time.

You Seen It?
Is right up there in the right hand corner of the Murray-Bell Hardware store where Jimmie Bell has a condition that comes near to being personal motion—and it'll make you bat your eyes and scratch your head and you see it going 'round and 'round. And so Jimmie is at it again, he wants to watch him.

About Chilton
When did this county of ours become famous? Why was Chilton County famous? Who was responsible for its fame? All these are interesting questions and the News brings to you this week that are just interesting.

A series of articles prepared especially for the News, John M. Van Meter, Jr. of Clanton, has delved into the history of Chilton County from its early days and will bring to you some of the most interesting information that has been presented about Chilton County in some time. The first of these articles appears in this issue under the title "Chilton County In The Making."

CHILTON MAY SHARE IN HUGE HIGHWAY FUND

Division Engineer Will Visit County To Recommend Roads For Paving

Chilton County is slated to share in a big way in the huge highway appropriation that was recently made by Congress in that Alabama is to receive $500,000 in January, 1937, and a like amount in January, 1938, for rural road building.

This information was brought to Chilton County by Representative Charlie Cox and Supervisor T. J. Arledge after a visit to the State Highway Department in Montgomery, recently.

The Highway Department stated to these men that it would send to this county a division engineer to look over roads and make recommendations as to the roads most suitable for this work and those roads that will serve the largest number of people in the county, Mr. Cox stated.

Mr. Arledge stated that it is the plan of the department to take the main county road first for this reconstructing and paving program. Such main roads as the one from Union Grove to Jenison, from Collins Chapel to Thorsby, from Verbera to the Enterprise community, the Lay Dam road and the one from Baker School toward Billingsley, Mr. Cox pointed out that

JONES ANNOUNCES AS A CANDIDATE TO SUCCEED SELF

Points Out Many Outstanding Things The City Has Achieved Under His First Administration As Mayor Of Clanton

Mayor C. Fenn Jones this week is announcing his candidacy for re-election as mayor of the City of Clanton. Mayor Jones and his present board of Councilmen have given the city a very sensible and economical administration, and have made many improvements of various kinds during their tenure of office.

In his announcement, given below, Mayor Jones sets out his various accomplishments, and expresses his thanks and appreciation to the Councilmen and citizens of the city for their cooperation in helping to give Clanton the fine administration of its business affairs which it has enjoyed. Below is reproduced the Mayor's letter of announcement, in full:

"On October 1st, I will have served as mayor two years. The duties and work connected with the office have been beneficial to me, especially mentally and physically, but financially, very little. I have had no selfish interest to foster, and the greatest pleasure I have experienced has been in trying to improve our city. Having had the valuable assistance of the Council and employees, and the good will and cooperation of the people, I feel justified in claiming my administration has been a success. Without this helpful support the result of my efforts would have been entirely different, and I wish therefore, to sincerely thank each one of you for the kindly assistance given me, and I want you to know that whatever good has been accomplished for our city, that you share largely in the credit for it, because without your combined help, I would have failed."

In the future, Mayor Jones stated, drivers who are inclined to "step on it" in Clanton had better not "step on it" too hard unless they want to be brought up in city court.

Giving Them a Chance

The following editorial is reproduced from the July 23, issue of the Valdosta, (Ga.) Times.

The report of work being done in this county by the Rural Resettlement Administration by which 85 families are being given an opportunity to become self-sustaining, is proving that the American people if given half a chance will work their way out of any depression. It is further proof of the fact that most Americans do not want charity but merely want an opportunity to work and make a living for themselves and their dependents.

Under the program as it has been launched in South Georgia, worthy families are furnished with work animals, seed, fertilizer, food for themselves and their live stock, and farm implements. The various expenses are charged to them and they are expected to repay the money so advanced with interest.

In their farming operations the families are required to follow the directions laid down for them by the county supervisor and the women of the households have the advantage of the advice and suggestions of the home demonstration agent. Thus is insured to each farm scientific planning management. Proof of the fact that such farming will pay in South Georgia is the fact that between 75 and 80 per cent of all the money advanced to the families will be repaid by the end of the harvesting season.

Not only will these people repay the greater part of the money in one year, but they will have accumulated a considerable amount of supplies which will contribute largely to their living next year.

The Rural Resettlement Administration was undertaken as a temporary program for the relief of families in distress, but the results have been so beneficial that it is confidently expected that it will be made a permanent governmental agency. In the end it does not cost the government one cent, since the money which is advanced is repaid with interest. It serves a two-fold purpose. First, it removes from the direct relief rolls thousands of people who would otherwise be a charge on society. And second, it gives those people an opportunity to regain their independence and restores their self respect and their confidence in their ability to make their own way in the world. Naturally, some of the cases are not successful. But the failures are few. The program is one of the most worthwhile of all that have been undertaken by the federal government and those who are familiar with the results obtained are enthusiastic about it. To lend a helping hand to those who are the victims of an economic depression is a laudable undertaking and a very proper function of government, Governor Talmadge to the contrary.

—O-O-O—
"Gov. Landon said the American people want homes, a chance for their children, reasonable security. They do, which explains why they elected Mr. Roosevelt."—Little Rock Democrat (Dem.)

—O—
"If there was wisdom in the solemn speech with which Gov. Landon opened his campaign for the Presidency it was well concealed. The burden of his speech was that he would do better what Roosevelt alone had the courage and the vision to begin, that the party under which the nation sank to the depths of the depression is better qualified to carry on the Roosevelt program of escape from those depths."—Raleigh News and Observer, (Dem.)

—O—
"The quality of creativeness President Roosevelt has demonstrated and Candidate Landon seems to have utterly ignored. That is why we believe that Candidate Landon deserves to run a good second to President Roosevelt next November."—Newark Ledger (Ind.)

Republicanism vs. Facts

No single utterance of Gov. Alf M. Landon in his acceptance speech was so prominently displayed in the ultra-conservative press of the nation as his near-bald assertion that President Roosevelt has been "fumbling with recovery." Editorially they proclaimed it a classic.

Then almost immediately they were confronted with a "contra-seasonal" report from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. And they put it inside, not always next to pure reading matter. In some of the great journals of reaction, the piece was whittled down to a few paltry paragraphs. Some left it out entirely, thus upholding the freedom of the press.

But the report was interesting, especially when laid alongside the prime utterance of the Republican nominee. It said:

"The course of events carried employment in manufacturing establishments in June, 1936, to a point higher than at any time since October, 1930."

"If the second half of the present year has usual relations to the first half, employment in manufacturing will be back to the level of the Spring of 1930."

"Manufacturing has not been alone in going forward. In the first six months of 1936, construction would seem to have aggregated in value at least 76 per cent more, for the country as a whole, than in the corresponding part of 1935. The figures published by the building trades unions show that more of their members are now employed than in the Spring of 1930."

"The course of 1936 may show this as the best year in physical volume of business since 1929."

The only figure mentioned was the "at least 76 per cent" improvement in construction over the first six months of 1935. According to the Chamber's previous figures, that makes the gain in construction contracts actually carried out since 1933, total 242 per cent. The Roosevelt recovery, it will be noted, as for example the gain of 1,297 per cent in net earnings of industrial corporations in three years, is cumulative.

Now while Gov. Landon's speech warned that President Roosevelt is infringing upon the freedom of citizens, his more loquacious running mate worked himself into a frenzy on this point. As the publisher of newspapers in Chicago and New England and perhaps having in mind his experiences as general manager of the great Hearst chain of papers in maintaining freedom of expression, the colonel was more emphatic on the subject to which the du Pont Liberty League is dedicated.

But the day after Col. Knox had burst our ear drums, the civil liberties committee of the American Bar Association completed its two-year study and made public its report to the convention in Boston. Concerning "Constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech, of the press, of assembly and of petition" the report used these words:

"The careless assertion that the policies and practices of the present national Administration either challenge or infringe these political rights of the citizens has no justification."

Nor is that all of the blunt reproaches that have been heaped upon the Governor, the Colonel and Chairman Hamilton, even if unwittingly from high sources that could not be called pro-New Deal. After both acceptances were recorded, we find the magazine Banking, which is issued by The American Bankers Association, saying in its current issue the following:

"Business activity continues to expand with little regard for the traditional uncertainties of an election year. The quadrennial period of campaigning finds the country assured that defeatism has itself been defeated and determined that the fruits of this major victory shall be held . . . It would appear that fundamentally more important at this juncture is the FACT of the recovery."

And this in spite of the speech Gov. Landon made to the American Bankers Association in September, 1933, against the Roosevelt policy of insuring bank deposits.

—O—
"It seemed easy enough for Gov. Landon to say blandly that 'if business were freed from incessant governmental intimidation and hostility, everybody in America would have a job.' But his assertion is absurd and he probably knows it."—Richmond Times-Dispatch. (Ind. Dem.)

—O—
"The conclusion is inescapable that Gov. Landon believes the New Deal has appropriated most of the vote-getting arguments. He therefore seeks to make the rose smell sweeter by giving it another name."—Kansas City Journal. (Ind.)

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

At one time Doctor Slaughter of the North Alabama conference was the agent for the Orphan's home at Summerville. He being a bachelor of long standing he had developed a unique character and became the blunt end of many a joke. One Sunday he was taking up a collection for the orphan home and necessity said that he must collect fifty dollars at that service. He had it all but five dollars and he addressed a nice looking young man in the audience saying, "Young man, if I were as good looking as you are and had a sweetheart in this church I would pay that five dollars myself." Well, no sooner had he spoken than a maid with the pinch and the pull of many summers arose and without a smile said to him, "Doctor Slaughter, if you will pay that five dollars I will be your sweetheart." The old doctor planked the five dollars on the table and said, "We will receive the benediction." However, the old doctor died a bachelor.

At one time the same old Methodist preacher was holding a revival in a country church and the situation was as dry as dust. The doctor preached and prayed but no signs of rain. We called on one of the Amen corner members to lead in a prayer and the brother crawled down upon his knees and began thus, "Lord, we are dry dusty bunch of church members here in this church and we need a refreshing shower. Please Lord listen to my prayer and send us a downpour in this moment. At that moment in the brother's prayer the good doctor lifted his head above the pulpit and said out loud, "Don't you do it Lord, you will waste your powers; we have no room down here for such a blessing." Some folks pray for a potential outpour when they have no room to receive it. Doctor make room for such a blessing before you pray for it.

A contractor was taking down the steel work of a building and was lowering the steel bars to the ground with ropes and pulleys. A crew of men would stand in position with hickory sticks resting on their shoulders, and when the weight was about to come down upon the cross bars resting on the shoulders of the men, the contractor would shout, "Steady men, steady men." Standing by I could see the men's shoulders going down under the weight, but not one man went down. Let me say to every young man and every young woman as you stand ready to receive the approaching weight of life and responsibility, "Steady my lad, steady my lady." Soon you will be carrying the weight of the world upon your shoulders and brace yourselves like men. The weight of life will be heavy upon you, but do not give down.

The wonder of our nature is revealed in the stability of the heat of the body. Body heat is around ninety eight and a half degrees, and yet our natures are such as to hold that heat when we enter weather that is thirty degrees below zero. Like a stoker on a steamship we may enter a room where the heat is one hundred and thirty degrees above zero, and still the body has the power to keep down the heat. There is great danger when the heat of the body goes up eight degrees, or when it goes down eight degrees. We preserve our health, to preserve our lives our bodies must function in the regulation of heat. Thus God is teaching us in our very bodies the necessity of an even steady attitude toward life. The man who counts in any community is the man who is always the same. You can not beat him, you cannot scare him, he is steady in the heat and in the cold, in misfortune and in prosperity.

Observation makes it clear that when a man has an unused arm that the good arm must do double duty and it grows stronger, while the unused limb grows smaller and weaker. When one of the kidneys is removed from the body, the remaining kidney will double in size to take care of filtering the fluids of the body. In a certain school for crippled children there was a little boy who had lost the use of his lower limbs with infantile paralysis. He learned to walk on his hands. When he was ready to travel about, up stairs or town, anywhere, he would fold his disabled limbs about his neck and walk on his hands with ease. Truly it is the law of nature that we must use or lose, that in service alone we preserve our powers.

BIRTHDAY DINNER

A large crowd met at the home of J. Best Sunday, August 16, to celebrate the birthday of little Gus Payson and Mrs. W. J. Best.

Friends and relatives began to arrive about 9 o'clock. At the noon hour most bountiful dinner was spread under a large oak tree and everyone ate their heart's content.

The most interesting talk was made by Rev. J. W. Gibson after which the service was graced by the Rev. Ocie Payson.

To make the occasion most interesting we had with us two of the oldest most lovable ladies in the person of Mrs. Best, better known as "Grand-Ma" and Mrs. F. A. Gibson. Both had to enjoy the day.

Cream and lemonade were served during the day.

After enjoying the wonderful hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Best were: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gibson and William Lee; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jones and Mrs. W. H. Hayes and William Lee; Mr. and Mrs. Ocie Payson and sons, R. J. and Gus.

Miss Geraldine Payton and Mr. A. D. May, Mrs. Otis Scott and son, Kenneth, Mrs. Brozelle of Prattville, Mr. Jones and friends, Misses Maggie Bessie Prickett, and Mr. Clay.

The honorees received many beautiful and useful presents. We hope for many more such happy birthdays.

MAKED advantage of a cherished secret of Hawaiian cookery the time you want your green vegetables to taste especially delicious. Instead of cooking in plain water use one-third natural, un-sweetened Hawaiian pineapple juice two-thirds water. You'll be delighted with the added tenderness the vegetables acquire.

discarded, but still firm-on-it-table can frequently be converted into a serviceable piece of furniture for the same room by using a new top of wood fibre insulation, or tempered pressed wood. The top is to be covered with the wood fibre insulation and be used and the cloth laid down without glue. It can then be drawn tightly and fastened at sides with large brass-headed slatery nails. If the table is to be used for beverage glasses, etc., uncovered, tempered pressed wood is suggested.

FARMER EXPOSES FARM JOURNAL IN ITS STRAW BALLOT

The true political position of the Farm Journal, which is conducting a supposedly non-partisan Presidential poll of American farmers, was brought to light in an article in The New York Post. It develops now that the poll conducted by the farm paper is non-partisan only in a Pickwickian sense.

This interesting revelation was made to The Post by Walter A. Hoenes, thirty-two, a farmer of Cologne, N. J. Mr. Hoenes is a Democrat, in fact, a blatant Democrat. He subscribed for the Farm Journal in October, 1935. When he read about the publication's poll of its readers, he naturally expected to receive a ballot. When he didn't he was chagrined. He wanted his vote for President Roosevelt to count in the poll, so he drew up his own ballot. He sent it to the Farm Journal with a letter freely expressing his pro-Roosevelt sentiments. Shortly thereafter he received the following letter from the Farm Journal, bearing the editor's signature:

"Dear Mr. Hoenes: You seem to believe very thoroughly in Mr. Roosevelt and his methods and if so, I am sure you are going to be very unhappy if you continue to read the Farm Journal. We expect to do our best to stop Mr. Roosevelt's borrowing, spending, budget deficits and increasing taxes, which is about the only contribution that Mr. Roosevelt has made to returning prosperity.

"Would you not be happier reading some other farm magazine which supports Mr. Roosevelt if you can find one? Very truly yours, Arthur H. Jenkins, Editor."

In addition to suffering this affront to his political sentiments, Mr. Hoenes complains that he has received no more copies of the magazine, though, he asserts his subscription had three months to run.

Altogether Mr. Hoenes is somewhat skeptical of the "fair and impartial" character of the Farm Journal's poll,

Twelve Millionth Car Put Out By Chevrolet

Detroit, Aug. 14—Harry Hartz, famous race driver, and designer and builder of two Indianapolis speedway winners, left here this week on a tour of the east, southeast, and midwest, in Chevrolet No. 12,000,000, completed at Flint on Aug. 5.

The car will be displayed in the cities along the route, with several days' stop-over at the Great Lakes Exposition in Cleveland. It will eventually become a part of the General Motors display at the Texas Centennial in Dallas.

Although best known for his exploits on the track, Hartz has come to the fore in recent years as a proponent of safe driving. He has been driving cars for more than 20 years, and has never had a road accident. In more than 40,000 miles of driving during the past year—during which he has crossed the continent seven times—he has not so much as scratched a fender. One of these trips was made in a fully-loaded Chevrolet truck, which crossed the continent from Los Angeles to New York, in the middle of winter, under the supervision of the American Automobile Association at a total cost of $57.59 for gasoline and oil.

The railroads, like every other business in the land, have had their problems, and like every other enterprising business, have faced these problems with honesty and patience, with resourcefulness, most of all with determination to go ahead.

A vast range and variety of betterments in railroad practice and equipment is the result—air-conditioning, stepping-up passenger schedules to a point where many limited trains now average a minute a minute speed, and speeding up freight transport—an average of 45%.

But the real story of railroad enterprise is scarcely told by these figures, for it is a story of speed with safety unmatched by any other transportation in the world!

Read this 7-year-old BOY'S ANSWER

THEY were seated at the table in a restaurant—a 7-year-old boy, his dad and sister. They were residents of Elmore County, Alabama.

At a nearby table there was a discussion of Alabama schools, the school term and school finance. The children could not help overhearing the conversation.

Said the daughter, "Dad, why is it that Elmore County pays its teachers more and runs its schools longer than any other county in Alabama?"

Her 7-year-old brother quickly replied: "Because of taxes paid by Alabama Power Company."

The schools in YOUR county operate for longer terms and pay their teachers more than they could if through the establishment of governmental power enterprises, the state, counties and municipalities were deprived of taxes now paid by Alabama Power Company, and other private utility companies.

FARMERS HAVE BILLION DOLLAR COTTON CROP

Auburn, Ala.—Cotton brought $1,000,000,000 to the South last year and indications are that it will bring about that much again this year.

The August 1 crop report estimates a crop of 12,481,000 bales. If this number of bales is harvested and cotton continues to bring 12c or above per pound and cottonseed 330 or more per ton, the crop will bring farmers almost a billion dollars.

At present prices the estimated cotton crop of 1,065,000 bales will bring to Alabama farmers about $375,000,000 in cash. This value does not include any of the $10,000,000 which cooperating farmers of the State are due in benefit payments under the Agricultural Conservation program.

To Washington And Return

An Interesting Article Prepared By Hon. G. C. Walker, Attorney Of Clanton

On the next day we went to the battlefield at Gettysburg. This battlefield is some seventy-eight miles north of Washington and in the State of Pennsylvania. It is thrilling and wonderful to go over this battlefield and have the guide tell you what was done on this battlefield. On the 1st, 2nd and 3rd days of July 1863, the battle of Gettysburg was fought. History teaches us that on the first day the Southern Army was successful, pushed the Union forces back and took the little city of Gettysburg and on the night of the first day in General Lee's council of War he told his generals what he wanted done. General Longstreet was on the right, General Pickett was in the middle and General Ewell was on the left. This line of battle on the Southern side extended about seven miles in length and General Lee had about 90,000 of the bravest and best trained soldiers who had ever marched upon a battlefield. No braver men ever fought than those who fought in this battle on the 2nd day of July, 1863. In his council of War on the night of July 1, 1863, General Lee ordered Pickett to charge through an open field and take Little Round Top, in the history of war this charge is known as "Pickett's Charge." He ordered Longstreet to come up from his rear, he ordered General Ewell to bring his forces from the left and center on Big Round Top after Pickett had taken Little Round Top. General Longstreet did not agree with General Lee and did not bring his men up until about three o'clock in the afternoon. Pickett made his charge as ordered and took Little Round Top and it is said that this charge of Pickett's on that day was possibly the greatest slaughter of men that is known in all history. Those men fought hand-to-hand, they fought with bayonets, they fought with the butts of their guns. On the night of the second day the Southern forces had not taken what Lee thought they should have, General Longstreet had not done what General Lee ordered him to do. The fighting continued on the 3rd day but General Lee withdrew from the field and the battle was a victory for the Union forces and from that day the South began to wane. The Union forces had in this battle about 100,000 men, in the Southern Army there were about 90,000. There were between 80,000 and 90,000 men killed in this battle on both sides. We were told by the guide that at a certain spring just to the south of Little Round Top that under a flag of truce the Southern soldiers and the Northern soldiers drank water from this spring and played cards together on the night of July 2nd, 1863, and the next morning went back to their command and went to fighting each other. We drank water from this spring and I must tell you it was good cold water!

We went to the great monument erected on this battlefield by the United States Government to perpetuate the honor of the place where President Lincoln stood and made that wonderful and immortal speech to the honor and glory of the Union soldiers who had fallen in this battle. There has been a great amount of money spent building monuments to honor the soldiers who fell in this battle. Almost every State has a monument erected to the memory of the men from their State who died there. It is said that Minnesota had 267 men in this battle and 82 per cent of them were killed. There were men in this battle from Alabama, Georgia, Texas and most of the Southern States, and there were men in this battle from most every state on the northern side, but the States that suffered most and the States that furnished the most men in this battle were New York and Pennsylvania on the Northern side and Virginia and North Carolina on the side of the Southern forces. Soldiers are buried everywhere, monuments erected and inscriptions thereon and when one leaves this battlefield his mind is impressed with the greatness of the battle and the great loss of the men who died there.

The next day we went to Annapolis and saw the United States Naval Academy. This is a wonderful school and is maintained by the United States government. It is located on the Chesapeake Bay and affords training for soldiers for the Navy. We visited the Chapel on these grounds and John Paul Jones, who is said to be the father of the U. S. Navy is buried in this Chapel. It is strange to me and I do not know why, but it appears that people have begun to bury their illustrious dead in the open in caskets enclosed of course but perfectly visible to the eyes, John Paul Jones is buried this way and so is George Washington, and our great Woodrow Wilson.

We visited the National Cathedral and our own great President Woodrow Wilson is buried in this wonderful Cathedral. I went so near to this casket that I could have placed my hand on it. This wonderful Cathedral, we were told was begun in 1907 and has not yet been completed.

Much has been said and much has been written about the City of Washington. One can stand on the west portion of the Capitol and in the open distance he can see Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial and many great artists have said that this is by far the most beautiful sight in all the world. When you get to the Lincoln Memorial you can look across the Potomac River and over Memorial Bridge to Arlington. This Lincoln Memorial is not more than 200 yards from the Potomac River. When one comes here and remains here for a week and sees all of these monuments he is almost bewildered, when it is not Washington it is Jackson and when it is not Jackson it is Lincoln.

WPA And PWA Are Compared

Relative Merits Of Agencies Studied By Experts For President Roosevelt

Washington, Aug. 17.—Officials today a report on a survey of the comparative merits of WPA and PWA have been submitted to President Roosevelt by the budget bureau. The inquiry was undertaken at the president's request and was aimed at determining the effectiveness of the two methods of providing relief and their comparative costs.

A dispute over this question has existed intermittently within new deal circles for months, with Secretary of the administrator of the public works administration, frequently at odds with Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator.

Mrs. John Findlay of Los Angeles in her divorce suit against her husband charged that his ambition was to be a hangman, and that he spoke about it in such a manner before her friends that they left shuddering.

600,000 Young Men And Women Receive NYA Aid

Youth Organization Completes First Year Of National Program

Aubrey Williams, Executive Director, Reports 1936 Job Prospects Brighter

By Aubrey Williams
That the program of the National Youth Administration is drawing to the close of its first year, it is interesting to take stock of its accomplishments.
More than 600,000 young men and women are earning NYA wages for necessary to local communities. These 208,600 young people are school students, 128,500 undergraduate college students, 6900 graduate college students, and 210,000 are school youths employed on work projects.
In addition, the NYA is aiding young people thru the job guidance and placement services set up in four selected communities, thru educational camps for unemployed young women and thru an apprenticeship training program.
CLOSING AGAINST THEM
With the coming of the depression doors of educational opportunity are closing slowly but surely in the thousands of students who had been failing in their studies and had not been lax in trying to outside work to defray the expenses of a school or college education.

ODD JOBS SCARCE
Of jobs were scarce, and private scholarship funds were drying up. Keeping with the American tradition of maintaining in so far as possible educational opportunities the NYA has extended to some students the opportunity to earn education—and, of course, they accepted it gladly and have made most of it.

Bad Feeling Due to Constipation

Get rid of constipation by taking Black-Draught as soon as you notice bowel activity has slowed up or begin to feel sluggish. You will prefer Black-Draught for the relief it has brought them.
Ray Mullins, of Leno, Ark., says: "My husband and I both take Black-Draught and find it a splendid for constipation, biliousness and the disagreeable, aching feeling that comes from this condition." With reference to Syrup Black-Draught, which this mother gave her children, she says: "They like the taste and it gave such good results."

BLACK-DRAUGHT

variety of subjects, these students have been doing useful and valuable work.

PART-TIME JOBS

For the out-of-school young people the NYA has provided part-time job opportunities on work projects especially planned to fit their aptitudes and interests as well as the needs of the local communities. Many of the projects furnish and extend recreational facilities thru the construction of playgrounds and the supervision of play activities.

LACKED EXPERIENCE

The youth group as a whole is seriously handicapped by its lack of work experience.

Almost one-fourth of the young people eligible for work relief one month before the NYA was established had had no work experience whatsoever.

Underlying the work projects as well as the student-aid projects is, accordingly, the principle of learning to do by doing.

Definite attempts are being made to initiate projects which will give young people training that will be helpful to them in getting a job.

HARD ROW TO HOE

Young people will still have a much harder row to hoe than their fathers and grandfathers had.

For they must contend with forces which only the organized efforts of society can control.

While it definitely does not want to encourage young people to feel that they, as a group, should be accorded special privileges, the National Youth Administration is attempting during this period of insecurity to provide young people with some of the opportunities which have been denied them.

IN MEMORY OF J.C. JONES

A loved one from us now is gone.
A voice we loved is still.
A place is vacant in his home,
Which never can be filled.
We loved him, yes, we loved him,
But angels loved him more.
And they have sweetly called him
To yonder shining shore.
The golden gates were opened,
A gentle voice said, "Come"
And with his farewells spoken,
He happily enter home.
His body now lies sleeping
Beneath the silent sod.
Where the wind is softly whispering
And the flowers gently nod.
His tenderness always lingers
Thru sunshine and thru rain
To comfort those who loved him Until they meet again.
—A cousin, Lela Devaughn.

WAY TO KILL BEETLES IS TOLD BY ROBINSON

Auburn, Ala.—Rains during recent weeks have caused Mexican bean beetles, cabbage worms, and potato beetles to become numerous in many sections of Alabama.

These insects can be controlled by the use of derris and sulphur, advises Prof. J.M. Robinson, head of the zoology-entomology department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The mixture of 1 pound of ground derris root containing 4 to 5 per cent rotenone and 7 pounds of sulphur should be dusted on the plants to control the insects.

Mrs. Frank Pesetz of Milwaukee, in her suit for divorce against her husband, charged that he tried to sell her to a man of 60 for $100,000.

More Powers, Fewer Flowers, Say Women

And Jim Farley Apparently Is Willing To Accede To Their Demands

By JAMES A. FARLEY

Many women have been elected as delegates to the Democratic National Convention. They represent practically every State of the Union. More significantly, they represent a new state—a state of political parity with men—a new state of New Deal quality.

The women of America are beyond the flower stage of politics. They are no longer beguiled by rhetorical bouquets. They say—"Fewer flowers; more powers, please."

Heard Their Plea

And three years ago a Democratic President—Franklin D. Roosevelt—heard and hearkened to their plea.

He smashed precedents by sending several celebrated women down into history when he moved them up to nationally important positions—positions never before held by women.

He appointed many other worthy women to less spectacular but equally important positions throughout the country.

A New Horizon

He gave to the average woman, regardless of her party or her policy, a new horizon of hope—political, personal, professional. He furthered the cause of social security. He accelerated the welfare work for the very young and the very old. He helped women help the nation's sick and maimed. These are no fancies of a prediction. These are the facts of an administration.

A Permanent Place

In the New Deal there is a new and a permanent place for an old right—the right of woman to participate in her government. Ballots are sexless. For the past three years, benefits, too, have been sexless.

The women of America want the results of the New Deal to continue. The women of America, therefore, want the New Deal to continue.

Legumes Improve Pecans And Fruits

Many Alabama farmers profit each year by planting their pecan groves and fruit orchards in winter legumes.

The legumes help pecans, peaches, and apples by adding nitrogen and humus and retaining moisture in the soil when the crop is turned under by shallow plows or cut and left on the ground in the spring.

This axe is in no "guaranteed perfect" condition. It has been used too long and hard for that!

Like the "old family toothbrush", unsanitary dishpan and other relics of an inconvenient past, the Saturday-night-bath-axe has been replaced by a modern, automatic Electric Water Heater in thousands of Alabama homes.

Keeping children fresh and clean--shaving--washing dishes and clothing (and many other every-day practices) aren't nearly so bothersome when you have plenty of hot water, ready at the turn of a faucet.*

"Wise In Finding Method; Brave in Making Prompt Decisions; Fair Among All Classes"

"You can get the same story out of the newspapers of every State in the Union—the same note of deep despair four years ago; the same rebirth of hope when the new President took office; the same jubilant headlines recording renewed earnings of agriculture and industry as of today," said Chairman James A. Farley of the Democratic National Committee in an address at Devil's Lake, North Dakota, Tuesday afternoon.

"Well, how did all this come about? What caused a bankrupt nation to become solvent in these few years? What put the prices of corn and wheat hogs and cattle, cotton and tobacco up to where there is a chance for the farmer to get out of debt and send his children to school properly clad and fed? What put the industrial regions back to a position where the ownership of houses and lands no longer meant economic misery?"

"Obviously, some of these things could not have been accomplished if the others were not. Restoration of the buying power of the farmer made the wheels of the mills turn; re-employment of the operatives in those mills gave a market for the produce of the farms. Which came back first is as unimportant as that old trick question of whether the hen preceded the egg or the egg started the poultry line. They came along together, as Franklin D. Roosevelt told you in 1932 they must, if our economic system was to be saved.

"What did this? Was it that without any calculable cause the farmers suddenly became super-efficient, or that business men abruptly developed a capacity they lacked when their enterprises were paralyzed? Or was it that there came to be head of your Government a man wise enough to find a method of stopping the spinning downward of all our enterprises, brave enough to make perilous decisions promptly, just enough to be fair among all classes and interests? You know the answer without my putting it into words.

"Sad to say, in the course of performing the biggest job that ever confronted an American executive, some things were done that passed the muster of the Supreme Court. I know how mortified a law-abiding people like you must feel that you made your way back to comparative economic safety under an unlawful system. I presume your distress under the circumstances was equal to the dismay of the mill workers who found themselves with shorter hours and higher pay under the equally unconstitutional NRA.

"So the President is accused by our adversaries of usurpation; of assuming powers for himself and for Congress beyond what the Constitution permits. He has much good company among his great predecessors, for there has never been a great Chief Executive against whom the same charge was not made. Usurper was one of the milder terms applied to Washington; Jefferson strayed beyond constitutional limits when he effected the Louisiana Purchase; Andrew Jackson was off-side in a variety of instances and so was Abraham Lincoln with the emancipation proclamation, among other acts.

"To listen to the shocked expressions of the Republican editors and orators, not to mention the spokesmen for the Du Pont Liberty League, is to get a picture of unparalleled alarm for the security of American institutions. Yet, despite the numerous occasions when Presidents have differed from the views of the great judicial body the Supreme Court remains the highest tribunal of the land and the balance among the three divisions of our Government is preserved. Undoubtedly in the future, as in the past, when Presidents are ruled against they will seek new laws that will meet

Chilton County In The Making

A Brief Outline Of The History Of This County From Authentic Records And Files

By JOHN M. VANDERVEER, JR.

This is the first of a series of articles prepared especially for the News on the formation and the making of Chilton County.

Our county of Chilton is one of the youngest of the State of Alabama. Cullman County is the only other county in the state younger than Chilton. In comparison with some of the other counties of the state it is but a mere infant but in spite of the handicap of years we are outstripping them and are beginning to assume among those sister counties that position of eminence to which nature by her generous gifts intended us to occupy.

It is our purpose to review step by step the progress and history of our county. To supplement where possible the known facts in the story of our County. There are undoubtedly many interesting facts in our short span of twenty years which are as yet unknown and it is our purpose to bring them to light for our mutual pleasure and benefit.

Prior to the expulsion of the Indian and the occupation of his land by the white this section lay in the territory ascribed to the Creek Indian. There were four primary Nations of Indians in Alabama. The Cherokees occupied the northeastern part of the state. The Chickasaws claimed the northwestern section and the Choctaws occupied the territory from the Tombigbee to the west. The Creeks were found in the Valley of the Coosa and the Alabama. Lying in the central portion of the state this section lay under the domination of the Creek but he seems to have made very little use of it except as a hunting preserve. No aboriginal towns have been found within its bounds or any other relic of Indian occupation worthy of particular note.

Prior to the advent of the white man and the expulsion of the Indian from this territory our county has little history of note or interest.

Dealing now with that phase of our history before and during the Civil War we find that the story of Chilton County divides itself naturally into two divisions. The first including the beginning of white settlement in the county concerns the development of the western part of the county and those parts nearest to Selma. This section being more adapted to farming on a large scale, as was practiced in the South prior to the war, was early developed under the influence of Selma, Maplesville, being the principal town of the section, was founded early in the history of the state.

The Eastern part of the county with its more rugged terrain developed at a much slower rate. Its inaccessibility due to its geographical position retarded its settlement and as it was not fitted for farming on the scale of the western area, only a few farmers were scattered here and there. As a matter of fact the entire population of the county was approximately 6,000 with one thousand blacks.

The territory which we now know as Chilton was at that time divided among various counties; namely, Bibb, Perry, Dallas, Autauga, and Shelby. Territory was taken from each of these counties to form this county in 1868. The immediate reason for the formation of Chilton County can only be deduced from the facts which we now have available. The territory, from what is now the L&N Railroad eastward was at the time of the Civil War very rough and thinly populated. There were no towns within a radius of 30 miles and altogether it was rather a forest primeval.

The few settlers in this territory had little sympathy for the South as they were small farmers and held few slaves. This territory provided a good retreat for those who wanted to be out of the zone of conflict in the East and those who not sympathizing with the South, refused to fight for it. These refugees increased the population of this part of the county. At the war they petitioned the legislature for the right to organize a county.

Next week before we progress farther into the formation of the county we hope to discuss one of the last battles of the Civil War to be fought in the South and the only one to be fought on Chilton soil.

If you have in your possession any interesting facts on the history of the county or any peculiar item of interest to the readers of the News concerning Chilton County we will be glad to hear from you.

TUCKER URGES GASOLINE LEVY GO TO SCHOOLS

Suggests Turning Over $2,000,000 Increase In Collections Since 1934

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Aug. 18—A proposal that Alabama's school financing problem for the year now starting be met by a legislative appropriation to the schools of the $2,000,000 annual increase in state gasoline taxes since 1934, was made today by Senator Hayne Tucker of Tuscaloosa.

Tucker, a leader in the senate economic bloc and a Tuscaloosa automobile dealer, called for prompt action by the governor and the legislature to increase funds with which to carry out a minimum school program.

Seeks Assured Minimum Term. The senator gave a statement, in part, as follows: "The people of Alabama unquestionably want an assured minimum term, yet they have clearly indicated that they do not want an additional tax burden. The problem of prohibition will continue to be a controversy. Without leadership seeking economy, this solution offers no hope. An emergency measure must be the method even though the solution of the state's basic problems may be provided the long range answer. Political expediency suggests that a plan be attempted to meet the immediate emergency which leaves out all controversies which caused the lines to be so sharply drawn at the last session of the legislature."

Opposition Unjustified. "Opposition to such a plan can no longer be justified for the simple reason that the plan has defects, but on the ground that the object of the plan is ready to suggest a better plan I suggest this plan."

"I. Appropriate for the use of common schools and institutions of higher learning the increase in the tax which has occurred since June 1, 1934. By taking the increase only on this date, which accounts for an annual sum of over $2,000,000, there will be no penalty to the state under Hayden-Cartwright Act, because the state can continue to use as much money on the highways as it did the date of the passage of the act. This move will in no way improve highway funds because it will leave approximately $3,000,000 annually gas tax money plus $2,000,000 for automobile and truck tags. And looking at our highway development, compared to what the state is doing for schools, it must be remembered that federal projects account for extra millions for our highways but nothing for our schools. . . .

Proposes Shifting Funds. "An additional shifting of funds which would be considered but which is not now recommended until legal status can be determined, is the use of the surplus from the income after interest and sinking fund requirements have been met. This will be a sizeable annual sum and the formal opinion of competent authorities is that this surplus can be used."

"2. Considering the $2,000,000 gas item as the only certain amount, it will bring state support to schools on an all-time peak. Prior to 1929 state reached its peak for school support but this amount, some $2,000,000 under what is now proposed to be used was not nearly all in actual money and represented in good part by warrants which were not cashable at face value."

A carpenter at Newport, Tenn., advertises himself to the world thus: "We make everything here but a ring."

For hugging a girl with one arm while he was driving an automobile Chester Lendon of Evanston, Ill., was fined $10.

Peace-Time PATRIOTISM Individual, Community, National PROSPERITY

We hear a lot about the general prosperity of the nation.
But the first step toward national prosperity is community prosperity, and this is made possible largely through cooperation among its residents.

Every citizen should strive to do his bit toward making the community a better place in which to live. Our community pride and progress will not only benefit the country as a whole, but will give us, as individuals, a greater measure of comfort and happiness, which is the goal of human existence.

It has been pointed out by well known civic authorities that communities are not built through mass effort, but through the combination of individual efforts—and cooperation.

To benefit our community, we must put forth our very best individual efforts every day in the year. Successful and faithful individuals make a prosperous community.

Next to love of home and family should come love of community, state, and nation. In time of war we call love of country patriotism---in peace it is none the less.

We are prompted to sponsor this message to the people of Clanton and vicinity through our interest in community welfare.

Conservation Through Education

By SAM C. NUMMY
Clanton CCC Camp

As I mentioned in my last article the European countries have been practicing conservation over a century. They have taught conservation in their schools and colleges.

Our natural resources have not been conserved our lands have reached our timber exhausted.

Conservation should be taught in every high school class, and credit be given for this subject. The course should begin with soil conservation, wild life, conservation and forestry.

We should also have in each county Conservation Clubs, operated in a similar manner to our 4-H Clubs offer rewards for work accomplished by each member. This club should have boys from the age of 12 to 17 years. The members of the CCC should be obtained from the ranks of the Junior Order.

Fastest Driver Praises Chryslers

Captain George E. P. Eyston, iron-clad Briton, who recently traveled over on land than ever human being traveled before for any distance faster than a few miles, finds much praise in the Chrysler car. Three months of constant use of a Chrysler and a Chrysler DeLuxe Eighty-eight in Captain Eyston's possession, has set a record-making run on the salt flats at Bonneville, Utah, won his undying admiration. Before sailing for home in England, the greatest of race drivers stopped in Detroit for a couple of days and told Chrysler engineers just what he thought of their product.

Immediately upon landing in America in April, Captain Eyston had the two Chryslers placed at his disposal. His crew drove them to Utah and stayed there for all transportation purposes at the camp on the salt beds. Three months that the Chryslers in Captain Eyston's possession, encountered all manner of driving conditions, from snow on mountain tops to the extreme heat of the Utah desert. Most of the time they were at top speed, for those racing cars have a heavy foot. And at the end of 18,000 miles, the two cars were running more satisfactorily than at any previous time.

Most of the time the cars carried heavy loads. For six weeks or more they were constantly exposed to the heat. When not in use they were left out in the open, which meant during the daytime they frequently were exposed to a temperature of 100 degrees. Naturally the racing mechanical crew had little time to service them, every available moment being given over to the preparation of the English racing car for the world's record from one to 48 hours.

The Chrysler car is splendidly equipped in every respect," said Captain Eyston to the company's engineering staff. "It is a sound job from front to tail lights. The engine performs a marvel of smoothness and efficiency. The body work is very fine, enabling the car to stand up bravely under the severe service these cars. This scientific body construction of great solidity is a well-known fact. It gives one a sense of complete security when driving on the road at high speeds. No rattles or creaks developed in either of the cars. They were exposed to the heat and left out in the open constantly, and the cars driven many thousands of miles under tropical conditions.

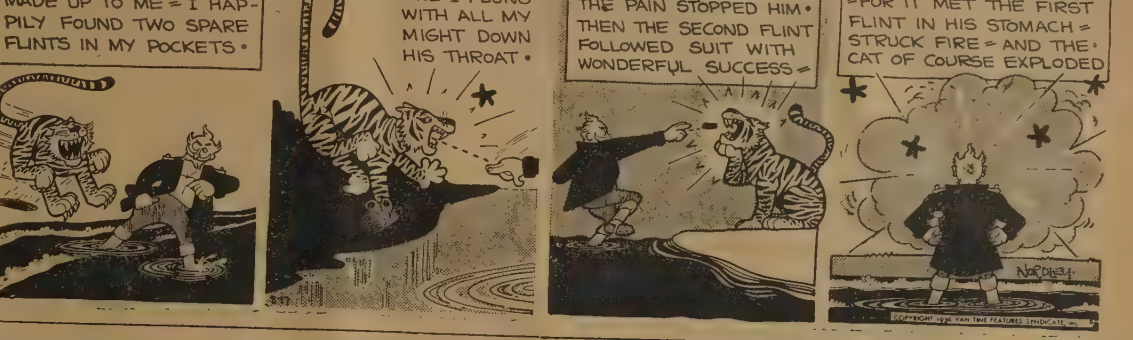

The aerodynamic lines of the Chrysler are sound and scientific, reducing wind resistance and thus saving fuel and oil and engine wear. The weight distribution contributes greatly to the comfort of the seating arrangements in the cars. One of the best I ever saw, enabling one to drive hundreds of miles without fatigue or strain. The springs are driven 18,000 miles and were in our service, with but heavy and high speed driving. But they up perfectly, a tribute both to engineering and the materials used. I was much struck by the instantaneous starting of these cars, both in cold weather and after they had been driven hard in extreme heat. Cars simply won't start after fast until they have been allowed to warm up. The Chryslers responded to touch of the starter instantly.

The Chrysler overdrive impressed

DON'T LAUGH—

Yesterday—Today—Tomorrow

By J. Harrison Miller

Although it sometimes requires a somewhat severe yank at his whiskers to attract his attention, it may be truthfully said that Uncle Sam is pretty generous with his big family of boys and girls. For instance, when the depression came along, some of the more unruly members of his household having much to do with railroads, banks, industry and insurance, approached him tearfully and on bended knees, asking for a "handout." These fellows knew nothing about running a combine, washing a cream separator, or carrying slop to squealing pigs. But they knew a lot about money—furnished by someone else. They got what they wanted, even though they had to ask for it. Billions in federal aid, coupled with cuts in production amounting from twenty five to 100 per cent enabled them to weather the storm.

Manufacturing, transportation and other monopolies cut their activities down, down, down. They knew what was coming—and prepared for it. Some six million farmers, honest, unorganized and less shrewd than their big city cousins, did not see the handwriting on the wall. They did not lower production to fit a declining market. The farm tragedy of 1931-32 was the result. Then, when this same generous Uncle Sam, to whose coattails, in the meantime, someone had hung a sign reading "New Deal," volunteered to do for the farmers exactly what he had done for the big city chaps, these same city chaps proceeded, very untactfully, to get mad about it. They said the result would be everything from communism to rheumatism. But nothing like that has happened—nor will it.

Big Business wanted starvation prices for farm products, so it could pay its labor low wages, while conveniently forgetting to lower the prices of its goods. Neither a farmer nor a manufacturer likes to run his plant at half capacity. But when it must be done, it is as fair for one as the other. Yet Landon Knox Roosevelt.

One Man in a Million

FRED S. BENGE, of Norman, Okla., is one man in a million. He found that out recently when, visiting the Texas Centennial Central Exposition at Dallas, he was pounced upon by a group of guides, greeted by the mayor of Dallas and officials of the fair, hailed by the Centennial Ranger Band, and taken for a jolting ride through the Grand Plaza.

Nonplused at first by the unexpected attention, Mr. Bengel soon learned that he was the Centennial's millionth visitor.

The photo shows the National Cash Register building in the form of a huge cash register which registered 1,000,000 as Mr. Bengel passed into the grounds. In the inset is Mr. Bengel and Miss Mabel Rooks, captain of the Texas Rangerettes, who escorted him about the grounds.

Poor Months To Breed Dairy Cows

Auburn, Ala.—August and September are poor months for breeding dairy cows, advises Prof. W.H. Eaton of the dairy department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"Cows bred in these months will calve during May and June in the flush of the milk producing season at a time when milk prices are on the downward trend."

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank those who assisted us during the illness and death of our loving son and brother, J.C., also for the beautiful floral offerings. We shall always remember the kindness shown us by our neighbors and friends. May God's richest blessings be on each of them.—Mr. and Mrs. G.B. Jones and family.

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she was soon all right."

there are other roads just as essential as these, but that he believed the Department would recommend these particular roads at the beginning.

"This would be a great benefit to the county," Representative Cox stated. "And it is our understanding that no county without a trained engineer in charge of the road system would be eligible for these funds."

was a member.

She came from a well known family of this county, being the youngest daughter of the Rev. F. M. Woods, at one time pastor of the Clanton Baptist church.

Funeral services were held last Thursday afternoon at four o'clock at the Thorsby Baptist Church with the Rev. J. W. Jones and the Rev. W. P. Lowery, officiating. The large number of persons attending this funeral and the many beautiful floral offerings attested to the love and esteem held for this outstanding woman. Interment followed in the Thorsby cemetery with Martin & Sons of Clanton in charge.

She is survived by her husband, one brother, T. D. Woods of Ft. Mills, S. C., four sisters, Mrs. J. J. Lucas of West Blocton, Mrs. J. W. Perry of West Blocton, Mrs. W. C. Johnson of Underwood and Mrs. Mamie Woods of Thorsby.

MAYOR JONES

city hall, as many people from over the state and without the state visit the hall and are very complimentary of Clanton on account of the hall and the general improvement in appearance of our business establishments.

"We are, I believe, more tolerant and more liberal in our views on subjects that affect our social and business life. The desire of groups of people to direct and control the activities and privileges of other groups is a moral code which is violated, but simply possess a spirit to dictate to and regulate the lives of others, appears to be diminishing in our community, which is evidence of a broadening of our minds and views of matters of public concern that affects all of us and the growth of our city."

"I have given much thought to the condition of our schools to determine whether it is best for the city to take over and operate them independently. The council agreed that it was not wise just at this time for the city to assume the responsibility of operation. But I wish to assure you that the Council and myself are very anxious to relieve the unsatisfactory conditions, and shall work with you in your efforts to keep the grammar school open a full term. I have an ambition to formulate a plan under which when the grammar school doors open, they will not close until the end of the ninth month."

"Some complaint has been made that our water rate is too high. It is true the revenue from the sale of water is some greater than the cost of production. But let's consider both sides of the question and see if it is best to reduce the rate as it is a matter of public interest to all. A water system was installed in 1914 at a cost of $25,000, and bonds were issued for the full amount to draw interest at 5 percent, payable yearly, and the entire issue of bonds will be due in 1944. Don't you think it is time to begin preparation to pay these bonds when they come due? I certainly do. Another point connected with the question is this—our property tax rate is very low in Clanton. We pay only 50 cents on each $100 of assessed value of our property. Our neighbor town, Thorsby, pay $1.00, Calera $1.00, Homewood $2.60, Birmingham $3.60, Montgomery $1.25.

So, by comparison with these places it does appear that our government charge is much less than theirs even if our water rate is some higher. The city needs the revenue we are getting so our debts can be reduced and improvements made from time to time. Therefore should we reduce the water rate now the loss in revenue to the city would necessitate a rate to be replaced by raising our property tax rate above the low 50 cents now in effect. I am opposed to any increase in taxes, but I wish to pay our debts so our taxes can be reduced.

"I shall not attempt to dictate to you, but I suggest a Council for another term, but I would be ungrateful to the present Council should I fail to express my appreciation for their loyal support, and assure you that they are true friends of Clanton, and that not one of them has any selfish plans or interest to serve at the expense of the city. They have made good Councilmen and deserve your sympathy and support as splendid servants without pay."

"I desire to mention some of the outstanding accomplishments during my few months in office. The city hall has been built, the water mains extended about 15,000 feet, our population increased from 1,847 to 3,363, trains Nos. 1 and 4 have been added to our train service, an extra engine has been placed at the city wells, a new well has just been completed which furnishes 50 gallons of water per minute, new sand and gravel has been put in the water filtering plant and the filtering tanks given a thorough cleaning, which is the first new sand and gravel used since the plant was installed eight years ago. The sand and gravel comes from Georgia and is expensive. A steel bridge has been built on the Kincheon Road, $14,000 of bonds have been retired, over one hundred water meters have been returned to the factory and made good as new which saved the city more than $600 by not having to buy new meters. I feel safe in saying that today there is not a single meter in use that is not of good service."

"I am told that this kind of attention has never been given the water system before. As a rule when complaints are made that the amount of water charged was not used, a thorough examination of the plumbing in the home discloses leaks that only a good experienced plumber can readily locate.

"I desire to continue to improve and develop the city, and if you are pleased with the record I have made, give me your support and friendly cooperation again and you will not be disappointed in what I do for Clanton in the future."

vett would carry Indiana by at least 100,000 votes and that the democrats would win back the one congressional seat they lost to the republicans in 1934. Gov. Paul V. McNutt also told Farley Indiana would be in the Roosevelt column. J. M. Hooker, democratic state chairman in Virginia, said he could see no basis for republican statements that Virginia was a doubtful state.

"I don't think anyone who considers affairs in Virginia could possibly consider it a doubtful state," he said. "We will carry it for the president. There is no doubt about that."

He said Senators Carter Glass and Harry F. Byrd, both of whom have sharply criticized some new deal activities, actively would support the president in the campaign. Senator Byrd conferred with Farley yesterday afternoon on campaign plans.

Our Votes are Important

Our local, county and state votes in this straw-vote will be of particular interest from everywhere, just as turns from other states will be of interest to the voters here. It is through combined efforts of hundreds of weekly newspapers that such a record of sentiment in the small town and rural America can be obtained.

It is therefore important that you decide now to cast your straw-vote in this balloting, so that your fellow voters for your favorite candidate in other states will know what may be expected from Alabama.

Of first interest, of course, will be the returns shown in our choices here in Chilton County. Decide now to cast your vote. Clip out the ballot, write in the name of the candidate and state, then mail or bring it to Chilton County News.

Returns Each Week

Returns in the local columns will be published in these columns each week as the voting progresses. National returns will also be published as soon as they are available, first releases which should be forthcoming within the next ten days or two weeks.

Let's get the ball rolling here in Chilton County clipping out the ballot, voting it and sending it to this office at once.

Which of the Presidential candidates is going to get an early lead in the votes cast here in Chilton County? First returns here should be most interesting. You'd better vote for presidential choice right now.

Of The Times

Nothing Done

Comes the announcement this week from the office of the Road Supervisor that all work on the county roads maintenance and repair has been suspended until September 1st.

This announcement will no doubt surprise citizens of this county, especially those who have to use the county roads, as being one of the most foolish and unnecessary actions ever attempted in regard to our roads in many years. Coming at the time of year that work and real work, should be forward to prepare our roads for winter.

However, the Road Supervisor's statement said this action was necessary on account of a lack of funds. The first time we can remember, Chilton County seems to be without funds. This may have occurred before, but we can't remember it. And now it has never occurred before. The office of Road Supervisor was created for this county. Not that we are placing the blame on that office. We are simply trying to get at the bottom of the trouble—why are our roads being neglected? Why is it necessary to suspend work on our roads? We are continually having citizens of this county approach us on this subject and telling of the poor conditions of the roads in their communities. Two of these citizens have gone so far as to attempt some method of working roads in front of their homes with their own labor. This condition is becoming deplorable, regrettable and in opinion of the News could be remedied some way. We would like to see our citizens and officials get together in some way and see what could be done about the matter—and done. A month later will be almost too late to save the roads and put them in condition to withstand the ravages of winter rains.

Growing notice that the front page of this week, and on other pages, has been improved, purposed, and expanded, etc., in the business of Chilton. And all these moves, and substantial, meaning Chilton and Chilton County is steadily growing—steady, and sure. And the Clanton and Chilton offers as much, if not more, than any other section in Alabama. It is a little city, just like a lot of other little cities the size of it and see for yourself.

A Lot Of Goods

rambled 'round through the other day and believe you have never seen such an array of fall merchandise arrive in Clanton so early and so complete. Maurice has really put the big pot in this one this year with his fall of men's and ladies' clothing. And that stock of shoes made a top with amazement. A large advertisement on the back page of this of the News tells more about new fall stock just received by leader.

WILLIE CROWSON PETITIONED FOR CITY COUNCIL

petition, signed by a number of citizens of Clanton, was turned in to officials the first of this week, requesting the Mayor to enter the name of Willie Crowson on the ballot as a candidate for one of the places for city council. Since the petition was filled, Mr. Crowson has met the requirements to make his announcement for this city office legal.

Willie Crowson is a hustling young man, residing and operating a business in the eastern part of the county. That section has built up considerably during the past few years, since being incorporated has put the aspect of a real part of the county. It seems that there would be no wrong in letting those people who have the creek have a representative in the city's governing body. And Willie Crowson would make one.

W. M. Wyatt, Former Citizen Of Clanton, Endorses Jones For Mayor Of City

Chilton County News: With much more than usual, I have read what has been in your paper, both editorially and news, about the candidacy of Mr. Jones for another term as Mayor of Clanton. Particularly am I impressed with the fact that a general and necessary paper, both editorially and news, should be and probably will be, to the office without opposition. You will kindly permit me, I say to say that the unanimous opinion of Mr. Jones without opposition is deserved by him on the basis of his record of the past term; that the same is also the best of action from the standpoint of the future and the continuation of a program of progress and good

DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRAT'N AIDS FARMERS

Chilton County Gets Big Boost Thru Farmers Cotton Funds

HAS MEANT MUCH TO ENTIRE COUNTY

That Chilton County has fared extremely well since the Democratic administration in Washington took over the reins of government in 1932, is shown in no uncertain terms by figures released by the Department of Agriculture and through the County Agent's office of this county. These figures were requested by the News to bring out the point that farmers of Chilton County have been able to pay their debts under a Democratic national administration. The statement received by the News follows:

Farmers of Chilton County received a total of $635,856.16 on rental and benefit payments, profits on cotton options and subsidy payment between the time the AAA program started in 1933 and July 25, 1936, reports County Agent, J. W. Fant, who has been responsible for distributing the checks to the farmers in this county. The rental and benefit payments and profits on the cotton options amounted to $562,815.39 and the subsidy payment amounted to $73,040.77. There are approximately 300 applications for subsidy yet to be paid.

In releasing these figures, Mr. Fant stated that this increase in income has played an important part in increasing the business conditions in Chilton County.

Baker is said to have gone to the Easterling home in a slightly intoxicated condition to renew the argument that has lasted for some time. After he left the first time, Easterling is said to have borrowed the gun from a neighbor for fear that Baker might return.

Baker is said to have started running from the Easterling home after the first shot was fired. His body was found Friday morning by Easterling, in a shallow ditch in a nearby field.

Easterling came to Clanton Friday morning after finding the body and surrendered to officers. He has been held in the county jail awaiting the preliminary hearing.

POLIO SCARE OVER COUNTY IS CONSIDERED

Health Authorities Say Cool Weather Will Aid In Fight

HIGH SCHOOLS WILL OPEN 2 WEEKS LATE

All schools in Chilton County are scheduled to open on Tuesday, September 22nd, according to an announcement given out this week by Luther E. Little, superintendent of education of this county.

It was announced last week that the junior high schools and the high schools of the county would open the early part of September. This was changed for two weeks later, Mr. Little stated, due to the fear from many sections of the county of the rumored epidemic of poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) in this section.

So, under the present plan, instead of the high schools of the county opening two weeks earlier than the elementary schools, all of the schools will open at the same time Tuesday, September 22nd. It is felt that by postponing the opening two weeks, cooler weather will have arrived here and health authorities state that cool weather brings much less possibility of infantile paralysis spread, or even possibility of any more cases developing.

All in all, this will really be a chance (Continued to Back Page)

Roosevelt Ruining The Country

If the screams of the president's critics are true, then business in the country has indeed gone to the bottomless pit. They insist that the sole aim of the New Deal is to ruin business. Let's look at some of the dreadful things the New Deal is doing to business. Let's go over the Financial page of the New York Times. In one recent issue of the paper we pick the following headlines at random.

"Savings Banks Top Ten Million Mark. Deposits within $10,000,000 of Record July 1—Accounts at New Peak in Number. Assets at Highest Point. Reach $11,349,335,582, with surplus account also largest in history."

"Financing Concern Shows Record Net. Commercial Investment Trust for the half year earns $3.16 a common share. Business also at a peak. Total assets on June 30, at $409,587,591, compared with $297,183,889 on December 31."

"General Motors Increases Income. $88,108,372 net for quarter of June 30 is highest for period since 1929. Half-year total also up. 12 months' profits $224,069,218. Bring earnings on Common to $5.01 a share."

"New York Utility Votes 50c Dividend. Directors of the Consolidated Edison Company of New York at a meeting held recently declared a dividend of 50c a share on the common stock, against 25c a share in the five preceding quarters."

"Youngstown Steel Rate at 80 per cent . . . the best July from an operating standpoint since 1929."

"STERLING SECURITIES GAINS. Net assets were $19,486,550 at close of first half of the year."

So it should be plain to the dullest that the New Deal is ruining the country and sending its people back to the days of chaos and despair such as we experienced before the advent of the Roosevelt Administration.

Still A Long Way To Go

Thus far Governor Landon has attempted to define only one issue, definitely, finally and completely.

That issue happens to be the Republican attitude toward labor. The Republican platform attempted to define the party's attitude and failed miserably. Labor leaders denounced the plank as having been dictated by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Governor Landon attempted to make the party's position a little more clear in his acceptance speech. Still, he received only criticism from labor.

His next step was to take advantage of a query from Norman Thomas, the Socialist candidate. Again there was only denunciation for his pains.

The obvious fact is that labor is already solidly behind President Roosevelt. His views on the question are written unmistakably in the labor record of the Administration. Since it is the first time that labor has had an avowed friend in the White House labor leaders have refused to be enticed into the Republican camp by mere words.

If, when Governor Landon attempts to clarify his views as he has promised, he runs into as much opposition as he has on the labor issue he will have difficult sailing.

He has yet to offer explicit farm proposals, a social security program, a work-relief program, tariff explanation, international relations explanation, and so on.—Montgomery Advertiser.

"What point did become clear during Gov. Landon's speech of acceptance? We didn't find out what Landon will do if elected. We did find out what strategy the GOP depends upon to elect him. Landon is waiving the handkerchief prettily as his part of that job, while the Hearsts, the Paul Blocks, the Shouses, the duPonts, do the dirty work."—Philadelphia Record. (Ind.)

Republicans And Relief

The vagueness and quite obvious insincerity of the "relief" plank in the Republican national platform was resented by many earnest men and women in that party who recognize the impossibility of immediate discontinuance of Federal relief. Even deeper concern has been occasioned among his own partisans by the persistent refusal of Gov. Alf M. Landon to answer public inquiries as to his purported statement of last December that $1.08 a week is ample allowance for a family of three in Kansas. Two weeks after the New York Post (Ind.) respectfully requested the Republican presidential nominee to comment on the statement quoted by State Senator Joseph S. McDonald of Kansas City, Kan., the Post announced the "absolute refusal" of the candidate to make any response whatever.

But the exuberant Republican National Chairman John D.M. Hamilton has been defining very clearly his party's stand on relief. Dashing down to Pennsylvania from a series of "pep talks" in New England, this indefatigable interlocutor of the Old Guard organization spoke before a state-wide assemblage of party workers at Hershey. Ignoring the fact that the Republican controlled state senate refused during 11 weeks of an extra session of the Pennsylvania legislature to vote a single cent for relief, despite appeals of Republican mayors of Philadelphia and other cities, Mr. Hamilton did exactly what he was quoted in the press as having assured Gov. Landon he would do on leaving Topeka—he "took the offensive." At Hershey he declared:

"It is unnecessary for me to recall to you the political perversion of unemployment relief that has taken place in Pennsylvania at the hands of a ruthless party machine. In instance after instance the corruption you have long suspected has been proved by incontrovertible evidence."

Supplying no such evidence against the supporters of President Roosevelt, who number hundreds of thousands of life-long Republicans in the Keystone State, the speaker then said, pointedly, to the party workers: "The issue in your state is whether common sense is common sense."

And exactly the sort of common sense the chairman demanded was produced in several localities where the word "ruthless," as applied to the strongly entrenched Mellon-Grundy-Pew Republican machine, is an inadequate adjective. Soon "instance after instance" of actual "political perversion of unemployment relief" was proved in Pennsylvania "by incontrovertible evidence." A particularly despicable instance was in Somerset, near which there have been several fatal air crashes that cost many lives in that region known as the "Graveyard of the Alleghenies."

For years the aeronautical organizations and civic and patriotic bodies in western Pennsylvania have petitioned Washington to construct a landing field in what has been recognized as the most dangerous point in the country. Finally, after months of preparation, a site was chosen two miles from Somerset and $167,000 in PWA money was allotted for the construction of the sorely needed airport as the most important part of the plan of the Department of Commerce for a nation-wide system of landing fields. The only requirement of Somerset was the donation of a site, at an agreed price of $5,000 to be shared equally by the borough and the county. The project was to supply employment to 220 men for ten months.

But the members of the borough council, composed of organization Republicans, used the Hamilton brand of "common sense." They held a secret session, barred the townspeople, and announced: "We will give the borough the chance to vote in November on whether to accept the $167,000." After the election, of course, it will make no difference if the Roosevelt administration provides the long-needed safeguard against loss of life in the high Alleghenies and also provides jobs to 220 of the needy unemployed. The point is that in this plain case of "political perversion of unemployment relief" the Grundy-Mellon-Pew machine followed the example of Gov. Landon, who it will be recalled further postponed action on social security legislation in Kansas "until the people themselves can vote" on a constitutional amendment next November.

"Coming as he does fresh into the field of national affairs, Gov. Landon is naturally inclined to move with caution. But this much we can say with confidence, Gov. Landon has aligned himself quite completely with the conservative or reactionary forces of the country. All that he said and, even more, all that he omitted to say, point definitely in that direction."—Washington News. (Ind.)

MORAL ECHOES

And it came to pass that my door bell rang at ten o'clock at night. On opening the door a nicely dressed man spake unto me saying, "Parson, I am a stranger in this town and standeth in need of hotel money. If you will advance me that amount in cash I swear by everlasting in earth and sky that I will repay you within three days." After such fair speech on my part I handed him the money. That has been weeks ago and my man has never reported to me. In like manner a few days later a little lad of ten summers came to me with a quivering voice and with tears in his eyes saying, "Mr my mother sent me to ask a loan of twenty five cents until Monday. We will have no money then to pay you but we will pick berries and bring them to you." Many days have passed since the loan, and no berries have been brought unto my house. Verily, Verily I say unto you beware of fair promises when beggars stand at your door.

I was sitting on the grandstand looking down the white mark that connected the third base with the home plate. The bases were full and the batter bunted the ball. It fell on the inside and was making its way over the line when a hand reached down and picked it up and in a twinkling his hand was over the line and he was shouting, "Foul, Foul." The keen eye of the umpire saw what I saw and it was called a safe ball. I am not saying that the ball player had intention to deceive, but I know that the ball was in his hand when it went over the line. Many of us go straight when we know right and wrong with a margin, but when the margin is small and we can deceive because of the smallness of the margin sometimes we lose our sense of honor. No man is to be trusted who will "Pull a Trick" when the margin is close. Strict honesty is a treasure.

The town drunkard in the community where I once lived had trained his horse to stop when he fell out of the buggy. A drunk on the highway in these days was not so dangerous as they are today. An automobile refuses to be trained to stop when a drunk is sitting at the wheel. Automobiles that rush along our roads are instruments of terror and death when they are being guided by drunken drivers. If a man driving a car under the influence of whiskey would endanger himself alone then we could have some patience with him and be a little sorry for him when we found him mangled by the road side, but when he is just as likely to kill the innocent as he is to kill himself, then there is no occasion for patience with him. May the day speedily come when a man's driving license will be taken from him when he is known to take a drink of whiskey.

I had several members in my church who did not attend church on Sunday. They gave as their excuse that they were so nervous that they could not sit still for an hour, and that a crowd seemed to make their nerves into prickling needles. They believed in church and wanted to attend so much, but they dared not make the venture. Imagine my surprise the other afternoon when I went out to the ball park to see these members there almost in full force. For two hours and forty-five minutes I watched those members, thinking every minute that I would see them fall out in a faint, or else pull a fit of some kind, but when the game was over they were just as calm and contented as were the rest of us. I want to say just this, any person who can go to a ball game can go to church and it is useless to "prevaricate" about it.

Every Sunday morning one little lady will go through her flower yard and clip every flower that has beauty and carry her gathering to the church. She places them in beautiful vases and puts them upon the altar. This loving set is her expression of worship. She has no flowers but for her friends and for the altar of her church. One of the most selfish expressions I ever heard came from the lips of a woman not long since who was approached for a few flowers for the church. Here is what she said, "No, I have none to spare. I have quite a few of them but I raised them for myself." Some times I wonder why God will let some folks have some things.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Jones and Charles desire to extend their sincere thanks to everyone who contributed in any way to the comfort and needs of their son and brother, Joseph C., in his very recent illness and death. It would be impossible for us to definitely express our appreciation, however, we wish to offer this as a token of our thanks.

Also, since that time many have come to our financial assistance by whole-hearted contributions. For this we again express our appreciation. Even though our trouble and grief has been all that heart could bear, yet we know that our loss and the splendid attitude of the people in all of our sorrows combined with the many many expressions of deep sorrow have drawn us closer to the dear Saviour. May God's blessings be showered upon every sympathizer.—Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Jones.

Former Republican Governor Of Michigan Scores GOP Criticism Of Federal Spending

"I am a Republican, as I always have been, but that does not make it necessary for me to delude myself or to blind myself to obvious facts," said former Governor Alex. J. Groesbeck of Michigan in an interview published in the Detroit News.

"By and large," he continued, "President Roosevelt has done a pretty good job for the people, and it is silly for the Republican party to blind itself to that fact. It is, I think, nothing short of ridiculous for Republicans to try to attack the New Deal in its entirety. We all know that this country was stymied in the early part of 1933. Hoover had proved himself incapable of handling the situation. Shoals of Republicans voted for Roosevelt because they recognized that fact. The new Administration came into power facing a situation that was unprecedented in our history. Something had to be done—and something WAS done."

"It is only sensible—and honest—to admit that a lot of the acts of this administration have been proper and helpful. Certainly no one can take exception to the taking over of the burden of the mortgage situation. The Federal Housing Act was good legislation. Maybe some can criticize details of the AAA, but it must be remembered that both parties had been promising aid to the farmers for years and this was the first time anyone had delivered. Repeal of prohibition helped, too."

"None can deny that currency legislation was necessary, and the fact that business has improved so enormously is proof positive that the legislation passed along this line was helpful. I think the banking situation was aided by legislation."

"I'm tired of this hallyhoo about expenditures. I was never known as a spender in my three administrations as Governor of Michigan but sometimes spending is absolutely necessary. The states, including Michigan, in 1933 were absolutely unprepared for the crisis. They had not provided the reserves to care for the millions of unemployed. The Federal Government saved the situation and it had to spend to do it. What were they to do? Let the people starve?"

"The talk about the Constitution being in danger is pure bunk." Introductory to the Groesbeck statement, which created considerable comment in Michigan, the Detroit News, an independent paper, said:

"For those who have sensed something incomplete, something unusual about the current state campaign, this department is now prepared to say just what is missing. It is the figure of Alex J. Groesbeck, who until this year, played a prominent part in every campaign in Michigan since 1912. In that year he became chairman of the Republican State Committee. In 1916 and 1918 he was elected attorney general. In 1920, 1922 and 1924 he was elected governor. From his place on the sidelines, he has developed an attitude of political aloofness which makes it possible for him to criticize the tactics of his party without running the risk of repercussions and he has criticisms and plenty of them."

FARMERS ADVISED USE TESTED INOCULATIONS

Auburn, Ala.—"Experience shows that it is advisable to use inoculated soil and commercial cultures in inoculating hairy vetch, Austrian winter peas, and crimson clover, advises J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist. "By using the two methods in combination inoculation is more certain."

"It is very important, however, in buying commercial cultures that material be used which has demonstrated its effectiveness in inoculating the winter legume under field conditions."

"Farmers in several sections of Alabama have suffered heavy losses due to use of commercial inoculation material of uncertain quality. One community in east Alabama lost in cost of seed, inoculation, and expected increased crop yields more than $60,000 through use of inoculating material of uncertain quality."

"Heavy losses were sustained in Dallas, Perry, Franklin, Cullman, and other counties the same season, due to inferior commercial inoculation."

Chilton County In The Making

A Brief Outline Of The History Of This County From Authentic Records And Files

By JOHN M. VANDERVEER, JR.

Chilton County in its inception was almost a virgin wilderness. It is true that there were a few settlers in the county who had been here for some years but the greater part of the county was rich pine forest and undeveloped farm land. Roads were few, the L. & N. Alabama railroad had not yet been put through; Clanton was not yet laid out and only a few straggling crossroads settlements existed in the county.

In order to secure a true prospectus of the state of affairs at the time it is necessary to consider the condition of the State as a whole. The Civil War was just over. The state was in the hands of the radical and carpet-bagger element. Corruption was rampant and the white man's rule in the state was momentarily under eclipse. The legislature of 1868 has been described as unspeakably corrupt. Governor W. H. Smith was totally unfit for the office, being narrow, vindictive and a rabid unionist.

It was by this legislature and under this governor that our County was created. There is always in a movement such as the creating of a new political division some leader. It is to one Alfred Baker who sat as a member of the legislature that this credit can be given.

The act creating the county was rushed through the legislature over the protest of those parts taken from Bibb and Shelby and the first officers of the county were appointed by the governor in spite of written protest on the part of numerous parties in the affected territories.

The provisions of the Act of the son Saturday night.

Miss Sallye Thompson returned home Saturday from Fort Walton, Fla. after spending a week with a party of friends including Misses Lois and Lona Thompson, Mrs. Hugh Thompson, Mrs. Jim Thompson of Clanton, Mr. Ralph Bryan of Thorsby and Mr. Lincoln Devaughn of Demopolis, Ala.

Calf Club Voted To Pool Money

The Chilton County Calf Club met last Saturday, August 22, at the Chilton County High School. The entire club voted in favor of pooling all money taken in from prizes, instead of each individual getting what he won. This was done so each member would get some benefit from the prizes. The club will buy equipment to be used by club members only, which would be much more expensive if each one had to buy everything he needed for the time he would use it.

After the business was taken care of an interesting program was given by the following members of the club:

"Fitting Dairy Cattle for the Show Ring and When Should Fitting Start," by Virgil Robinson.

"Making the Blanket," by Houston Lawrence.

"The Fitting Ration," by Earl Vinson Butler.

"Washing, Brushing and Clipping," by Buster Popwell.

"Training and Dressing the Hens and Hoofs," B. N. Ivey (substituted for Popwell).

"Training the Animal," James Denison.

Mr. Ivey urges all members to register their animals as soon as possible, as they will not be eligible for the Birmingham show in case they win in the local show in September, unless they are registered.

62,543 SPENT IN CHILTON CO. BY WORKS PROGRESS ADMINISTRATION

Of This Amount $28,804 Was Paid Into Payrolls
With $33,738 Going For Materials
For Use In Projects

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 26.—For the 13 months the program operated through July 31, the Works Progress Administration invested $62,543 in projects in Chilton County. Ray Crow, state WPA administrator, announced here today.

Of this amount $28,804 was for payrolls and $33,738 was for materials used in the projects. A considerable part of the materials was purchased from local dealers where possible. The totals include the amounts spent by the National Youth Administration, a unit of the Works Progress Administration.

For Alabama the total expenditures for the same period was $18,428,379. Of this amount $12,827,358 was for payrolls and $5,601,021 for materials.

While all material purchases are made by the U.S. Treasury Department on low bids, regardless of the point of origin of the bids, Mr. Crow said, approximately 90 per cent of all orders were placed through Alabama firms.

Funds expended payrolls to the otherwise jobless likewise found their way into the hands of grocers, clothing merchants and the general channels of trade, while roads, public buildings, paved streets and sidewalks, sewers, curbs and gutters, waterworks, and many other tangible projects created by the work program stand as permanent investments in public health and welfare.

The program within a year has provided for Alabama 154 new public buildings, of which 71 are school buildings, representing a total investment of $3,542,460. Of this amount $637,309 was contributed by the local sponsors.

New water reservoirs, sanitary and storm sewers and masonry drainage projects were constructed and repaired in 34 cities and towns. For this work the WPA pledged $3,272,484 and the sponsors $255,770.

Under sponsorship of the State Health Department 68 miles of new ditches and 18 miles of existing ditches have been excavated to lessen the incidence of malaria.

Among other accomplishments are, the paving of 52 miles of streets in cities and small towns, the construction of 610 miles of new roads, the grading

The health in this community is very good at present.

We had a good meeting last week, conducted by the Rev. M. Lockhart, assisted by the Rev. J. A. Smallwood and wife.

Our Sunday school is doing very well but could be better if we could get the parents interested more in the Sunday school than going somewhere else. You know if you stay out of Sunday school one Sunday it is harder for you to go the next Sunday as the more you are out the less interested you will be and the first thing you know you will forget the Sunday school.

You know, my friends there is too many of our Sunday school people who have got to go somewhere else on Sunday morning. I don't blame them for going but I do think their Sunday school should come first if their day school should come first. You will hear people talk about the young people not going to Sunday school but my friends if you will get the parents of any church to turn out there will be no trouble to have a good Sunday school.

Our B.Y.P.U. is doing fine but it is lacking in cooperation with the parents of our community just the same as our Sunday school is. I am hoping ing, widening and improving of 4,812 miles of old roads, the construction of 1,795 new bridges and the paving of 400 miles of "three-way" roads.

As of August 1 there were 29,679 relief persons employed in the WPA program with an additional 1,070 non-relief persons.

the fathers and mothers wake up to their duty.

We will have prayer meeting every Sunday evening at 7 o'clock and B.Y.P.U. following the prayer service. Everybody come and help us out in either service. Sunday school at 10 o'clock A.M.

Madison County Death Reported As Figures Checked In State Outbreak

The toll in Alabama's outbreak of infantile paralysis mounted to 25 today with the report of the death of Betty Clyde James, of Ryland, in Madison County Sunday night.

Dr. D. G. Gill of the State Health Department said the 5-year-old girl was taken ill Friday; her case was diagnosed as infantile paralysis Sunday morning and she died Sunday night at a Huntsville hospital.

Dr. Gill said his report showed she had not taken the preventive nasal spray which the Health Department has recommended as a precautionary measure.

New Cullman Case
A new case was reported Monday from Cullman, making a total of 300 cases in this state.

No additional cases of paralysis were reported in Montgomery, where six-year-old Dorothy McLennan, 112 South Buford Street, was reported as the first infantile paralysis patient during 1936. Physicians were inclined to class her case as "sporadic" rather than as a part of the outbreak in the northern part of the state.

Meeting closed last Friday night. We did not have any additions to the church, we feel that we had a revival of God's spirit in our midst. The Rev. We urge that people who worship with other churches and worship with us. In unity is strength. By J. Harrison Miller

If it hurts you to laugh, get ready for some punishment. Here it is: Our present kind of money is no good. Everybody wants it--but nobody has any. That's what makes depressions come--and stay. A better kind of money (purchasing power) might be in the form of a "service card" issued to its holder directly by the federal government, and having, on its face, complete identification of its owner as to name, address, weight, color of hair and eyes, occupation, etc., as well as a serial number.

Such a card, issued to all adult persons not confined in public institutions, would, on presentation, become "legal tender" for goods and services within legitimate needs or wishes. It would be of no value to anyone but you. The other fellow would have one, too, issued to him. He wouldn't try to steal yours--or beat you out of it. Even if he did, it would be worthless to him. The trouble with our present money is that it breeds crime, thievery, graft and profiteering. It carries with it no indication as to how or where its possessor got it. The dishonest, tainted dollar of the highwayman, the speculator, the prostitute, or the cheater who pours water into your baby's bottle of milk, will buy just as many groceries, just as nice a suit of clothes, just as much travel or just as many ice cream cones as the honest dollar of the farmer, mechanic or laundry girl. That lacks a lot of being fair.

Talk about purchasing power! Boy, wouldn't we have it? We would have to run the farms and factories day and night to supply demands. Unemployment? Huh! In three months there would be no such thing. Several million idle men--including some rich ones--would have an excellent opportunity to go to work. Requisition, circulating among thousands of business concerns, would supply raw materials and finished products. And while you've been laughing--and suffering--we managed to get the usual number of lines into this article.

State Farmers Told Grow Big Oat Crop

Auburn, Ala.--Oats offer Alabama farmers an excellent opportunity of growing feed for livestock next spring. The importance of farmers doing this is emphasized by J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, in pointing out that farmers of the United States this year are producing a small corn, oat, and hay crop and that prices on feed products are likely to be high next year. Oats should be planted on good land in September and the first of October. They should be planted at the rate of 2 bushels per acre and the seed should be treated for smut. For full information on how to succeed with oats, Mr. Lowery suggests that farmers see their county agents and vocational agriculture teachers.

BIRTHDAY DINNER

A large crowd gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Minor last Sunday, August 23, to celebrate the birthday of Miss Ellen Minor. Mrs. Irene Kendrick, Messrs. L. D. and William Sansom. The guests began to arrive about 9 o'clock. Everyone enjoyed the morning talking and laughing. At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was served under the oaks. The Rev. J. D. Deason gave thanks after which everyone ate to their hearts content. Those enjoying the happy occasion were Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Minor and children, Leila, Ellen and J. D., Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Sansom and children, L. D. Raymond, Willie Clyde, Jessie Lee, Tommie Lee, Buster and Charles. Misses Mildie, Gladys, Louise, Harvie and Vernon Sanson; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Deason and daughter, Louella and grandsons, A. N. Deason, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Deason and children, Billie Ruth and Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Short and son, Jimmie, Mr. and Mrs. K. G. Klinger and children, Tommie Lou and Charles. The visitors in the afternoon were: Mr. Ervin Short of Birmingham, Mr. Arland Deason and Mr. Mack Bowden of Birmingham. The guests returned to their homes at a late hour wishing the honorees many more happy birthdays.

Large Florida Exhibit For Alabama State Fair

What promises to be one of the most interesting exhibits at the forthcoming Alabama State Fair is a Mammoth Florida State Exhibit said to rival in attractiveness and interest the big Florida State Exhibit brought here last year from Chicago where it was for two years the outstanding state exhibit at the Century of Progress. World's Fair and which was shipped from here to Rockefeller Center New York for exhibition at the International Building during the winter months before moving on to Cleveland, Ohio, where it is now the talk of the Great Lakes Exposition in that city. P. T. Strider, Secretary-Manager of the Alabama State Fair said that arrangements have been completed with E. W. Brown, Vice-president and manager of Florida National Exhibits for the construction and assembling of the entirely new Florida State Exhibits bit to have its debut at the Alabama Fair.

Instead of the scenes used for the exhibit that was shown here last year the new exhibit will feature, a display of rare birds, citrus and tropical fruits, and plants, fish, sea shells, sea oysters, orange blossom perfumes, cigars, jellies and preserve products, a special Basch and Lomb theatre type Ballpoint and slides and a collection of hand-carved cypress knees done in intricate hand-carved designs of bird life etc., by C. S. Hall, for thirty years with Elbert Hubbard's Roycrafters. Moving from the exhibition halls to the grandstand and midway, visitors will find hair raising thrilling events and wonders from the four corners of the earth to amuse and entertain them. Heading the grandstand attractions each night will be a massive revue, "The Show of the Century" with a company of over 100 singers, dancers and featuring the world famous "Disappearing Water Ballet", the most brilliant and novel aquatic production ever presented before a grandstand audience. The girls fully dressed in gorgeous gowns, vanish beneath the water, emerging in different costumes. The effect is baffling, yet entrancing.

Physicians at Washington, Ind., successfully grafted 125 square inches of skin on the legs of Oscar Ritterknap, who was burned in an explosion.

Hints for Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

If you are building a bookcase or kitchen cabinet, or want more shelves in an old one, an adjustable shelf arrangement can be made by nailing a piece of corrugated tin roofing on each side of the bookcase or cabinet, with the corrugations running horizontally. If the span of the shelves is not more than 18 to 24 inches, shelves of heavy tempered pressed wood can be cut to size and placed at any desired level.

The fruit sugar contained in natural fruit juices provides a quick source of new energy. Try a glass of canned, unsweetened Hawaiian pineapple juice as a quick "pick-me-up" from that dragged-out and let-down feeling that frequently overcomes us in the middle of the afternoon.

ROAD WORK

cent floods in the lower central part of the County used up the greater portion of the funds during the first two weeks of the month. It was necessary to transfer most all the supply of lumber and other materials located at various points in the county to the affected area and the purchase of a quantity of new lumber for the work. During this period we used some 21,000 board feet of lumber in repairs to bridges and other drainage boxes; some 3,000 cu. yards gravel and other fill materials and worked an increased force of some 40 men in the affected area. The roads as a whole, throughout the county are in very good shape except in some parts of eBat 5, 6, and 16 of District No. 4 and small sections of District 1, 2 and 3. During the placing of fills and gravel surface it was necessary to hire two extra trucks and part of the time we had to use teams. Practically all of the affected area has been placed in service again.

used by re-electing him unanimously. "I would say further that I would like to see other government officials and public agencies take a leaf out of his book and thereby gain for themselves and those whom they serve that same kind of record of fine service, sound progress, and widespread satisfaction that will inevitably come out of such service, both to those who govern and those who are governed.

"Further, I want to say that the excellent record of Clanton's business of the past two years is creditable, not alone to Mayor Jones, but also to the good, able, men who have served faithfully and honestly with him as members of the City Council. These gentlemen have aligned their own good business judgement impartially behind the leadership of a good Mayor, and the result has been a record of constructive progress and good feeling among the people of Clanton never before attained by any group in a given period of time.

"I want to congratulate the Mayor and Councilmen upon the attainments they have made. I do not hesitate to say that it is perfectly natural (nevertheless unusual in public affairs) that the people of Clanton should universally demand that these gentlemen keep right on serving in their present capacities.

"With kindest regards and best wishes to everybody in Clanton, I will conclude by thanking you, Mr. Editor, for allowing me space to make the foregoing expressions.

Sincerely yours
W. M. WYATT."

JUDGE SMITH SUGGESTS MEETING

Hopes Meeting Will Bring Solution To Road Problems

Editor, Chilton County News:
Clanton, Alabama.

Dear Sir:
I wish to congratulate you on an article, which appeared in the Chilton County News August 27th, 1936. I agree with you that something should be done relative to the roads in Chilton County. I further concur with you that the citizens and officials should get together and see what could be done about this matter.

The Commissioners Court has appropriated every dollar available for the road program and this is the only function relative to roads, authorized by our present road laws. I wish to, by this method, accept your suggestion of the public meeting of the citizens of Chilton County with the Commissioners Court and Road Supervisor.

I suggest that this meeting be held at the court house in Clanton, Alabama, September 12th, at two o'clock P.M., provided it is agreeable with the Road Supervisor.

I believe that with the council of our people we may be guided to a more satisfactory solution of our road problem.

Yours very truly,
J. LEE SMITH,
Judge of Probate.

G.O.P. Civil Service Head
Lauds Roosevelt

That the civil service laws of the nation have been as faithfully observed by the Roosevelt Administration as they were in the administrations of Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover is the conclusion of John H. Bartlett, Republican, who was President of the United States Civil Service Commission under President Harding and who served as First Assistant Postmaster General under Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hoover.

"I am bound to conclude," he declared in a letter to the New York Times, "that those who have administered the civil service laws under President Roosevelt, have been as considerate of, and as obedient to, the purposes of the law as those who administered the civil service laws under the administrations of President Roosevelt's predecessors."

"In one particular, the record of the Democratic Party with reference to civil service in the Post Office Department is superior to that of the Republicans, and on this ground I cite chiefly the fact that President Wilson put all postmasters of all classes under civil service. Then President Harding, by executive order, removed Presidential postmasters from civil service and put them again in politics, where they remained during the succeeding Republican administration for twelve years and from which political status President Roosevelt has now rescued them."

"It must be noted, as bearing upon the motive of President Roosevelt himself, that he selected a Progressive Republican, Secretary Ickes, to build up perhaps the largest personal with which to combat the depression. Then he selected another Progressive Republican, Secretary Wallace, to build up the great units of personnel to manage the battles against the enemies of agriculture. Then he selected Mr. Hopkins to head the relief movement. I never heard or read to what political party Mr. Hopkins belongs, if any. He certainly was not a politician."

"It was essential for President Roosevelt to build up an army to fight the depression, consisting of men and women who were loyal to his purposes, and seeing how bitter against his purposes the Republicans are, it was natural he should find, perhaps, a majority of those persons were Democrats. But I know a very large number of Republicans here in Washington in important position under the New Deal. I also know of a few of these Republicans here in Washington, under civil service, who are now quite boldly talking against President Roosevelt and his New Deal. I do not desire to be unfair to Republicans, but I do say that these Republicans should not be unfair to President Roosevelt."

The President's Strength Is Steadily Increasing

The American Institute of Public Opinion poll, found elsewhere in this paper today, is significant. President Roosevelt's popular majority has increased steadily since its low point of the year was reached in July. What is more impressive is the fact that he has a clear majority of the electoral vote. It is necessary to remember further that the poll shows that Mr. Landon today has 56 certain votes, while Mr. Roosevelt can boast of 220. The main battle will be waged in five or six borderline states. Should the Democratic strength continue to rise as regularly as it has in the last couple of months, we may expect a heavy New Deal victory in November.—Birmingham News.

'We're On Our Way'

The action of the Democratic National Committee in calling the executive staff of the Young Democratic Clubs of America into the New York headquarters is a significant recognition of the work accomplished by the official youth movement of the party.

From now until the close of the general election, the executive staff of the Young Democratic Clubs, under direction of Acey Carraway, will maintain its principal national headquarters in the Biltmore Hotel at New York, working in close cooperation with the national committee.

The Washington offices of the organization will be maintained under direction of Willard Walter, assistant executive secretary.

As a further national recognition of the effective leadership of the Young Democratic Clubs, the party plans to have Frank Wickham and other national officers take to the field in behalf of the Roosevelt-Garner ticket between now and the general election.

In the words of President Roosevelt, "we're on our way."

Will Bet On Roosevelt If Landon Stays On Stump

Heywood Broun, noted newspaper columnist, has a friend who is willing to bet $75,000 on President Roosevelt's re-election at odds of 3 to 1, provided a certain interesting condition is met.

In spite of polls and predictions, he wrote in his column the other day, "Franklin Roosevelt remains a decided favorite. My pet Wall Street broker tells me that if there was an opening and free wagering, the President would be established as a 5 to 9 favorite. My friend further says that he doubts that anything as short as 6 to 5 ever was acceptable to decidedly emotional Republicans. Shortly after the Cleveland convention there was some 7 to 5, betting, with Roosevelt as the choice."

"Since Landon's acceptance speech the price against the Kansas Governor has lengthened. I am acquainted with one large operator who has in mind a very tricky wager. He professes to be willing to bet $75,000 on Roosevelt at odds of 3 to 1 provided Landon makes six more broadcasts over a national hook-up."

"Governor Landon has talked himself from 7 to 5 to 9 to 5. If he can talk the odds up into 2 to 1 against his chance the Republican nominee will be a political long shot. In those realms there never has been an upset. Hughes is the only favorite who ever has been knocked down, and 7 to 5 was the best laid against Wilson."

Roosevelt As A Vote Winner

The San Diego (Cal.) Herald, which was Republican for years, but now is supporting President Roosevelt for re-election, reports a decided drift to the President in mid-western States. The paper declares that a decided turn of public sentiment against third party movements has rebounded to the President's advantage and it credits the personal attraction of Mr. Roosevelt for the development.

"One of the phenomena of present day political life," says The Herald, "is the personal friends which Franklin Delano Roosevelt has in his support—friends in every section of the United States who are talking for him and will vote for him simply because he is what he is."

"These friends are Democrats, Republicans, Socialists, Prohibitionists and Communists. They will be found, no doubt, in the midst of the ranks of the Lemke supporters, and thousands upon thousands of ardent Townsends are for Roosevelt even before they are for their $200 a month."

"Deny it as we may, the fact remains that we are, to a great extent, a people of sentiment. For one who will say: 'I am for the policies of Roosevelt.'"

"In this appeal to the heart Landon is woefully lacking. Drab as are his speeches, his appearances before moving cameras are even more drab. He is an automaton—a robot. If there were any of the moisture of humanity in him it has been squeezed out long ago in the machine of Republicanism. If he were pricked, he would probably bleed, but it would be sawdust."

"Gov. Landon in accepting the Republican nomination showed too much of an uninspired plainness for leadership in this age that particularly demands a high order of leadership; too great a simplicity for a comprehending and effective grappling with the involved and innumerable matters that confront a President."—Birmingham Age-Herald. (Ind. Dem.)

MORAL ECHOES

We were sitting on the porch of a farmer's home when a speeding car went by. A pig ran from the roadside into the path of the car and was run over. We ran out to see the amount of damage and found that the shoulder was crushed and the spine was injured. The farmer looked over his injured hog and then said to his son: "Bring me the ax, I might be able to save this pig by close nursing, but it will be a lot easier to kill it and get it out of the way and out of its suffering." It seems that the World War ran over our civilization and since then we have been looking it over. There are signs everywhere that we have about decided to kill our civilization and get it out of its misery. It is much easier to kill a civilization than it is to bring it through to a new birth.

A drunk man slept all day and all night. Early next morning when the sunlight of a new day was filling the sky, the drunk awoke out of his drunken stupor and seeing the light in the sky and thinking that it was still twilight, he lifted himself on his elbow and addressed the light thus: "There you go, old Sol. Another short day and now the night is coming on. I will just fall back on this pillow of straw and sleep until the morning." Sober or drunk, it seems that many have their days mixed. They think that sunrise is sunset and that sunset is sunrise. When we face the sunlight of a new day we often groan, "Night is drawing on and I will sleep until the morning." It is now sunrise, my friends. Get up and shake the supor from your brain and get out into this new day and live.

While celebrating Peace Day in Moscow, the Russians were addressed by the leaders of the Reds. Lou speakers were used and thousands of students listened in. At a certain signal the young men of Russia were instructed to shout back at the speaker: "We are changing the world." Every time the bugle sounded there was heard to roar the voices "We are changing the world." After the speech was over they filed by the embalmed body of Lenin who died to build that new world in the minds of Russian youth. The young life of Russia believe that they are changing the world and who knows but they are. The church of today had just as well awake to the fact that it is Communism or Christianity. It was said of Christian people two thousand years ago, "They who turn the world upside down are come hither." Shall we leave the next turn in the hands of Communism?

I stopped at a filling station for directions. Wanted to know how to find my way out of the city so that I would be on the highway leading home. I was told to go to Annex Avenue, turn to right, go three blocks then turn to the left and go three blocks and then straight forward four blocks and I would come to my highway. "Tut," said I to the man, "I do not know how to find Annex Avenue." The man saw that he had to begin with something that I knew and so he started off with directions from where my car was and I understood. I fear that preachers of ten direct people toward heaven by telling them to do something that they know nothing at all about. If we are ever to get people on God's highway, it is very necessary that we begin to instruct them from the place where they are now living.

I am constantly meeting something new. Not long since a handsome young man shoved his open palm before my vision and said, "I bet you cannot guess where I got that scar from in a coon's age." I made a few passes and then in great pride he replied, "Believe it or not, I got that scar at Sunday school." I looked at it closely for I will be honest with you, that was the first scar that I ever saw that came from Sunday school. It developed that he had connected with an electric fan and the scar was his for life. I have seen them when they came from business and pleasure, but that was my first that came from Sunday school. The individual who is a loyal Sunday school person will most likely escape many of the scars of life. Hear me, you do not get many scars at Sunday school.

Miss Eloyse Jones Becomes Bride Of Rev. Hodgens At Beautiful Ceremony Sunday

Beauty and simplicity marked the wedding on last Sunday evening of Miss Eloyse Jones, of Clanton and the Rev. Maurice Hodgens, of Jemison and Birmingham.

The ceremony was performed in the Baptist church at Jemison, of which the Rev. Theo Harris of Birmingham was pastor. The bride was assisted by Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Clanton Baptist Church. An impressive arrangement of flowers, and covered with pink and burning tapers.

The bride had as her Maid of Honor, her sister, Miss Margie Nell Jones. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Nelle Jones and Miss Vivian Gray, of Clanton. The groom had as his best man, John Ezell, of Clanton. Groomsmen were Joy Lee Martin of Jemison and Chester Wingard of Clanton. Ushers were Floy Devaughn of Clanton and Willard Cost of Jemison.

The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Jones, prominent family of Clanton and she is considered one of Clanton's most popular young ladies. She is a graduate of the local high school with honors and completed her studies at Alabama College, Montevallo, as one of the outstanding students.

The Rev. Maurice Hodgens is one of the county's most promising young ministers. He is a graduate of the Jemison High School and has been following his ministerial studies at Howard College, where he will finish this year. He is president of the Ministerial Association and as pastor of the Jemison Baptist Church, has made hundreds of friends.

Laying Binder Fabric On Alabama's First "Cotton Road"

The Alabama Highway Department has chosen an Alabama WPA three-way paving project for the State's first test of the use of cotton as binder material for paving. Choice of work program labor for the job was considered by Administrator Ray Crow as a tribute to the efficiency of the workers. The road is a 12.3 stretch from the Tuscaloosa County line to Reform, in Pickens County. The cloth used consists of three layers of material, each strip being 82 inches wide, and was made available without cost to the State through the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads. In laying the cloth, a coat of tar is first applied to the base. The cloth is then stretched tightly over the tar and a second coat of tar is applied. Crushed granite is then spread on the road with a heavy roller, and after the tar has hardened on the top and lower left show the various stages of spreading granite a final prime coat of asphalt is applied. Pictures at the cloth on the base, while the lower right shows the spraying of the tar on the binder.

BANKING SYSTEM SHOWS PROGRESS

State Bank Resources Grow
More Than Three Billion Dollars in a Year

NATIONAL BANKS GAIN

American Bankers Association Gives Details of Banking Institutions and Notes Stronger Condition

NEW YORK.—Continued improvement in the condition of state chartered banking institutions, with an increase of more than three billion dollars in a year in total resources, is shown in a report just issued by the State Bank Division of the American Bankers Association.

The report was prepared by the division's Committee on State Bank Research from data furnished by state banking departments and parallels data issued by the Comptroller of the Currency for national banks which show similar improvements.

"The combined resources of 10,473 state supervised banks were $35,724,723,000 as of December 31, 1935," the state bank report says. "Total deposits amounted to $30,526,920,000. Total loans and discounts stood at $12,430,404,000 and total investments were $14,170,421,000."

A year previous, tables in the report show, there were 10,644 state supervised banks, with combined resources of $32,680,203,000, total deposits $27,297,920,000, loans and discounts $12,060,032,000 and investments $12,582,225,000.

Classes of Institutions

Of the reporting state banking institutions on December 31, 1935, 82% were commercial banks, the report states. 9% trust companies, almost 9% stock and mutual savings banks and less than 1% were private banks.

The report adds: "The parallel upward movements of deposits and total invested funds of total state supervised banks during the years 1934 and 1935, after declines in these items in 1932 and 1933, are indications of definite steps toward recovery in banking."

"Based on figures assembled for total state supervised banks on resources and liabilities as of December 31, 1931 to 1935, it is noted: (1) that deposits in 1935 rose approximately 12 per cent over the previous year, as compared with an increase of about 9 per cent in 1934 over the year 1933, and declines of 7 per cent and 12 per cent in 1933 and 1932, respectively, from the preceding years of 1932 and 1931; and (2) that total invested funds increased by approximately 2 per cent in 1935 and also in 1934, while they had decreased by 9 per cent in 1933 and by 11 per cent in 1932."

Analysis Shows Stronger Positions

In a survey and analysis of earnings and expenses of state banks doing a commercial business, it is brought out that in a majority of states they have increased their earning ability during 1935. On the basis of data covering 7,928 banks in 42 states, the report says:

"The most significant fact to be pointed out is that net profits of state banks—after deducting charge-offs on loans, investments, etc. and adding recoveries—were shown in 37 of the 42 states which reported in 1935, in comparison with net profits in only 11 of the 35 states reporting in 1934. Measured in terms of dollars per each $100 of invested funds, net profits in 1935 ranged between $2.40 and $10 per $100, with 19 states showing profits of $1.00 or over, per $100; while in 1934 net profits did not exceed $1.20 per $100 and only three states showed profits of $1.00, or over."

The report contains voluminous tables showing the resources and liabilities of all classes of state chartered institutions and detailed analyses of earnings and expenses by states and of insured commercial state banks grouped by size of banks.

Bankers Help Farmers

The conviction that 4-H Club work lays the foundation for sound citizenship and intelligent farming influenced a New York City bank executive to contribute $500 to the Agricultural Committee of the State Bankers Association, to further 4-H Club activities in the state. "I am convinced that the work is so worthy, and is being so well handled that it should interest those who believe in building sound citizenship, as well as intelligent farming for the future," he said.

Unusual prominence was given this past year to agricultural work by the Tennessee Bankers Association. The Agricultural Committee report reveals hearty cooperation between bankers and extension workers "Key bankers and county agents have been in closer contact than ever before," it says.

Georgia bankers have given both moral and financial backing to a Marketing Project sponsored by the Extension Service of the College of Agriculture, and activities the past year showed significant results. The phases of the Marketing program emphasized in the year's work are: The retail curb market; roadside marketing; miscellaneous marketing (suited to the localities); bartering; exchange of commodities or services with neighbors; standard lined canned products for sale; prepared in homes or canning centers.

Beauty Show, Shirley Temple Pageant And Amateur Contest Is Attracting Attention

The county-wide beauty show, Shirley Temple pageant and Amateur Contest which will be conducted by the Kiwanis Club of Clanton at the high school auditorium on Friday night, September 11th, is attracting wide attention.

A large number of persons have signified their intentions of entering the contests and considerable preparation is being made, according to Mrs. T. H. Walker, who is in charge of the arrangements.

Further details will be published next week's papers.

SOL'S BARGAIN HOUSE TO OPEN HERE SATURD'Y

Most Unusual Place Of Business In City; Is Also Unique

Clanton's most unusual place of Business, Sol's Bargain House, will be open to the general public this week, according to an announcement made on the back page of this issue of the News by Sol Levine, proprietor of the store.

Mr. Levine, who is well known here, stated that he has no intention of attempting to mislead anyone who might purchase anything from his most unique store. "We are giving them some bargains they have never seen in many years," he stated this week. "The merchandise we are handling is of good quality, although it has been used some," he continued.

"At any rate, we want the people to come in to see what we have. We don't want them to believe that we are trying to put anything over them. The goods will be there. They are of good quality and our prices are extremely low," Mr. Levine continued.

Sol's Bargain House occupies the building near the railroad where Tom Kemp's store was formerly located.

TO THIS SHOE FOR FALL

You'd never have thought in seasons past that you'd be wearing boots this fall. And of course you won't really be clumping around like a workman home from a weary day or a huntsman home from the hills. But this monk shoe is so charmingly high cut and grips your instep so snugly, that you'll feel just a touch like an English Guardsman or a dashing Russian Cossack. Just the thing for your tweeds or your coat, and MADE for your tailored ensemble. In brown suede with russet—black with black. With a roundish toe and in-between heel.

Vegetables To Plant This Month And Next

Auburn.—Vegetables Alabama farmers may plant in late summer and fall are turnips, mustard, lettuce, kale, spinach, tendergreen and onions, advises Prof. L. M. Ware, head of horticulture department, Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

TAX ON GAS FOUND TO BE UNPROFITABLE

Towns In Missouri, Georgia, Are Burdened With Excess Tax

Missouri and Florida, among the states in which city gasoline taxes flourish, are clamping down on these local levies. Three towns in Missouri have recently repealed their city gas taxes and three others have defeated attempts to impose such taxes for the first time. In Florida four towns have terminated their local levies in the past few months.

The most recent local gasoline tax to be ended is that of Humansville, Missouri. Following persistent efforts of local oil dealers to have the tax eliminated, the city council has at last repealed the ordinance under which 1c a gallon was collected on all motor fuel sold within the limits of the town. Other Missouri cities which have reduced their gasoline taxes include Excelsior Springs and Lupus, both of which formerly had 1c local levies.

In Slater, Missouri, a proposal made to the city council to finance a municipal park and swimming pool through a city gasoline tax, was defeated by that body after a public hearing on the measure; and attempts to impose municipal gas taxes in two other Missouri towns, Sullivan and Ellington, were also defeated when the idea failed to meet with popular approval.

Deland, Palatka, Cottondale, and Gainesville are among the most recent Florida cities to terminate their local taxes on motor fuel. All of these towns suffered loss of business following imposition of their local levies.

Filling stations sprang up outside the town limits and displayed large signs warning motorists not to purchase gasoline in the town where the price was higher because of the local tax. Many of the filling stations within the city limits of these municipalities went out of business. Hotel owners reported that their business was falling off. As a result of these developments, the expected revenue to these municipalities failed to materialize and one after another the taxes were repealed.

Alabama farmers have benefited additionally by the recent trend toward lower interest rates. Those refinanced by the Farm Credit Administration had been paying interest rates averaging 7.6 per cent a year. These farmers are now paying 4 to 5 per cent with a temporary reduction to 3 1/2 per cent for interest payable during the year ending June 30, 1937 on Federal land bank loans made through national farm loan associations.

Alabama farmers saved over $460,000 a year on interest by refinancing debts with the Farm Credit Administration, and a substantial additional saving results from the temporary interest reduction provided by Congress on Federal land bank loans.

BANK GROUPS MAKE NATIONWIDE SURVEY

American and State Banking Associations Collaborate in Investigation

LOAN SERVICES STUDIED

Activities of the Government in the Banking Field Are Reviewed and Position of Banks Analyzed

NEW YORK.—Detailed bank researches, covering all phases of practical operating and economic facts and conditions related to banking, are being made by the American Bankers Association. The resulting material is being placed at the disposal of all state banking associations, which in many instances are extending the researches of the national association in their own states. These activities are said to be a part of the general program of banking development which is being carried on by the organized banking business.

Among the most extensive researches being conducted by the American Bankers Association is that of its Committee on Banking Studies, which is making a detailed survey of Federal Government lending agencies and policies. The basic material, which is kept up to date by continuing studies and reports where the Government agencies get the money they lend, what liability the Government assumes, what subsidy it extends, what return it gets, for what and to whom the money goes and on what terms it is loaned.

The Government in Banking

"It is not the intention of the committee to express its viewpoint about any agency," says the foreword to this material. "Its intention is only to determine the facts. These facts properly assembled and presented should help banks to meet Government competition if and where it exists. The committee believes the Government entered the lending field at a critical period in order to aid banks and financial institutions. If the time has come for the Government to withdraw, it is the duty of bankers to demonstrate their readiness to take care of all sound credit needs."

It adds that the banks must be equipped with full factual material as to the Government's emergency lending activities and practices, and that full cooperation has been given the committee by Government agencies in obtaining facts. Bankers of the material gathered have been placed by the committee in the hands of state associations.

Investigation of Postal Savings

The Committee on Banking Studies has also made a survey of the Postal Savings System throughout the United States to ascertain to what extent it is competing with chartered banks. Questionnaires were sent to banks in all places where Postal Savings depositories are operated and their answers will be analyzed as a basis for the committee's findings.

The Bank Management Commission of the American Bankers Association has made a nation-wide survey covering the movement among banks to increase their earning abilities "through fair and legitimate rates for services they render their depositors." It has developed a plan of account analysis as a basis of fair charges.

"All business in order to justify its existence is founded on the economic principle that a reasonable return should be expected from services rendered," the commission says.

Personal Income Loans

The Bank Management Commission has also formulated methods for installing and operating personal income loan departments in banks. "This plan contemplates making loans primarily to individuals and small business concerns, based upon the character and assured incomes of the borrowers, distinguished from the usual basis for 'commercial loans,'" the commission says.

It points out that a large part of the population is not now making use of available bank credit and that "to these people the personal loan department extends a valuable service which at the same time is profitable to the bank." It adds that it is "the duty of the banks to educate the public to come to the real estate investment services. Small borrowers should be informed that the local bank is willing to care for their demands."

Other Researches

Other researches are being made by the Economic Policy Commission of the association dealing with shrinkages in liquid commercial loans caused by economic changes in the nation's business methods while the National Bank Division has made studies of the lending and investment powers of this class of bank, the present status of the real estate investment field and of detailed data by states on earnings and expenses.

The Savings Division has gathered the facts showing savings in banks of all types, the number of savings depositors, the per capita savings for the country as a whole and the effects of current economic and social changes upon the savings habits of the American people.

The association's State Bank Division has issued the most recent figures available as to the detailed conditions of state banks, showing steady improvement in the position of the state banks, with marked expansion in their aggregate resources, while the Trust Division has compiled a guide to fees with a recommended cost accounting system.

Chilton County In The Making

A Brief Outline Of The History Of This County From Authentic Records And Files

By JOHN M. VANDERVEER, JR.

In the preceding article written on the history of the County and published in this paper it was stated that the first court house of the county, built in Clanton, was of brick construction. We have since been informed by several interested persons that the building was of wooden construction and not of brick. We used as a source of information the commissioners court minutes for that period. According to the information we have received this building was in the intersection of the streets near where the present court house now stands and stood until about 1893, when it was sold.

Having taken up the formation of the county from a political standpoint it is well to review for a moment the condition of the county at this period from another angle.

The principal towns of the county were Maplesville, Jemison, Verbena and Clanton. Maplesville had long been established but Clanton, Jemison and Verbena owed their establishment and steady growth to the construction of the L & N Railroad.

Jemison was begun in 1869 when construction work on the railroad was started from that point. Known at first as Langstonville the name later was changed to Jemison in honor of Colonel Robert Jemison, who operated a stage line from Montgomery to Tuscaloosa, and who used slave labor to mine gold in the vicinity prior to the Civil War.

Verbena was settled and named in the decade between 1860 and 1870. Beginning as a pleasure resort and as a summer residence for Montgomery citizens who wished to escape the dread yellow fever it soon with Mountain Creek became a popular pleasure and summer resort.

The lesser towns in the county, Cooper, Stanton, Lomax, all settled at about this same time.

In 1875 H. J. Callen became the second probate judge of Chilton County, succeeding M. Roberson, who had served the six years since the inception of the county. The list of the officers of the county at this time reads as follows: Wm. A. Collier, county solicitor; F. P. Marsh, clerk of the circuit court; W. L. Campbell, sheriff; J. B. Boykin, tax-assessor; J. A. Dudley, tax-collector; W. F. Clanton, treasurer; Wm. A. Jones, register in chancery; L. W.

Fraser, supt. of education; S. D. McCary, J. A. Mullins, D. C. Jones and J. B. Moore, county commissioners.

From the closing days of the Civil War until 1874, the State of Alabama was in the hands of the radical element. In that year the white man's party in the state regained the control of power and ousted the radical element. George S. Houston was elected governor and he issued a call for a constitutional convention to amend and to revise the constitution of the State.

A call was issued in the county and a convention with delegates from every beat except one met at the court house in Clanton on the fifth day of July, 1875 to select a delegate for this convention from the county. One delegate was allowed from each county and one from each senatorial district. After several ballots Wm. A. Smith, who lived in that part of the county taken from Dallas, was selected to represent the county in the convention.

Chilton County had not at this time been assigned to any certain senatorial district and in consequence the voters were required to vote with those counties from which they had been taken to form this county. Part of the county voted with Autauga and part with Bibb, Dallas, Perry and Shelby.

Alfred Baker, who was opposed to this convention, ran as an independent opposed to the submitting of the constitution and was soundly beaten by Smith.

The county which had been known as Baker since it was first founded in 1868 was rapidly growing. Its vast resources of timber were beginning to be exploited and numerous attempts were made to develop its iron ore resources. It was about this time that the name of the county was changed from Baker to Chilton. The exact date is not known but as close as we can determine the date was between the 25th and 28th of January, 1875.

Gustav Fischer, 90, of Jamaica Plain, Mass., has carved on the largest meerschaum pipe in the world a picture of the Battle of Bunker Hill, including 25 miniature soldiers.

Dr. J. E. McClendon, physiologist of the University of Minnesota, is one of America's deadliest marksmen. He shoots houseflies exclusively, using an air rifle loaded with a single drop of deadly insecticide.

To All Who Owe Central Ala. Hospital

When illness came we did our best for you. Financially, we now expect as much from you. Everyone who reads this knows whether they owe a hospital bill. If all would pay up we would be in good financial condition. Now since the depression is over and Fall has come will each of you pay your account, in full if possible—in part at least. Any amount would be appreciated. Once you needed help—now we need it.

Prominent Citizen Of Verbena Calls Attention To Condition Of Roads And Working System

News: This is to call the tax payers' attention to the question of public roads. An important issue has developed to the County, Road Supervisor, or back to the old arrangement. Unless some move is made right now to put our roads in passable condition, it is a vote of the people opposed to County Road Supervisor would win four to one. They may go to the Probate Judge, Commissioners with your complaint they will say, "our hands are tied. We have no say, it is all in the hands of County Road Supervisor," then the important man and he will say, "the court has cut funds for road purposes—we have nothing worthwhile to do on roads." It is stated, and truthfully, I suppose that salaries alone for Supervisor, his four lesser supervisors, commissioners, overseers, etc., is more than $100 per month which is more than one-fourth of amount allotted for bridges, etc. Furthermore, it is stated that the Cox Bill (the bill he did not put out) for Road Supervisor was the main recommendation for the SUPREME, so far as roads in Chilton County are concerned. For mail routes are in a deplorable condition and unless given attention away—better 'not' bother them next Spring. Some years ago, when the Probate Judge and Commissioners worked in harmony the people were served. Of late there was always a little favoritism on account of politics, kinfolks, but occasionally we got some sense and our Commissioner (I would call his name but some Democrat might be offended) would bring his outfit around and he would join in actual work with his men and we got the right kind of service—decent roads. Nearly two years ago the Democrats won out by good majorities for most of the county offices and we have been in a row nearly all the time since. Where is the trouble? We had seen Judge Smith manage, successfully, his private business and that of Mayor of Clanton and no charge of dishonesty or unfairness made against him. Charlie Cox is a good fellow and when times were good did well in business. He was close to the Governor—"mighty close"—and of course those who favored Graves thought Charlie would work wonders for "his people"—and hasn't he?

Talk about another bill for Board of Revenue—he had as well do that too. Two years hence, when his successor goes down there he can repeal the whole shebang in a lump. Unless our officials quit "scrapping" and give the tax payers legitimate service, you had as well say good bye to the Democratic party. Mr. Editor, you invited this and it may be a mistake to have written in this way, but I thank you, and hope you will publish this next week. Yours truly, H. B. OLIVER.

DEBT ON ALA. FARMS SHOWS RECORD LOW

Report Shows That Alabama Farmers Due Less In Several Years

A smaller number of American farms are under mortgage today than before the depression, and in Alabama the total farm mortgage debt is smaller, according to figures released today by the Farm Credit Administration. Although the Farm Credit Administration has loaned over $14,730,000 on farm mortgages in Alabama since May, 1933, approximately 85 per cent of the money was used to refinance old debts so that very little new indebtedness was incurred.

The farm mortgage debt in the State which increased from $24,880,000 in 1910 to $83,760,000 in 1930, dropped to $78,460,000 on January 1, 1935. Figures for the earlier years are from the United States Department of Agriculture, while the 1935 figure is an estimate of the Farm Credit Administration. On January 1, 1935, some 2,300,000 farms in the United States, or 34 per cent of the total number, were under mortgage, compared to 36 per cent in

THE origin of the word "candidate" goes back to ancient Rome. When a man campaigned for public office among the Romans he wore a white toga and was called "candidatus," meaning one "clothed in white." Our word "candidate" derives directly from the Roman "candidatus."

"Lend" is the verb; "loan," the noun. Care should be taken to avoid confusing them:
Right: Will you lend me a dollar?
Wrong: Will you loan me a dollar?
Right: Thanks for the loan.

16 YEARS IN CLANTON SELLING GOOD. CLEAN VALUES

1928. Compared with previous periods, the recent farm mortgage debt trend is not unusual, the statement from the Farm Credit Administration points out. During periods of high income, the farm mortgage debt in the United States increases; and tends to contract in periods of depression. The increase in sales in times of higher income, and higher prices for farm land, tends to increase the farm mortgage debt because new purchasers frequently give a mortgage for part of the purchase price. The shrinkage in the mortgage debt during the depression was due partly to foreclosures and partly to repayments, and some scaling down of debts by creditors. The amount of debts scaled down in connection with farm debt refinancing under the Farm Credit Administration was approximately $1,411,000 in Alabama.

Lower interest payments have also helped to improve the mortgaged farmer's position. In the country as a whole, the percentage of gross farm income required to pay interest on mortgage debt increased from 4.6 per cent in 1929 to 9.6 per cent in 1932, but by 1935 it dropped to 4.5 per cent, the lowest level in ten years.

Alabama farmers have benefited additionally by the recent trend toward lower interest rates. Those refinanced by the Farm Credit Administration had been paying interest rates averaging 7.6 per cent a year. These farmers are now paying 4 to 5 per cent with a temporary reduction to 3 1/2 per cent for interest payable during the year ending June 30, 1937 on Federal land bank loans made through national farm loan associations.

Alabama farmers saved over $460,000 a year on interest by refinancing debts with the Farm Credit Administration, and a substantial additional saving results from the temporary interest reduction provided by Congress on Federal land bank loans.

THERE is no surer sign of careless writing than the abuse of "and which." "And which" can be used correctly, but even so it usually makes an awkward sentence. When used as in the following sentence it is not only incorrect but ridiculous, for what the writer is saying is that it was the bone that slunk off with its tail between its legs.

"We stumbled over a dog gnawing a bone, and which slunk off with its tail between its legs."

"Between" and "among" are often confused. The former should refer to two persons or things; the latter to more than two.

"The candy was divided between the two children."
"The candy was divided among the five children."

Miss Sophia Mullins Becomes Bride of Mr. Lawson Nelson of Chattanooga

On Wednesday afternoon, August 26, at four o'clock the marriage of Miss Sophia Mullins and Mr. Lawson Boone Nelson of Chattanooga took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. P. D. Wilson, in the presence of the immediate relatives and very close friends.

In the living room an improvised altar was formed by southern smilax and fern. On either side of the altar white standards were filled with white daisies.

These were tied with white tulle which reached to wrought iron candelabras holding burning white tapers. The candles were lighted by Mr. E. C. Jolliffe, brother-in-law of the bride. To the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. J. B. The prizes were won in two contests by Miss Margaret Jenkins, Clarence, Hardy and Durward Jenkins.

Those present were Miss Nora Frances Johnson, Chester Messer, Miss Agnes Bullard, Robert Jenkins, Miss Laverl Bullard, Clarence Hardy, Miss Elizabeth Cathey, John Eiland, Jr., Miss Nell Frances Scott, Douglas Robinson, and Miss Evelyn Kaffey, Bill Eiland, Miss Robbie Hardy, James Messer, Miss Margaret Eiland, Dan Bullard.

BIRTHDAY DINNER

On last Sunday a large crowd gathered together to celebrate Master Charles Thomas Cox' seventh birthday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Morris Keen. The morning was spent very cheerfully talking, laughing and eating ice cream.

At noon a most beautiful dinner was served in picnic style, everyone enjoying it.

Those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Cox and family; Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Keen and family; Mr. and Mrs. Morris Keen, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Jones, Mrs. J. D. Williams and daughter; Mr. John Nelson, Mr. L. C. Cagle, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Cagle, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Traywick, Mr. Aaron Traywick were afternoon guests.

Soon after lunch Mr. and Mrs. Sam Jones left for their home in Corinth, Miss. The guests returned to their homes wishing little Charles many more happy birthdays.

ICE CREAM SUPPER

Everybody remember the ice cream supper at the home of Mr. J. D. Williams, 9 miles southwest of Clanton on the Clanton and Billingsley road next Saturday night, September 5.

There will be plenty of fun for everyone. Proceeds will go for Mt. Nebo church piano.

Admitting to the judge that he usually kissed the girls to whom he delivered telegrams, William Casago, New York messenger boy, was ordered to refrain from kissing any one for six months.

"You Can't Beat Dodge for Economy"

says LEONID REMISOFF
Wayne, Illinois

My 1934 Dodge gave me excellent service that, when I was ready to buy a new car, I chose another Dodge.

To say that I am proud of my Dodge is understating it. It has everything one could ever want in a motor car. And in addition,

It is the most economical car I have ever driven! I am getting 30 miles to the gallon. No sir—yep can't beat Dodge for economy!

Total for the month of July, $4,232.15

A summary of the whole for the period of three months, May, June and July, shows that the County Treasurer has paid out the aggregate sum of $26,082.75 of which there was a part, in the sum of $11,840.39 which was not chargeable to the cost of road operations during the period, May, June and July, leaving a total paid out by the County Treasurer for bills in connection with the road operations in the sum of $14,242.36.

The Road Supervisor's reports for the same period show that the actual labor, materials, supplies and repairs to equipment incorporated in such road operations to have been $15,237.99. This still leaves a difference of $995.63 above the amount as paid out by the Treasurer. Of course, the Treasurer's and the Supervisor's report will probably never be the same, because of the fact that the Supervisor has to show every item charged out as he uses it in the operations of the roads, while the Treasurer shows only those items paid as claims and invoices are presented for actual payment.

The sole purpose of these statements has been to give the people of the County the facts in connection with the costs of road operations under the direction of the Road Supervisor; and such figures as have been used in this and the former statements are to be found in the records of the Probate's office, the County Treasurer's office, and the office of the Road Supervisor.

This is the final analytical statement, connecting the reports of the Treasurer and the Supervisor. All future statements, will be confined to actual items of cost incorporated in the Supervisor's report to the Commissioners Court, said report will show the actual expenditures to each ebat.

PLAN TO STOP ROOSEVELT IS MOST RECKLESS

Prominent Man Praises President And New Deal Program

URGES RE-ELECTION OF PRES. ROOSEVELT

Boston, Aug. 29.—In a strongly worded defense of the present administration, Edward A. Filene, 75-year-old internationally known Boston merchant, author, philanthropist and economist asserted "the New Deal has saved America from revolution" and urged re-election of President Roosevelt.

"Some call the New Deal reckless experimentation," Filene said, "but the most reckless experiment in which America could now engage would be to stop Roosevelt."

Admitting that Mr. Roosevelt "had made mistakes," Filene continued, "the gray-haired pioneer in modern and efficient retail distribution said the President "acted when it was necessary to act; and failure to act at such moments is a worse mistake than mistakes made in action."

Mistakes Worth While

"If he (Roosevelt) hadn't dared to risk making mistakes," Filene continued, "he could not have achieved what he has achieved, in not only bringing about recovery but in protecting America from the chaos which we now behold in Europe, where the leaders have persisted in their old deal thinking."

No mistakes and no successes is a bad record. And the successes of this administration are so extraordinary that even its mistakes seem to be worthwhile."

An ardent defender of New Deal policies, Filene chided businessmen who "are now out to stop Roosevelt at any cost."

"No clear thinking businessman would discharge an executive under whom the business had climbed from failure to success, and hire some unknown who promised to reduce total expenditures without reducing any one expenditure."

Last May Filene resigned from the United States Chamber of Commerce, of which he was one of the organizers, at the time he charged the organization was a "potent center of reaction," and had become a tool of "special interests," refusing to work out an intelligent solution to business problems.

G. O. P.

PERHAPS you never heard of a young printer named T. B. Dowden, but he was the man who made G. O. P. a synonym for the Republican party.

In 1884, the year that the Republicans finally nominated James G. Blaine for the Presidency, young Dowden applied for work at the Cincinnati Gazette and got it. About 2:30 o'clock one morning, just before the Gazette went to press, Dowden took from the copy hook a piece of copy marked "Must go in ten lines." He soon found himself in difficulty.

"My copy ends with 'Grand Old Party' and I have two words left over after I've set the ten lines," he told the foreman of the shop. "What shall I do?"

"Throw 'em away and use your intelligence!" exclaimed the foreman impatiently. "No, wait cut 'em short . . . get 'em in some way! Abbreviate 'em!"

So Dowden went back to his case and the next morning the Gazette came out with this sentence on the front page: "The Hon. James G. Blaine will address the meeting on Achievements of the GOP."

At the meeting that night the Republican candidate was concluding a two-hour speech when a voice floated down from the gallery: "Why don't you tell us something about GOP and what it did?"

"Why, my friend," retorted Blaine, "I've been talking about GOP all evening. The word GOP contains the initial letters of the Grand Old Party and that is its official and abbreviated name."

The audience roared with laughter but Blaine didn't crack a smile. He little realized that he had given currency to an expression which would become a familiar trademark to millions—a trademark attached to a major political party by a hurried young printer named T. B. Dowden.

THE word "boycott" has established a firm place for itself in the English language, although it made its first appearance only a little more than fifty years ago. The word derives from a Captain Mayo, Ireland, whose disputes with the Irish Land League in 1880 brought it into use. The word, in varying forms, is also found in the French, German, Russian and other European languages.

What is wrong with this sentence? "I am going to do my best. The you do your best."

The sentence should read: "I am going to do my best. You do yours." One thing is like another. You do a thing as someone else does it.

Players! Learn With The American Boy

Boys and young men who want to improve their crawl stroke, their basket shooting, their hurdling, their tennis backhand, or their ball carrying, can enlist the aid of the nation's foremost coaches and players by subscribing to The American Boy magazine and following the sports interviews and fiction stories that appear each month.

For the coming year staff writers have gone to two of the greatest football teams in the country—Minnesota and Southern Methodist—for first hand tips on strategy, blocking, ball carrying, passing, and the fine points of line play. They have written the story of Bobbie Wilson, All-American half-back.

They have interviewed famous track coaches like Bernie Moore and Bob Simpson. Have gone to the University of Oklahoma to learn how college champions wrestle, to Notre Dame for basketball team. They have sought out famous baseball players, swimmers, tennis champions and All-American backs, to get their story of how to play the game.

American Boy fiction is jammed with instructive background details telling how to play a better game. And the rest of the magazine is jammed with adventure, exploration, vocational help and articles vital to boys.

Ohio State University's track head coach of the famous sprinter and low hurdler, Jess Owens, and himself a former hurdling star, first learned to hurdle from articles in The American Boy. "I used to cut out hurdling pictures and duplicate them in front of a mirror. Then on the track I'd follow that form."

Today thousands of future champions are just as eagerly following The American Boy. Send your subscription to The American Boy, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Mich. Enclose with your name and address $1 for a year's subscription, $2 for three years, and add 50 cents if you want the subscription

Sardis Citizen Says Supervisor Not Needed

Maplesville, Ala.
Route 2.

Editor, Chilton County News:
I want to say a few words on regard to the public road question. I think if there is not some work done on the roads they are going to get impossible. I live in the Sardis community. Our mail route is in danger of being cut off, our school bus can not run unless some work is done.

Winter is coming and no work is being done on the roads. I do not know whose fault it is. I am almost fifty years old and have lived in Chilton County all my life, and I have never seen the roads like they are now. Something has to be done.

I think the first thing to do is to get the Road Supervisor and all of his assistance and go back like we were before they put him on.

Yours for better roads,
J. G. ATKINSON.

BANKERS WILL MEET IN ANNUAL COUNCIL

Business Men Also Invited to Present Their Views on Services of Banks to the Public

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Robert V. Fleming, President American Bankers Association, has announced that the organization's annual convention will be held at San Francisco, September 21-24, and its program will call in not only bankers but speakers from various lines of business to present their viewpoints and advice.

The plans for the convention discussions take into consideration the fact, he said, that one of the major problems of banking today is to develop its operations along lines that will create greater public understanding of its methods and services. "It is my earnest conviction that such public understanding of banking is not only an essential defense against attacks from whatever source, but it is also requisite to reestablishing it upon a firm and satisfactory basis of profitable operations," Mr. Fleming said.

General Improvement Cited
"The improvement in general conditions which is now taking place should be of material aid to bankers in carrying forward a constructive program for increasingly useful relationships between banking and business, as well as one of more helpful personal business services to all our people. Sound banking conducted in ways the public need and understand must be the aim of successful bank management."

"How can the banker make his operations and policies more understandable to the people of his community? How can he better and broader financial services be soundly provided? How can banking improve its operating methods and income? These and many similar questions demand the earnest attention of all bankers. They call for a fresh counselling together and a new interchange of experience and advice among the members of our profession."

"With these thoughts in mind, we have built the convention program with the view of also calling into our councils speakers from various lines of business to give us their viewpoints and advice. I can say without reservation that this is to my mind one of the most crucial years in the evolution of American banking, and that we are passing through a period demanding, as never before, cooperation and mutual exchange of viewpoint among our members and others."

Radio Commencement Exercises

More than 200 widely separated chapters of the American Institute of Banking, the educational section of the American Bankers Association, hold annually in September a simultaneous commencement exercise at which they listen to the speaker of the evening by radio. This is said to be the most extensive graduation ceremony held by any educational institution. The aggregate membership of the chapters, which are located in cities and towns throughout the United States, totals about 35,000 bank employees and officers. The graduates number each year more than 2,500, and total graduates are now over 25,000.

The Business Outlook

NEW YORK.—The natural forces of recovery have demonstrated their strength and have a momentum which may reasonably be expected to carry the country into new high ground, says "Banking," the publication of the American Bankers Association, in its August issue. The momentary stimulation following the distribution of bonus funds to the veterans has practically died away and is no longer an important business factor. A certain degree of uncertainty arising from the national political campaign is unavoidable, the magazine says.

Foreign Trade

The Commerce and Marine Commission of the American Bankers Association has made a report which shows that the foreign trade of the world for the year 1935 on the basis of its estimated physical volume was 78.9 per cent of the 1929 level. This was 2.1 per cent above the volume of 1934 and is the highest since 1929. The gold values of world trade were much lower due to the lower commodity prices in January, 1936. The combined index of 75 countries showed 35.7 per cent of the 1929 average.

National Bank Growth

Comptroller of the Currency O'Connor announced recently that total deposits of the 5,374 national banks in the United States on June 30, 1936, the date of the last call made for statements of condition, aggregated $28,200,453,000. The figure is a new high record for national banks, exceeding by $1,340,998,000, or 5.39%, the amount reported as of March 4, 1936, the figures show also that deposits increased $3,682,007,000, or 18.35%, over the amount reported as of June 29, 1935, the date of the corresponding call a year ago.

RESOLUTIONS ON DEATH OF J.D. BLANKENSHIP

To the Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brothers of Clanton Lodge No.
423:

We, the committee appointed to draft and present suitable resolutions on the death of Brother Jefferson Davis Blankenship, beg leave to submit the following:

Brother Blankenship was born in Coosa County, Alabama, September 8, 1861. He moved to Chilton in 1907, where he lived until the time of his death.

He was married September 20, 1878, to Miss Sarah Ann Bazemore. Five children were born to them. Four of whom, Jack Blankenship of Weogufka, Emmett Blankenship of Birmingham,
Mrs. M. L. Evans of Clanton, and Mrs.
Dollie Barrett of Thorsby, survive him.

He united with the Baptist Church about 38 years ago. He was ever faithful to his church, being a member of New Salem Baptist Church at the time of his death.

Brother Blankenship took the degrees of Masonry in Clanton Lodge.
He took the E. A. degree Jan. 8, 1908,
F. C. degree February 4, 1908, and the
M. M. degree April 4, 1908.

On the 29th day of July, 1936, he heard the summons that carried him to the great beyond, from whose bourne no traveler returns. He was buried in the cemetery at New Salem Baptist Church, July 30, 1936, with full Masonic honors.

Now, whereas, the Supreme Grand Master of the Universe has seen fit to call Brother Blankenship from this life, and

Whereas, from his hands have dropped forever the working tools of life, and

Whereas, Clanton Lodge has lost one of its most loyal and faithful members
Therefore, be it resolved:

First, that we bow in humble submission to our Heavenly Father's will.

Second, that we extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved family.

Third, that we emulate Brother Blankenship's spirit of loyalty and faithfulness to his lodge.

Fourth, that these preambles and resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our lodge, a copy sent the bereaved family, and a copy furnished each of the local papers for publication.

United States Has Excess Of Horses

Neglect to breed mares between 1925 and 1933 has left the United States with an excess of horses and mules over 10 years and not enough between 3 and 10 years of age. As a result, there will be a national shortage of about 175,000 horses and 325,000 mules when the 1937 work season opens up, according to information County Agricultural Agent J. W. Fant has just received from Wayne Dinsmore, Secretary of the Horse and Mule Association of America.

Dinsmore's figures show that Alabama will have to import about 2,500 work horses and approximately 31,000 work mules, from other states, for replacements alone before the 1937 work season starts; that is, colts raised in Alabama in 1934 will fall short that number of equalling losses by death in 1936. This means that over $5,600,000 in cash will have to be paid out by Alabama farmers, for work animals many of which they might easily have raised.

Breeding is increasing, and it is estimated there will be about one million horse and mule colts foaled and raised this year, but death losses in 1936 will be around 1,200,000; so there will be much need for more good sires for some years to come.

Donald Comer Is Rendering Valuable Service

Donald Comer, Birmingham textile and president of the American Cotton Manufacturers Association, is doing all that one good man can do to warn the country of the grave danger to the American textile industry from the mass importation of cheap Japanese textile fabrics.

While certain groups in this country are anxiously considering the problem of finding room in the world for Japan's spectacular trade growth, they might be better employed in devising ways and means to retain and maintain American industries. Mr. Comer points to cotton mills shut down, to tens of thousands of unemployed, because Japan with her 20 cents a day labor can undersell American manufacturers, despite tariff walls and other measures designed to protect the American cotton industries.

Mr. Comer makes some suggestions worthy of serious consideration: "Let Japan sell her cheap textile to non-textile manufacturing countries, and pay us in the produce of those countries. We can accept coffee from Java and Brazil, rubber from Malay, tung oil from China, fruit from Central America, etc. These are products we need and do not compete with ours.
Nor would their importation increase our unemployment, threaten our wage standards, or adversely affect our people's economic welfare. "If Japan wants commercial peace—the best insurance against war—with the United States, she will take this way out."

Coming from a man like Donald Comer, these suggestions must be taken to heart by every one who is interested in the welfare of the American textile industry and the hundreds of thousands of wage earners who depend for their livelihood on that important industry.

Donald Comer is performing a great national service—he is putting the country on guard against "the Yellow Peril."—Centerville Press.

FARMERS TOLD OBTAIN REAL ABRUZZI RYE SEED

Auburn.—Alabama farmers should be certain that they obtain Abruzzi seed when they purchase that variety, warns J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, in advising that Rosen and other rye seed are often substituted for Abruzzi.

"Because the seed of the different varieties is so similar in appearance, farmers should buy Abruzzi seed from a territory where Abruzzi is commonly grown, and refuse seed not completely labeled," he says. "It is generally ac-knowledgeed that when seed is offered at abnormally low prices it is well to make careful inquiry and keep records showing the representations made by the seller."

When seed is suspected of being mis-branded it should be called to the attention of L. N. Allen, seed analyst of the State Department of Agriculture, Montgomery, who will report the case to the Division of Seed Investigation, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., if the shipment appears to have violated the Federal Seed Act.

Bankers Urge Farmers Plant Winter Legumes

Auburn.—The Agricultural Committee of Alabama Bankers Association has written bankers of the State urging that they encourage farmers to plant winter legumes to enrich their soil and to prevent soil erosion during the winter months.

"The planting of legumes taken in connection with the present program of farm terracing in Alabama should lead to a rapid increase in the productivity of our soils," says a letter written by the Agricultural Committee and signed by H. J. Whitfield, chairman.

"A study of the increase production of Alabama farms by counties will demonstrate that the use of winter legumes is bringing results."

Vetch Planter Display- ed By Polk Brothers

Beginning of School Term is the Time to

Many a child with the makings of an honor student just

There may be several reasons for this, but eyestrain is one proven reason. Doing lessons in poorly lighted class-

Dr. J.S. Gowan. A large number of the town placed their signatures on the petition necessary to qualify Dr. Gowan as a candidate to the Voters of Clanton, Alabama.

Having been a citizen and taxpayer of our town for the past twenty years, I feel that this gives me the right to offer myself as a candidate for Mayor.

There is one promise above all others I want to make, and that is: I promise you that if elected I will use all available power at my command to see that the city schools are run for a full term. I feel that there is more important than the education of our 1200 school children, though are children today, they are the citizens to rule and govern our city tomorrow.

I also promise you that I will reduce the water rate. Our water system is one of the town's principal sources of revenue, this we all know, however, I think that there is every reason why it should have some relief and at the same time not ruin the town financially.

There are many other promises I should like to make, such as get Federal aid to improve the town, unless the door of opportunity has been closed I will do as other towns have done, and it is a matter of common knowledge their benefit has been great.

If you want a mayor that believes in the above and will fight for the children's educational opportunity, give me your vote and influence.

J.E. GOWAN

We, the qualified candidates for city council, do hereby concur in the above statements and join Dr. Gowan in the promises:

M.Z. Atchison,
T.W. Kemp,
R.W. Lowe,
Jno. D. Mullins,
Hugh Thompson.

The Real Reason For Reactionary Objections

Even President Roosevelt's voice is objectionable to the reactionary anvil chorus. A Hearst editorial, in the New York Evening Journal, calls him a "crooner." The New York Herald Tribune finds "the honey of the President's voice seems a little sticky and insincere."

Landon's voice, however, is found by the Herald Tribune to have "the refreshment of a tin drier of cool water . . . after so much rhetorical sweet champagne and essence of wormwood." And the Portland Oregonian finds it "as common as the Kansas soil. He might have been talking to a farmer at the fence."

Unfortunately for this "folksy" build-up, the Kansas City Journal-Post, a pro-Landon paper, reveals that it wasn't a farmer at the fence at all, but a coach in the stands at Topeka—a professional coach who had worked on Landon's voice for weeks, and who signaled him, not with a tin dipper but with a white hat, when he was talking too loud.

Of course, the real reactionary objections are not to the quality of Mr. Roosevelt's voice—but to the fact that when he speaks he speaks straight from the shoulder, that when he says something, he means it—

And that after he promised the American people recovery and reform, in his first side talks in 1933, he kept BOTH promises. —Philadelphia Record (Ind.)

Fake Prize Schemes

A rather ancient scheme for separating the unwary from their money is being worked again, both in the United States and Canada, according to a leading business men's magazine.

The plan is to insert an advertisement containing a perfectly simple puzzle which anyone can easily solve, and offer prizes for correct solutions. A favorite prize is a "building lot."

Of course, anyone who sends in a solution of the puzzle wins a lot, but he is informed that he will be expected to remit a small sum—in one case $7.75—for the deed and other incidental expenses, connected with the property. The "lot" is very small and the $7.75 fees alone would net the seller around $200 an acre for some worthless land.

So, if the "winner" swallows that bait he is out just $7.75 for the privilege of working the puzzle, while his name is passed along to other swindlers as that of an easy mark.

There are many perfectly legitimate prize offers advertised in various periodicals, but those which require a payment of cash before the prize is delivered are generally fraudulent and should be shunned.

"The forthright announcement of Mrs. Jacob Riis that she will support President Roosevelt 'wholeheartedly' for a richly deserved re-election undoubtedly came as a severe shock to the Republicans." —Vicksburg Herald (Ind.)

"Of all the camouflages the Liberty Leaguers have trotted out, and they have a marvelous record for bringing out some flimsy ones, their pious claim of non-partisanship is the thinnest yet." —Durham Herald (Ind.)

"Among the make-believe issues are the loose charges that the incumbent of the White House is a Communist or a Fascist. Such tactics are merely one removed from flame-calling." —Boston Christian Science Monitor. (Ind.)

"The friendly hand of Uncle Sam was stretched out last week to rescue thousands of bank depositors from the effects of two bank failures in Eastern States." —Passaic Herald-News. (Ind.)

The Rank And File Are
For Roosevelt

That the rank and file of the American people, regardless of party affiliation, will stick by President Roosevelt in his fight to correct abuses brought upon the country by years of misrule, is the prediction of the Cicero (Ill.) News in a first-page, powerful editorial printed last week.

The News declares that when the President began to correct the evils of government he found it necessary to take away special privileges, "in order to give us of the rank and file a fair chance to enjoy our heritage as free Americans. That is why those powerful people and interests are fighting Roosevelt today. That is why they are trying to block his progress by unfair and dishonest attacks that appear daily in a hostile press that is roped and hog-tied with the vicious dollars of the same powerful individuals and interests. That is why we, as American citizens of the rank and file, should stick with the President.

"When we speak of the rank and file we include, among others, the bank depositors, who can today deposit their dollars in the banks without any fear because Franklin D. Roosevelt has provided them with depositors' insurance.

"When we speak of the rank and file we include the home owners and the farm owners, because the wisdom of Franklin D. Roosevelt's policies has protected the home and farm against unjust foreclosure.

"When we speak of the rank and file we include the small banker, because he is no longer at the mercy of the powerful institutions and the same insurance which protects his depositors protects him against raids on his bank.

"When we speak of the rank and file we include the business man, who again sees his business paying him a profit and who no longer faces commercial destitution, because a reasonable monetary policy has given the people once more a chance to get a dollar to spend.

"When we speak of the rank and file we include the laborer, who again faces a period of steady employment, because of Roosevelt policies which started up again the wheels of industry, providing jobs for the multitudes.

"When we speak of the rank and file we include honest people generally of all political parties, who are willing to give credit where credit is due; to the man, whose wisdom, determination and patriotic endeavors have ended the greatest depression in the nation's history."

Colonel Knox And Safety Razors

To Colonel Knox goes first prize for making the silliest remark of the current campaign. In ridiculing the New Deal he said:

"It began with a proposal for a belt of trees in a territory that nature had decided should not have trees."

The Baltimore Evening Sun points out that "Nature decided there should be no Boulder Canyon, Colonel Knox's erstwhile party leader, Mr. Hoover, decided otherwise."

The laissez faire philosophy of the Republican Party finds a ready champion in Colonel Knox. Nature also decided that the Mississippi River from time to time would overflow its banks and wash away lands, buildings and people. We wonder if Colonel Knox is opposed to levees on the same grounds that he is opposed to planting trees.

Nature also decided that the umbrella should not be a part of the human anatomy. Is every man who purchases an umbrella guilty of violating the laws of Nature?

Nature has also blest or cursed man with whiskers. If Colonel Knox owns a safety razor he is therefore violating the laws of nature.

We take it that every man who plants a tree where Nature failed to provide one is guilty of the same sort of reckless disregard for her laws for which Colonel Knox condemns the New Deal.

Several million trees planted by the New Deal in the shelter belt program are still growing. If Colonel Knox is sincere we suggest that he pledge the Republican Party to cut them down.

Or perhaps Colonel Knox is really in favor of man-made dams, levees, umbrellas, safety razors and is merely opposed to the planting of trees because it happened to be a project of the New Deal—Montgomery Advertiser.

"One studies the Landon acceptance speech in vain for evidence that any departure from the outstanding items of the Roosevelt administration is intended." —Cleveland Plain Dealer. (Ind. Dem.)

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haslow

At a recent session of a great conference a leading minister prayed the following prayer that startled everyone listening: "Lord God of the church, help us to disagree as Christians." At first thought the prayer seemed irrelevant and out of place, but the more the delegates thought about it, the more it seemed correct and right. God has made us with varied minds and beliefs and to disagree is a part of our nature. Suppose that you start out in search of two people who agree on everything. They are not found. We have our own beliefs and they run crosswise to the beliefs of others at times. It is human to disagree. That prayer, "Help us to disagree as Christians," should be constantly in our hearts and upon our lips. It will be a happy day for the Kingdom of God when people learn the fine art of disagreeing as Christians.

At one time we bought a tricycle for the little lad in our home. It was his gift from loving parents and we instructed him how to ride it and run with it. One day he came up the front steps crying as though his heart would break. The blood was streaming from his limb. He had hurt himself even while trying to obey the instructions given for the operation of his machine. Do you think that we abused him for his mistake? Do you think that the lad wanted to throw that tricycle in the trash can because he was hurt in the use of it? We sympathized with him and helped him more diligently to learn how to handle without injury. The boy did not blame us with his injury, but rather loved us more. God has given to us many things that we can use for our pleasure and profit and many get hurt in the use of these things. Do not blame God when you get hurt while using the gifts that He is giving to us through science and invention. To be sure we get hurt thrills with us and He is anxious to be in the use of them, but God sympathizes with us to avoid accidents. Be careful how you connect God with accidents. Blame yourself or some other human, God had nothing to do with it.

A freckled-faced, red-headed boy of sixteen came from a Missouri Valley town to be the office boy in a growing business. One day after six months of hard work, the boss became suspicious of him because of a box that he always carried with him from the office. The manager demanded that he be allowed to look into the box. The boy dropped his head and began crying. The boss opened the box and on the inside he found a Bible, a few letters from his mother and a deposit book from the local bank. The Bible was examined, the letters were read and the bank book showed that the boy had deposited every dollar made since his arrival other than board and stamps. How his face did brighten as the boss handed the box back to him and said, "Son, from now on your salary is doubled. Today that boy is the manager of that firm that does more than a million dollar business every year. The teachings of the Bible, coupled with a saving habit will lift any lad to leadership."

Mr. Bruckner, vice-president of the New York Life Insurance Company said to an employee who asked for a raise in his salary: "My man, I would feel much more inclined to double your salary if you would only learn to live on half that I am now paying you. How you spend your money is no business of mine, but I am talking to you as a friend! The way people spend their money is an index as to what they are and as to what they will become. Anybody can make money. It takes a real man to save it."

I was in a business office when a man came in fuming and fussing over the income tax problem. He could not get at the amount that he was worth and the income that was his during the year. Have you an idea of what you produce year after year? Forget the money side of life and ask yourself this question: "What am I worth?" The heart is the treasure house of all values. On close examination of this treasure boy within, how many little petty weaknesses do you find? Before you can determine what you are really worth you must sum up what you have deposited on the inside. You must know your own heart to know what you are worth. Does your life ring true?

"The Universal Car"

ONE NAME comes quickly to mind when you think of "The Universal Car." The description is distinctively Ford. No other car is used by so many millions of men and women in every part of the world. Everywhere it is the symbol of faithful service.

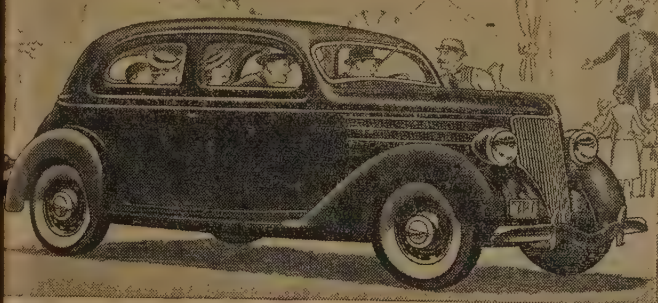

That has always been a Ford fundamental. Something new is constantly being added in the way of extra value. Each year the Ford has widened its appeal by increasing its usefulness to motorists.

Today's Ford V-8 is more than ever "The Universal Car" because it encircles the needs of more people than any other Ford ever built. It reaches out and up into new fields because it has everything you need in a modern automobile.

The Ford V-8 combines fine-car performance, comfort, safety and beauty with low first cost and low cost of operation-and up-keep. It depreciates slowly because it is made to last. There is no other car like it.

We can't understand why our Heavenly Father called at so early age, but we must be submissive to our Father's will. We pray that the blessings of our Heavenly Father rest upon the bereaved family, remembering that God has promised that all things work together for good to those who love and trust Him.

The funeral was held at New Cedron Baptist Church, conducted by the Rev. M. W. Mims. Interment followed in the churchyard cemetery with Martin & Sons in charge.

LOCAL SINCLAIR DEALERS JOIN IN BIG PRIZE CONTEST

New Cars, Radios And Other Prizes Offered In Novel Contest

One of the most interesting contests through which eleven new deluxe automobiles and 120 other valuable prizes will be awarded, was announced here this week by H. L. Taylor, of Clanton, wholesale distributor for Sinclair products in this county.

An advertisement in this issue of the News tells more about this interesting contest. The game is to predict winners of the major football games to be played this fall and winter over the United States. On Friday and Saturday night of this week, "Red" Grange, the famous football star, will speak over the hookup of the National Broadcasting Company.

"Red" will tell all about the contest, how to go about winning one of these automobiles and the other 120 worthwhile prizes, including automobile radios, awarded by Sinclair Refining Co., according to Mr. Taylor.

He stated that every Sinclair dealer in this section was prepared to issue contest blanks for the people of this county, who have just as even a chance to receive one of these valuable prizes as anyone else. Find the Sinclair announcement elsewhere in the News this week, then ask your Sinclair dealer. You do not have to purchase anything to enter this contest, Mr. Taylor stated.

Yesterday---Today

By J. Harrison Miller

Nobody likes a fly in the butter. And the most vexing fly in our nation's butter dish seems to have enlarged considerably, of late, upon his nefarious activities. We who would have preferred, with the passing of the years, to keep our national dining room clean and tidy, have always had considerable trouble with this fellow who has insisted on making himself about as unattractive as possible in our general scheme of dining room standards. One cause of this condition is that we have had too few fly swatters on the job—and not enough willing hands to use them. Another trouble is that this fellow isn't the ordinary sort of a fly. He is just a two-legged critter who, with others no better than himself, has insisted on his own way in matters related to our national housekeeping. From the beginning, we of America have had to contend with a relatively small group of people who started out at the time, to gain control of everything in the country. They pounced upon our natural resources, upon public franchises worth billions of dollars; upon state and national legislatures; upon courts and juries. Wearied by the millions of flies who were spreading misleading propaganda, they established economic tyranny on the farmer. They shot or jailed wage workers who were driven to strike for better wages or working conditions.

Polytechnic Institute.
This means that over $5,000,000 in cash will have to be paid out by Alabama farmers for work animals, many of which they might easily have raised," he says.
Breeding is increasing, and it is estimated there will be about one million horse and mule colts foaled and raised in the United States this year, but death losses in 1936 will be around 1,200,000; so there will be much need for more good breeding stock for some years to come, he points out.

INFERIOR, temporary highway surfaces clamor for more and more maintenance and reconstruction year after year. Eventually, any new roads are out of the question. All the annual road money goes for upkeep! Then, "the end of the road" has been reached, both literally and figuratively.

But Here's Big News! Highway payers save from $114 to $69 per mile per year in the cost of surface maintenance on concrete highways compared with other types of pavement.

This statement is based on the actual reports of surface maintenance costs on 100,000 miles of pavement in 18 states — every state that publishes these records.

Concrete is the standard by which all roads are judged... insuring maximum safety, comfort and economy for motorists. High visibility at night... easy on tires, gas and repairs.

Write for "Road Maintenance Costs," which gives the itemized figures.

ARLEDGE WILL NOT ATTEND ROAD MEET

Gives His Reasons; Says People Expect Commissioners To Act

His Statement Points Out His Belief That Road System Should Be Operated On A Business Basis

What is good citizenship? A good citizen might be defined as one who consistently law-abiding; one whose duty and integrity are beyond question; one who exercises the duties and privileges of citizenship, including that of voting in city, state or national affairs, according to the dictates of his conscience, untrammelled and unfettered by questionable politics, personal influence, personal gain, or other self considerations; as one who at all times supports and works for good, and constructive government. It would be his desire to support good government, whether local or national, to encourage a greater and more sincere effort toward law observance, order, and decency, and he should realize that good government should express such qualities as honesty, fairness, unselfishness, justice, and sincerity, its being intended to govern with equity toward all, and bring the greatest good to the greatest number.

If we expect such qualities to be manifested in government, and would expect to bring about this ideal state of affairs, we must first see that we ourselves continually express these very qualities. We cannot consistently demand fairness, honesty, unselfishness, justice, sincerity, and love in others if we are expressing greed, selfishness, dishonesty and hate ourselves.

Therefore, in the light of the above statement, and having former knowledge of mass-meetings I cannot see what benefit to be gained by such method. In the first place, for what purpose is the mass-meeting called? There have been no charges of mismanagement on the part of the various stockholders; there have been no acts which might be construed as improper handling of the affairs of county government. I am informed that the purpose of the mass-meeting is to pass the Public Road situation. But what? What is a mass-meeting to do with the problem? The Commissioners Court, through Judge Smith, that they are giving every dollar of the road funds they have available, use on the public roads. This is what they appropriated $4000 per month for the months of August, September and October, and I understand there is not sufficient funds on hand to cover the $3900 we have actually expended on the roads during the month of August. Will a mass-meeting help that situation?

I look upon the County the same as I do a corporation like the Alabama Power Company, or the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, who have thousands of stockholders. In case of a sale in finances or administration, do these corporations call a mass-meeting of the stockholders to discuss things out for them? No! These stockholders have elected a Board of Directors, and they have given them authority and power to administer and direct all operations; to employ efficient help when and where it is needed. It is up to the Board of Directors to properly manage and direct the affairs in connection with their organizations, and if they fail in this duty they are promptly removed. The same thing applies to Chilton County. The people of Chilton County are the stockholders; they have legally and properly appointed, by going to the polls, nominating and electing their Board of Directors who in this case are the four Commissioners. By your action, the voice of the people, authority was given these gentlemen to

MT. NEBO

The L & N IS SENDING 40,000 YOUNGSTERS TO SCHOOL

So you're sending Mary and Jimmy to school today?

Well, we, THE LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE RAILROAD, are also sending children to school—thousands of them in the states which we serve. We pay over $4,000,000 in taxes annually, and a large part of this money goes for the support of public schools and state universities, helping to modernize your school buildings, providing better equipment, employing more teachers.

But the school isn't the only thing we share with you as a tax-paying home-owner. We, too, maintain a home—a "Home Sweet Home on Rails" for thousands of travelers daily. We buy food and furniture, employ help, make repairs, fix electric lights, wash dishes—just as you do.

Running trains, hauling freight and passengers is an important part of our job. But we never forget that an equally important part of our job is our responsibility to the communities we serve—to be good neighbors in all that the word implies!

L & N RATES ARE NOW LOWEST IN HISTORY

Travel by train is the safest, most comfortable and most economical. Before you consider any means of travel, note these new low L & N passenger rates.

In coaches: 1 1/2¢ per mile

In Pullman Cars: 2¢ per mile, round trip, limit 15 days. 2 1/2¢ per mile, round trip, limit 6 months. 3¢ per mile, one way. These rates are exclusive of Pullman charges.

Air Conditioning: All cars of most through trains and sleeping and dining cars of other L & N trains are air-conditioned. You travel cool, quiet, and clean.

More Reductions In Long Distance Rates

For the seventh time in the past ten years, long distance rates have again been voluntarily reduced.

Effective September 1, the rates for both person-to-person and station-to-station inter-state long distance calls were reduced to points 235 miles or more distant. The amount of the saving on calls ranges from five cents to $1.50 depending upon the distance.

Also on inter-state person-to-person calls the charges for overtime after six minutes of conversation are reduced. (Overtime charges begin after three minutes conversation.)

It is estimated that these reductions will save Bell telephone users $7,350,000 annually.

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. W. Hunt, of Ballsville, Texas, writes: "My health isn't good. I suffered from cramps. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just lie around, so sluggish and 'down'. My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pain disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me. . . If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician."

HOW THE BANKS AID THE GOVERNMENT

Normal and Emergency Needs
Met by Advances of Commercial Banking Credit

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. — The American commercial banking credit system is an absolute essential in the financial operations of business and government, Harold G. Moulton, President of the Brookings Institution of Washington, D. C., said here recently in an address before the Graduate School of Banking conducted under the joint auspices of Rutgers University and the American Bankers Association.

If the flexibility and expansibility provided by commercial banking credit were eliminated, Dr. Moulton declared, "it is scarcely too much to say that the economic system itself would shortly be destroyed."

"Normally the amount of credit extended by commercial banks to the government is small in amount and for the purpose mainly of financing temporary requirements in anticipation of tax collections or bond sales. But in periods of war and acute depression, when the financial requirements of government expand with great rapidity, the expansion of commercial bank credit is on a tremendous scale. Such is the case at the present time."

How Public Needs Are Financed

"The purchase of government securities by individuals and by the commercial banks provides the government with the means by which its manifold activities are financed. The Treasury obtains the funds, with which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and other government credit agencies finance their operations, through the sale of securities, largely to commercial banks. These funds, in turn, have gone to the assistance of distressed banks and other financial institutions, to aid industrial and agricultural enterprises, to finance new public and private capital construction, and to provide relief to the unemployed."

Dr. Moulton declared that it is not true that the world depression was caused by a breakdown of the American banking system "which did not, in fact, occur until the depression had been under way for more than three years."

He added:

"Nor is it true that the world maladjustments existing in 1929 can be explained simply by undue extensions of commercial banking credit in the preceding years. These maladjustments involved world agricultural, industrial, commercial and financial relations."

FARM ACCOUNTING REVEALS LESSONS

Principles of Sound Business Management That Apply to All Farms

An analysis made of detailed records kept by a group of Wisconsin farms revealed several important lessons and the principles of sound business management derived from them apply equally well to other farms, says an article in the Bulletin of the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association. The article says:

"Investment costs, including interest, depreciation, repairs, taxes and insurance, are approximately two-thirds of all farm costs. Furthermore, these costs are largely independent of the production program of the farm."

"This means that if a farmer cuts his production of crops or livestock, he increases his investment costs per unit of product produced, as a smaller number of units must then carry a large expense load as before. This illustrates the importance, from the standpoint of costs, of operating a farm at or near capacity."

"Investment mistakes are more costly than many others because they cannot easily be corrected. If a farmer pays too much for his farm, his investment costs will be abnormally high as long as he owns it. If he constructs a $4,000 barn, when a $2,000 barn would have served his purpose, he will have excessive barn costs, year after year, during the entire service life of the structure."

"This emphasizes the importance of a knowledge of investment values and the specific investment requirements of individual farms."

Determining Real or False Economies

"In working for greater economy, it is essential that the farm manager be able to distinguish between a real and a false saving. This can be done only through a careful estimate of the contribution to income, over a period of time, of each item of expenditure. Only if more is saved in expense than will be lost in income, can a contemplated cut in expense be designated as a real saving."

"For example, dropping dairy herd improvement work may result in a yearly expense reduction. The question to decide is what effect the dropping of this work will have on the present and future income from the dairy herd. If the estimated loss in livestock receipts due to a lowered efficiency in feeding and breeding is greater than the original saving, then it would obviously be a false economy."

"Substantial savings can be effected on many farms through the use of more home grown garden produce and farm cured meats. Why pay out money for products of this kind that can be produced much cheaper at home? The money saved from the family food budget can be used for the purchase of many things that will make the farm home a more comfortable and pleasant place to live."

Clanton Methodist Church News

Rev. A. E. Middlebrooks, Minister

Were you at church last Sunday? The fall program is beginning. Vacation time is over. Begin your regular attendance next Sunday. If you have been irregular during the summer.

The pastor will preach Sunday morning on the theme "THE PAGANS OF CLANTON." Come and hear this topic discussed. At the evening hour, 7:00, Dr. Slaughter of Selma will bring the message. The public is invited to all the services of the day.

The Board of Christian Education will meet Friday night. Officers and teachers for the new year will be elected. At a meeting of the quarterly conference next week stewards for the new year will be elected.

The church bulletin last Sunday carried the following poem which applies to a large number of church members over our land. Does it apply to you?

"I forgot my Lord in the summer time,
Just the time I was needed most.
I was not away, but on each Lord's day
I just failed to be at my post.
"I forgot my church in the summer time
As I lazily lay in bed.
While the faithful few had my work to do
I was spiritually dead.
"I forgot my dues in the summer time,
When He needed them most of all.
While my cash was spent, I was pleasure bent
Just off duty for God till fall.
"I forgot my class in the summer time,
But the devil did not forget.
Working day and night, he kept up the fight

He's a go-getter, you can bet.
"I forgot my soul in the summer time,
Got along without spiritual food;
While God on high sent me blessings,
I Showed Him naught but ingratitude.
"If my Lord should come in the summer time,
When to duty to God I'm free,
Wonder what I'll do, when my life is through,
If by chance he should forget me."

Does The CCC Pay?

By Sam C. Nummy
CCC Camp

The CCC pays in several ways by employing people and teaching the youth of this country to work with their hands, and by putting money into circulation.

Each year a large number of boys are given the opportunity of earning their own living and helping their parents in a financial way.
This work is honest and the members really learn to work. Many boys never worked anywhere before enrolling in the CCC. Business men prefer the services of enrollees because they have learned to work with a system.
The CCC also puts money into circulation. This camp has food to buy for about 185 men to feed and clothe. Most of the food or at least a large portion, is bought locally. Each boy receives $5.00 to $20.00 a month in camp. The picture shows and the business firms of this city receives most of this besides the amount spent by the officers.
So you see, we really consume and bring about employment through it.

You Do Not Hesitate When Disease Threatens

Eyestrain, too, PICKS ITS VICTIMS YOUNG!

When disease epidemics threaten with their ravishing after-effects, you do not hesitate to take every precaution to protect your child.

Not so spectacular in its damage, but frequently a life-wrecker just the same, is eyestrain.

NOW IS THE TIME TO DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT Eyestrain Is Easily Preventable

Eyestrain usually is caused by one of three things (1) Defective eyes; (2) Using normal eyes in poor light; (3) Failure to rest the eyes when they are tired.

Only an eyesight specialist can correct defective vision, but even that will not eliminate eyestrain if the child must continue to try to see in poor or insufficient light. Enough light of the right kind is the ONLY thing which will avoid eyestrain for the child or adult with normal or corrected vision.

TIFFIN FURNITURE COMPANY OPENS BIG FURNITURE SALE

Huge Shipments New Furniture Arrived At Store Here

The large Tiffin Furniture Company of Clanton is this week announcing one of the largest furniture sales in the history of this store, according to J. B. Tiffin, proprietor of this widely known store.

This announcement comes on the form of a full page advertisement appearing in this issue of the News in which are listed many of the hundreds of real bargains to be found at the store.

Mr. Tiffin stated that they have just received several carloads of new furniture and that these shipments were purchased before the recent advance in prices in the furniture market. Therefore, he is able to pass this tremendous saving on to their customers throughout this section.

Tom Tiffin, the younger member of this growing firm is pushing his sales in radios as well as on furniture and is most enthusiastic regarding this big sale event, which opens now and will continue for approximately ten days.

Thorsby Scouts Visit Tenn. And Georgia

By PHARES RAYBON
Assistant Scoutmaster

The Thorsby troop of Boy Scouts is very fortunate to have Mr. Stanley as their Scoutmaster. Being an excellent woodsman and knowing the places we visited, Mr. Stanley made the trip much more interesting to us.

We left Thorsby at three o'clock Monday morning, August 23. We went through Birmingham, Gadsden, Ft. Payne and Trenton, Ga. Before arriving at Trenton we saw a phantom mountain. Riding along the road we suddenly saw a wooded mountain top which seemed to be floating in the air. Then we ran into a dense fog and the mountain disappeared. The dense bank of fog had covered all the mountain except the very top, giving the appearance of a mountain floating in the air.

From Trenton, Ga., we went on to Chattanooga, Tenn. There we visited the old depot and saw an old railway steam engine. This engine was used in the Civil War and was exhibited at the Century of Progress in Chicago.

We rode on through Cleveland and to Reliance, Tenn. Here we left our truck and hiked about five miles up Lost Creek. This creek flows in a gorge between two high mountains. There are plenty of bass, trout and suckers in the stream. But it takes a fisherman to catch them. It is also the most deceptive stream of water I have seen. Where the water looks only a few inches deep it may be several feet deep. We found that out when we went swimming. The water is very clear because it flows over rocks.

We had a good trail in which to hike. It was an old railroad bed used in hauling timber many years ago. On a trip like this boys are apt to do funny things. As we were cooking our evening meal J.W. Sorrell was frying a pan full of bacon. The grease caught on fire in his frying pan. Mr. Stanley told him to turn it over. He meant for J.W. to turn the bacon over. In his excitement J.W. turned his pan over emptying his bacon into the fire. We were sorry to see him lose his bacon but it was funny to the other boys. Being a good Scout J.W. laughed it off and cooked his meal without further accident.

The next morning we hiked back to Reliance and went over a mountain 3,000 feet up. On top we could see many mountain ranges, including some in North Carolina. We went on over the mountain into Ducktown and Copperhill. Here we saw a copper mine. We ate lunch on the Chickamauga battlefield on Wednesday. It was very interesting with its guns and bullet-scarred trees. That night we camped at Cave Springs, Ga., while there we explored the caves.

We left at six o'clock Thursday morning and got back to Thorsby at noon, traveling a distance of about 650 miles.

Those who made the trip were: Mr. Stanley, Mr. Minor, Bobby Minor, Charles Robinson, Billy Wagner, Thomas Kincaid, J.W. Sorrell, Richard Hicks and Phares Raybon.

Public Road Costs

AS FOUND BY THE COMMITTEE Appointed By Commissioners Court And The Road Supervisor

By T. J. ARLEDGE

At last we will have the truth on road costs! Will We?? The examining Committee of three, approved by both the Commissioners Court and the County Road Supervisor, have completed their tabulations of costs in connection with the operations of the Public Roads and here they are:

All items for the month of May, 1936, including oil, gasoline, grease, lumber, labor and supervision as found in claims filed in the Probate's office, whether paid or not:

Total for May $5,302.24
Less Oil and Gasoline used on Airport and 3-Way, Selma Road Project 261.23
Total $5,041.01

All items for the month of June, 1936, including oil, gasoline, grease, lumber, labor, etc., as found in claims filed in the Probate's office, whether paid or not:

Total for June $6,439.87
Less Oil and Gasoline used on Airport and 3-Way Selma Road Project 228.83
Total $6,211.04

Less Pittman Co., Invoice No. 2826 for parts for No. 65 grader on 3-Way Road Project 115.02
Total $6,096.02

Less Pittman Co., Invoice No. 2539 for repairs to District No. 4 road patrol, a repair bill which was incurred in the early part of April and which is not justly charged to operations 280.97
Correct Total for June 5,815.05

(Judge Smith still contends that these latter two deductions belong in the road costs.)

All items for the month of July, 1936, including oil, gasoline, grease, lumber, labor, etc., as found in claims filed in the Probate's office, whether paid or not:

Total for July $4,638.75
Midus oil and gas for Alms House, Airport and 3-Way Project 106.74
Total for July $4,532.21

Summing up, we have a total charged to the Road Department by the Commissioners Court in the sum of $15,388.27, including the salary and expenses of the road supervisor in the sum of $837.50, which, according to the law establishing this office, is not considered a part of the appropriation made for the work in connection with the public roads, therefore, the actual costs coming under the budget appropriation for the public roads is $14,550.77, or which 7,631 gallons gasoline was carried over into August, at 62¢ per gallon is $625.74 rightly belonging in the costs of operations for August. This leaves a correct total operation cost in the sum of $13,925.03 according to the claims filed in the Probate's office. Of this amount, and as indicated in my report to the Commissioners Court dated September 7, 1936, there are unpaid bills in the sum of $914.19 which should have been paid out of my appropriation and which is very evident that I have left my original appropriation after paying these bills the approximate sum of $1,025.00. This is very comparative with the County Treasurer's record of expenditures, which shows that the Road Department has an unexpended balance of $1,135.46 in its first appropriated monies for the three months just mentioned.

Of course, as fully explained in former issues of this paper, the Monthly Progress Reports submitted by the Road Supervisor to the Commissioners Court will perhaps never fully be reconciled with the Probate office and Treasurer's office because in his reports the Road Supervisor has to charge into his costs each item as it is used or incorporated in the work, regardless of what it was purchased or paid for. He cannot keep a cost record otherwise than he is doing. He cannot charge out a bill of lumber until it has been incorporated in the roads as part of the lumber may be used in several beats, and he is required by law to show actual costs for work in each beat.

The writer is very hopeful that the work of this Committee will eliminate further contention and further allow him more time for constructive planning and direction of the road work for which he has been employed. Almost two-thirds of his time has been consumed in useless discussion of various charges and rumors; such charges and rumors have been very detrimental to harmonious operations in connection with his road work.

In next week's issue of this paper, the writer will publish a copy of his report of expenditures to the Commissioners Court which should be self-explanatory.

with an outstanding recommendation. She served as demonstration agent for eight years and her departure from there left remorse in the hearts of the people of the county. She is a graduate of the Florence Teachers College, attended the University of Alabama and took a special home economics course at Auburn, preparing herself for this work which she is now capable in. The people of Tallapoosa County honored her last week with a county-wide affair.

Chilton County is fortunate in securing Miss Grace to take the place of Miss Pardue. It was at the county's first county-wide picnic that Miss Grace expressed the desire to come to this county at sometime to carry on this work. She attended the picnic with several of her club girls and an excellent exhibit, also appearing on the program as one of the speakers. She stated that she believed there is a wonderful opportunity here for her work to be carried on. She stated that she expects to get out into the county in an early date, but wanted as many women and girls to come to her office as early as possible so that she may meet them and become better acquainted.

treasurer's report, which are as follows:
In ay, 1935, the Commissioners spent $84.00
In May, 1936, the Road Supervisor spent $84.00

In June, 1935, the Commissioners spent $84.00

In July, 1936, the Road Supervisor spent $84.00

In August, 1935, the Commissioners spent $84.00
In August, 1936, the Road Supervisor spent $84.00

In September, 1935, the Commissioners spent $84.00
Amount appropriated the Supervisor for Sept., 1936 4.00
Difference $80.00
In October, 1935, the Commissioners spent $84.00
Amount appropriated the Supervisor for Oct., 1936 4.00
Difference $80.00

The amount the Commissioners spent more than they would allow the Road Supervisor to spend as show above, Total $19,550.77
"Out of what the Road Supervisor spent during these three months for gasoline used prior to May 1, 1936, and should not come out of the supervisor's funds. It should be stated that $3,176.96 was paid for voices made by the Commissioners Court prior to May 1, 1936, and should not come out of the Supervisor's funds.

"I will give you a further set of figures taken from the records of Chilton County, of the first six months 1935, and render the totals as follows:
The Commissioners spent from Road & Bridge Fund — $14.55
The Commissioners spent from the Gasoline Fund — 31.20

Making a total for the 6 months, $45.75
Giving an average of $8,290.36 month."

"There is no consideration being given the fact that since we have the Road Supervisor, the Commissioners have not seen fit to appropriate monies for the maintenance of the roads and bridges from the gas fund, and upon examination of the records I find that on December 2, 1935, while they were in charge of it, they saw fit to appropriate and was paid on January 3, 1936, of the General Fund to the J. D. Adams Co., $3,900.00.

"In addition to all the above monies spent or otherwise disposed of by the Commissioners Court in the year 1935, and the last six months of the year, expenses not included in any report have a letter from the Alabama Highway Administration, signed by Mr. M. M. Chief Accountant in Montgomery, stating that he had sent to Chilton County for the calendar year 1935, $19,550.77.

"As this money was spent in several different ways there is no way for us to know how much was actually spent for roads, but I believe it will allow you the same right, that per cent or more of this fund went to the maintaining and building of roads and bridges. Assuming the above to be a fair estimate, it will add $29,785.77 to the amount the Commissioners have spent in 1935.

"Making a total that the Commissioners spent in the year 1935, as follows:
Road and Bridge and Gasoline Fund $99.40 Federal donations (Estimated) 79.35
Making a grand total $178.75
Making an average of $14,937.95 monthly for the year 1935.

"Is it reasonable to suppose that one could keep the roads and bridges of Chilton County in as good condition with only four thousand dollars per month as he could with approximately fifteen thousand dollars per month which the records show spent per month last year?

"We further find from the records that just a few days after the Road Supervisor started his work in this county, and with the fact being known by every one of the readers of this article, that due to the bad weather conditions of a hard winter and mud washouts, the roads were in as bad a worse condition than they had been in five years. That perhaps, in order to defeat a progressive movement in the county, the Commissioners Court took $10,000.00 out of the Road & Bridge Fund and bought two $500 time certificates bearing 6 per cent interest from Peoples Saving Bank.

"I hope that the people of this county will investigate these figures and facts and then you will know who what authorities are responsible for the roads and bridges being in their present reported condition.

"My actions in all these matters have been what I and many of my and my friends thought would protect and promote the best interest to the county as a whole in this county, and I am sure if the progressive movement received the proper cooperation from the authorities in this county that would have been a success and would have been pleased with the results.

"Yours Respectfully,
C. B. COX

Judge Smith Moves Toward Road Aid

WILLING TO DO ANYTHING HE POSSIBLY CAN

His Decision Of Repre- sentative And Road Supervisor

Two hundred persons gathered at the courthouse in Clanton last afternoon at the call of a meeting held for the purpose of attempting to reach some agreement, or at least to the road problem in this section.

A call was issued by Judge J. Lee Smith at the suggestion of friends and interested in the matter. The meeting was opened by Hon. J. C. Patterson who was chosen to act as chairman.

Judge Smith spoke first to the meeting, giving figures and statements taken from the records of his office, showing the condition of the roads for work and equipment. He was followed by Hon. L. H. Reynolds, former judge, and others.

After an interview with a representative of the State Highway Patrolmen, Judge Smith, speaking for the County Court, stated that the Court was willing to agree to anything reasonable to bring about a solution to the problem which now confronts the citizens of the county and road officials.

A statement was made after Judge Smith had been informed that Rep. Cox had a plan in mind that they clear up the problem. He stated that so far Mr. Cox had indicated such a plan to him. Judge Smith:

He reliably informed that Mr. Cox stated what he thought would be an arrangement between the County Court and the Road Supervisor to money matters, and that he was willing to make some concessions to solve the road problem. He got some action in the road matter.

Together with the commissioners they read and willing to listen to any reasonable suggestion which would solve our road problem. As stand now, I am not surprised if people are becoming impatient. We want to give Mr. Cox a reasonable time to come before us to offer any suggestion or proposition which they deem to be reasonable. We hope that a solution can be reached which will be agreeable to all as well as the people of the county. I welcome constructive criticism at all times.

We prepared an answer to the newspaper articles by Mr. Armand Mr. Cox, together with figures directly from the records on my office. A part of these were quoted at the mass meeting Saturday, although not all. I want the people to have the story, and let them decide for themselves.

Withholding this article, however, allow these gentlemen ample opportunity to offer any suggestion they may have in mind. Again I say, we will continue to back Page 6.

Maplesville Resident Died In Selma Sunday

William Williams, age 72, one of the oldest citizens of Maplesville, died at Baptist Hospital in Selma last afternoon following a lingering illness.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning in the Maplesville Baptist Church with the Rev. A. S. Bentley and J. E. Ezell officiating. Interment was in the Maplesville cemetery.

Mr. Williams was for several years a resident in Maplesville and took an interest in all civic, political, and social activities of his county.

He was survived by his widow, nine children, J. W. Williams and C. G. Williams of Clanton; Kelly of Denham; Mrs. Mable Woodward of Anna; Mrs. Ethel David of Perry; Lina Stupar of Wilcox; Mrs. Linnie Davis of Wilcox; Sarah F. Williams and Mrs. Mary Lawrence of Lawley. One sister, Mrs. Simms of Selma.

He will be especially glad to have them for the opening exercises on Monday morning.

Lights Necessary On Wagons, Buggies

Special attention is being brought to the people of Clanton County by State Highway Patrolmen Wallace Waites and Earl Henley regarding the use of wagons or buggies on the roads at night without some kind of light.

This is a violation of the state laws, and since the death of a highway patrolman recently when he ran into an unlighted wagon, the law will be rigidly enforced here. Waites and Henley stated this week. A lantern, or other light at night so that it may be seen, will be sufficient, they stated.

THORSBY READY FOR SELECTION OF CITY HEADS

M. J. Soberg Is Only One Seeking Office Of Town's Mayor

Thorsby is ready for the forthcoming town election when the mayor and five members of the council will be selected. The election is set for Monday, September 21st.

M. J. Soberg, present mayor of this growing Clanton County town, is the only one seeking that office. At a meeting of citizens held recently, C. S. Howard was also nominated, but withdrew in favor of Mr. Soberg.

Those whose names will appear on the ballot as candidates for the office of members of the town council are V. E. Wyatt, M. E. Willis, S. M. Pate, J. M. Smith, H. W. Reinhardt, V. H. Suttle, H. R. Maddox, E. E. Porter and Alkins L. Collins.

COTTON REPORT

There were 1,500 bales of cotton, counting round as half bales, ginned in Clanton County, from the crop of 1936, prior to September 1, 1936, as compared with 1,224 bales ginned to September 1, 1935.

CLUB BOYS GO ON TOUR AT SHAW FARM

Interesting Trip Made By Members Of County Cattle Clubs

The Calf Club boys, along with some farmers as visitors, visited Mr. H. S. Shaw's farm last Saturday. The object of this trip was to show the boys and farmers how old fields and woodland could be converted into good pastures.

Just as we crossed the Coosa River we entered Mr. Shaw's pasture which was planted this spring. The only preparation he made on the land was to clear it off and sow the seed on top of the ground. The following seed mixture was used:

- Dallas Grass—15 lbs.
- Common Lespedeza—15 lbs.
- White Dutch Clover—2 lbs.
- Hop Clover—1 lb.

A total of 33 pounds per acre was broadcast on top of the ground along in April.

Mr. Shaw pointed out the fact that the grass showed up or caught much better on fresh land, that is, new ground just cleared, than it did on old fields. This was very noticeable when you cross the line from old fields to the new ground.

Mr. Shaw's old pasture, which is 5 years old, had the same mixture of grasses in it except 50 per cent of it was substituted with carpet grass. Since then he has found that it pays to leave the carpet grass out all together.

Some of Mr. Shaw's cattle were observed by the group on the pastures. These calves were about five months old and at the present market price they will bring $200. The cattle are carried through the winter on silage. County Agent Fant told the group all of the details about making silage and feeding ensilage. Texas seeded ribbon cane is a good variety of sorghum that will produce from 8 to 20 tons to the acre. It requires about two tons per cow to carry her through the winter.

The hillside pastures which were on further were very interesting. This pasture was two years old and it was laid dry when it was planted a year ago.

Alabama auto owners will carry a front and rear tag for 1937, as is done in many other states. The new tags are attractive with their colors of purple and white.

HEALTH DEPT. CARRYING ON DESPITE CUTS

Expects To Carry On Work On Present Appropriation Says Baker

Public Health

Another vexatious problem the Legislature must face, if and when it meets this year, is the Health Department's sorry financial condition. From a peak appropriation of $686,000 in 1930 the department was cut to $400,000 in 1933—a decrease of 42 per cent. Worse, the Fletcher budget cut this year lopped off $150,000 from that amount, reducing the appropriation to $250,000.

However, NO effort will be made by the department to hike its appropriation, despite the heavy drain on its resources, during the current infantile paralysis epidemic, declared Dr. J. N. Baker, state health officer.

"We are primarily concerned with the stabilization of our appropriation," Dr. Baker explained. "Though strict economy must be exercised we believe we can carry on effectively if our $400,000 annual appropriation is paid in full. For some inscrutable reason a portion of the department's activities is not (Continued to Back Page)

BANK DEPOSITS SHOWING BIG UPWARD TREND

Comptroller Of Currency Reports Record Height During Past Year

The latest report of the Comptroller of the Currency just issued shows that the total deposits of the 5,374 active national banks on June 30 last, the date of the last call made for statements of condition, amounted to $26,200,453,000 which is a new high record for national banks. They exceed by $1,340,998,000, or 5.39 per cent, the amount reported as of March 4, 1936, the date of the previous high record since the establishment of the national banking system. The June 30 figure also shows that deposits in national banks increased $3,682,207,000, or 16.35 per cent, over the amount reported as of June 29, 1935.

The following table shows the national bank deposits during the first three years of the Roosevelt administration:

| Date          | Number of Banks | Deposits         |

Mrs. Hutton has become very popular with her outstanding suggestions and helps to housewives in the art of cooking and her coming visit to Clanton is eagerly awaited by Clanton women. Prizes are to be awarded each day during the school which will be held in the basement of the Baptist Church. All ladies of this section are extended a cordial invitation.

Hon. and Mrs. J. B. Atkinson and family, have as their guest this week, J. L. Darnell, traveler, curio collector and business man. ## CASH PRIZES TO BE GIVEN AT EXHIBIT

Prizes Total $120; Large Crowd Expected For Entire Program

One of the most interesting events to take place in Clanton this week will be the Clanton County 4-H Jersey Cattle Club show. About twenty-five members of clubs over the county are expected to bring in their purchased calves and cows to be exhibited that day according to B. N. Ivey, assistant county agent in charge of club work.

Twenty-two cash prizes, totaling $120.00 are to be awarded to winners in the various groups. The program begins at ten o'clock in the morning at the courthouse with the welcome address delivered by Judge J. Lee Smith. He will be followed by an address by T. A. Sims, club specialist from Auburn. F. W. Burns, livestock specialist from Auburn will also address the crowd. He will be followed by a representative from the American Jersey Cattle Club, who will be followed by J. N. Dennis, one of the county's outstanding farmers.

The program then shifts to the George McCain Stables on the highway where the showing of the cattle will take place with the awarding of prizes.

"ISABELLA RACKETEERS" TO STAGE SHOW AT VERBENA

The Isabella Racketeers will stage a show at Verbena High School auditorium on Friday night, September 18, at 8 o'clock.

This well known group of stage entertainers say they have a real show for Friday night. Don't miss it. They are funny. If you want to laugh until your sides hurt, be there.

Admission will be ten and twenty cents.

Maplesville Youth Is Hit By Truck Wed

Judson Lawrence, 26-year-old Maplesville sawmill worker, is in the Central Alabama Hospital here where he is being treated for severe cuts and bruises about the head and face, suffered about noon Tuesday when he is said to have been struck by a Baggett Transfer Company truck as he walked along the Selma Highway near Maplesville.

It was reported at the hospital that he had suffered a severe cut on the chin, bruises about the head, and injuries to his back and hips. However, it was stated that it is not believed that the man suffered internal injuries and it is not thought he is dangerously hurt. Tuesday afternoon Lawrence was still in a semi-conscious condition and was not able to furnish any details of the accident.

Tom Johnston of Clanton, the driver of the truck, was not reached for a statement, but it is understood that he told friends here that the man walked into the side of his machine, the bad striking him. Johnston has been employed by the Baggett Transfer Company for several years.

At the time of the accident, Lawrence was returning from the Maplesville cemetery to supervise arrangements for preparing the grave of his step-father, F. D. Williams, whose funeral was held Tuesday afternoon. He was picked up by Lon Dennis of Maplesville, who carried him into Maplesville, where he was picked up and brought to the hospital by a Martin & Sons ambulance.

Highway Patrolmen Waites and Henley made investigation.

Another Large Still Is Nabbed By Officers

Deputies Velcoe Mims and Herbert Wright, Clanton County "go-getters" when it comes to locating and raiding whiskey stills, brought in another trophy Tuesday last week in the form of a fifty-five gallon distilling outfit.

The complete copper outfit was nabbed just west of Minooka. No arrests were made. The still was not in operation.

GULFPRIDE STATION GETS A NEW GREASE SHED

A. D. Scott, manager of the Gulfpride Service Station of Clanton, announced this week that they are going forward with improvements at this modern station.

A new shed for the efficient lubricating department of this station is being erected and will add much convenience after their completion.

A Lantern For A Life

FOR the want of a light on a wagon traveling on a highway at night, a fine young man gave his life, so needlessly. Saturday night. A young wife weeps for her husband; a small wide-eyed daughter continually asks for daddy; a broken hearted father and mother grieves for a son taken away so suddenly. This was brought home to us—it was one of our best friends who answered the supreme call because of some one else's carelessness and law disobedience.

MAURY Young is dead—our friend is gone. Perhaps he did not die in vain. Perhaps people on the highway at night will use this tragedy as a lesson and comply with the law—to place a light on their vehicle at night, regardless of what kind it may be. Nothing is more dangerous than a wagon on the road at night without a light—dangerous to the car driver—dangerous to the team driver.

THE State lost a good officer, all who knew Maury Young lost a friend, the family lost a loving member—all for the price of a lantern.—Northwest Alabamian.

In Pity's Name!

From floods, drouths, famines and over-zealous political press agents, good Lord deliver us!

Undaunted over the reception of their stories about pie-eating Quoddy pigs and dogfood-eating relief families, they continue ad nauseam to pour their fancies and inventions into news columns and to sell cheap stunts to guileless candidates.

Col. Knox was taken in by one of these embroidered tales when he told about "marble shower baths" in the Works Progress Administration-built dog pound at Memphis, a story easily refuted by pictures now being broadcast by irate Tennessee folks.

Another sour one, staged by the Republican National Committee, has stirred the people of Arcadia, Mo. Following a rumor that WPA has spent $20,000 for a sidewalk used only by cows, movie cameramen were dispatched to the scene. Finding the sidewalk in human use they hired Farmer George Mayes to drive his six cows over the walk, paying him $25 for the cows' services and Farmer John New $1 a minute to do a speaking part. Finally the town marshal ran them out of town.

The exploitation of Governor Landon's birth in West Middlesex was to be expected. Ever since Parson Weems told George Washington, Presidents and presidential candidates have had to undergo "the human interest buildup." But our heart went out to the unoffending Alf when he was forced to submit to the public kissing of Aunt Molly Baird, his babyhood nurse—and vice versa for Aunt Molly—and swelter around through all the other ceremonies.

Governor Cochran of Nebraska: "Nebraska's budget is even better balanced than that of its sister state, Kansas. But with taxes on real property in Kansas running to $24.00 per $1,000 as against $19.00 per $1,000 in Nebraska, where is Landon's merit as administrator?"

Landon is either a reactionary, in which case the country doesn't want him, or else he stands behind his faintly New Deal pledges. But in that case, if he wins, we shall have a Landon New Deal, administered by Hearst and the duPonts, a "New Deal administered by its enemies."

Governor Landon is having a hard enough time getting his program, if any, across to the people without the handicaps of bellyhoo and bathos. Well might he exclaim, as did Marechal Villars as he took leave of Louis XIV: "Defend me from my friends!"—Birmingham Post.

Landon And Taxes

Several times in his now famous tax speech at Buffalo Gov. Alf M. Landon expressed concern for "people with incomes of $25 a week or less." He attempted to set forth, with false figures and without taking comparative periods on the same comparable basis, that President Roosevelt has dealt more harshly with "people with incomes of $25 a week or less" than did President Hoover. And he told about what he has done with respect to taxation in Kansas, as he made the mistake of telling in his Chautauqua essay what he had done in Kansas for teachers and public construction.

Well, what did he do for the little fellow—having in mind that oft quoted "$25 a week or less"—in Kansas?

In the first place, the Kansas income tax law was enacted under Landon's administration and signed by him.

The "little man," if he is single and has no dependent, has to pay income taxes in Kansas on $15 a week. Under the Federal income tax law—which the Liberty League-G O P-Hearst candidate criticized severely—he pays no income tax on less than $20 a week.

Under the law Gov. Landon approved, a married couple earning $30 a week must pay income taxes. The Federal tax does not apply to them unless their income exceeds $50 a week.

There is a considerable difference in the exemptions provided in the Federal and Kansas tax laws. Married couples are allowed an exemption of $2,500 under the Federal law and only $1,500 in Kansas. Single persons are allowed $1,000 under Federal schedules, compared with $750 in Kansas. Exemptions for dependents are $400 under the U.S. statute; only $200 in Kansas.

So the little man doesn't fare so handsomely in Kansas under the tax law Gov. Landon signed. Although it is vastly different with the oil companies. And the difference between the rates in the higher brackets in Kansas and the United States is considerable.

The top rate—the very highest that can be levied on incomes in Kansas—is four (4) per cent. That applies on incomes of $7,000 or over. In the Federal scale it ranges up to 75 per cent.

On a net income of $50,000, the Federal income tax is $9,700. In New York State, where Gov. Landon's remarkable dissertation was delivered, the tax on $50,000 net income is $3,250.

But men and women with $50,000 net incomes residing in Kansas are peculiarly fortunate. Under the act Gov. Landon approved, the tax is only $1,870.

Which renders easier of comprehension the much deeper concern manifested by Gov. Landon at Buffalo for those whose incomes are in the very high brackets. Because in their case, he said he would "recommend immediate repeal" of the "cock-eyed" tax on corporation dividends.

But was it any more necessary for the candidate to expose himself on taxes at Buffalo than on teachers at Chautauqua?

Theatre Lighting

An exchange reminds us that theater programs of some forty years ago frequently carried a note concerning an invention in lighting arrangements, as follows:

"The use in theaters of electric light is experimental. Its brilliancy is of incalculable advantage if it does not prove too intense. It is our duty to give the new light the fairest and fullest trial to reach the highest and best results attainable through experiment."

While this sounds queer to us now, it did require vision and courage on the part of theater owners and others to give the then newly discovered light "a fair trial." Their progressiveness was rewarded, as it deserved to be, and nowhere has the science and art of lighting reached greater heights of perfection than in the theater of today.

Much credit is due to the pioneers who made these developments possible.

The sheep who leads the wolf pack becomes smaller as we see more plainly the red tongues, the white teeth of those behind him.

But it is Governor Martin of Oregon who hits the nail on the head: "We have naturally come to be suspicious of a lamb leading the wolf packs—we know the lamb is innocent enough, but what do the wolves intend to do?"

Ed Keyes of Hollywood, Calif., shampoos his head with molasses and walks about the movie sets luring insects from in front of the camera lens.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

Hawney Webb, who was at the head of the famous Webb school in Tennessee, was asked the question: "Don't you get tired to teaching Latin?" The old professor showed signs of irritation and replied rather abruptly, "Sir, I am not teaching Latin. I am teaching boys." He was a man who loved boys and his life work was to help them to better living. He gave instructions in Latin as a side line. A man's work in life takes on real dignity and value when he is working for human betterment and not for a salary. The preacher who preaches for his salary, the merchant who sells goods for the money he gets out of it, the farmer who tills the soil for a living wage, is missing the high calling of life. We should relate ourselves to men and not to things.

The farmer had his pig pen in the edge of the swamp. Looking within where the hogs stayed he saw much mud and filth. He called his four sons and addressed them thus: "This pig pen is better if we only lift them higher up in the social standings of life. We should learn that to lift a hog to higher ground will not take the hog nature out of him. When a hog goes into a clean pen that pen will not be clean very long. When a man with hogish characteristics is placed in office, in society, anywhere, he is not long in contaminating things. When we get the hog out of folks we can keep the pen clean."

Heard an old man talking in glowing terms about his age and health. Said he: "I am now eighty-eight years of age. You preachers are all the time howling about the harm of whiskey and tobacco and I want to tell you, sir, I have consumed my share of whiskey, and tobacco has been my daily companion for years. I looked upon the old gentleman with pity. To be honest, the old man doubtless had not been injured seriously with his intemperate habits, but he was the exception to the rule. I have seen fifty young men die from whiskey to where I have seen one using to reach eighty. It is true that the old man with his blatant attitude and boasted example, has induced young men to drink and die. Why not be warned by that young man who meets death before he is twenty on account of whiskey, and leave unnoticed the fortunate old fool who brags about the harmlessness of whiskey. He is only one out of fifty, and the other forty-nine are dead."

I had some painting to do and while it was in use the brush was soft and smooth. Finishing my job I placed my brush on a table for safe keeping. A few days later I had more painting to do and went for my brush to find that it was hard as wood. The paint had dried on the brush and it was useless. The best way to keep a paint brush is to keep it in use. The best way to keep a your heart soft and good is to fill your seat at church every Sunday. When we stop living, using the Christian ideals in our life, our hearts will grow hard. Better keep your soul bathed in the oil of God's truth, if you do not want a ruined soul within. Put your soul on a dry shelf away from God's house and soon it will be as hard as wood.

Over in Georgia a modern society dame visited the home of a neighbor. On entering the door she was met by the lady of the house carrying a little babe in her arms. Of course the dame was smoking a cigarette and on seeing the babe her womanly nature came into action and she took the smoking tube from between her lips and holding it between her fingers she reached for the beautiful baby. The mother let it go. No sooner had the visitor kissed the little one than it set up a howl. Both women thought that the babe objected to being handled by a stranger, but when she was gone the mother found an ugly blister under the babe's arm burned by the dame's cigarette. Tell me how women can smoke when the cigarette hurts and injures the born and unborn babe?

Over Supporter Declares Roosevelt Preparing Country For More Enduring Prosperity For All

talk that Roosevelt is a dangerous radical is sheer nonsense," said S. Houston, former publisher of the Work, life-long Republican organizer of the United States of Commerce, in a radio address yesterday night.

and, he is an enlightened evolutionist who has protected us against the worst and is preparing the country for more enduring prosperity for the people.

He was convinced that my Republic was a mistake almost from the moment Roosevelt took the oath of office at that moment he began to show his rare courage and decision. At that day he has been doing things which there have been mistakes, but were so many things to do, the broad result has been in the progress and the country knows it.

Draper, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, who is a sound and able business man, has just stated the deficit of 7 billions was not in view of the fact that during the period in which it was created, the country's tangible wealth had increased to 73 billions—over ten fold. It mainly looks like pretty good business.

ing of better business, as president of the Associated Advertising Bureau for the New York exchange and its work in the eyes of investors has been praised. A honest man in the whole community. That work has been multiplied many times. President Roosevelt's leadership in getting the Securities Exchange Commission created, supported by an honest law that has been honestly enforced.

President's courage and initiative always read for instant access social workers struggling with old age insurance—and forthwith, after two years of preparation under strictly non-partisan auspices—a social security law is enacted and put to work under an enlightened Republican progressive, Governor Winant of New Hampshire. These two laws for financial security and social security are typical of many others—all in the interest of all the people.

"President Roosevelt holds the same view that Justice Stone of the Supreme Court interpreted last Thursday at Harvard. That address will give the reactionaries a hard nut to crack. 'We are coming to realize,' he said, 'that law is not an end but a means to an end—and that end is to be attained through reasonable accommodation of law to changing conditions and social needs. Individualism must yield to traffic regulations, where the right to do as one will with his own must bow to zoning ordinances or even to price-fixing regulations.' There is democracy for you, adjusted to the motor car, rather than to the horse and buggy."

"And the best answer to the Republican isolation plank was given by one of the greatest living Republicans, Nicholas Murray Butler. His widely quoted interview hit isolation as squarely between the eyes as Justice Stone's masterful address hit unrestricted individualism."

"I'm taking my walk to Roosevelt because I was always a strong supporter of Theodore Roosevelt. Logically and naturally, I should support Franklin Roosevelt. In principle and in spirit they both have stood for the same thing, an enlightened liberalism. And when I see such progressive Republicans as Senator Norris, Couzens and Hiram Johnson holding the same view, I know it must be shared by many thousands of the rank and file."

"And it is well to remember that the progressive measures advocated by T. R. earned for him a hatred even more bitter than is now blindly hurled at Franklin Roosevelt."

Many individual factors have contributed to the making of our present county and not the least of these were the newspapers. As a medium of information and exchange of ideas—as a means of cementing and holding our people together their existence and aid has been of invaluable service.

Of the first newspaper printed in the county we have only the name. Printed around 1873 it was known as the Baker County Record. Of its editors, its size and form we know nothing. Mention is made of it only one time in the minutes of the Commissioners Court records of the year.

The first of the county's newspapers of which there are copies extant, is the "Chilton County Courier. It was first published by Col. Wm. A. Collier, who was both editor and publisher. It was small in size, being only slightly larger than a magazine of the size of The Saturday Evening Post. Running four columns to a page, local news, as was usual in papers of the time, was relegated to one or two columns on the third page. Col. Collier published the Courier for only a few months. His interest was taken over by one J. J. Mitchell. In 1877 we find new owners in the part of one Brooks and Martin.

In 1881 appeared the first issue of the "Chilton County View." The View was owned and edited by J. H. Lawrence from its inception until the last issue in 1895. Radically different from the foregoing Courier in size, it was six columns in width and almost as wide and deep as the present Birmingham News. In make up and treatment of local news it differed little from the Courier.

In point of time the Banner was established next. The first issue of the Banner appeared on April 11 of that year. Frank Crichon and T. H. White were the proprietors. The Banner was operated until its consolidation with the

THE pronoun "it" is one of the most troublesome words in the English language. When used without due care it can produce some remarkable results, as in the following sentence:

"If the child does not thrive on uncooked milk, it should be boiled."

Few mothers would care to subject their children to such drastic treatment. In this particular instance, about the only way for the writer to express his meaning clearly is to avoid the use of "it" altogether and make his sentence read, "If the child does not thrive on uncooked milk, the milk should be boiled."

Clanton, Ala.

Union in 1912.

On April 4, 1903 appeared the first issue of the Union. Established by J. B. Downs and W. C. Elder. The Union was first printed in Birmingham as there was no plant in Clanton. The Union was Republican and Independent in politics. These two papers, the Union and the Banner, were operated separately until 1912 when they were consolidated forming what is now known as the Union-Banner, the official Republican organ of the County.

"The Chilton County Call" is unique in that it had the shortest life of any of the papers printed in the county. Established in Thorsby in 1897 it ran for little over a year. The Concordia Land and Development Company was pushing Thorsby as a mecca for the northern farmer and the Call was its official organ. When it had served its purpose of advertising Thorsby it was withdrawn from circulation.

The first issue of the Clanton Press appeared on the 7th of April, 1910. F. M. Wood was the first editor. The Press was the direct forerunner of the present day News. It ran until 1921 and was for a number of years under the direction of Clyde Davis.

In 1921 appeared the first issue of the "Chilton County News." W. B. Corley was its first editor and publisher. The News became the Democratic organ of the county. Mr. Corley successfully operated the News for a number of years in the same building and plant as is occupied by the News of today.

In 1926 the ownership of the News was acquired by Mr. J. B. Atkinson. In 1930 Mr. Atkinson's interest was purchased by Billy Smith. With its present editor in charge the News has grown and prospered and today is recognized as a leader in its field and of inestimable service to its readers.

In the past half century there has been a complete reversal of the attitude of the weekly newspaper toward the public and as much a reversal of attitude of readers toward the papers.

Local news was then subordinated to state and national politics. A random copy of the "View" as an example shows the first and last page as stereotyped news of no local interest. A few editorials and foreign advertisements made up the second page. On the third page one or two columns of local items and a minimum of local advertising completed the issue.

Merchants in the past were not so prone to use the service of their weekly for advertising as they now are.

The service that these early papers have rendered in the making of our county is of inestimable value. In time they will form our only link with the past—the one means by which we may accurately trace the growth and development of Chilton County.

Chrysler Executive

Ases Women Drivers

of the most significant things development of the automobile in the improvement in the technical women drivers," says Joseph vice-president of the Chrysler Division of the Chrysler Corporation.

used to be a time when it was a standard form of wit to pun of feminine drivers. They named for causing constant annoyances and many accidents because of alleged lack of skill and judgment in handling their cars. But like the honored mother-in-law joke, as more sound than sense be- havior of the talk.

ere were, and are, some bad wo- men drivers, to be sure, but I doubt the percentage ever ran any high- er than it did with men. Because there have been fewer women driv- ing, they are more conspicuous, though the number of women drivers is not getting higher. A person who drives a car poorly handled by one who would remember it while he forget the half-dozen men driv- ing he had seen do equally bad the same day.

men weren't really to blame if they are not on the average as good as men in the earlier days of the car. The trouble was that they recently the manufacturers devoted much thought to wo- men drivers. Cars were de- signed for men drivers.

result was that when a woman and the wheel, she found that her strength to steer, that her vision was im- paired by the design of the seats, wind- shield, that she had to about a lot of manual controls. They were hard to shift and noisy. In words, the mechanical task of driving the car was so arduous that it did not have a chance. Propri- etary on observing the traffic and customs, to keep con- sidered for what other drivers.

She had a much harder job to do than did the man driver. She was out of the Chrysler car, that something had to be made driving safer, easier for the women. For 12 years our engineers and men have been working to- ward the result is that our modern cars so simply the task of driving that the woman can drive the car as well as the man.

man. The operation of the vehicle is so nearly automatic in all its phases, so free from worry, nerve-racking noise and annoyance of all sorts, that the feminine driver is free to give the same amount of attention to watching traf- fic, street and road signs, stop lights, etc., as is the masculine contingent. She now has confidence in herself and confidence is one of the greatest assets in the safe performance of any task.

"The cars in our present line steer so easily that virtually no physical ef- fort is required. This easy steering, plus a short turning radius, makes them easy to park and a woman does not have to exhaust herself tugging the wheel to get into a restricted space. Our brakes are so quick and yet "soft" in their action that they give a woman confidence without taxing her strength. Our seats are adjustable so that even a small woman can reach brake and clutch pedals readily. This same adjust- able seat enables the woman driver to sit high enough to have perfect vision and ride comfortably. Our front door and windshield design is such that there is a minimum of obstruction to the vision.

"The fact that we use safety-steel bodies exclusively gives a woman a feeling of safety that is a distinct aid to her in driving. Because it removes a source of worry, Chrysler's lightning acceleration is another important fac- tor in giving a woman confidence in her car. She knows that if a situation arises requiring quick action, her car will respond. The low center of gravity and perfect balance also contribute to this feeling of security.

"So, my hat is off to the ladies as motor car drivers. For years when driving was a test of strength, they were at a big disadvantage but now that it is a matter of quick thinking, in- telligence, judgement and courtesy, they ask no odds of the men. But I make one exception—the woman back- seat driver is still as bad as ever. Our engineers haven't been able to do any- thing to solve that problem. She's al- most as bad as the man back-seat driv- er."

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Last Sunday the children, grand- children and friends gathered at the home of "Uncle" Rush Baker to cele- brate his seventy-first birthday. Gay voices and laughter could be heard throughout the day.

At noon a bountiful dinner was served in picnic style. In the center of the table was a huge birthday cake which held seventy-one candles. Those en- joying this happy occasion were:

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Ward, Mrs. M. M. Cassell, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Baker and little daughter, Janice; Mrs. Jim Lock- hart and children, Melvin, Coy, Willie Merle and Winston, all of Clanton; Mr. and Mrs. L. Z. Baker and children, James Arthur, Willie Charles, Bobby, Frankie Nell of Jemison; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ward, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Fos- shee, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Smith, Mrs. William Parker and little daughter, Wylma Jean; Mrs. Adelle Hancock, all of Clanton and Mrs. J. C. Hilyer of Jemison.

Everyone departed wishing "Uncle" Rush many more happy birthdays.

IN MEMORY OF ARBIE RATLIFF

Our hearts were saddened and broken indeed when we received the message that our dear cousin, Arbie Ratliff, had passed to his reward. All was done that loving hands could do, but all was in vain. We loved him, but Jesus loved him more, and He has called him to yonder shining shore, where the golden gates were open and he calmly entered home.

He leaves to mourn his going a loving wife, father and mother, one sister, a host of relatives and friends. Weep not, dear loved ones, for the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away. It is God's will that we must part, so let us look to him who is able to soothe our troubles and heartaches. He is too wise to make a mistake and too great to be unkind.

Arbie always wore a smiling face and had a cheerful word for everybody. He was always ready to help his friends and it seemed that he could never do enough for them.

Arbie was full of life and always liked to have fun. Although he was always ready to help those who were in trouble.

Harry Helman of Cleveland, arrested for creating a disturbance, was bail- ed into court clad only in trousers and underwear. Judge Petrasch dis- charged him, saying: "It will be punish- ment enough for you to walk home in your bare feet."

COLLINS CHAPEL

Collins Chapel school will open Tues- day, September 22. All parents and friends of the school are urged to be present. Pupils should bring the books which they used last year as work will begin Tuesday. It is essential that all pupils enter school as soon as possible so that they may be promoted at the end of the second month.

COUNTY AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITS AT STATE FAIR

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 10—Counties from throughout the state of Alabama will be well represented with County Agriculture Exhibits at this year's Ala- bama State Fair at Birmingham, for six days and six nights from Sept. 28 to Oct. 3.

P. T. Strieder, Secretary-Manager of the State Fair today said that the fol- lowing counties have already reserved space for county agricultural exhibits: Morgan, Blount, Chilton, Tallapoosa, Walker, Choctaw, Montgomery, Cull- man, Madison, Jefferson, Calhoun and Butler Counties and a number of other counties are planning on exhibits.

Dr. M. F. Jackson is Director in charge of the Agriculture Department and R. C. Callaway will serve as Su- perintendent.

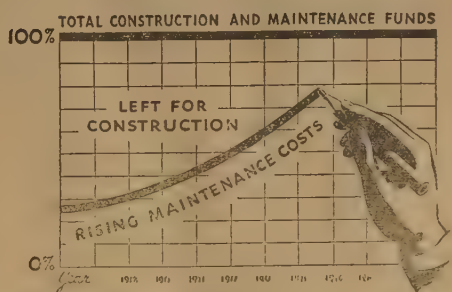

In addition there will be exhibits by the United States Government Depart- ment of Agriculture and State Government exhibits.

All collective exhibits by counties, for which premiums are offered, must be of Alabama production, grown dur- ing the current year in the county mak- ing such exhibit.

To provide room for the increase in county exhibits this year, additional dis- play space has been made in the agri- cultural building at the fair grounds. This was accomplished by erecting a new building 50 x 180 for the Flower Show which formerly occupied space in the center of the agricultural building.

Where these lines meet is "THE END OF THE ROAD"

INFERIOR, temporary high- way surfaces clamor for more and more maintenance and reconstruction year after year. Eventually, any new roads are out of the question. All the annual road money goes for upkeep! Then, "the end of the road" has been reached, both literally and figuratively.

But Here's Big News! Taxpayers save from $114 to $469 per mile per year in the cost of surface maintenance — concrete highways compared with other types of pavement.

This statement is based on the actual reports of surface main- tenance costs on 100,000 miles of pavement in 18 states — every state that publishes these records.

Concrete is the standard by which all roads are judged... insuring maximum safety, comfort and economy for motorists. High visibility at night... easy repairs.

THE origin of the word "candidate" goes back to ancient Rome. When a man campaigned for public office among the Romans he wore a white toga and was called "candidatus," meaning one "clothed in white." Our word, "candidate" derives directly from the Roman "candidatus."

"Lend" is the verb; "loan," the noun. Care should be taken to avoid confusing them:

Right: Will you lend me a dollar?

Wrong: Will you loan me a dollar?

Right: Thanks for the loan.

Citizen Of Jemison Gives Views On Road Supervisor And Road Matters

Jemison, Ala., Sept. 14, 1936
Dear Citizens and Taxpayers:

Let's face some facts in regard to the controversy between the road supervisor and the commissioners court.

To a thinking citizen the need for a supervisor is plain enough. During the six and a half years ending July 1st 1936, there had been spent in this county one million, four hundred eleven thousand, nine hundred dollars ($1,411,900.00) on roads and bridges. Out of this enormous amount of money not one piece of permanent road has been built. The taxes have been poured in and the commissioners court has poured them out and they have been washed into roadside ditches and away.

We need to get some lasting good out of this money and there is only one way to get it. The roads should be supervised by a competent engineer who has the interests of the county at heart and who will build for the future.

A commissioners court that will not cooperate to this end is not worthy of the confidence of the people.

On Saturday a so-called mass meeting was held at the court house. About two hundred people attended this meeting and about fifteen people took part in the criticism and cheering. Let me say in praise and honor for the good citizens of Chilton County that the great majority that attended this meeting either quietly took no part or left in disgust before it was over. Let me also say to the lasting discredit of those who took part that only one person that had anything to say offered any helpful suggestion at all.

Why should we meet and bemoan and criticize? If we have nothing better to offer we have no right to criticize.

One speaker pleaded for cooperation. There is only one way to have it. Forget your own little pet idea and let's all work together with what laws and money we have.

One speaker tried to leave the impression on this meeting that the supervisor had bought twenty-seven thousand dollars worth of trucks and machinery. The facts are that the supervisor suggested that these things were needed but the commissioners court turned down the whole suggestion and did not buy a penny's worth of any of this. I think the court was right and I know the people would have felt much better toward them if the facts had been stated instead of the attempt to mislead them.

A high official stated at this meeting also that a caterpillar tractor had entirely disappeared from the County and that none of the commissioners court knew where it went. If that is the kind of men we have in office, I think it is high time we get someone else to look after our business. The people have long suspected that there was something wrong and setting just claims that should be forty-two hundred dollars for fifty dollars, losing tractors, and putting six dollars, to the mile on the roads each year when any school boy can figure that from the taxes paid it should be sixty dollars will soon convince them that many times men elected to office can be far

A Word Portrait of Our President Today

His hair is grayer. . .
His smile is the same and his still performing in its same significant way—organically and potentially.
He probably is the healthiest man in White House history.
If paralysis couldn't kill him," regarded Mrs. Roosevelt, "I guess the sidney won't."
His heart and his condition generally as good, perhaps even better than they were in 1932," said Dr.
T. McIntyre, White House physician.

KEEPS GOOD HOURS
He works hard.
He exercises regularly.
He eats lightly, regularly and carefully.
He keeps good hours.
He's up at 8. A Georgia barber shaves him. He asks for the morning news. He scans rather regularly The New York Times, New York Herald
Examiner, Baltimore Sun and Washington Post. (In time he'll add The Tennessee Young Democrat to the list.)
He other three days only orange juice and milk.

His conferences start about 10:30.
There are 15 or 20 of these sessions each. They don't disturb them.
He doesn't disturb them.

GETS A FREE LUNCH
Whoever happens to be on the call-list around 12 o'clock gets a free lunch usually is limited to soup, salad and coffee.
His conferences resume.

He's no let-up until about 4:30.
From then until around 6 p.m. he is into the amazing array of documents, reports, legislation, executive orders that demand his personal attention.
At dusk he breaks away.
He swimming pool beckons.
He plunges.
He's an expert.
His Gennerich, his bodyguard, can you that.

HIS FAVORITE MOVIE STAR
He swim is short . . . about 20 minutes.
He's at 7:30.
Once or twice a week, the White House movie screen is unrolled and the President takes in a movie.

His favorite screen star?
Mickey Mouse!
Evenings are for letter writing, speech writing, legislation framing.
Occasionally he pulls out his stamp collection.
Or plays a game of solitaire.
Or reads.
But most of the time it's work.
He quits any time from 11 p.m. to 2 a.m.

TWO PACKS A DAY
He smokes less at night than in the day time, but his quota is about two packages of cigarettes a day.
His brand?
It would be a free advertisement to tell you . . . so we won't.
His "between meal" snacks!
None.
He doesn't care for candy. And as for bananas—no!

FOUR MORE YEARS
Occasionally he turns on the radio.
Once his favorite song was "Home On the Range."
He's got a new one now:
It's "Yellow Rose of Texas."

Roosevelt has a White House temperament.
He has a burden-bearing talent.
He can "take it."
Four years in the office have demonstrated his genius for executive leadership and responsibilities.
Four more years of the same duties are ahead for him.

Isabella School Will Have Formal Opening

The public is cordially invited to attend the opening exercises of the Isa-bella school on September 22, at 10:00
A.M. There will be visiting speakers.

After many ballots and some confusion it turned to Seymour and, although he shouted from the platform "Your candidate I can not be!" the delegates went right ahead and nominated him.

Although Seymour polled 2,709, 213 popular votes to 3,015,071 for Gen. U. S. Grant, the Republican nominee, and carried eight states, the electoral vote stood 214 for Grant and 80 for Seymour.

Four years later a peculiar political situation resulted in another case of "drafting." A faction of the Republican party, dissatisfied with the Grant administration and his renomination, held another convention in Cincinnati and chose Horace Greeley for President and B. Gratz Brown of Missouri for vice-president. When the Democrats met in Baltimore they decided that a fusion ticket might defeat Grant so they also nominated Greeley and Brown.

But this action offended the "old line" Democrats so they held a convention in Louisville, Ky. For President they selected Charles O'Connor, a distinguished New York lawyer who had won the deep affection of the South by his efforts to secure the release of Jefferson Davis from prison at Fortress Monroe and to defend him against the charge of treason. O'Connor was nominated on the first ballot by a vote of 600 to four and for their vice-president they named John Quincy Adams of Massachusetts.

Immediately after the balloting O'Connor was notified by telegraph of his nomination and at once declined to accept it. The convention was thrown into disorder and an attempt was made to give the honor to the permanent chairman, James Lyons of Virginia, but he refused. So the convention adopted a resolution reiterating the selection of O'Connor and Adams and immediately adjourned. In the election which followed O'Connor and Adams received 29,489 votes scattered through 23 states. This was not an impressive showing but the "Greeleyites" did little better and the 29,000 had the satisfaction of knowing they had been true to what they considered true Democratic principles.

"The Public Road Situation"

AS VIEWED BY THE ROAD SUPERVISOR

Actual Cost of Operation Versus the Expenditures Indicated in the County Treasurer's Records of Costs Charged to the Public Roads

Clanton, Ala. Sept. 7, 1936.
The Hon. Commissioner's Court, Gentlemen:
"At the meeting of the Commissioner's Court about the 6th of May, 1936, just a few days after the effective date of the office of Road Supervisor, your honorable body determined, set aside and appropriated the sum of $15,000 for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and repairs to the public roads of Chilton County for the three months,
May, June and July, 1936.
In accordance with law I have faithfully reported at the end of each month, the actual expenditures incorporated in those things connected with the operation of the public roads and bridges; all labor, materials, supplies and repairs to equipment costs were included in these reports, and the total summed up for the three month period was as indicated, $15,237.99, which included the salary and transportation expense of my personal travel on business for the county, in the sum of $87.30, which, according to law, is exclusive to and not subject to the funds appropriated. This leaves a sum of $14,400.69 as the cost of labor, materials, supplies and equipment repairs for the period.
In checking over the County Treasurer's records I find that the following items, covering repairs to equipment during the period and which I have charged into my operation costs, which have not been paid at this writing:

J. D. Pittman Tractor Company, Birmingham, Alabama:
May 16, 1936—Invoice No. 2570 $ 14.68
May 20—Invoice No. 2767 68.11
May 21—Invoice No. 2766 25.58
May 30—Invoice No. 3175 4.86
May 30—Invoice No. 3178 97.92
May 30—Invoice freight by car. 2.34
June 6, 1936—Invoice No. 3633 5.38
June 8—Invoice No. 3620 10.90
June 12—Invoice No. 3306 11.62
June 13—Invoice No. 3322 68.57
June 15—Invoice No. 3363 46.43
June 15—Invoice No. 3360 1.23
June 20—Invoice No. 3512 306.57
June 21—Invoice No. 3520 4.42
June 22—Invoice No. 3585 26.25
June 22—Invoice No. 3629 104.23
June 23—Invoice No. 3649 58.58
June 25—Invoice No. 3833 8.80
June 25—Invoice No. 3675 14.90
July 6—Invoice No. 4125 2.62
July 9—Invoice No. 4220 2.20

Subtotal $386.19
J. T. Thompson, Clanton, Ala.
June 9, 1936—Lbr. for bridges $ 28.00

Total $414.19
In my article published in last Clanton paper, last week I showed that the County Treasurer's records for 1936 indicated that a total sum of $2,049.65 was paid from the Road and Bridge and Gasoline Funds, $1,840.39 of which was not chargeable to the costs of operation. This latter figure should have been $1,745.99, due to an error in the sum "County Contribution to 3-Way Project" $3,464.08, which should have been $3,369.68. Subtracting $1,745.99 from $2,049.65 leaves a total sum of $14,336.76
as the actual amount paid out by the County Treasurer for things in connection with the operations of the public roads during the months of May, June and July, including the salary and expenses of the Road Supervisor.

"I also find in the Treasurer's record of expenditures, paid out in June, and included in the $14,336.76, is the sum of $845.11 for freight and car load of gasoline, which amount, divided by .820 per gallon, the price at which it was bought, shows that we received 10,306 gallons about the end of April. According to the gasoline records on file in the Pro-bate's office, we had on hand May 1, 1936, 6,439 gallons from this car of gasoline. This leaves a balance of 3,867 gallons which was used during the month of April, and therefore not chargeable to operations during the month of May, the first month of road operations coming under this office. Therefore, 3,867 gallons at .142c, the actual price including the State tax of 6c, shows a sum of $549.11 which is not chargeable to the cost of operations during the month of May.

"Summing up, we arrive at the following conclusion:
"Funds paid out by the County Treasurer over the period stated and which includes the salary and expenses of the Road Supervisor:
May, June and July $14,336.76
Minus 3,867 gallons gasoline at 142c $549.11
Minus Sup. salary and expenses 837.30
1,386.41

Actual paid on operations $13,864.54
Plus unpaid bills as indicated above 914.19

Actual cost on operations, $13,864.54
"In other words, instead of overrunning my appropriation so liberally set aside and allotted to me "more than $2,000," as stated in a letter I have from Judge Smith, dated August 28, 1936, we have $1,135.46 over and above the amount due for the unpaid bills indicated above in the sum of $914.19, or a total of $2,049.65 still to our credit as part of the original appropriation.

"Giving your honorable body the benefit of every doubt and the possibility that there might be invoices outstanding of which this office has no record of there seems to be sufficient funds of the original appropriation to cover all such amounts.

"Will you kindly give this matter your careful consideration? There are entirely too many unjust and unfair rumors being persistently spread throughout the county in connection with operations coming under this office and something definite should be done to overcome such a discordant condition. Your honorable body constitutes the governmental unit of our county; you were duly elected by the citizens of the county as their county managers or Board of Directors, and as such, various and sundry duties evolve upon you in adjusting, administering and directing the proper functioning of the various branches of county government.

"As the official head of one of these branches, one which most directly and intimately affect every rural home in our county and the traveling public, may I expect the cooperation of you?
"Respectfully,
T. J. ARLEDGE,
Road Supervisor."

IN MEMORY OF J.C. JONES

Our hearts were saddened and broken indeed when we received the message that our dear son, brother and cousin, J.C. had passed to his reward on August 7, 1936.

All was done for him that loving hands could do, but all in vain. We loved him, but Jesus loved him more, and He has called him to yonder shining shore where the Golden Gates were open and a gentle voice said, "Come," and with the farewell unspoken he calmly entered home.

He leaves to mourn his going his loving parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Jones, one brother, Charles, and a host of relatives and friends.

Weep not, dear parents and brother, for the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away. It is God's will that we must die, so let us look to Him who is able to soothe our sorrows and heartaches. He is too wise to make any mistake—too great to be unkind.

Burglars who robbed a storehouse in Davis, Calif., freed a swarm of bees to delay pursuit. Bee-handling equipment had to be found before any one could even tell what had been stolen.

DEATH OF MRS. FANNIE BUTLER

Mrs. Fannie Butler, age 60, of Clanton Route 4, passed away last Friday afternoon, September 4, at her home after a short illness.

Mrs. Butler was born in Coosa County and lived practically all of her life in this state and most of it in this county. She was of a devout Christian character. Her life was not one of ease, but one of sacrifice and service to friends and relatives with whom she came in daily contact.

Mrs. Butler was the daughter of William Lambert who died twenty-five years ago and was well known at that time.

She was laid to rest at the New Harmony cemetery.

She is survived by her husband, Rufus Butler; one daughter, Mrs. Fred Smith (Ida Thompson); two sisters, Mrs. P. C. Weidon and Mrs. J. W. Mims, both of near Clanton—One who loved her.

George Tipton, colored, of Tulsa, Okla., accused of stealing a lawn mower, explained to the judge: "I stumbled over it and I was too lazy to walk around it, so I just pushed it away."

IN MEMORY

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Traywick died at Hubbard Hospital in Montgomery last Monday evening at 7:50 after several weeks of illness. Funeral services and interment were held at Indian Grave Baptist Church Wednesday morning at 11:00 with Griffin in charge.

Bobby Joyce was born January 23, 1935, and lived to be approximately 19 months old. She leaves to mourn her loss father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Traywick and three sisters, Mrs. W. C. Billingsley, Miss Agnes Traywick and little Alma Jean. Bobby Joyce has gone to join two other sisters, Mary Nell and Earline, who died in their infancy.

Bobby Joyce was a member of the Cradle Roll of Indian Grave Sunday School where her mother is superintendent and her father, a deacon. All who knew her loved her. She had a very sweet disposition and smiles for everyone.

We cannot understand why our Heavenly Father called at so early an age, but we must be submissive to His will. Jesus said "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." We pray that the blessings of our Heavenly Father rest upon the bereaved family, remembering that God doeth all things well.—A Friend of the Family.

IN MEMORY OF ARBIE RATLIFF

On Tuesday afternoon, September 1, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Ratliff and took away their beloved son, Arbie Ratliff. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, father, mother, one sister and a host of friends and relatives.

If Arbie had lived until December 3 he would have been twenty-one years of age. We feel like that all was done that loving hands could do to restore him back to his health. We do not understand why God called him away so early but we must remember that the Lord doeth all things well.

On Arbie's bed of affliction there were words spoken that was comfort to our hearts for we believe beyond a doubt that he has gone to live with God.

His body was laid to rest in the Sardis cemetery with Brother Ezell conducting the funeral. Briffin Bros. were in charge.—A cousin, Willard Ratliff.

William T. Warren, 64, of Atlanta, Ga., is the father of 42 children, including 13 sets of twins. Thirty-one of the children are living.

Farmers Advised Repair Corn Cribs

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers should repair their corn cribs so that they can treat their stored grain against insects, especially weevils, this fall.

"This is very important as food and feed prices are high and insects threaten to do considerable damage unless farmers fumigate their corn and other stored grains against insect damage," advises Prof. J. M. Robinson, head of the zoology-entomology department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

The time to repair the cribs is before the new corn is harvested and stored, he states. The job is much more difficult after the bins are filled.

Hints for Homemakers By Jane Rogers

IF YOU are the sort of woman who wants to know what you get when you shop, then you'll welcome the new tags which manufacturers of fine mohair velvet are attaching to upholstered furniture of the better grade. These tags will enable you to tell whether the upholstery material on your chair or sofa is 100% mohair, or 50% mohair. A gold and black shield-shaped tag identifies the 100% mohair fabrics, and a silver tag denotes those made of 50% mohair.

For years, women have bought food by the label and cosmetics by the package. More recently, they have been taught to look for labels in dresses, which tell whether the fabric is pure silk, or washable, or pre-shrunk, etc.

Now, the same principle is being adopted in the home furnishings field so that the woman purchaser can identify quality mohair velvet on upholstered furniture. The tag is further backed by the Bureau of Standards at Washington, who set up the standards based on number of tufts to the inch—the greater number of tufts producing a thicker, more durable fabric. Standards also assure colorfastness and treatment to prevent attack by moths.

So—look for the gold and silver shield-shaped tags when you want to be sure of getting quality mohair velvet on your upholstered furniture.

Girl And Father Killed In Crash

Selma, Ala., Sept. 14—J. C. Kynard and his 8-year-old daughter, Frances, were fatally injured, and three other people were critically hurt this afternoon on the highway near Uniontown, when a cottonseed truck driven by a negro plowed into their parked automobile, scattering and mangling the six occupants.

Frances Kynard died in a Selma hospital at 10:45 P.M., an attaché said. Her father died in the King Memorial Hospital at 10:45 P.M., an attaché said.

Another passenger in the car, Norma D. Morgan, a man, suffered a skull fracture, broken jaw, dislocated hip and lacerations. It was indicated that he, too, had small chance to live. Mrs. J. C. Kynard received a punctured eye, broken nose and severe lacerations. Physicians said she probably would lose the sight of the eye.

Martha Kynard, 4, suffered lacerations of the arm that made it necessary to amputate as well as a fractured skull and other injuries. She, too, was given a slight chance to live. The fifth passenger, Mrs. Nellie May Duggins, suffered a broken arm and severe lacerations.

The Kynard car, returning to Uniontown, ran out of gas, and it was while J. C. Kynard was refueling a fresh supply of fuel into the tank that the truck struck the machine. Uniontown officers arrested the negro driver.

Funeral arrangements for the dead will be announced.

Pletcher Home Dem. Club Met Recently

The Pletcher Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mrs. G. W. Chandler.

Mrs. C. J. Chandler, president, presided, calling meeting to order and singing welcome songs and later sided, calling meeting to order and "Shortening Bread," "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," and "Taps."

CAN WE AFFORD FULL-TERM SCHOOLS IN ALABAMA?

Next week the school bells will begin to ring again in Chilton County after having been silenced for seven months waiting on the legislature to do its duty. As yet, nothing has been accomplished to insure a full term of school this year. The teachers and students have had a seven months vacation which leaves only five months for work and training during the calendar year of 1936. This places the teachers and students in a deplorable situation indeed in this progressive age—the teachers not being able to buy very much more than the bare necessities of life from the merchant, and having little left to pay the preacher, or doctor. However, the saddest picture is the child, who is trying to secure an education—not being able to make a grade a year. As a result, some students are leaving the rural schools and going to private or city schools. These students will pay a higher tuition. Some students are disheartened and will never enter the school doors again; and others will seek an early marriage and enter into early life with less chances of making a success than if they had finished school. This strange situation becomes appalling when we realize our children are not getting as long a term of school as did their fathers and mothers. Their grandfathers were willing to pay the price for education.

Can Alabama afford full terms of school, or does she wish to be the "lame-ling stock" of the nation, by doing the least for her youth? Last year Alabama spent $16,000,000 for her schools approximately $17,000,000 for tobacco $40,000,000 for amusements. She spent $7,000,000 less last year for schools than the spent in 1929, and had an 11 per cent increase in enrollment. This loss in revenue is due mainly to decrease in property evaluation. One can see clearly why we are having short terms of school—having more children in school and less revenue to operate them. If anyone should doubt Alabama being able to support full-term schools, just let him stand beside the Birmingham-Montgomery Highway sixty minutes any day of the week and count the beautiful, high-powered cars that go whizzing by. The count is convincing, and remember, they are and have been burning 23-cent gasoline for months.

Alabama surely doesn't want to be embarrassed by having to go outside of the State for her future leaders: engineers, lawyers, doctors, etc., to run her affairs or to discover her untold wealth. If we make leaders of our children, who are our greatest asset we must educate them. We need not train them if we desire them to roll the wheel-barrow or to mix mortar, as they will surely fall into these positions if not instructed in some vocation.

If the citizens of Chilton County and Alabama would take time to study and know the facts of the above situation, they would not rest until their school system was adequately provided for. Furthermore, this would be great economy. Our relief rolls would gradually fall in numbers to a minimum, our citizenry would become more enlightened and enjoy a richer and happier life.

If you are in favor of schools, let the Governor and members of the Legislature know about it. These youths of ours are growing larger and getting older each day as precious time passes. They must receive guidance today for tomorrow will be too late.

Respectfully,

J. A. PETERSON.

SARDIS NEWS

We are proud to say that the health of the community is very good at the present.

Last Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days. Brother Trice filled his appointment, delivering two wonderful sermons. We appreciate our pastor very much for his service and influence in our church and community. If we will follow Brother Trice's instructions we will have a better community in which to live.

At the Saturday service the church called a pastor for the coming year. We called Brother Trice again. People, let's each and every one come and do our part. We all have a part to carry on in the church. If we do not come and do our part it is left off. By coming and taking our parts we will show our pastor that we appreciate him.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Trammell and son, G. W., of Selma, are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sansom. Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sansom had as their Sunday dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Adams.

Mr. Monroe Short of Birmingham visited his parents Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Short, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Enoch Hayes and children spent the day Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Sansom.

Mrs. Ervin Short and children have returned to their home in Birmingham after visiting in the community.

On Saturday night, September 19, Rev. Paul Oden will show his Bible pictures at the church. Everyone is invited to come and see these pictures.

Remember the W.M.U. meeting at the church next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Home Demonstration Agent Gives Itinerary For Month Of September

Interesting Letter Goes To Members Of All County Clubs

Following is a letter from Miss Meta Grace, Chilton County's new Home Demonstration agent, to members of women's home demonstration clubs and members of the girls clubs over the county:

TO THE CLUB PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY:

Dear Club Members: I am anxious to meet each of you and your Clubs and to get acquainted with your section of the County. I am planning to meet the Clubs as scheduled by Miss Pardue which is the regular Club meeting date.

I think we have before us an opportunity for great developments among the Club people. I am well pleased with your section and the people that I have met have shown a beautiful cooperation which gives one the right sort of feeling in getting the new program of work underway. Won't you, when in Clanton, drop by and visit me? Let us understand each other and help to start the new year's work off with a "bang."

I am looking forward to meeting you and trust that the new year has much in store for each of us.

Letter From Reuben Lowe On Election

TO THE VOTERS OF CLANTON:

"As I find it impossible to see all of you personally, I am taking this method of asking your support of my candidacy as a member of the Council of the City of Clanton.

"Although I have been a life-long resident of Chilton County, I have never before sought any public office.

"I invite you to look into my past record as a citizen and the manner in which I have conducted my business. And should I be elected as a member of the Council, I shall give your business the same consideration that I have given mine. I believe you will agree with me that honesty and economy should be applied in all business, whether it be private, State, County or Municipal. And if honored with the office I seek it shall be my purpose at all times to render the very best service possible to the citizens of Clanton.

"In conclusion, I sincerely urge every voter of Clanton to consider my qualifications when you go to the polls on Monday, September 21, and vote for the best interest of our City.

MONTGOMERY—Alabama's state bonds have proved a rich investment even during the lean years of the depression, an examination of prices reveals.

W. W. Brooks, the Governor's financial adviser, said that Class "A" renewal bonds at present are priced at about $107.50, though three years ago they could be purchased at $70 to $80.

The 4 1/2 per cent Highway bond issue purchased at $72 for the "sinking" fund in 1932 are now selling at $112 to $115.

Warrant refunding bonds, secured by income tax receipts, with the unusually low interest rate of 3 1/2 per cent also are selling well above par, Brooks said.

welcome any reasonable agreement, so that some much-needed repairs can be made on our roads.

"If Mr. Cox and Mr. Arledge have plans or ideas which they deem workable, the Commissioners Court would be glad to hear them. If, however, these are not forthcoming, I shall make a clear statement in next week's papers, quoting from the records, in answer to the letters written by Mr. Arledge and which appeared in the weekly papers during the past few weeks.

"In short, my motto is: 'Anything reasonable for a solution of our road problem.'"

Judge Smith stated that the Court was now allowing Mr. Arledge all monies available under the present set-up. He further stated that if there was anything Mr. Cox could do to provide their funds for road work, his department would cooperate fully.

Following is his statement to the people of the county:

"I have noticed several articles written in the local papers by Mr. T. J. Arledge, Road Supervisor. I have also noticed a letter written by Hon. C. B. Cox, our Representative, which appeared in the County papers on September 10, 1936. Both of these gentlemen have cited figures regarding the cost of building and maintenance of our roads.

The law requires the Road Supervisor to file an itemized statement with the Commissioners Court, showing the amount of funds expended for each month. ## JOE MULLINS IS CHAIRMAN OF CAMPAIGN

County Has Benefitted Greatly Under Dem- ocratic Control

HEADQUARTERS SET UP IN MULLINS BUILDING

The Democratic campaign in Clanton County is now getting under full way with one of Clanton's most outstanding young attorneys as campaign chairman. Hon. Joseph J. Mullins was selected to head the campaign in this county at a recent meeting of Democratic candidates, officials and members of the party.

Plans were also made at this meeting to put the campaign into immediate action over the entire county, and the voters of the county have many a treat in store for them if they follow the Democrats in this campaign which promises to be just as active, if not more so, than the successful campaigns of 1932 and 1934.

Mr. Mullins is a native of this county being the son of the late Tipton Mullins, who was perhaps the most outstanding attorney in the county during his time and a man who numbered his friends here by the thousands.

The younger Mr. Mullins who accepted the chairmanship for the Democrats, has followed the political swings in this county for a number of years and recently established his law offices in the New Mullins Building on Main Street, where Democratic headquarters are being set up. He expects to announce other committees within the next few days.

"I see one of the most successful years for the Democrats of this county," Mr. Mullins stated when commenting on the coming election. "And I consider it indeed an honor to be chosen for this important place by the Democrats of my home county," he continued.

North Alabama Farmer Quits Republican Fold

After 40 years of voting the straight Republican ticket, a north Alabama farmer has just contributed $50 to this State's quota of the Democratic National Campaign Fund, and will do his part at the general election in November toward the re-election of President Roosevelt. In a letter to Probate Judge Matt Boykin, of Mobile, chairman of the State-wide drive for campaign donations, the former Republican who enclosed a check for the $50, said:

"I have voted the straight Republican ticket since casting my first ballot for McKinley against William Jennings Bryan in 1896.

"It took six years of depression, three droughts and the scourge of every destructive worm and insect known to science to 'break' my Republican loyalty. It also took 40 years for me to realize that the G.O.P. has never paid a 'dividend' to the farmers of America. I suppose my party regularity is like my religion. My father and grandfather were Baptists—so I just naturally became a Baptist.

"I think my political creed is pretty much the same as other so-called Republicans of north Alabama. We just never stopped to take inventory. My gift of $50 to help elect Roosevelt is in the nature of a tithe. President Roosevelt's farm-aid program has enabled me to 'plow under' my delusions and put a little money in the bank."

Subtly the majority of the vot-

The first place the job is not filly remunerative. The salary is sufficient to warrant the effort re-by the duties of the office.

The second place the office invites to your community leaders and this honor that may be bestow-

The third place people are very un-

Mark this down on your cuff lack of appreciation. Men that gratuitous service will be-cism, suspicion, and abuse. If this statement then fall in condemnation and abuse. This and the condemnation which is usual-where there is well done.

The fourth place there is no politi-ard offered by virtue of service of Clanton.

The fifth place there is, the posknowledge of a duty well done, the case of the Mayor's office there are so many trifling tasks, and so many con-and grievances offered that was not time for meditation, and meditation a mayor could never highly doubtful if a mayor could reason why anyone would serve as mayor of Clanton. It rankless job, and any person in this capacity should close to his own welfare, close his criticism and abuse, close his wholesale unappreciation, and at some day there may arise

STOCK SHOW AT FAIR IS TO BE LARGEFirst Show Of Its Kind To Be Held In Many Years

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 21.—The first live stock show held at an Alabama State Fair in years also promises to be the best when the annual state exposition opens in Birmingham Monday, September 22. Secretary-Manager, P. T. Strieder says that the entries for this live stock show are already over his fondest expectations and he believes that the exhibit of some 300 herd will be a revelation to visitors from the rural districts of Alabama as they pour into the state's metropolis during the week's run of the fair.

The most stupendous fair in the history of the annual shows had already been assured; then when the live stock exhibits started coming in at such a rapid rate, the State Fair began to take on a bigger aspect than ever. Fact that the fair management decided to restrict the entries to Alabama bred cattle seemed to make a hit with those interested in the breeding of live stock within the State.

Dr. R. S. Suggs, of the Animal Husbandry Department at Auburn visited Birmingham this week and with Mr. G. C. Passmore of Passmore and Smith at Prattville, went thoroughly into the completing of arrangements for the week's live stock show and for the auction which is to be held on Thursday of the fair. Sixty head of cattle are to be auctioned off on this special day, representatives from some of the best live stock herds in the State to go in the sale.

Mr. Passmore states that he is planning to sell in the auction some of his finest Angus bulls, included in the lot being, Enchinto 10, sired by Ames Plantation Schencho with Black Cap McKinney 8" as dam. Ennoble 23, with Ennoble Elba 2" as sire and Erica Edwina the dam. Then there is Ennoble 22" sired by Ennoble Elba 2" and Erica of Harviestown Mo. 2" the dam. Ennoble 24" Sire Ennoble 5" the dam. Named Chairman
Of Speakers Bureau

JUDGE JAMES S. PARRISH

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 21.—(Special)—Judge James S. Parrish, noted Montgomery attorney, has been named chairman of a speakers' bureau to co-operate with county Democratic campaign committees in counties where Democrats are opposed by Republican or Independent candidates, it was announced this week.

The appointment was made by John D. McQueen, chairman of the state Democratic Committee who declared that "there was no doubt about President Roosevelt sweeping the state, but that the Democrats not only wanted to make it 100 per cent Roosevelt this election, they wanted also to carry every county and district office."

Judge Parrish, an orator of note, has accepted the commission and has invited some notable Alabama Democratic speakers to take part in the campaign. He said that he would arrange to send speakers into counties where Democrats were opposed for local offices. He added that he would himself make speeches if called upon "to make Alabama Democratic from precinct office on up."

The Montgomery attorney has been prominently mentioned as a candidate for lieutenant governor during the next election. He was one of the pioneers for the commission form of government although he started his political career as a member of the board of aldermen of Montgomery. He was at one time U.S. commissioner, but resigned that position to devote his whole time to the practice of law. He is a former president of the Montgomery Bar association and the Montgomery Kiwanis club.

tion; dam Doorthy May 4" Calloway Boy; sire Black Revel. Dam Entangle 9" Blackford J. 2" Sire Black Revel; Dam Alto Afton.

R. E. Lambert and Sons will also offer one springing cow; three bred Hupins; three open Hupins; three two-year old bulls; two yearling bulls; one cow with heifer calf at side.

Twenty steers of 4-H Club and one car lot of steers 15 head, are also to be offered at the auction.

This listing is given just to show fair visitors the high types of bred cattle to be offered in the auction, it being stated that some sixty-pdd head will be placed on the block at that time. F. W. Burns, in charge of Dairy cattle for the show is also quite enthusiastic over entries that have come in thus far for the live stock show. And Dr. C. M. Jackson, in general charge of the show stated early in the week that extra space had already been made in the barns recently habilitated, so great had been the entry list.

100 4-H Calf Club boys who will camp on the fair grounds the week of the show, will also have that many calves in the show, winners in the two departments to be given gratis trips to the cattle shows at Dallas and in Chicago as a reward for taking off first prizes in the show.

Crops After Legumes Making Big Yields

Despite a very unfavorable season, big yields of corn and cotton are being made after vetch, Austrian peas, and crimson clover, according to reports received here from county agents throughout the State. Many farmers are producing a bale or more of cotton per acre, and 30 to 40 bushels or more of corn per acre.

When these farmers made a study of their cost production they found that fertilizing land with vetch was very cheap and that the cost of production was very low.

OVER 300 ONE-VARIETY COMMUNITIES ORGANIZED

Reports from 11 cotton-growing states show that more than 300 one-variety cotton communities have been organized. Cooperating farmers in these communities have about 900,000 acres in cotton, and produced about 500,000 bales of cotton last year.

It Pays To Trade in Clanton!

Why shouldn't you, and we—THE LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE RAILROAD—call each other Neighbor? Isn't your town, our town? Your problems and your welfare identical with ours?

Our family is a large one—26,000 of us spending over $40,000,000 in wages annually among you. Perhaps some of us live near you. Perhaps you or your friends sell us supplies, the equipment and other materials for which we spend additional millions of dollars yearly.

Like you, we pay taxes—taxes that help support your schools, your institutions and other functions of government. Coal? We buy hundreds of thousands of tons every year. Furniture? Food? Household gadgets? We buy all of these, so that we can give service and make our guests feel fully at home.

You strive for a good home. So do we—"Home Sweet Home on the Rails"—a cool, clean, comfortable, courteous, safe home, to which thousands of travelers turn every day.

We aren't just buildings and steel and trains. We aren't just the roaring locomotive sounding its kindly whistle to make you careful at dangerous crossings. We aren't just the most comfortable and safest means of travel. We are home folk, spending our money with you...for your products, in your community...furnishing a necessary service and asking your patronage only if we merit it. We are your Neighbor... Let's be better friends.

Safest CARRIER IN THE WORLD

Perhaps you saw in front-page headlines, last year's record of railroad safety. Yet this was only the peak record of many years' like achievement. The American railroads have been the safest form of transportation, public or private, for many years; insurance statistics prove that you are actually far less likely to suffer harm on a modern railroad train than even in your own home.

This doesn't just happen. Railroads are safe because they pioneered and have practiced Safety First for thirty years. They are safe even at their present stepped-up speeds, because they are modern.

"THE FARMERS' FRIENDS"

CLANTON, ALA.

CITY ELECTION

328; H. S. Shaw, 315; Hugh Thompson, 233.

Following is a statement to the citizens of Clanton from Mayor Jones:

"Please permit me to express my appreciation to all those who supported me in the election yesterday, and to those who saw fit to cast their ballot for Dr. Gowan, I want to state to you that I have no ill feeling, as it was your privilege to vote for whomever you saw fit.

"I would like to especially state to all the citizens, voters and taxpayers in the new territory that I want you to feel that you are now a part of our city and my attitude and feeling toward you is nothing but kindly and I shall strive to see that you derive as much benefit from being in the corporate limits as any other part of the city, and I want to state here that I have made no statement whatever that would in any way reflect on any of the citizens of the new territory in any way whatever, and we all know that sometime in a heated campaign, rumors and statements get afloat that are wholly untrue.

"The election is now over and I feel that the Council you have elected and the Mayor you have elected are the officials of all the citizens, and of all parts of the city. The interest of one of us is the interest of all. My only desire now is to make you a good official and I can better do this with the assistance of every citizen. Let's all forget any hard feelings that might have been engendered and as a solid city, strive to better and greater things for Clanton in a religious, educational, and material way, and I want to invite every citizen and taxpayer to feel free to discuss with me at any time any condition that you might think needs remedying or attention and I invite your friendly criticism on all matters pertaining to the best interest of our city and I sincerely believe that at the end of four years, if I am spared that much more time on this earth, that we will have a better and bigger city of which we will all feel proud.

FARMERS ADVISED SAVE ALL ROUGHAGE POSSIBLE

Small supplies and high prices make it most important for Alabama farmers to save all kinds of hay, soybeans, cowpeas, sorghum, crab grass, and other forms of roughage.

"Stack grass hay in the field if shed room is not available," advises J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist. "Dig trench silos, save sorghum silage, cut corn that has little promise and make it into silage," he says.

to file, and which I believe is about correct. Along with this, I will give the figures he published in his newspaper article, and show a comparison. Statement filed with Commissioners Court for May $5,882.77. Statement published in local papers for May $5,062.85.

Difference in statements for the month of May 819.92

"In Mr. Cox's letter he stated that the Supervisor spent for the Month of May, 1936, the sum of $4,806.38. You will note that there is a difference here of $1,076.39 between the statements rendered by Mr. Arledge and Mr. Cox, although both were given out as true statements of the Road Supervisor for the same month—May, 1936.

"I would be glad to show anyone the official records now on file in the Probate office. I am not at all interested in newspaper articles and controversies, neither do I desire to mislead the people, but I am very much interested in the roads and finances of the County. I have tried to work and cooperate with all officials to the best interest of the County.

"I note from an article published in the Chilton County News, that Mr. F. C. Gibson misunderstood what I said about the Supervisor purchasing $27,775.00 worth of road machinery. I stated that the Supervisor had "requested" the Commissioners Court to buy machinery and equipment as follows:

|--------------------------------------------------|--------------------|
| 3 Pull Type Power Control Graders at $21,670.00 | $60,500.00        |
| 1 50-HP Tractor (Gas preferred)                  | 4,500.00           |
| 3 1½-ton Trucks, Hydraulic Dumper at $928.00    | 2,784.00           |
| 1 12-Blade Grader, Hand Control, District 2      | 1,745.00           |
| 1 12-Blade Grader, Hand Control, District 3      | 1,745.00           |
| 1 Diesel RDT Tractor                             | 5,300.00           |
| 1 Diesel No. 50 Tractor                          | 5,200.00           |
| Total                                     | $27,775.00 |

"I understand that Mr. T. J. Arledge Road Supervisor, was very much disappointed because the Commissioners Court would not permit him to purchase the above equipment. The Supervisor has full charge of all the roads, and the Commissioners Court has appropriated every dollar available for road work.

"I understand that the Road Supervisor and Mr. Cox are telling the people that your Probate Judge is not working with them, and that the Commissioners Court has cut the appropriation. I deny this charge. The Commissioners Court has had nothing to do with the cutting of the appropriation. Mr. Cox through local bills enacted into law by the Legislature, cut the appropriation, and he did this over the protest of the officials and citizens of our County; this has affected the finances of our County as follows:

|----------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------|
| "Bill transferring from General Fund to Fine & Forfeiture Fund | $ 5,000.00        |
| Extra Deputy Sheriff                                           | 1,080.00           |
| Additional Cost in Publishing Treasurer's Report               | 1,37.08            |
| Tax on Gasoline, about                                         | 3,000.00           |
| Permanent Type of Paved Road, about                            | 25,000.00          |
| Health Unit                                                    | 3,000.00           |
| County Agent's Office                                          | 4,300.00           |
| Road Supervisor's Salary                                       | 2,400.00           |
| Road Supervisor's Travel Expense                               | 1,200.00           |
| Total                                                   | $46,017.08 |

"We can solve our road problem by repealing some of the local bills passed by Mr. Cox, and which cut into our County's finances so deeply. I would be willing to submit to a referendum of the voters of Chilton County, if it is agreeable with Mr. Cox, and if he will publicly make statement that he will abide by the result. Or, if he will not agree to this, I believe that our people will be willing to leave it to 15 or 20 of our largest taxpayers of the county; I would give Mr. Cox the privilege of selecting all democrats or all Republicans or both. I would be willing to leave it to all the officials who were elected to office by the people.

"If Mr. Cox or any official or citizen can offer any solution to the road problem, I would be glad to hear from them. I shall always be glad to cooperate with the officials and citizens of Chilton County. My promise to our people still stands good—I will never cast my vote in the Commissioners Court to throw our County into debt.

Yours very truly,
J. LEE SMITH,
Probate Judge.

CALF CLUB SHOW HELD LAST SATURDAY WAS A BIG SUCCESS

Much Interest Shown In Purebred Animals Over The County

B. N. Ivey, Assistant County Agent, reports that the calf club show which was held last Saturday, September 19th in Clanton was a success. A total of 33 pure bred animals were brought in, of which 24 were jerseys, 4 were guernseys and 5 were herefords.

A short meeting was held in the court house, at which time Mr. T. A. Sims, State 4-H Club leader, made an interesting talk to the boys on how to save money while they were young. At one o'clock the meeting shifted to Mr. George McCain's barn where the cattle were shown.

Mr. F. W. Burns and Mr. A. A. Lauderdale were the judges and after placing the animals, they gave their reasons so the spectators could see the points where one was better than the other. There was a cow and a heifer that the judges talked at length about, which belonged to Buster Popwell. They were both well built and had been taken care of. The heifer won first place in her class and Junior Champion over all of the Junior Classes. The cow also won first in her class and senior champion over all senior classes. This made the cow and heifer compete for grand champion. The judges gave it to the cow as she was more developed.

Mr. J. W. Mims has the outstanding bull which won first place over 4 other jerseys and two guernseys. There were lots of other real good animals present. Some had been taken better care of than others and the boys realized this. However, this will make them strive to have their animals in better condition next time.

Eleven cows and calves are being kept in Mr. McCain's barn all of this week where they are being given special attention. They are to be taken to Birmingham next Monday to the State fair. The Club is able to bear part of the feeding expenses and all of the transportation to Birmingham as the Club agreed to put all prize money in the Club fund until it had enough to operate.

Below is a list of the placings as made by the judges:

TRAIN HITS TRUCK

is on the other side of the track. The two-section train demolished the truck in which Jones was riding alone and threw him clear of the cab.

Engine Clings To Hill

Resting at a 45-degree angle the engine clung to the side of the bank which provides an elevation for the track. The hard jolt and loud noise made by the impact of the collision threw most passengers on the train into a state of near-panic.

Sometime after the accident railroad wrecker and a crew were sent to put the engine back on the rails. Another train was scheduled to make the return trip to Artesia at 6:10 P.M., over the same track. Approximately a dozen passengers cooled their heels at the Union Station awaiting removal of the wreckage.

Body Taken To Clanton

Jones' body was removed to Diffly's where it remained until Martin & Sons brought it to Clanton to be prepared for burial.

County Lines Up To Aid In Movement For Paying Roosevelt Tribute

(Taken From The Birmingham News)
The movement to honor President Roosevelt through building a hospital for treatment of children's diseases and the care of those crippled through the ravages of infantile paralysis spread through Central Alabama Monday with the announcement of an organization in Chilton County.

Billy Smith, publisher of The Chilton County News, at Clanton, and former postmaster there, will be chairman of the unit with F.J. Callen, president of the Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton, treasurer.

Other prominent Chilton County people will be vice chairmen and beat chairmen.
The movement, which originated in the Tennessee Valley, plans a great free hospital on LaGrange Mountain near the valley for the care of children with sufficient endowment to make these services free to children in Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi.

Hugh A. Locke, of Birmingham, is state chairman for Alabama and Gov. Graves is advisory chairman.

The movement bears the endorsement of governors of Alabama and Tennessee, the Alabama and Tennessee Federations of Labor, many fra-

COX ISSUES STATEMENT ON ROAD MATTER

Says Facts Obtainable On Road Situation In This County

"To the Tax Payers of Chilton County:
There appeared in the County papers last week another statement in reference to the road situation in Chilton County. The facts about the situation are available and can be obtained from the records by any taxpayer who wants to know the truth. I do not believe that continuing to express different ideas about this matter in the newspapers will serve any good purpose. Until the Commissioners Court is willing to cooperate with the Road Supervisor and give the tax payers of Chilton County the best service they can, you, the tax payers, will not obtain the road service you are entitled to."

CITY CLAMPS LID ON OASES FROM 11 P.M., 7 A.M.

Liquor Sales Tabooed By Officials For 8-Hour Period During Evening

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 29.—Curfew tolls for thirsty Montgomeries at 11 p.m., effective last night.
It remains in effect until 7 a.m., and woe to violators. Police have orders to arrest any restaurant manager or liquor dealer caught selling either liquor or beer during the eight hours of prohibition in the Capital City.

There is more to it than that. There is to be no curb service at any hour. Also the new blue laws prohibit the sale of anything that looks, smells, or tastes like whisky or beer on the Sabbath. There are to be no Sunday sales.
A thirsty Advertiser reporter stumbled on the effectiveness of the new ordinance after the deadline last night. He sought refreshments first at the Elite, from the popular Cooley. Cooley was not to be swayed. Manager George Moss was equally unyielding.

As the expectant reporter waited, as if in answer to his argument, a policeman entered the cafe. "One beer," he called, and the laugh with which he (Continued to Back Page)

We expect to look some of the problems of our church life SQUARE IN THE FACE, and we want every member to look at them with us. We urge upon every member to make your plans to be present next Sunday morning without fail.

Help us reach that 300 we are wanting to see in Sunday School. The only way we can get them is for YOU to be one of them, and for you to help others to be one of them. Invite your neighbors. Don't fall out Sunday morning. Looking for YOU.

Nothing is known of Billingsley's team of this year, but the Clanton boys should be in shape to give a good account of themselves. It is hoped that the Clanton football fans will make a special effort to see this first game on the home field this year.
The game starts promptly at 3:15. Admission will be twenty-five cents.

Barger-Baldwin Wedding Of Wide Interest

Members of two prominent Alabama families were united in marriage last Sunday afternoon when Miss Celia Baldwin of Mountain Creek became the bride of William J. Barger of Clanton, formerly of Birmingham.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. Frank McElroy, pastor of the Troy Presbyterian Church at his home in Troy and in the presence of only a few close friends and relatives of the couple.

Mrs. Barger comes from one of the most outstanding families of the state, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin J. Baldwin, descendants of some of Alabama's prominent public and political figures. She is well known in Clanton, having taught in county schools and making her home in Clanton.

Mr. Barger holds a responsible position with the Alred Drug Company of Clanton as pharmacist, a place he accepted after following this profession for fourteen years in Birmingham. They expect to make their home in Clanton, and are receiving congratulations from their many friends.

The Difference Between Doctor And Undertaker

The income of the Federal government is climbing because the country is registering recovery in unprecedented degree. The country is recovering because Roosevelt had the courage to spend when spending was necessary, knowing that such stimulation would bring the budget to balance.

Hoover went along for tragic two years with successive three-billion dollar deficits, deficits produced by declining revenues, not by recovery spending. Hoover borrowed to meet those panic deficits.

Roosevelt deliberately created deficits to deliberately spend for recovery. His deficits were planned deficits, part of a long-range program and he borrowed, as did Hoover, to meet them. Except he is paying a far lower interest rate.

So the difference is that Hoover borrowed to pay the doctor.

68 Years In One Family

Not many newspapers in Alabama or anywhere else have been in a single family as long as the Ozark Southern Star has been in the Adams family. In each issue of that newspaper appears the following:

JOSEPH A. ADAMS, Founder 1867-1887.
JOSEPH H. ADAMS, — 1887-1901.

JOHN Q. ADAMS—1901-1925.
JESSE B. ADAMS Editor and Publisher.
JOHN Q. ADAMS, Associate Editor.

For 68 years this publication has descended from father to son and played its vital part in the life of the people of Dale County. It is perhaps not exactly accurate to say from father to son, for the women of the family have likewise been active in the management and administration of the paper through the years. The Star has been a family institution and conducted as such, and it is one in which any family might well take pride.—Montgomery Advertiser.

Farmers' Income In 1935 More Than Tripled 1932

The report issued Saturday by the Department of Agriculture showing gross farm income during the calendar year 1935 was $8,500,000,000, the highest in six years, revealed that in view of the slow increase in production costs, "the return to farmers last year was over three times as large as in 1932."

Although the $8,500,000,000 of last year was more than a billion short of the $11,941,000,000 gross income of 1929, it represented a "real farm income" of two per cent above 1929 "allowing for the difference in the level of prices paid by farmers for commodities." The gross 1935 income was 17 per cent above the $7,276,000,000 of 1934 and 59 per cent above the $5,337,000,000 of 1932. Last year's total included $6,703,000,000 cash income from sale of crops and livestock. $1,303,000,000 estimated value of products raised and consumed on farms and $498,000,000 farm benefit programs.

Costs to produce in 1935 were estimated at $3,970,000,000 including taxes, wages of hired labor, rent, interest, depreciation on buildings and equipment and commodities used in production, leaving net return to farmers of $4,538,000,000 for their labor, capital and management and the unpaid labor of their families. This was the highest return since 1929, and while the gross income in 1935 was 17 per cent higher than in 1934, the increase in the net income during the one year was 31 per cent.

"Let it be understood from now on that the Liberty League is indorsing no candidate. They will simply each in his own way have Heaven and earth to beat or annoy Roosevelt, but that, of course, is not indorsing Landon."—Great Falls Tribune. (Dem.)

New Deal In Maryland

All of the daily newspapers in Maryland except four small ones outside Baltimore are against Roosevelt and the New Deal. The opponents include all the great papers such as the Baltimore Sun and the Hearst News-Post and Sunday American. The total circulation of the anti-New Deal dailies is 496,000; the circulation of the four pro-New Deal papers is 31,230.

The Baltimore Sun is conducting a poll of all the voters in Maryland on the presidential contest. Last week the vote stood 54 per cent for Roosevelt. During the present week the Roosevelt vote has risen to 59 per cent. It appears that the newspaper majority does not speak the voice of the people of Maryland.—Montgomery Advertiser.

"I Congratulate Them"

"I congratulate them" were the only words uttered by Governor Eugene Talmadge, of Georgia, after the crushing defeat handed him and the men backed by him in the primary held last week. The Governor took his defeat in a very dignified manner. Even his bitterest enemies had to respect the good sportsmanship displayed by the Governor. Had he raged and charged robbery, fraud, and crookedness, as the reason for his defeat, it would have finished killing him politically, but his humble statement of congratulations to his victors and his statement that he was still young and would be ready to serve his state at any time for a number of years to come, may mean the difference between finished and a come-back for him.—Huntsboro Press.

Yes, and we like to see such evidences of the good Democratic spirit as the above as it shows that, though Governor Talmadge apparently was out of line with the majority of the people of his state as to President Roosevelt and his administration, he had the courage to stand up and take defeat rather than adopt the views of other Democrats in order to be elected. A man who can "take it" in a hard fight and keep his head up is bound to be respected for his courage even by his bitterest opponents. We all know that this is still America and that Democracy stands for true democracy.—Tuskegee News.

Graft—What Is It?

Graft is said to be "the increasing of one's wealth or position by unfair means by utilizing the advantages of his official position or public office by taking advantage of a public office or employment to obtain fees, perquisites, or pay for work not done or service not performed; illegal or unfair practice for profit for personal gain."

Through graft billions have been added to the burdens of the taxpayers. It has wrecked and ruined people and governments in all ages. It has cost our government—state and national—untold billions of dollars.

Grafting may or may not be unlawful. A grafter is described as one who preys on the people either against the law or under the law.

Nobody wants a grafter in office. When he is found out, they send him on the "long trail" back to private life.

Deserves Thought

"Farmers as well as seacoast people should think long and seriously before giving their votes to a candidate for President who proposes to stab us all in the wallet by restoring the old, high and inflexible tariff system."—New York News. (Ind.)

"Considering the subjects which Mr. Landon discusses as well as the subjects which he carefully let alone, one is left with the same final impression that appeared after the adoption of the Republican platform in Cleveland. That is, the Republicans, playing safe, promise to take over the New Deal and administer it more efficiently. He puts all his emphasis on administration."—Baltimore Sun (Ind. Dem.)

"If Mr. Roosevelt had been handed over a state of affairs equal to any extent to that which existed when Calvin Coolidge was president, he would have been wrong, indeed, to have increased taxes. Keep the record straight and above all give the Hoover figures in any comparison.—Lexing-Herald (Dem.)

"Looking at statistics as a business man looks at his balance sheet, Jos. Kennedy defends the New Deal against its critics and declares that in Roosevelt lies the hope of real freedom for the mass of the people of the United States."—Chattanooga News. (Ind. Dem.)

Dispelling The Fog

By CHARLES MISHELSON
Director of Publicity, Democratic National Committee

Talking of forgotten men — what about Col. Frank Knox, who was nominated for Vice President at the Republican National Convention?

We know from the newspapers that he is making speeches hither and yon, but nobody talks about him and, though it is recorded that he has the widest of radio broadcasts, he gives the impression of somebody in a dark corner talking to himself.

Now a vice-presidential candidate is quite a fellow in the political picture. Theoretically he speaks with authority only second to that of the presidential candidate. It is a phenomenon worthy of notice under such circumstances that newspapers do not editorialize on his utterances; that the speakers on the other side do not answer him, or in fact pay any attention to his statements. It is understandable that with a vivid candidate for the first place, the understudy might easily be overshadowed, but even his staunchest advocates do not credit Governor Landon with either brilliancy of utterance or magnetism of personality, so it is not a case of eclipse by a brighter constellation. Perhaps the circumstance that the Editor-Colonel is listened to with patience, instead of enthusiasm may be due to the subject matter of his addresses.

His text is ordinarily the parolous plight to which our country has been brought by the Roosevelt administration. According to him the Roosevelt administration has precipitated the businessmen of the nation into "a shadow of fear and uncertainty." He likewise informs us that the people have "seen natural recovery struggling desperately against fear and intimidation, and waste and destruction," and mentions that "the nation has lived for three years in an atmosphere of uncertainty and apprehension." Writers might complain that he ought to find a few variations of this form of expression for all three of them came out in a single speech.

A little later he mentioned that the Democrats had "blocked real recovery by draining the nation's recuperative power," etc.

In the same speech he expressed the shock he felt "that the full play of business had been halted by the continued threatening and terroristic attitude" of the Roosevelt administration. He solemnly assured his hearers that they would not again hear the hum of busy factories until that administration had been removed.

In all, the picture painted by the forgotten candidate shows a country in a terrible state, with ruin around the corner — probably the same corner to which President Hoover used to refer so frequently.

Knox Glowers, Then Glows
Curiously enough, Publisher Knox does not feel as despondent as does Candidate Knox. His newspaper is doing pretty well, and advertising in it Printers Ink—the trade paper in which journals advertise for advertisements—Mr. Knox's Chicago Daily News publishes this glowing announcement:

"Here in Chicago, 'the world's second largest market,' storekeepers are getting back their pre-depression smiles. People are milling in the streets—with crisp new packages under their arms. Cash registers jingling. Trucks clunking. And, between the banks of Michigan Avenue, the old 'Gold Stream' of shiny new automobiles is at high tide again. Chicago is showing more comeback, faster than any spot on the map!"

Well, perhaps it is not quite fair to insist that a political exhorter should square his utterances with those he makes in his business capacity, but to the fellow who contemplates both, it would seem that the Colonel was either spreading the gloom for the possible effect it might have on voters, or shedding the sunshine to impress his newspaper readers and advertisers.

He must be wrong on one count or the other.

However, that has nothing to do with the obscuration of the G.O.P. Vice Presidential candidate, which is lamentable, for people could get a lot of fun out of studying what he says, and I am glad to give him this advertisement in the hope that the public should pay some heed to him.

His lament about the dreadful state of business, which he is recording several times daily, clashes with his own newspaper's daily recital of new factories going up, such as the General Motors biggest assembly plant in New Jersey; new highs in production sales, such as the circumstance that the Kansas farmers will get nearly three times as much for their crops this year as they did last year; balance sheets that approach boom-time reports; resumption of corporation dividends, and Government bonds at a high premium that were far below par a few years ago. But this situation is really not more grotesque than the presentation of his chief that the pall of ruin hangs not only over us but over posterity indefinitely—as for example:

"The creation of a staggering public debt closes the door of opportunity to the youth of America. * * * The present administration's daily mounting deficits are closing the door of opportunity to the children and my children."

The Still Missing Bill of Particulars

I'll Tell 'Em, Alf!

The President of the United States, backed by the figures of the United States Treasury, reports that the mounting tide of business is bringing in such revenues to the Government that, if the present trend continues, there will be no necessity for higher taxes, and that the national debt will be taken care of in the ordinary orderly course of affairs. Incidentally, our national debt does not approach the figures of various other comparable countries and comparable populations. The generation of today did not find the door of opportunity shut in its face by the huge war-time deficits of twenty years ago, and the generation of twenty years hence will probably wonder—if it thinks about it at all—what Governor Landon and the other prophets of disaster were dreaming about when they voiced their night-mares.

Also incidentally neither the gloomy Chicago Colonel nor the pessimistic Governor of Kansas has given any of us a hint what they would do to avert the threatened chaos if the age of miracles had not passed and they got the chance to work on the problems of Government. The only thing they are certain of is that they would do what the Roosevelt administration is doing better and cheaper. All the cataclysms they prophesy are contingent, of course on the result of the election. Elect them and there will be no more droughts or floods; no more unemployment; the poor will be relieved of taxes and the rich will have their tax burden lightened that we will have a bigger crop of millionaires; the market will tower, with no danger a reverse and the farmer will be getting now and as much as is good for him.

Once upon a time, runs an old one of the audience at a great recital criticized the performer. "Do you think you could do better," asked the person in the next seat. "Well," replied the critic, "I know. I never tried to play a."

FORMER CHILTONIAN URGES PLANTING OF SOY BEANS

Oliver Manning Now Instructor At Large School
In Dunn, N. C., Writes Interesting Letter To The News

Plainview School
Dunn, North Carolina
September 23, 1936
Mr. Billy Smith, Publisher,
Chilton County News
Clanton, Alabama.
Dear Sir:

Thank you for sending me several copies of the Chilton County News. I do enjoy reading any news from home.
One always likes to hear what the folks back home are doing, especially when it is news of progress. I am enclosing my check for a year's subscription. It is a dollar and a half to the people out of the state, I believe.

The article about the calf club show was very good in your last issue. Few things lift the living conditions in an agricultural community more than a well-rounded livestock program. Truly the cow is the foster mother of prosperity. There is no definite reason why Chilton County could not become the center of a large canned milk area if more attention could be given to pasture growing. The article about the club boys visiting Mr. H.S. Shaw's farm was fine. The boys probably received a lot of valuable information from the trip.

I have just returned from a 3000-mile observation trip and vacation through North Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, and South Carolina.
There were many places affected by the drouth and many absolute crop failures. On one large farm in North Georgia the owner stated that he would hardly make enough corn for his mules and only two bales of cotton. I was glad to see that the crops around Clanton were in fair condition. Mother seemed to think the crops were as good as ever.

As for the cotton crop I thought it was good, but I saw very little that would make a bale per acre. There is no definite reason that most of the land could not produce a bale per acre if the proper system of rotation were used. I have seen in a number of cases land that was no more productive than the average in Chilton County built up with soybeans to where it easily produced a bale per acre. The usual method used through this section is to plant a row of corn and a row of soybeans or even two rows of corn to one row of soybeans. They are planted at the same time. Instead of the middles being filled with grass each year when the corn stops growth the middle is covered with an abundant crop of excellent hay or cover crop very rich in nitrogen. Growing soybeans in this manner is quite a new thing too.
But now the farmers think there is nothing like soybeans for soil improvement and for hay. There are several soybean harvesters in the community
now. Many bushels of seed are sold to other states. I wish this could become more of a general practice in Chilton. You would within a few years see less money going out of the county for fertilizers. Too, there would be more in the county to operate the schools and to put on the roads. I do not like to read about or hear of the school condition being as it is in that state.

There are many other uses for soybeans in this section. The man with whom I stay is fattening 20 hogs on an acre of soybeans. Green soybeans in the field affords one of the cheapest means of growing and fattening hogs.
They go well with other feeds. If the hogs are taken off the soybeans about a month before killing and fed corn and tankage properly there is no signs of soft pork when the hogs are marketed. I carry several truck loads to Richmond, Va., each year that are fattened in this manner. We usually get top prices for them. This means an excellent extra source of income for this community. The people have learned that it is folly to depend solely on cotton. Those who grow only cotton and corn have a difficult job to keep their homes.

Soybeans when shelled green are excellent for food. Few people know this to be true. Many people in this community say they excel green peas or beans. They are prepared in the same manner. Soybeans are truly the South's wonder bean. We cannot praise them too highly.

You are probably wondering why I am writing so much on just soybeans.
If they are to get much of a start in a community, they must be given publicity and nothing can do that better than a County paper serving that community. That is how they got started in this community. So I hope you try to push the production of SOYBEANS IN CHILTON COUNTY. Some day the people will thank you for having done so. The crops through here are the best I saw on my whole trip and if one thing were to get the credit it would go to soybeans. Plenty of the corn will exceed forty bushels per acre with soybeans in every other row. A bale per acre is a common thing where soybeans have been used in the rotation.
I am sending a few snap shots to prove what I have said. If you care to,
I would like to have them because I am keeping a picture of each of my boy's projects, but if you haven't time, just don't bother about them.
Thanking you very much for the paper, I am

Yours very truly,

Tales and Traditions from American Political History
by FRANK E. HAGEN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ROORBACK
AS ELECTION time nears, watch out for "roorbacks" — those campaign lies which are circulated in the last few days of a campaign by partisans of one candidate to discredit and perhaps aid in defeating another candidate. We've had such canards in every political campaign since the days of John Adams but it wasn't until 1844 that they were given their distinctive name.

On August 1 of that year a letter was printed in the Ithaca (N. Y.) Journal which asserted that James K. Polk, the Democratic candidate, branded his slaves with his initials as though they were so many cattle. Denounced by Polk's supporters. The editor of the Journal declared that the truth of the statement could not be doubted, since the authority for it was a book which had "received the approbation of every American critic." It was Roerback's "Tour Through Southern and Western States in the Year 1836" and Roerback was a foreign observer who had written his book long before Polk was a candidate for President.

But Polk's friends soon proved that the whole thing was a hoax. They showed that the alleged quotation from Roerback's "Tour" had been lifted from George William Featherstonhaugh's "Excursion Through the Slave States." After giving verbatim this Englishman's description of a slave trader's encampment, the author of the letter to the Ithaca Journal had added: "Forty of these unfortunate beings had been purchased, I was informed, of the Hon. J. K. Polk, the present speaker of the house of representatives; the mark of the branding iron, with the initials of his name on their shoulders, distinguishing them from the rest."

After this revelation, the whole "villainous forgery" was investigated and the author of the letter exposed as a Democratic officeholder, belonging to a faction opposed to Polk. The excitement over this incident died down before the election but by that time the fame of "Roerback" was firmly established and his name is perpetuated in politics to this day.

Andy Rahn, wealthy lumberman and politician of Minneapolis, became so accustomed to living in Pullman cars in the course of many business trips that he bought one and had it fitted up for a home.

Married four years ago, Mrs. Bessie Rodenbeck, 70, of Bloomington, Ill., is seeking a divorce from Willie Rodenbeck on grounds of cruelty. She charges he struck her with a chair.

Poultry Diseases Cures Discussed

Roup and pox are two of the most dreaded poultry diseases at this season of the year, says Prof. D. F. King, poultryman at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, in offering farmers and poultrymen a few suggestions about how to control them.

These diseases may be caused indirectly by any factor which tends to lower vitality or resistance of the fowl, such as chilling, worm infestations, and improper feeding, states Prof. King in urging that precaution be taken to prevent these disturbances.

"Sick birds should be isolated for individual treatment, or if seriously infected should be killed and burned, because these diseases are transmitted from sick birds to healthy ones," he says.

"Clean and disinfect houses, yards, hoppers, nests, and drinking vessels and use a good antiseptic for the eyes and nostrils. A 20-per-cent solution of argyrol is a good antiseptic for the eyes and nostrils."

Fowl pox should be prevented by vaccination of the pullets when young, King says, but if this has not been done and pox appears, grease the combs and head parts with a paste made of equal parts of vaseline or lard and iodine. Supply plenty of green feed and milk. Feed a crumbly moist mash once daily.

Clanton Methodist Church News

Rev. A. E. Middlebrooks, Minister

Next Sunday is Rally Day! The various departments and classes are planning for a big day with special programs. The pastor will speak on an appropriate theme. Let all the members and friends of the church be present for both the church school and for church service.

Last Sunday was promotion day in the church school. Several children were promoted to higher departments and classes. The preaching services were well attended. The attendance at the morning service was the largest that it has been in several weeks. Let's get out of our "summer slump" and all be back next Sunday.

It is probable that there will be no preaching service Sunday night. A large number of our people may want to go to Birmingham Sunday afternoon and night to hear some of the outstanding religious leaders of the world. E. Stanley Jones of India will speak at a mass meeting at the First Methodist Church Sunday at 3:00. Other speakers of note will be in various churches that night and until Wednesday. The National Preaching Mission will be conducted in Birmingham from Sunday through Wednesday. Read the daily papers for details of the program. We shall announce at the Sunday morning service whether or not there will be preaching at the evening hour.

World's Mightiest Circus Coming Soon

Great Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined, with Pigma Elephants and Pongus From Africa, Col. Tim McCoy And Hundreds of New Foreign Features, Offers Epochal Program

With the most impressive and brilliant seven-ring-and-stage program in its history, the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus which will exhibit in Montgomery, Tuesday, Oct. 13, offers this season, as a sensational super-feature, a herd of African pigma elephants, the first ever to set foot on this continent. These tiny tuskers are not babies, but full-grown, middle-aged mighty elephants the rarest animal on the face of the earth. Accompanying them is a herd of miniature African pongus, the world's smallest beasts of burden. The pigma elephants have proven the greatest attraction the Big Show has ever placed before the public, not even excepting its presentations in the past of the disc-lipped Ubangis, the giraffe-necked women from Burma, the sacred white elephant of Siam, Jumbo, Tom Thumb and Goliath, the sea elephant.

Among the scores of new features, to say nothing of the new importations from Europe and Asia, including the incredible Naitto troupe, the Royal Bokara troupe, the Imperial Viennese equestrian troupe, the great Frederico and a free running horse, pony and elephant liberty act of sixty members is Col. Tim McCoy, the screen's most outstanding western star, at the head of his congress of rough riders of the world—Cossacks, cowboys, cowgirls, vaqueros, Sioux and Blackfeet warriors and Australian bushrangers. Col. McCoy, plainsman, cavalry officer in the U.S. Army Reserve and friend of the Indian, is the idol of American boys and girls, and he will be seen in both the main performances and the wild west.

The Greatest Show on Earth heads into this territory on four long railroad trains of 100 cars, with 1600 people 7 herds of full-sized elephant actors 1009 menagerie animals and 700 horses. Its tented city covers 14 acres of ground. There are 31 large tents, including the world's largest big top seating 16,000 persons.

This is the peak season for youth and beauty among the 800 world famous arena artists with the show. In the air, in the three rings, on the four stages and in the quarter-mile hippodrome track will be seen hundreds of pretty girls. In the 60-girl aerial ballet, the most beautiful mid-air display ever produced, there are beauties that evoke columns of newspaper comment wherever the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus exhibits.

SWEET POTATOES NEED DIGGING BEFORE FROST

It is most important that farmers dig their sweet potatoes before the first frost this fall, advise extension horticulturists.

"When potatoes are bruised or roughly handled when being harvested they will decay," they say in a new bulletin. Before potatoes can be successfully stored for any length of time it is essential that they be cured or dried, by keeping them at a temperature of 80 to 85 degrees and giving plenty of ventilation for ten days to two weeks. Farmers who do not have sweet potato curing houses may use their broom houses for the process.

Eric Sulong of New York City, practicing crunching eggshells, made a job eating electric light bulbs a side show.

Rural Electrification In Alabama Early Days

By E. C. Easter

CHAPTER I

RURAL ELECTRIFICATION is not a new idea so far as Alabama is concerned. It was one of the pioneers in rural electrification, and has been building rural lines since 1920.

In 1924 it began an intensive program of rural electrification and was one of the first, if not the first, company in the country to do so.

The policy of the Company was expressed thus: "If those who live in the rural sections, therefore, will do their part in advancing the use of electricity just as the users in the cities are doing, then the farmer will find the same service available to him throughout the state. We have not waited upon the full development of the use of electricity before bringing it to the farmer, but we are engaged in this pioneer work in the hope that its benefits and advantages will commend themselves as the work goes on and thus make electric service permanent in our rural sections."

In pursuit of that policy the Company has not only conducted a continuous Rural Line Construction Program, but since 1927 has had Agricultural Engineers assist the farmers in their problems pertaining to uses of electricity.

In those early days rural electrification was started as an experimental project in co-operation with the State Agricultural Experiment Station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, the National Committee on the Relation of Electricity to Agriculture, and the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation. The Power Company constructed rural lines to serve as a field laboratory for the field investigations which were conducted by the Agricultural Engineering Department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The National Committee on the Relation of Electricity to Agriculture assisted in planning the project and the Alabama Farm Bureau appointed a committee to report on the results.

*—1925 Annual Report.

mittee of farmers to assist and advise in connection with the plans and work. This original experiment resulted in the necessary information to begin an expanded program of rural electric development throughout the territory served by the Company.

CHAPTER II

Down Highways and Byways; Thru Forests and Across Fields

The progress made in this development by the Company in the decade 1924-1934 is indicated by the increase from only 14 rural electric lines served by the Company in 1924, to 789 strictly rural lines—and 68 which started as rural lines but were changed from rural to urban classification—served in 1934.

The Company has constructed rural lines in every county in Alabama in which it does business. It has built over 3,000 miles of rural lines along the highways and roads of the state to provide electric service to approximately 15,000 rural and farm customers. In addition it has extended electric service to some 27,000 customers in small towns and communities that are considered "rural" by the United States Bureau of the Census.

As a result of the Company's rural electric development and the extension of electric service to the smaller communities of the state, electric service is generally distributed over the entire area served by the Company and a large majority of the farm within the area are within reach of a reliable source of electricity.

The extent to which this program was carried out, and the manner in which rural electric service in Alabama was extended even during depression years, will be discussed in our next advertisement, to be published in this paper soon. Adv. Alabama Power Company.

This advertisement is the first of a series which has also been printed in booklet form. T. W. Martin, President of Alabama Power Company, Birmingham, will cheerfully send a copy to any interested person requesting it.

"PAYING FOR DEAD HORSES" never builds a good highway system!

ROADS that need constant reconstruction keep the taxpayer always "paying for dead horses." Year after year his taxes are paid, yet there's little money for new highways, widening, grade separations and other permanent improvements.

What a difference when each year's program includes new concrete highways! Reports from 18 states show that concrete costs far less to maintain—$114 to $469 per mile less per year—than other surfaces.

As you get more concrete and less inferior roads, annual maintenance costs are cut, releasing more and more funds for new roads, arterial streets, bridges and grade separations.

Even in first cost, concrete saves money over other pavements of equal load-carrying capacity. Concrete carries you safely and comfortably and with low cost for gas, tires, and car repairs.

Write for "Road Maintenance Costs" which tabulates in detail the experience of 18 states with more than 100,000 miles of pavement.

Big Three Ring Circus to Delight Chilton County on Next Monday Night

Clanton will play host to its first circus of the season next Monday, October 5, when Barnett Bros. big three ring aggregation will be here for a one day engagement.

The city and surrounding communities have been decked out in typical circus colors by the advertising crew of the show which has "plastered" billboards, buildings, store windows, etc., with gaudy colored posters announcing the coming of the circus.

Advance notices indicate that the performance being presented by Barnett Bros. this season is one of the most elaborate that this show has attempted in the number of years that it has been on tour in the United States.

Clowns, acrobats, tumblers, trapeze artists, bare-back riders, aerialists, gymnasts, equestriennes, tight-wire walkers, cowboys and cowgirls, besides the many trained animals, will perform in the three rings under the circus tent in an almost unending procession of thrills and feats of daring.

Texas Ted Lewis, noted rodeo cowboy and bronc rider, will be seen with the circus, accompanied by his congress of cowboys and cowgirls from all parts of the west. They will depict the sports and pastimes of the old west as part of the circus program.

Two performances will be presented in Clanton. The matinee will start at 3 o'clock and the night show at 8 o'clock. Doors will be opened an hour previous to showing time to allow the public an opportunity to view the animal display before being seated in the big top.

national and patriotic organizations and last week was endorsed by the Alabama Department of the American Legion.

Ralph M. Saliba, director general of the Roosevelt Memorial Association, which is conducting the movement, stated the association believes the great humanitarian efforts of President Roosevelt should be acknowledged by three of the states, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee, which had shared so largely in them and that no medium of expression would be so fitting as a children's hospital, dedicated to the care and treatment of those crippled through infantile paralysis.

Committee, the Governor was advised that several states have requested that he address voters there, and asked if he could make campaign speeches next month during the period stated.

The Chief Executive, who was first in Alabama to volunteer his services to speak in support of the national ticket, following the convention in Philadelphia, telegraphed Mr. Rayburn that he will "gladly answer the party's call." ## LIQUOR followed his request was his own answer to the order.

Get No Results

A quick visit to other promising restaurants and like establishments was quite as barren. The ordinance was inviolable.

During the last two or three days word has been carried to those interested financially in liquor sales, warning them of the new curfew. It became effective last night.

Individual policemen were unable to explain the motive last night. They had had their orders and planned to carry them out. They could explain nothing.

Bingo Ruled Out

The drastic prohibitive measure was attributed by some (anonymously) to recent troubles over "bingo" in Montgomery. "Bingo," beginning with some suburban popularity, spread to the heart of Montgomery last week with the opening of a game on Dexter Avenue, just opposite The Advertiser. Seeing in it an evil influence upon children, the city banned the game, giving its investors three days to recoup. The three days expired last night with the management opposite The Advertiser expressing the hope that they would be permitted several days longer to liquidate.

But last night after 11 o'clock the thirsty might have milk if they like. There was no liquor.—Montgomery Advertiser.

GUESSING CONTESTS SUCCESS

Farmers, wives and children met at the fields of W. C. Martin and Walter Allen to guess on the yield of corn on the Chilean Nitrate Demonstrations. Thirty-five people were present at Mr. Martin's and thirty-seven at Mr. Allen's demonstration.

Guesses on the yield were from eighteen to fifty bushels per acre on the acres which received the 200 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre, with an average of 30.2 bushels at Mr. Martin's demonstration and 29.4 bushels at Mr. Allen's. On the plots which did not receive any nitrate of soda, the guesses ranged from five bushels to fifteen bushels per acre with an average of 11.6 at Mr. Allen's.

The people who witnessed these demonstrations think the plots receiving nitrate of soda will make approximately twenty bushels of corn per acre more than the plots not receiving any soda. Twenty bushels of corn at the present price is worth at least twenty-five dollars and was made for about 3.20, the present price of 200 pounds Chilean Nitrate of Soda, or $92.80 profit by using the nitrate of soda.

A large tub of ice cold lemonade was made and served at each demonstration. Mr. M. H. Pearson, educational director of Chilean Nitrate in Alabama, was present and made very interesting talks at both contests.

Pud Walker went to Montgomery last Friday night to attend the Auburn-Birmingham Southern football game.

Miss Tyus will leave for Kansas City next Saturday where she makes her home with her sister, Mrs. H. J. Smith.

WORKERS COUNCIL

school attendance increasing it is essential that groups using school property for meeting or other functions of any sort take care to see that the property does not become soiled and that the school is free of undue and unnecessary damage.

The problem of the control of contagious diseases is one which health and medical forces have grappled. They have gone far and wide in eradicating such diseases as typhoid, fever and smallpox. Attention is being centered on tuberculosis because too little has been done toward controlling the venereal diseases.

M. Kimmey, county health officer, gave to the group reprints of an article entitled, "Why Don't We Get Out Syphilis?" written by Dr. Surgeon General, U. S. Public Health Service and published in both the very Graphic Magazine and the State's Digest for July, 1936. Dr. Kimmey urged everyone present at the meeting to read this article.

The problems involved in caring for undernourished and underprivileged children are problems which show of vital interest to everyone. Our children are given an opportunity to grow and develop as normal children should, we can hardly expect to become useful men and women, providing adequate care for dependent, neglected children may, at first, be expensive, but money, time and wisely expended in providing food, care and training of these children, an investment in the development of character and good citizenship with its own reward.

Such problems as the ones mentioned above can be solved by no agency or individual alone. A solution depends upon the united efforts of every agency and every individual interested in the growth and development of Chilton County. Resolutions need for cooperation in meeting common problems, a Council of Chilton County Workers was organized at this time. This Council will meet every quarter for group discussion. Miss Nolan Meroney, Director of the Welfare, was elected to serve as chairman of the Council for the year and Miss Elsie Schurter, Elementary Supervisor, was elected to serve as secretary.

The following were present at the first meeting of the Council: Mr. Luther E. Little, County Superintendent of Education; Miss Schurter, Elementary School Supervisor; Miss Green, Attendance Officer; Dr. J. M. Kimmey, County Health Officer; Miss Irene Smithman, County Nurse; Miss Annie Lee Robinson, nurse; Miss Meta Grace, Home Demonstration Agent; Mr. Marvin D. Farm Supervisor, Rural Resettlement Administration; Miss Bertha D. Home Agent, Rural Resettlement Administration.

Miss Nolan Meroney, Director of the Department of Public Welfare; Caroline Cunningham, Field Representative, State Department of Public Welfare, Montgomery, Ala.; Margaret Hodo, Community Worker, Montevallo, Ala.; Judge J. Lee and County Commissioners, Mr. J. Bean and Mr. Howard Oden.

Grand Champion Prize
With Fine Animals

Chilton County came in for its share of the honors at the Alabama State fair in Birmingham last week, when the young members of the county's calf clubs brought home many prizes for their fine animals on exhibition there.

The Grand Champion prize of a one hundred dollar trip to the International Stock Show in Chicago, went to Buster Popwell, whose animal was judged the Champion at the state fair. The son of one of the county's prominent farmers, Walter Popwell.

According to B. N. Ivey, assistant county agent in charge of club work and who has been working with the young farmers of the county, six first prizes were awarded cattle owned by local club boys, and the $50.00 cash prize for the best county exhibit was also brought to this county. Four of these first prizes were awarded in the seven livestock dairy show, against all state entries.

A grand total of $250.00 in first prizes were awarded the Chilton County club boys who recently exhibited their fine animals at a county-wide show in Clanton, sponsored by County Agent Fant and Mr. Ivey.

BLOOD STAINS MAKE MYSTERY FOR OFFICERS

Torn And Bloody Clothes Found By Sheriff
Near Samaria

After being told by residents near Samaria church, just west of Clanton, of hearing yelling and a general commotion last Sunday night, Sheriff Hardy and deputies investigated and found several articles of clothing badly torn and stained with blood. Several large sticks were also found nearby the scene and were blood stained.

Sheriff Hardy stated that it was his opinion someone was badly beaten and badly injured, if not killed, but that so far they have traced down every clue to no avail. He stated that the spots where the clothes were found showed signs that a terrific struggle had taken place there.

No one had been reported missing or injured up to Wednesday morning of this week, and Sheriff Hardy is seeking more clues to this grim looking affair.

"LET HIM STAY THERE" SAYS CHILTON CITIZEN

J. A. Caton, who resides on Route Five, was asked the other day what he thought of the work being done and that which had been done by President Roosevelt and the Democratic administration.

Mr. Caton replied, with a bright look in his eyes, "I think the people should let that man stay in office so that he can make a complete job of what he has started. He has done more for the poor man and especially the farmers, than any man I know of. God knows, we need a man like that for President." He has made me and my family happy again. I believe the people of Chilton County would be in mighty bad shape if Roosevelt had not been elected the first time."

Why YOU Should Be Interested In Politics ...

In the humble opinion of the News, it is a grave mistake the people of this county are making not to take an active interest in politics. They are inviting a re-occurrence of a downfall of the stock market and every other matter that tends toward progress and the welfare of the people—not only is this true in Chilton County, but is true throughout the United States.

We remember back in the years 1930 to 1932 and '33, the people were willing and ready to listen to any speaker who would have a slight statement of encouragement to a down-trodden, hungry and broke people. That was when cotton brought about five cents. They did listen and learned that a man was seeking the office of President of the United States who would and did come to the aid of these people—our own farmers and working men.

Now, we are definitely back on the road that leads to happy homes, better living conditions and prosperity. In fact that road is mighty wide and smooth right now. It seems to be so smooth that a large percentage of the people have forgotten the trials and hard knocks they encountered five and six years ago.

And, forgetting these things will no doubt lead them right back on the road of closed, bursted banks, falling stocks and low priced cotton and goodness knows what else. We feel a twinge when we hear a person, whether business man, banker, farmer or lawyer, say he is not interested in politics. When, if he should stop to consider, he would see that politics controls the entire economic condition of our country in one way or other, and directly affects his own business.

We sat back in the years of 1926, 1927, 1928 and 1930—sliding along so smoothly ourselves that we forgot to

Speaking At Collins Chapel School House Friday Night

"What Would I Have Done?" A True Story Of What The "New Deal" Has Meant To A Chilton County Citizen

Just what President Roosevelt and his Democratic administration has meant to the "forgotten man" of Chilton County is illustrated in no small measure in a story that came to light this week—a true story about a Chilton County citizen, his wife and seven children.

It was back in 1934, the story begins, that J. M. Fuller moved to Pine Bluff, Arkansas with his family. There he lost everything he had—all his worldly possessions—except his wife and seven children and his will to do it given a chance.

He came back to Chilton County, making his way back home by the hardest and settled as best he could near Maplesville with not even enough to feed his wife and children—not even a clean pair of overalls for himself—nothing to start life with.

Then Roosevelt with his popular Resettlement Administration took up the case of Mr. Fuller, let him have enough money to get a little start; furnished him with two young yearlings. That was in April, 1935. He was also furnished with a house to live in and food for his family—all through the generosity of a great leader—President Roosevelt.

But let's hear it in Mr. Fuller's own words: "I went to work with these two unbroken yearlings on the land they let me use. I made 1,530 pounds of lint cotton, and thank God that the price was enough instead of the five cent cotton we once had. I also made 240 bushels of corn, 58 gallons good sorghum syrup, 100 bushels sweet potatoes, plenty of peas and beans to feed the two yearlings and about 14 bushels of peanuts.

"I don't know what I would have done without Mr. Marvin Durbin and Mr. Glenn Sessions, who are with this Roosevelt Resettlement work. They were mighty nice to me and helped (Continued to Back Page)

That $1.08 A Week

The National Young Democrat's editorial last month on "1.08 a Week," the attitude of Gov. Land of Kansas toward relief, has attracted widespread editorial and individual reaction.

Among communications received was one from Edmund Graf of Pasadena, Calif. in which he makes the suggestion that the famous "1.08 a Week" conference held in the office of Gov. Land—before he nipped the apple of the Republican presidential nomination—be the subject of cartoon stickers for automobile windshield.

Land thought $1.08 a week enough for a family of three on relief to live on. He evidently still thinks so. He hasn't denied the conference.

NEWS WILL MOVE INTO NEW HOME AFTER OCTOBER 15TH

One More Issue Of Paper Will Be Published In Building Occupied By Newspaper For The Past Sixteen Years

Only one more issue of the Chilton County News will be published in its present home, where for the past sixteen years, this newspaper office and plant has been located. Contractors in charge of constructing the new home of the News, located two blocks north of the present location, advise that the building will be ready for occupancy on the fifteenth of this month.

This modern two-story building has been erected especially to house the Chilton County News, its offices and printing plant and will give to Clanton and Chilton County one of the most modern establishments of its kind in the state.

A special invitation will be extended to the people of this section to visit the new home of the News when it is occupied. It will be a pleasure to visitors there to see the modern and convenient features of this building.

The front offices include a waiting room, business office and private office—quite a contrast to the present arrangement where only one office is serving this purpose. A large section of the second story is given over to space for advertisers and others who might wish to do some work in connection with the paper, where they will not be disturbed. This is a feature of the new building the News is proud of.

Just as soon as the tremendous job of moving the heavy machinery is completed, more detailed information will be brought out to show that Chilton County will be proud to point to the home of the Chilton County News and bring visitors to see it.

Al And "Old Potato"

Thursday night Al showed that he was so mad he could bite his right ear off.

"Old Potato," at the same time, showed that he was so glad that he could beam and talk patronizingly of the common enemy, and of the new hope.

Al ripped and snorted, making a lively, sizzling, old-time stump speech, which his hearers must have enjoyed; but the burden of his talk was that there is nothing "personal" in his opposition to the President, who did not keep all of his platform pledges and so confirmed Al's worst fears.

Al devoted much time to a defense of himself. He wished to convince the country of his integrity as a politician.

Mr. Roosevelt did not feel obliged to defend his integrity. He preferred to dwell upon his record of achievement, a record which contains the fact that he and his fellow democrats in Washington saved their country in one of the most bitter crises of history!

Al made a sour, savage speech. He bit and he clawed and he snapped at everybody but himself. He finally gagged and said he was for poor Landon.

Roosevelt smiled and told the beautiful story of the great American struggle for life since 1929 and how a purposeful courageous government had pushed back the angry tide and calmed the people once more.

In this crisis Al lost his reputation as the Happy Warrior, while Franklin D. Roosevelt saved his country.

We believe that no future historian will write a different verdict. — Montgomery Advertiser.

J. Harrison Miller, Of Topeka, Kan., Says:

A dog's tail—if it is sensible—doesn't try to wag the dog. A cow path has no right to issue orders to Main Street. A toy pistol should be very careful about starting an argument with a howitzer. Likewise, certain noisy human beings—or small groups of them—disgruntled because of a well grounded fear of growing public sentiment against them, should think twice before making violent or thinly veiled threats as to what they are going to do in case some 42 million wage workers, six million farmers and five million struggling business and professional men, of the United States, decide to clean out some of the cockroaches which have been having things too much their own way in our scheme of national housekeeping.

The foregoing observations are prompted by certain hints, insinuations and threats, by way of press, platform and radio, from those whose outworn personal beliefs or impractical applied policies have, in the past, very nearly put our floundering ship of state on the rocks. Only a few months ago, the president of one of the nation's greedy food corporations suggested that Big Business "gang up" on "the radical element temporarily in control of government." Very recently, a vice presidential candidate said that he and his running mate—if elected—would put an end to "federal dictatorship." On the previous day, a gentleman of the cloth openly advocated "the use of bullets" if an "upstart dictator" should make ballots void.

Our advice to these men—and others of their kind—is this: Ballots or bullets, be very careful what you say about ballot boxes. And don't play with the trigger of public opinion, especially when the public isn't in a very good mood. The gun might be loaded—and you might get hurt. Granting that Main Street, in the past, has run its business improperly, it is doubtful if the sidewalks could give any worthwhile advice

The Average Man Is Better Off

William E. Clow, Jr., head of James B. Clow & Sons, Chicago manufacturers, has issued a pamphlet entitled: "A Business Man's Personal Views of the Roosevelt Administration," in which he declares that President Roosevelt's record entitles him to an overwhelming re-election.

Speaking as a business man of long experience, he says that failure of the country to re-elect Mr. Roosevelt "would be a crying act of ingratitude to a man who has given his all in a desperate situation to help the country in every conceivable way and who has succeeded so magnificently."

"Let's forget all arguments," he writes, "as to whether we should have gone off the gold-standard—as to whether the Government should have put on a relief program or not—as to whether aid should have been given to our agricultural population—as to whether the principles of NRA, such as maximum hours, minimum wages, no child labor, collective bargaining, etc., were good or bad and just ask one question and be honest about it.

"Is or is not the average man considerably better off today than he was on March 4, 1933? In other words, the average man has a somewhat increased living expense, slightly higher taxes and has assumed his small portion of the national debt, but over against this he has his wage, the value of any property he may own, returns he may be receiving from any investment, all increased more than proportionately. So that the net result is that the average man is better off today than he was on March 4, 1933.

"The real answer is that nine out of ten people are considerably better off than they were and, regardless of their political persuasion, they cannot deny it.

"Because, in the last analysis, the real job of a President is to do all possible to make the average citizen better off at the end of his term of office than he was at the beginning. And no one can doubt that the Roosevelt administration, assisted, of course, by the economic forces of the country, has accomplished just exactly this.

"Certainly, in modern times, no administration has tackled such a job or accomplished so much."

Country People Best Informed

A statement which will be surprising and thought-provoking to many readers is contained in the current Progressive Farmer: "Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen are two of America's best-informed columnists. Their syndicated 'Washington Marry-Go-Round' feature appears in leading dailies all over the country. Quite recently they conducted a poll or symposium participated in by 44,000 readers, part rural and part urban, and country people everywhere ought to be interested in the following conclusions as reached by these thoughtful investigators:—

"Men and women of all walks of life are thinking deeply about economic problems. Judging from our letters, people in rural sections are better informed than city dwellers."

"Brann did not need to be elected to the Senate to make the Republican 'victory' in Maine look like a hash from the national point of view."—Springfield, Mass., Republican.

"In his Portland speech Gov. Landon recanted entirely the professions of Liberalism made in his speech of acceptance at Topeka two months earlier. He came out at Portland for what he called 'free enterprise,' which means a return to the conditions which brought on the worst depression in history."—Brooklyn Citizen (Dem)

"Gov. Landon himself goes on the stump and bemoans the tax burden that he says awaits the next generation. He fails to mention his own noteworthy share in creating that burden."—Davenport Democrat.

"Col. Frank Knox, having apparently been assigned to produce the sound effects of the Landon campaign, has just succeeded admirably in establishing himself as a third rate scare monger."—Asbury Park Press. (Ind. Dem.)

"Supporters of Roosevelt, declares Paul Block, Hearstite publisher, should be deported to Russia. This seems to be one of the gems in the great Landon diadem."—Hollywood Citizen News (Ind.)

"The report that Herbert Hoover will stump for Gov. Landon will be glorious news to all who realize the great need for continuing Roosevelt in the Presidency."—Wheeling Register. (Ind.)

MORAL ECHOES

I was standing in front of a drug store when a man walked up in haste and inquired if we could tell him where he could find some men who were looking for work. Near us stood three men, a carpenter, a brick-mason and a plumber. They offered their services. The man looked them over and said: "You men are builders and you are high-priced workmen. I want to tear down an old house and I am looking for cheap labor." This man was not looking for builders, cheap labor could tear down. Do you not see that I am saying to you that progressive men, constructive men, men who build are worth something to the world, and that cheap men, men who tear down are not worth much to society, neither are they worth much in the market of the world. Any one can tear down but it takes a real man—one who is worth something on the market to build.

The gardener was showing us through his flowers and while passing along I saw a fine carnation plant and hog weed growing side by side. Silently I heard the weed boasting: "I am a weed and it is such fun to grow beside this beautiful flower. It is enriched with fertilizer and cultivated by the gardener and if I am left to grow where I am, I will steal all of its strength and grow strong, while the flower will dwarf and die." Just then the gardener saw the hog weed and stooped to snatch it from the location by the carnation. Young man, young woman, how many bad habits are growing in the soil of your soul? If you are drinking, cursing, if you are keeping late hours, that bad habit is laughing in your face, boasting that if you will just let it grow along with you, it will soon dwarf your spirit and blight your life. Better stop right now and snatch that habit from the growing flower of your youth. As a hog weed will ruin a carnation, so will a bad habit ruin your life.

My neighbor had a beautiful garden and lawn. On every side there were signs "Keep Out." No one was ever seen to stop and admire the garden that was so beautiful. Down the street was another beautiful garden and on all sides was to be seen this sign, "Visitors are Welcome." All hours of the day men and women could be seen strolling around looking and admiring, not only the flowers but enjoying the fine spirit of the one who owned the grounds. Men and women have "Keep Out" signs posted around the garden of their souls. Such people perish in the midst of the love and admiration of mankind. When we open wide the gate of life and welcome men and women to come in and partake of the blessings of life with us, we multiply our own happiness and make happy the world about us. Take down the selfish sign "Keep Out" and share your life with others about you.

I have never thought it beneath my dignity to learn a lesson from old Tom, our house cat. Late one afternoon I saw old Tom as he leaped and plumed about at the corner of the crib. He was trying to catch a rat that had ventured out at dusk, but the rat made his getaway under some rails at the side of the building. Tom was the loser in the first skirmish but he was not discouraged. He crouched on the ground and waited. An hour later I walked out to see and old Tom was still waiting. The next morning there was a big rat under the kitchen stove and the old cat came rubbing himself against me in great satisfaction. Boy that I was I knew that Tom had exercised patience and some time in the night hours his rat had ventured out again. Unlike old Tom most of us are without patience to be still and wait.

YOU'D DEMAND CONCRETE!

"AFTER you've spent years trying to keep so-called 'low-cost' roads in passable condition, it's a relief to get assigned to a stretch of concrete. Concrete is easy to maintain—saves the taxpayers real money."

Real money is right! Concrete roads cost $114 to $469 per mile per year less for surface maintenance than other pavements. Less to build than any other road of equal load carrying capacity. Less to drive on than lower type pavements.

Friends Pay Rich Tribute To Oliver As End Of Long Service In Congress Nears

300 Present At Banquet Honoring Veteran Lawmaker

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—Speaking with the eloquence born of a great occasion, the people of the Sixth Congressional District last night testified to their devotion, admiration and appreciation for Congressman William B. (Buck) Oliver now concluding his 22nd year as representative of this district in Washington. More than 300 persons, including representatives from all eight coun-

WILLIAM B. (BUCK) OLIVER

From The President
THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON
Hyde Park, New York
September 24, 1936

Mr. W. D. Partlow, Jr.
Tuscaloosa, Alabama.
My Dear Mr. Partlow:

It gives me great pleasure to join with those who are planning a testimonial in honor of Congressman Oliver's long service in the House of Representatives. The country is fortunate when it can command for more than a score of years the devoted services of a public servant who like Mr. Oliver combines ripe scholarship with strict integrity and staunch patriotism.

I send him and all who gather with him my hearty felicitations. Very sincerely yours,

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

ties in this district and from the state at large, gathered in Tutwiler Hall dining room at the University for the momentous affair.

Following a series of expressions by more than a score of those present, climaxed by a thrilling tribute from President George H. Denny of the University, Mr. Oliver responded with a vigorous and appreciative address in which he disclaimed the right to accept such praise. In concluding his remarks Mr. Oliver paid tribute to President Roosevelt, to other men who have served with him in the Alabama delegation and to the people of this district for their cooperation and understanding shown during his years as congressman.

Mrs. Foscoe Also Honored

The entire audience of more than 300 rose to their feet and cheered as Mr. Oliver was introduced by Bruce Shelton, the toastmaster, who said, "We are here because we love you." Another burst of applause came as the congressman's first words were, "I would like to have Miss Ruth come to sit beside me as I speak." Mrs. Ruth Foscoe, personal secretary to Mr. Oliver for a number of years, came forward to sit at his left. Mrs. Foscoe was frequently praised by those who spoke of Mr. Oliver, and the congressman himself said "without her" and "one whom I call Louise" (Mrs. Louise McClellan) also a member of Mr. Oliver's office staff. "I could have done nothing."

Appearing in vigorous health, Mr. Oliver referred to the illness which afflicted him in January, 1935, as something of which he had no regrets. He said that during his illness he saw a new vision and that he believed "the man in the White House today, who went through a greater affliction than I surely received some of his inspiration for his great deeds during those hours of his illness."

Mr. Oliver gave a word of counsel to two newly elected congressmen, Pete B. Jarman, who will succeed him, and Luther Patrick, chosen from the Ninth District, who were present for the banquet. He told them to cooperate with the other fine gentlemen in the Alabama delegation and to "call upon me at any time that I can be of service."

The veteran congressman said he could not express in full his true feelings of appreciation for the wonderful reception, and for the "far too kind words" spoken of him.

Legitimate twins of a major economic tragedy—unemployment—government spending and relief constitute the principal issues in the current political campaign. Unless and until this matter of unemployment has been settled by giving men permanent jobs at useful, creative work in their former places of employment, and regardless of what political party is in power, government spending and relief is going to continue because there is no other way. And somebody—the rich, the poor, or both—is going to pay the bill. The government, captains of industry, employed and idle workers would better recognize this simple fact as soon as possible.

Official figures show that of every thousand idle men, 444 came out of our basic industries: mining, manufacturing, transportation, etc. Until these 444 men go back to work, there will be no jobs for the other 556 who, normally, would find work in transporting, distributing and fabricating the products of the first group. Imagine, for instance, the construction of a large building requiring, all told, the labor of a thousand men. First of all, 444 men must produce the materials that go into it. That makes jobs for the other 556 who would transport the materials and put up the structure. But the 444 men must go to work first.

The government doesn't own, and has little control, over what is now private industry. That is the fly in the

Ford Used Car Sales Are Success

Opening day crowds yesterday in this and other cities of the United States indicate unusual success in the nation-wide Ford Dealers' Used-Car Clearance Sale being conducted throughout the country T. J. Littlejohn, head of the Clanton Motors, announced today. The sale will continue throughout October.

"Special bargains in used cars drew crowds to our display throughout the day," Mr. Littlejohn reported. "Our unusual display, coupled with the fact that this sale is part of a nation-wide Ford dealer movement, brought us greatly increased business. Scores of persons who have been planning to buy a better car for winter driving apparently are taking advantage of this nation-wide sale."

"We were very much gratified at the number of sales which were closed during the day, particularly because of the ready acceptance of our cars and trucks appeared to have with the public."

15 BRIDGES IN ALABAMA SEE TOLLS AT LAST DIE

Still Far From Goal, Graves Says In Calling For Complete System Of Highways

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 29.—Marked by simultaneous celebrations at every span, Alabama's 15 state toll bridges were officially freed today by proclamation of Governor Bibb Graves.

Speaking over a state wide radio hookup from his office at the state capitol, Governor Graves declared that the "happy moment" had arrived for the lifting of the tolls from the 15 bridges built in 1929 and 1930.

"We are still far from our goal," Governor Graves said. "We must complete our through highways, not only for the benefit of ourselves but in order to induce others to come here on their tours."

The chief executive declared that the state was ready to go forward with a new $5,000,000 highway building program now that the spans were freed, and he forecast a new era of prosperity for the state.

"Prosperity is no longer something around a far and dark corner," he said, "but prosperity is a shining reality on every front."

He was followed on the statewide radio program by Speaker William B. Bankhead of Congress, who spoke from the John H. Bankhead Bridge at Riverside, a span named for his late father.

Declaring that "there is nothing in the world a man just naturally resents more than a toll bridge," Speaker Bankhead congratulated Governor Graves, State Highway Director Gaston Scott and State Senator W. T. Starnes of Pell City, author of the "free toll bridge" act of 1935, for this "happy deliverance."

President Proposes Fair Treatment Of News To Promote Clear Thinking During Campaigns

In a radio address from Hyde Park to the New York Herald Tribune Forum on Current Topics, President Roosevelt commended the Forum idea, since "anything that makes for tolerance of opinion and contributes to the general education of our people in the issues of governmental policy is of vast value."

He then followed with rather pointed observations on the freedom and fairness of the press:

"It is natural, I suppose, in a campaign year, for advocates and adversaries of any policy or process of government to relapse into exaggeration and invective, and so beloud the controversy as to make it possible for the future of the country to be determined in rancor and temper instead of by calm deliberation and clear thinking."

"I don't know that there is any actual remedy for this state of affairs. But I believe that it is within the power and province of the press to make whatever improvement is possible. I do not think that anybody objects to a statements of opinion or an argument, either pro or con, being put forth in the editorial pages provided the editorials do not contain misstatements of fact."

"That, unless I entirely misunderstand newspaper psychology, is what the newspaper editorial columns are for."

"I do not believe—and I do not think any disagreement is possible on this subject—that a journal's news columns ought to be tampered with, either by coloring news or by leaving out news. The news is the commodity that is marketed to the whole people."

"In the welter of passion, which is apparently still inseparable from our political campaigns, you and I hear about the liberty of the press—regimentation of the press by the government."

"It is doubtful if the United States ever had an administration since the days when Washington was accused of despotism and aspirations to kingship that had the slightest desire to muzzle anybody. The unchecked virulence of assaults on almost every administration since the beginning of our history in itself is best proof of that statement."

"The time may come when the policies of the nation will be determined with a serenity and logic that any serious business problem is decided among the directors of the business, but I must reluctantly confess that we have not reached that day."

His Mistake: He Moved To Town

It would be hard to find a subject with more human interest than one for which The Progressive Farmer recently offered prizes. "My Biggest Mistake in 1935." We reproduce the letter which was awarded the second prize:

"Three years ago I bought a small farm, intending some day to move to it. Two years ago I was laid off my job and my first thought was to move to our farm and cut out some of our expenses. I will admit it was tough going for a while, getting adjusted to living away from town, but the school bus came right by the house, there was a church close to us, and we bought a second-hand car. I got a job nearby and my son did the farming, and did pretty well."

"But in the fall of 1935 I began to think I could do a little better in town, so I rented out the place and moved back to town. After two years of living in the country where in the late afternoons I could hear the cowbells ringing as cows were coming up for the night, the whippoorwills beginning to sing, and the end of the day was quiet and peaceful, I found myself with all the noise of the city about me at night—paying rent, buying wood and coal, buying milk and butter and eggs. Our living expenses have just about doubled, and I believe I can truthfully say our biggest mistake in 1935 was moving from our farm back to town. Providence permitting, it is a mistake I am going to rectify in another twelve or fifteen months."

THE following table will give you a picture of the extent to which rural electric service was widened by Alabama Power Company even during the depression years:

*The number of rural lines includes those originally constructed as rural lines, but later changed to urban.

From the above it will be seen that there has never been a serious let-up in the construction of rural lines by Alabama Power Company, although in the depth of the depression, due to shrinkage of the amount of money available for the extension of electric service and, likewise, the hesitation of prospective customers to purchase electrical equipment for their homes and farms, there was some slowing up—as in the expansion of practically every other business.

Within the past two or three years the Federal Government has become interested in Rural Electrification as a part of the Recovery Program and in the interest of providing electric service to more farms. The Government's rural electrification activities have been conducted by the CWA, FERA and the Federal Rural Electrification Administration.

CHAPTER IV

Federal and State Agencies Express Appreciation for Alabama Power Co-operation

In 1934 the Company co-operated with the CWA in making surveys of several counties in Alabama, by furnishing maps of the counties, showing the Company's lines, surveys of prospective lines, and information pertaining to the Company's rural customers in those counties. Representatives of the Company assisted in every way possible in making the surveys.

Early in 1935, the Alabama Relief Administration started a statewide Rural Electrification survey. At its request the Company co-operated by furnishing maps showing the Company's lines in every county in which it operates, and by furnishing lists of more than 2,000 miles of prospective rural lines of which the Company had made surveys to study the possibility of serving. The Company's Agricultural Engineers and other employees co-operated in this work.

Subsequently the Federal Rural Electrification Administration was organized, and shortly thereafter the Alabama Rural Electrification Authority, with Mr. Gordon Persons, of Montgomery, as its head. In April of 1935 the Company submitted to the State Rural Electrification Authority, at the request of the Persons, a list of completed surveys of prospective rural projects, consisting of 181 projects in 51 counties to extend 849 miles, expected to serve 30,000 prospective customers, and involving an estimated construction cost of nearly one and half million dollars. This was done at a meeting where, among others, a TVA representative was present.

The Company later in the year co-operated further with the Relief Administration by engineering persons from the relief camps to do such work as they were capable of doing, in its construction of additional rural lines.

Numerous conferences were held with State and Federal Rural Electrification representatives. At all times Alabama Power Company furnished all information that was requested of it, and expressed its sincere desire to co-operate with any agency in a further expansion of electric service to the rural and farm citizens of the State.

In the meantime the Company's rural line construction was increasing, due to increased requests for service, and on September 4th, 1935, the Company approved for construction a new rural line throughout the State with a total of 850 miles of line. Such list was carried in news items of many of the newspapers of the State. The papers received numerous expressions of appreciation for its progressive policy in this respect from the Alabama Public Service Commission, the State Rural Electrification Authority and officials of the Federal Rural Electrification Administration.

IN THE MEANTIME WHAT HAPPENED?

These startling facts will be related in our next advertisement to be published in this newspaper at an early date—Adv. Alabama Power Company.

This advertisement is the second of a series which has already been printed in booklet form. T. W. Martin, President of Alabama Power Company, Birmingham, will cheerfully send a copy to any interested person requesting it.

Mr. Hill brought out in no uncertain terms and facts, the many outstanding things the President has accomplished for the benefit of the people of the United States.

He held his audience with his statements of figures showing that the present Democratic Administration had really built up the United States government to a new level from a depth that was bringing despair to the American people.

His address opened the Democratic campaign in this county.

THE FIRST CONGRESS

The first United States Congress was to open on March 4, 1789, but on that day only 21 members were present, eight Senators and 13 Representatives, not a quorum for either house.

Day after day, week after week, the members present met in Federal Hall, which had been fitted up for their accommodation. But it was not until the first day of April that any business could be transacted, because a quorum was lacking. On that day, 30 members of the House having answered to their names, the body was organized and General Frederick Muhlenberg was chosen speaker.

The Senate did not get down to business until April 5, when a quorum was finally mustered. A temporary presiding officer, whose sole duty it was to open and close the electoral votes, was elected. George Washington had the vote of every elector, which was generally known beforehand, for President.

The second votes of electors were widely scattered, John Adams was elected Vice-president, although he did not get a majority of the whole number of electors appointed. It was two weeks before General Washington could be appraised of his election and reach the seat of government.

It is difficult to realize in this day when the Senators and Representatives arrive by airplane, train and motor, what an achievement a journey to the capital was in the days of the first United States Congress.

WITH YOUR HOME Demonstration Agent CONDUCTED BY MISS META GRACE

Miss Meta E. Grace, Home Demonstration Agent has made a study of Chilton County locating places, clubs, towns, roads, churches and schools. Fourteen clubs have been visited with one hundred and twenty-three women present. Eighteen result meetings have been held with forty-nine present. Twenty press articles have been written by club secretaries and the Home Demonstration Agent in relation to the work. Seventeen talks have been made including the club introductory talks by the Home Agent and the address given at Teachers Institute and at County Council of Workers which has been newly organized, and including the address of County Council and Leadership school. Seven circular letters have been written and five hundred and seventy-eight copies sent to people of the county. These letters were mimeographed. The first letter was announcing the arrival of the new agent and her plans to carry out the former agent's itinerary and the purpose of the meetings during the month. Two of which were groups of songs, one a double copy of parliamentary rules and regulations of clubs for 1936-37. A special letter was sent to new secretaries forwarding secretary books and explaining the importance of their keeping complete records throughout the entire year.

Major Projects

Method demonstrations were given on "Parliamentary Rules" at opening of each of the Home Demonstration Clubs in the county followed by business meetings and re-organization of clubs. Plans for the new year's club work was discussed including their major project. Community activities, methods of making money and the importance of increasing the attendance for the new year was stressed.

Home Conferences

Home conferences were made to get acquainted with the leading people of the county. Thirty conferences have been held, both business and social making plans with each other and getting acquainted and getting an understanding of what is expected of each other during the year. Fifty-one calls have been made at the office by club people and business people contacting Home Agent.

Leadership Meeting

On Wednesday, September 30, 1936, was held the leadership meeting. All clubs had been organized and quite a surprise developed in that each Home Demonstration Club's leaders were present with sixty women in attendance. The meeting was called to order by the former Council chairman, Mrs. W. A. Adams, followed by singing and prayer. Mrs. Adams then introduced Miss Bertha Dennis, former Home Economics graduate of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, assisted Miss Grace with the demonstrations. Mrs. Olive Welch, Miss Lena Downs and Mrs. Horace Popwell served as committee in decorating tables in details throughout the day. It is believed the meeting was a lovely success.

County Council Meets

The County Council of Home Demonstration Clubs met and elected new officers for the year and settled the questions of county-wide importance. It was decided by the Council that they hold their county-wide rally, which had been postponed, due to the paralysis, by the former agent, the latter part of October and at which time Leadership certificates shall be awarded and the prizes awarded which had been worked for during the past year. Parliamentary rules were discussed and year books were planned. The County Council officers elected were:

President---Mrs. Anna Phalin.
Vice President---Mrs. Tom Littlejohn
Second Vice President---Mrs. A. T. Ryan.

Secretary---Miss Lena Downs.

Treasurer---Mrs. Charles Howard.

Average Salary Of Rural School Teachers In Gov. Landon's Home County $25 A Month

When Leslie Doud, president of the Kansas branch of Labor's Non-partisan League, was in Washington representing Kansas at the national meeting of the League he made a report on conditions in Kansas under Gov. Landon to Maj. George L. Berry, president of the League. Some excerpts from Dr. Doud's report are:

"The Landon administration in Kansas is controlled and dominated by two outstanding interests---the school book trust and the light and power trust. The light and power trust reaches into other business groups and is the direct alliance between Landon and the 'big business' of Kansas.

"Dean Ackers, general manager of the Kansas Power and Light Company, is president of the state Chamber of Commerce, and the direct link between the United States Chamber of Commerce and the Landon state administration. Landon selected Ackers to head the Kansas Emergency Relief Administration, and through him has been exercised a control over the expenditure of all relief funds in Kansas. Thus, Landon has had his finger right in the expenditure of the federal government's money in Kansas, without which today Kansas would be in the most desperate plight it has ever known since the days of sockless Jerry Simpson.

"During the Landon administration there has not been a single piece of legislation put upon the statute books which can be pointed to today as progressive.

"The Republican state platform of 1934, upon which Gov. Landon ran for re-election, contains a labor plank with six clauses, upon which the party pledged itself to enact enabling legislation in the next two years. Not one of those clauses has been enacted. Not one pledge to labor has been carried out.

Kansas still clings to the little red school house, and that little red school house is falling to pieces. Other states have their enlarged rural graded schools situated in the center of areas served by the school buses, and taking rank with the best of the school of municipalities. On all of the plains and hills of rural Kansas no such school is to be found, and not one of its magnificent concrete highways, on which $28,000,000 of Federal and state money has been spent in the last 12 months, carried a school bus. There are no school buses in Kansas.

"Other states have a minimum salary law for school teachers. Kansas has no such law, and its average salary for a school teacher in its rural schools is $37.79 a month. That is the average; there are school teachers in Kansas who are paid $25 a month, and Montgomery County, the home county of Alfred M. Landon, is one where the minimum is $25 a month.

"Four times the legislature, Republican and controlled by Landon, has been in regular or special session during the Landon administration, and not one single act has been passed or other move made for the state to the assistance of its school system.

"Many states provide free school books for children, but not so in Kansas. The state prints its own school books. But there is a heavy royalty paid allegedly to the owners of copyrights, so that if the state prints these books at approximately 40 per cent less cost than they can be turned out in a commercial shop, it sells them to school children at from 25 to 40 per cent higher than the same books sell for in other states.

"The allegation is that the state is in the grip of a ring of school book representatives, who are splitting the royalty fees. The school book trust of the state is in politics, and directly tied in with the Republican machine.

Landon has proclaimed at various times that he favors the child labor amendment. He has been in full control of his legislature since he has been governor, and the legislature has done everything that he wanted done. But four sessions of this legislature during his term of office have failed to take action on this amendment." not1518CT1 should

HAVE DONE?" "WHAT WOULD I

me plan this thing that put me and my family back on our feet. Mr. Walter Allen also assisted me in every way he could.

"After I was able to accumulate this amount during last year, we started off in 1936 with the two yearlings the government let me have and with plenty to feed them on. I made five bales of cotton this year, a ton of peas, 80 gallons of syrup, about 75 bushels of sweet potatoes, plenty of beans to feed my stock on during the winter and 300 bushels of corn. Of course this is an estimate made by our county agent.

"I bought, with the money I made from my cotton, a milk cow, twelve head of hogs and twenty-five chickens. I have paid back every cent I borrowed from the government and now I don't owe anything and have plenty to eat and wear. We did this all in almost two years, starting with nothing and with the help of our government."

When asked what he thought about President Roosevelt, Mr. Fuller appeared so full of gratitude for the things done to help him support his wife and seven children, he had difficulty in finding words to express his appreciation. He did say, however, in no uncertain terms that "I hope they let Mr. Roosevelt stay as President. He has done more for such fellows as me than any man I have ever heard about. I do not know what would have become of me and my family if it had not been for the feeling for us poor farmers that our President has. He needs more time to finish the job he has done so well with and I'm for him one hundred per cent."

This is only one case of this kind. There are many others in Chilton County, hundreds in the state. And every one of them composed of human beings---men with wives and children just like you and yours---and mine. No race color or creed stopped our Democratic President in aiding those people who had been pushed, even stamped into a rut with no hopes of ever rising again. Mr. Fuller now resides on Jemison, Ala., Rte. 1, in the Macedonia community. He was in Clanton last Saturday and came to the News office to tell this story.

At About You.

have been particularly interesting stories of what the Democratic Deal has meant to people of this county. The story in the News last week about J. L. Fuller, seemed to have set the heart strings of several local citizens. And, we want to take opportunity to express our thanks for the many statements we have received regarding these. Again this week, your News has to you more stories of what has occurred in the lives of farmers in this county since the years of 1930 and 1931. And, may we re-ur our readers that these statements coming voluntarily to the News and taken from the words of the participants.

Time In Store

looks as if members of the League of Young Democrats have in store for something of interest and rather importance. We note that a big convention is to be held in Montgomey on October 23rd and that all Democrats of Chilton County are invited. It would seem that this county appear extremely interested if we should have a good representation there. Already, several voters have made their reservations.

To See Us

at seems like a rather slight in-crease, but we mean it. By the time we are reading your News this week, the office and plant of the News will be on its way to the new two-building especially constructed for us. We are awfully proud of our new office and we want to appeal to our customers to be a little patient with us while we are in the process of moving. It is no easy job to move the heavy machinery that turns over News each week, and right now we can't forget that there is a large amount of expense attached to moving business. Nevertheless, we look 'em up' in our new building, and still the same bunch of boys have been getting out their papers and want you to come to see us next week and look over our new plant.

Governor Is Coming

have learned through reliable sources that Hon. Bibb Graves, governor of Alabama, is coming to Clanton to visit this month. It is very often that Chilton County is honored by the Governor of our State, but when Gov. Graves arrives on the night of October 28th, even more people possibly can be expected to welcome him. He expects to be here sometime and we want to tell on every young Democratic and Republican voter to come to see the Governor and hear what he has to say.

Grammar School Will Have Fiddlers Contest

al, old-fashioned fiddlers conven-tion will be held at the grammar school on the night of October 23rd, according to Prof. U. H. Abrams, the genial principal of the school. The program is at seven-thirty.

entrants are requested to send in names to the principal im-mediate. Valuable prizes are to be awarded winners. Don't miss this opportunity and pleasure.

AFTER THIS ISSUE

as soon as this issue of the News comes off the press, we will get the tedious job of moving our office and plant to our new and modern home, located just two miles north of the old place, on Highway 1, in the only two story building in that section.

will endeavor to move so that machines will not be tied up for a day or so to enable us to take of any printing orders that may come in this week end.

issue of the News is the last published in our old home. We have been located for six years. You will be proud of the home of the News. Just as soon as we get straightened out this week, we want you to come to see us and view the entire new plant which is erected especially for the News.

"And My Family Suffered"

More True Stories Of What President Roosevelt And A Democratic Government Has Meant To This County

"My family suffered. It was hard enough to feed us all." That is a statement made by A. L. Lewis, who resides in the Antioch community near Fletcher, and one of the fine citizens of this county who found that the years of 1929 to 1933 were tough going.

"And I think that the people of the United States ought to keep President Roosevelt and his Democratic administration in office all the time. He has done more for us farmers and working men than any other president I can remember," Mr. Lewis continued. But here is his story:

"Back in 1929 I lost two of my children, which was a big blow to me and my wife. Then on top of that, with all the expense, the depression came along and I had lost everything I had. My wife and three children were doing the best they could. We hoped that something could be done knowing that other families were in almost as bad shape, if not worse.

"I began to do the best I could, but my family was suffering and I knew it. I was suffering too. Work was scarce and we even had to go lacking for food at times. I am not ashamed of that, because I knew that some people were actually starving to death during what was called the "Hoover Prosperity."

"In the Fall of 1931 I got a job on the RFC, which helped out some, and still had a hard time getting along. 1933 was still worse and I prayed that this man Roosevelt would be elected to help us—and everybody else.

"In 1933 after he was elected and the Democrats took things over, I made a crop on halves, and was able to pay what I owed. I also had twenty bushels of corn, a hog and some other things left and began to feel better. My wife and children were happier. I worked on the CWA and bought us some good clothes.

"I made application to the Resettlement Administration in 1934 for a loan and with the help of Marvin Durbin, who has charge of this county, rented a farm. And, in 1935 I rented another farm with the help of the government. In May of that year a new (Continued to Back Page)

NINE MILES TO BE ADDED TO CHILTON SIDE

Cox Brings News Back After Visiting Heads Of Departments

COMPLETE PAVING OF ROAD INTO SELMA

Representative C. B. Cox returned to Clanton Tuesday with a very interesting report regarding the work on the Selma highway from Clanton. Mr. Cox stated that he had just visited the offices of the Works Progress Administration where he was advised they were ready to complete the paving of the road to the Dallas County line.

He then visited the office of the State Highway Department where he received the same information. Mr. Cox advised the News Tuesday night that this will take in the additional nine miles of road from the bridge just beyond Maplesville on to the county line. Dallas County has already completed its part of the road.

Before this announcement was made plans were already underway to pave the road to the bridge beyond Maplesville, including both routes through the town. Residents of Chilton County will be delighted to learn of this new program which will give a good hard surfaced highway from Clanton to Selma and vice versa, opening another important trunk highway through the state. Mr. Cox stated that he understood the work would go right on after the completion of the first project.

In this issue of the News appears the first of a series of advertisements from the Gulf Refining Corporation regarding the outstanding qualities of their gasoline and motor oils.

According to W. L. Sims, local distributor for the popular Gulf products, this campaign of advertising is of interest to all automobile owners of this section.

Now that cool weather, even cold weather, is setting in for this part of the state, the messages contained in these advertisements from Gulf will bring information to automobile owners to aid them in caring for the motors in the cars during the trying winter months.

Turn through the News this week and find the large advertisement from Gulf and follow each one of these messages for the next several weeks. The service stations handling Gulf products in this section are extremely anxious to serve motorists and those driving into these stations are always greeted with spontaneous service that pleases even the most discriminating motorists.

Landon Loses Birthplace Poll

(By Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance)

West Middlesex, Pa., Oct. 3.—Governor Landon, born here 48 years ago, and who returned here last month to open his campaign as the Republican candidate for President, was up for "election" before his former neighbors and their children.

It was a straw poll among the students and faculty of Sharon High School, at Sharon, three miles from here. The results:

Landon 198; Roosevelt, 1,009; Lemke 47; Norman Thomas 50; Earl Browder 3.

Principal C. H. Jones hastily added that the vote had no political significance.

PISTOL OWNERS MUST SECURE NEW LICENSE

Guns Must Be Given Registration At Office Of Sheriff Here

On October 1st of this year, the uniform arms act known perhaps as the "pistol testing act" which was passed at the last session of the Legislature, went into full force, according to Sheriff J. R. Hardy.

Sheriff Hardy stated that he did not believe everyone was familiar with this new law and desired to give it some publicity.

After the first of this month, no person will be permitted to carry a pistol in any vehicle or concealed on or about his person, except in his place of abode or fixed place of business, unless he has a license to do so. And, no person who has been convicted of a crime of violence will be permitted a license, the law sets out.

The licenses can be applied for at the sheriff's office and sufficient reason given why the applicant should be allowed to carry a pistol about his person, or her person, etc. No person will be allowed to deliver a pistol to another person under the age of 18 years.

Forms for making application for this are at the office of Sheriff Hardy now, and he urges those who might carry pistols in their cars, to attend to this matter at once as this law must be enforced. There is a fee of fifty cents for these licenses, which goes to the state.

Little 15-Year-Old Girl's Heart Cries Out For Roosevelt And She Plows, Too

Clanton, Alabama
Route No. 5

Dear Editor and Readers:

May I have a little space in your paper in behalf of President Roosevelt. People are raging about getting another president. It is strange to me that any one Democrat or Republican would want to change. He has done more for the people in two years of his term than President Hoover did in all of his term.

Now listen, farmers, why do you want to change presidents? Some people say that for fifty cents a sack—that is so, but where were we farmers to get the fifty cents? My father can get one dollar now better than he could get fifty cents then. He is a one-legged man and he had two good legs in most of Hoover's term, so you see what

GAS STATIONS COLLECT BIG SUM IN TAXES

Average Station Brought In More Than $4,000 In Gas Taxes

In a statement issued today by W. E. Huddleston, chairman, Chilton County Petroleum Industries Council, it was pointed out that taxes collected by Alabama service stations in 1935 from their customers amounted to a sum equaling 67.13 per cent of the dollar volume of business transacted by them, according to a preliminary business census report issued by the U. S. Bureau of the Census.

Total business transacted by the stations is given as $20,678,000 against $13,930,100 of taxes collected. The latter figure is made up of $10,269,000 of State gasoline sales taxes and $3,661,100 of federal gasoline and lubricating oil taxes. To this is added approximately $1,652,000 in local city and county gasoline taxes, and the State lubricating oil (Continued to Back Page)

Chilton Has 2,269 Increase Over 1935

There were 12,163 bales of cotton, counting round as half bales, ginned in Chilton County from the crop of 1935 prior to October 1st, as compared with 8,894 bales ginned to October 1st, 1935. This shows an increase of 2,269 bales this year over last year in this county.

ADULT MEMBERS METHODIST CHURCH HAVE TREAT COMING

The News has been requested to announce that a great meeting for all adult members of the Clanton Methodist Church has been called for Friday night, October 23rd. The program begins at seven o'clock and will be full of interesting numbers and recreation. Refreshments will be served.

Roosevelt has done for one family.

I am a girl and have plowed lots this year and am willing to plow next year if we get Roosevelt for the next term, but if you voters put in Landon I don't know if I will have the heart to plow or not. We have made five bales of cotton; enough corn to do us, I think; potatoes, peas, and other things to do us. We came out of debt this year, something we never did in Hoover's administration.

So I sure do think we should keep Roosevelt for the next term anyway.

So please, voters, think about it, and see if he hasn't helped you. If you feel he has go to town and discuss about voting for President Roosevelt and see if you don't get up feeling better the next morning.

—A Fifteen-Year-Old Girl,
MARTHA HILYER.

Great Newspaper For Roosevelt

In announcing its support of President Roosevelt for re-election, the New York Times indirectly emphasizes the highest function of the honest, patriotic and soundly-conducted newspaper when it specifically reserved the right to criticize administrative measures which it could not approve. Too many newspapers place their devotion to party above their devotion to the national well-being and thereby become mere party organs of doubtful value, whereas by being honest with their party and with their readers they could be of greater use to both.—Tuscaloosa News.

We Have A Sense Of Humor

It is singularly fortunate for former President Hoover and Col. Frank Knox that the American people possess a sense of humor and that the wise recovery program of President Roosevelt included Federal insurance of bank deposits. With these dependable safeguards there can be no ill effects from the fulminations of these GOP leaders against the credit of the people and their government at Washington.

In introducing Chairman John D.M. Hamilton of the Republican National Committee to Californians as "one who drives home the facts and their inexorable consequences to the people," the Seer of Palo Alto declared: "We are forced to a precipice by reckless monetary and credit policies which jeopardize your savings."

Almost at that moment, Col. Knox, addressing what the Hearst press described as "a vast mountain horde" in Huntingdon, West Virginia, delivered this charge: "The reckless and cruelly expensive experiments of this National Administration undermine both credit and currency."

Yet there was no serious consequence discernable: no chaos on the Pacific Coast; not a bank run reported anywhere in the country. On the contrary, quotations of all issues of United States Government bonds on the New York Stock Exchange continued to climb to an all-time highs. Quite evidently the people are content in the knowledge that their bank deposits up to $5,000 each are secure from ALL harm.

But under the Hoover administration such unrestrained reflection upon credit and banks was unthinkable. As early as December, 1930, Mr. Hoover admonished the Democrats, who had gained a majority in the House of Representatives, not to criticize the country's finances. He implored them not to insert in the Congressional Record a list of enormous tax refunds made by the Treasury under the Mellon management to corporations and individuals who were shown to be heavy contributors to the Republican campaign fund.

And on February 6, 1932, Mr. Hoover named this same Col. Knox to head a nation-wide drive to stop hoarding and "restore the confidence of the people" in their banking system. Col. Knox advocated "free spending," yet on May 29, 1932, the colonel excoriated the Democratic House for attempting to secure President Hoover's approval of a relief bill carrying $2,100,000,000. This, he warned, was contrary to the spirit of his appeal for spending; "the result," he said, "would be ruinous."

More than three billions of deposits were involved in the 6,000 bank failures under President Hoover. Yet the former accuses President Roosevelt of "jeopardizing savings" and the latter denounces him for "cruelly undermining both credit and currency."

In some states it is a criminal offense to spread rumors about the solvency of a bank. What shall be said of prominent political figures who retail false stories against the credit of the government and seek to make the public panicky about their savings?

Banker Giannini Lauds
Roosevelt Achievements

In a recent interview with the San Francisco News, A. P. Giannini, noted financier and founder of Bank of America, insisted that with times getting better and with every prospect of real and continued prosperity, "it is absurd to ask the people to turn from President Roosevelt and put into office an unknown and comparatively inexperienced man."

"I say to business: 'Stop and consider before going on with this anti-Roosevelt campaign!' he declared.

"It would be worthwhile to take inventory and compare conditions as they were at the time Mr. Hoover left office with times as they are today. Can there be any better argument for the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt?

"I know business is complaining against higher taxes. Let us analyze the high cost of government. Recovery costs money.

"When Mr. Roosevelt took office the country was in collapse. He had to do things in a hurry. He had to build up the morale of the people and dissipate fear.

"Certainly the debt of the nation has increased. Let's say that $11,000,000,000 has been spent in restoring confidence and bettering conditions. Of this, $5,000,000,000 will come back from the RFC and Home Owners' Loan Corporation. $2,000,000,000 will be paid back out of the stabilization fund.

"That leaves the total cost of unemployment relief and depression around $4,000,000,000.

"What does a $6,000,000,000 or $7,000,000,000 increase in indebtedness mean in the light of the fact that the nation's national income has been raised from $38,000,000,000 to $65,000,000,000? How can anyone say it is excessive? We gave away much more than that to European countries after the war. Mr. Hoover increased the debt by $6,000,000,000 and what did he do with the money?

"I find unemployment decreasing throughout the country. More work is available. Compare that with the days when farmers were making demands and stopping trucks along our highways. I remember when we had 15,000,000 people out of work. Now I get reports from some of our localities that it is difficult to find workers to fill jobs. It makes me ask: what is behind this attack on the Roosevelt Administration? Billions have been spent by the administration with less scandal than has marked the administration of many of our own small communities.

"I am confident that as things get better—the phrase if things get better is really no longer necessary—President Roosevelt will tighten up on expenditures. The lowering of the cost of government and the natural increase in revenues resulting from better conditions will soon bring back the times when our national budget was in balance and when we were able to cut down the outstanding debt.

"Give Mr. Roosevelt four more years—and he'll leave the office with a record that will stamp him as the greatest man of our time."

Democrats Gain A Million In California Registration

Even as Messrs. Herbert Hoover and John D. M. Hamilton, the chairman of the Republican National Committee, were continuing their conferences on campaign strategy in California, the Republican Secretary of State announced that the total registration for the August 25 primary in California showed a Democratic majority of 584,478 over the Republicans. The totals were announced as follows: Democratic, 1,783,028; Republican, 1,198,550; declined to state, 96,116; Prohibition, 6,651; Socialist, 6,098; Communist, 1,095.

Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan's report was even more distasteful to the GOP conferees at Palo Alto. It showed that there was a gain for the Democrats of 60,970 in the supplementary registration over the Democratic majority in May. Also that the present Democratic majority is exactly 120,000 more than the Republican majority of 464,000 in the registration of 1932, representing a gain for the Democrats in four years of more than a million.

"Gov. Landon at Buffalo said that the Roosevelt Revenue Act of 1936 'puts business on a hand to mouth existence,' that it 'slackens trade, reduces employment and invites bankruptcy.' The exact opposite of all these things is happening right now."—Chicago Times, (Ind.)

THE SALEM WITCHES PARADE
IF, IN 1889, you had read in the papers this headline: "Salem Witches to Parade for Harrison Tonight," you would probably have rubbed your eyes to make sure that you weren't seeing double and mixing up Seventeenth and Nineteenth century history into an amazing anachronism. But the fact is that the Salem Witches did march for Harrison in 1889 and for the next 26 years they were a striking feature of many a campaign torchlight procession in Massachusetts and other states.

The Salem Witches were members of three militia units who dressed up in a uniform consisting of a Mother Hubbard dress with a white yoke on which was displayed pictures of Harrison and Morton, the Republican presidential and vice-presidential nominees, and a skirt of red, white and blue stripes dotted with stars. A scarlet cape, worn with one-half thrown back over the shoulder, was another striking feature and with it was worn a poke bonnet with a high crown. Each of the "girls" carried a broom torch.

At about the time the Salem Witches campaign battalion was organized in Salem, Republicans in Haverhill, Mass., organized the Brother Jonathans. Members of these two clubs became great friends and it was their practice to "double up" after the parade had proceeded a short distance with each "Brother Jonathan" gallantly escorting a "Salem Witch."

Many and varied have been the marching clubs which took part in torchlight parades in campaign years but there has never been a more striking one than the "Salem witches" of the campaign of 1889.

QUALIFYING AS A TREE EXPERT

OBITUARY

God's loved ones are trees planted by Him in this earthly realm and after a short time plucked up by His tender care to be transplanted to another realm—bliss or woe, just which realm, after this life, that each is to occupy, is one of choice. If a wise selection is made, the habitation will be one of bliss. If not, it will be one of woe.

Some of these trees are plucked while they are very tender even before they begin to develop, because they are very precious in the sight of the Master—His precious jewels. Surely they must be transplanted to a choice place in the realm of glory.
Many other trees are taken for trans-planting just as they begin to bear fruit; while many are often permitted to remain in this realm for special fruit bearing for years on decades. The significant thought is that they are all planted on earth and transplanted to some other realm of choice, if permitted to make their own selection.

Judging from all the data that has been brought to my attention and from limited personal association, I most certainly believe that the late Joseph C.
Jones of New Cedron community, who passed into the great beyond, belonged to that type of the Master's trees that had just begun to bear fruit for Him.

This estimable young man was beginning to bring forth fruit in his social life and in his community life; the beginning to have real care that impleded him to use the intellect that the Master gave him in an intelligent His community activities and the tenderness of his young life told us he was, not only beginning to fruit, but splendid fruit that was ripening into a rich heritage for him his associates.

In a little diary that Joseph C.
while very young we find such tences as this: "My greatest as-sion is to train myself to serve country and fellow-countrymen."
Again, in community activities he an outstanding character for leader-But best of all when it was known him that he could not recover, he ed earnestly and called upon others pray that he might reach the Physician who once said, "Come me all ye who are weak and be-laden, and I will give you rest." Per-er being offered, he acknowledged willingness for the Master's will done. His last words to a boy were, "I am all right; meet me heaven."

What a glorious thought and an inheritance to be transplanted over the Glory Land.

Continuing Of 'Emergency' Agencies Is Rapped

Washington, Oct. 12.—Reports of improved business conditions were issued today by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the American Retail Federation.

The chamber, which has been consistently critical of the Administration said:

"Emergency requirements have become less pressing. Some have ceased altogether. Business is in a position to look to the future, to go ahead, rather than to hold its place against the retarding effects of the depression."

The chamber added, however, that the outlook "is obscured by governmental policies and agencies which were devised to meet emergency needs."

Asserting that seven million workers had been added to payrolls since the low point of the depression, the chamber said unemployment has been "greatly exaggerated."

Alabama Power Company
Pays Huge Amount
In State Taxes

Thos. W. Martin, President of Alabama Power Company, today delivered to the State Tax Commission, the check of the Company for $359,220.38, in payment of the Hydro-Electric Kilowatt Hour Taxes assessed for the State Educational Trust Fund. These taxes this year are the largest in the history of the Company, and approximately $30,000 more than in 1935. In delivering the check Mr. Martin stated that the Company was pleased that these special taxes would be used for education, and that the total taxes paid by the Company went into school funds. On the basis of previous distribution of the Educational Trust Fund, it appears that from this payment the various counties of the state will receive for elementary and high schools $203,000, and the state institutions of higher education $131,000, the remaining $25,000 going for other state educational expense. Among the larger beneficiaries are: Teachers College $20,000, Alabama College $13,000, Alabama College $13,000, Alabama Polytechnic Institute $37,500, University of Alabama $24,000. Some of the larger distributions to counties are as follows: Jefferson County $14,500, DeKalb County $8,600, Lauderdale County $4,700, Marion County $6,300, Marshall County $5,800, Walker County $7,100, Crenshaw County $5,200, Etowah County $7,500.

ROOSEVELT CREDITED WITH NEAT MARGIN IN POPULARITY

President Retains Vigor As He Sweeps Over Mid-West In Campaign And Is Being Greeted By Thousands Of Voters

By Wesley Haygood

President Roosevelt was credited with a neat margin of popular and electoral votes in a general average struck from a half-dozen straw-vote polls as election day loomed less than a month away.

Al Smith's strenuous efforts to show he was not a sorehead but was actuated by Simon pure patriotism when he plumped for Gov. Alf Landon last week in his now famous Iscariot effusion in Carnegie Hall will cause little or no effect in the vote counting November 3, in the opinion of impartial observers.

The Brown Derby has left the capital sidewalks of New York which he once adored.

And, simultaneously, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, of Groton, Harvard, and Hyde Park captured the place in the hearts of the masses who surge the streets, who pour in and out of mills, factories and mines—once held by Mr. Smith.

The laurel of fellowship of the common man was placed upon the President's brow in the triumphant tour through the industrial beehive of Pennsylvania and increased as he moved through cheering crowds in New York and its northern New Jersey environs. At least a half million welcomed the President as he paraded through miles of city streets upon his return to New York last Friday.

Resting at Hyde Park over the week end, the President turned to itineraries and speeches for his future trips. His next, which probably begin Friday (Oct. 9) from Washington will lead him to Denver with a stop in Omaha on the way back East.

Social Security and agriculture are expected to be the chief topics of speeches delivered in those cities. He has said he would like to go to California, but does not feel it advisable to remain away from Washington long enough to make such a trip.

Following the trip to Denver, he plans to make speeches in Chicago, Detroit, Springfield or Worcester, Mass. and in New York City.

Col. Edward M. House, who was chief adviser to President Woodrow Wilson, Edward J. Flynn, Bronx Democratic leader, and W. Averill Harriman were week end guests of the Chief at Hyde Park.

Mr. Flynn gave an optimistic report on Democratic prospects in New York State, estimating that New York City would deliver to Mr. Roosevelt a majority of 750,000, or enough to offset a possible Republican majority in up-state counties.

A potential strength of Al Smith, now that he is a member of the opposition, is brushed aside as of no account by the Roosevelt camp.

This feeling, as indicated by Mr. Roosevelt in his Syracuse speech, is based on a belief that the former Governor created prestige as a "reactionary" philosophy, the theory runs, he lost that prestige and the power to influence many Democratic voters.

The President has not acknowledge publicly the existence of crucial geographical spots, but he realizes that New England is extremely doubtful with the possible exception of Massachusetts. He is confident of carrying New York State, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, but is enough of a realist to recognize that he has a fight on his hands. While some political observers classify Michigan, Illinois, Ohio and Indiana as doubtful, Mr. Roosevelt has full confidence that he will carry them in company with the Midwest, West and South.

The Roosevelt of 1936 is a little stouter, visibly older and balder than the Roosevelt of 1932. But, he retains the vigor and the same ability to find precisely the word or gesture for each situation that may arise, and he has a greater self-assurance than in his first campaign four years ago.

The following letter was left at the News office last week by a stranger who happened to drop in and ask for a copy of the News. We don't know his name, and we print the letter in his own words. The original is on file at the News office:

"Editor, Chilton County News:

"I've been reading your paper for awhile this P.M. I like it fine and what it stands for—Democratic principles. "What the government and Mr. F. D. R. did for Mr. Fuller, they will do for others, if they will do their part, also."

"I am sure to be a thoroughbred Democrat and always vote that ticket. Mr. Roosevelt is a man in the place he belongs. Let's keep him there—and we will."

THE WORLD'S FINEST MOTOR OIL

THE results you get from GULFPRIDE OIL can be obtained from no other motor oil in the world!

For only GULFPRIDE is made from choice Pennsylvania crude... refined to equal the best motor oils on the market... and then further refined by Gulf's exclusive Alchor process.

This process was developed by Gulf after 15 years of scientific research—the kind of painstaking research that is behind every Gulf product.

Read the facts below. Then replace your summer-worn oil with GULFPRIDE now. At all Gulf dealers.

(Left) BEATING THE BEST. No other process refines oil so thoroughly as Gulf's Alchor process. When a blend of 6 of the finest Pennsylvania motor oils—already highly refined—was put through this process, 20% waste came out. Proof that the Alchor process makes GULFPRIDE finer than the finest other Pennsylvania oils.

A GULFPRIDE USER drove from Beanning, Va. to Portland, Ore., averaging 400 miles a day. He did not add a single drop of oil. An unusual record, yes. But expect GULFPRIDE to take you further before you need a quart than any other oil you ever used.

EASTERN AIR LINES' Great Silver Fleet uses GULFPRIDE only in every one of its 21 mighty planes. No other oil will do, because no other oil can match GULFPRIDE—the world's finest motor oil—for safety, stamina, and low cost per mile!

The fall breezes come slipping in—though unseen can be felt keenly. The packed away woollens must be unpacked and sunned and gotten ready for winter comfort. The woods are now changing to their fall dress and a perfect picture of multitudinous colors greets you. Have you noticed the huge splashes of yellow predominating along the roadsides. Soon the pots of flowers will have to be packed away. The seeds of the seeds of the summer flowers should be gathered along with the vegetables for the coming year and some thought should be given to the "Italian Rye" lawns. Don't forget the eye when everything else is dark and dreary looking.

Mt. Pleasant ladies met with Mrs. Lloyd Mims and the demonstration was well carried out. Much fun developed along their "Table Service" given. The newly elected officers were:

President, Mrs. Emmett Smith; vice president, Mrs. Lloyd Mims; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Stanley Kennedy; leaders, Mrs. Maggie Wilson, Miss Martha Kennedy, Mrs. William Turner, Mrs. J. P. Parrish. A social hour and delicious refreshments were served.

Enterprise ladies were well repre-

L. Wilkins and never could one be a better hostess than she. What a beautiful demonstration she and leaders gave. If you want to see a wide awake family, an attractive rural home, then pay them a visit. Cherry cream and cake were served.

Calls Made—

Verbeno—Getting acquainted: Mrs. W. B. Strock, though not physically strong, has a great vision. She is civic minded, shows strong leadership ability and the willingness to "carry on." Others called on were: Mrs. Dera Lett and Mrs. John Lett. Was favorably impressed with Verbeno and its spaciouly arranged homes, and surroundings. The school, too, is a strong impression of its progress.

Delightful office visits were made by the calls from Mrs. Charlie Cox and Mrs. J. M. Parrish of near Friendship church. Among other calls and callers came Mrs. G. E. Stult from Baker Club and Mrs. P. Ratliff of Fairview Club. Mrs. Charles Howard and Mrs. Leo Cobb, interested in the making of year books.

Thanks to Miss Lena Downs for the delicious basket of grapes. To Mrs. Stanley Kennedy for the walnut candy and to the school girls for the parched peanuts. How blessed you are with nature's bounteous gifts of food. Come let us be thankful.

VERMONT SCHOOL NEWS

Although there is a look of disappointment because they could not begin with new textbooks, approximately 175 pupils have entered school and have settled down to work, about 25 have entered school for their first time. We hope that some needed measure will be taken to assure us of a full term, so that these beginners will not become discouraged because of a short term, as others heretofore have been. However, everyone is glad to be back in school with the expectations of accomplishing much this year.

The basketball boys have been doing quite a bit of practicing for the last two weeks and we feel that they will be in shape soon to win several victories. The girls, as yet, have not had the practice that the boys have, due to the fact that a new goal had to be put up. However they will be in excellent condition within a week to win several victories during the season, because of the good material they have to develop a team with.

As soon as everyone catches up with his work, we expect to organize various kinds of clubs that will be of interest to everyone in school.

KUDZU ROPES DOWN LAND; KEEPS THE FARM AT HOME

By County Agent

Kudzu, a vigorous legume vine that came out of Japan—used for some time as a forage crop in the South—is now being used by the Soil Conservation Service demonstration projects all through the Southeastern States, according to R. Y. Bailey, charge of Soil Conservation Service operations in Alabama. While Kudzu is a good forage plant, Mr. Bailey is more interested in its soil-binding value. "It literally ropes land down and checks that destructive washing and soil wasting which have ruined so much once rich farm land in the Southern States," he says.

Rural Electrification IN ALABAMA

In the Meantime, What Happened?

By E. C. Easter

CHAPTER V
DURING the time Alabama Power Company was earnestly cooperating with the several State and Federal rural electrification agencies, and extending its service to thousands of rural customers during 1935, the Alabama Rural Electrification Authority requested a wholesale rate for service to electric membership corporations. This Company stated that it willingly would supply electric current at wholesale to such groups and during the year Alabama Public Service Commission approved a low wholesale rate at which the Company was to supply such electric co-operative groups.

In the Meantime, TVA Begins "Raiding"

Immediately upon the appearance in the newspapers of the list of rural lines that the Company had approved for construction, the Tennessee Valley Authority began efforts to interfere with the Company's effort to build lines, particularly in the counties outside the area in which the Company had contracted to sell its lines to the TVA.

First: Officials and representatives of TVA made trips through the area, making speeches, expressing their intention to extend electricity to the farmers, and explaining the low rates and the huge success of their service in Alcorn County, Mississippi.

Second: Promoting the organization of County Membership Corporations, in the name of which the TVA agents conduct their activities, to discredit the Power Company and promote its raiding activities further into the market areas of the Company.

Third: By interfering, through activities of TVA agents or through local citizens inspired or coerced to do so by the TVA agents, with the Company's efforts to provide electric service to communities that had requested service of the Company.

In one instance representatives of the Company were invited to attend a meeting in a rural community of DeKalb County for the purpose of explaining rates, etc., applicable for service. During the meeting representatives of the Company were advised that TVA agents were stationed outside the meeting room.

While the Company representatives were in the room, the people of the community were taken to the electric light and power business. Why do they not state the disadvantages?

2. Tennessee Valley Authority presents astonishing figures supposed to prove that several of the "electric membership associations" in other states are huge successes. Do they give you all the figures, and do they show you how these taken in, but only PART of what is paid out? Will they give you detailed figures and suggest that you have an independent electrical accountant analyze them for you? Hardly, the figures wouldn't show up so well then.

3. Why does the TVA take up so much time misrepresenting Alabama Power Company when representatives of State and Federal Rural Electrification Agencies have praised the Company's rural electrification activities?

4. If the Tennessee Valley Authority proposition is so sound, why should it have to disparage rural electrification projects of an experienced and reliable organization such as Alabama Power Company?

5. If Alabama Power Company falls to extend a rural electric line because it doesn't seem to be a sound business proposition, is there any reason to believe the proposition will be any sounder for you and a group of your neighbors if you decide to build and operate the line yourselves?

For their safety and to avoid being misled, citizens should ask themselves certain further questions before embarking on TVA-inspired electric co-operatives. These questions will be suggested in the next several chapters.

This is no new policy. It has been stated to both Federal and State officials on numerous occasions, and in each instance we have been told, "The main thing is to get rural lines extended. The more rural electrification the Company does, the more quickly the job can be accomplished."

CHAPTER VI
Questions Prospective Members of Rural Electric Associations Should Ask Themselves

WE SUGGEST a few pertinent questions which rural citizens might ask themselves when approached by smooth talking TVA representatives or their political allies who hide behind the claim that the only competition between TVA and Alabama Power Company is a competition of ideas and policies.

Any business enterprise would welcome competition of ideas and policies; no company or agency can remain static; other individuals in the same or different lines of business may make helpful suggestions, but that is not what we are talking about.

We are talking about a competitor who takes his entire capital outlay from the Federal Government and who pays neither interest nor taxes, and at the same time is building competing lines using county cooperatives to shield it in its destructive, competitive warfare.

Questions prospective members of such cooperatives should ask themselves follow:

1. Tennessee Valley Authority representatives paint a glowing picture of the advantages to farmers of organizing into a TVA-dominated association engaging in the electric light and power business. Why do they not state the disadvantages?

2. Tennessee Valley Authority presents astonishing figures supposed to prove that several of the "electric membership associations" in other states are huge successes. Do they give you all the figures, and do they show you how these taken in, but only PART of what is paid out? Will they give you detailed figures and suggest that you have an independent electrical accountant analyze them for you? Hardly, the figures wouldn't show up so well then.

3. Why does the TVA take up so much time misrepresenting Alabama Power Company when representatives of State and Federal Rural Electrification Agencies have praised the Company's rural electrification activities?

4. If the Tennessee Valley Authority proposition is so sound, why should it have to disparage rural electrification projects of an experienced and reliable organization such as Alabama Power Company?

5. If Alabama Power Company falls to extend a rural electric line because it doesn't seem to be a sound business proposition, is there any reason to believe the proposition will be any sounder for you and a group of your neighbors if you decide to build and operate the line yourselves?

For their safety and to avoid being misled, citizens should ask themselves certain further questions before embarking on TVA-inspired electric co-operatives. These questions will be suggested in the next several chapters.

This advertisement is the third of a series which has also been printed in booklet form. T. W. Martin, President of Alabama Power Company, Birmingham, will cheerfully send a copy to any interested person requesting it.

ROOSEVELT SEES FARM WRECKAGE IN GOP PLANS

PRESIDENT MAKES FIGHTING SPEECH LISTING NEW DEAL'S AID

ENDORSES NORRIS

Calls On Nebraskans To Return 'Great American' To Place In U. S. Senate

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 10.—Advancing a four-point program of his own for future assistance to agriculture, President Roosevelt told the nation tonight that the "Republican leadership" had proposed a farm plan to cost possibly $200,000,000 annually, "not to save agriculture but to wreck it."

Speaking to an audience packed into the Ak-Sar-Ben Coliseum, the President led off with an open endorsement of veteran George W. Norris, Republican, who is an independent candidate for the Senate this year.

"Help this great American to continue an historic career of service," Mr. Roosevelt asked.

After asserting that in 1932, the spectre of foreclosure stalked the farmer's plow and agriculture was "on a road to pauperism," the President in seven sentences described the administration's farm record, adding that farmers could measure them by "the difference between the desperation which was theirs in 1933 and the recovery, which is theirs in 1936."

Four-Point Program

The long-time policy of the administration, he said, includes:

1. Conservation against land wastage and soil improvement.
2. Seeking to increase purchasing power so that people can pay for more and better food, thereby providing a "larger and larger domestic market for the farmer."
3. Attacking the "evil of farm tenancy."
4. Giving the farmer a sound plan of crop insurance in kind against extreme fluctuations of supply and price.

The chief executive, without mentioning by name his Republican rival for the presidency, Gov. Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, referred to the "tariff equivalent" farm program which Landon proposed at Des Moines. Then he asked:

Would Wreck Farmers

"What about the cost? It would run to one and a half and even possibly two billion dollars every year. This vast sum would be spent not to save agriculture but to wreck it."

A tremendous ovation greeted the President when his open car rolled into the Coliseum, and again when he stepped up to the microphone which carried his voice throughout the huge hall by amplifiers and to the nation by radio.

Coliseum attendants said the hall had seats for 12,000 persons. Every one was taken. The crowd jammed into the aisles and overflowed into the surrounding crowds.

Mrs. Gilbert M. Hitchcock, widow of the late former Senator from Nebraska and Omaha publisher, had to wave for quiet several times before she could introduce the President.

A roar of applause greeted Mr. Roosevelt's reference to Norris at the outset. Even before he mentioned the Senator's name shouts from the crowd proclaimed "we know him."

For 12 years, the President said, the Republican leadership "neglected" an opportunity to help the American farmer.

He put to his audience the question of what that leadership offers now, then gave his own version.

First, he said, it would "scrap" the present program which "has condemned as a 'subterfuge' and a 'stop-gap.'"

Next, he said, it would "substitute a system of tariff equivalent payments not for any permanent contribution to farm wealth or national income, but merely as a cash handout—or a dole."

Then he wanted to know whether such a plan would protect farmers from price collapses and surpluses and guard them against a future "disaster like 1932."

Again he offered his own idea about it.

"No plan could lead the nation back faster to such a crisis," he said.

Would Pile Up Surplus

The Republican plan, he added, "is a straight subsidy of unlimited farm production," and the "Federal Farm Board all over again."

In a year or two, he said, it would pile up surpluses and drive down prices.

Earlier, he has asserted that the Farm Board was the best the Republican leadership could offer as a solution to the farmer's plight. The board, he said, set an all-time high for extravagant futility.

The Republican Smooth-Hawley tariff, he continued, finished the job by robbing the farmer of his "last chance for a foreign market."

12 Year of Failure

The Democratic administration, the President continued, had to clear away the "debris of 12 years of failure" and meet the problem of a "defeatist" attitude.

"Tonight," he said, "you know that the ground has been cleared of that debris. After 12 years in which he has been harassed and weighted down by the burdens of each succeeding day, the farmer at last has begun to get into the clear, so that he can begin again to take thought for tomorrow."

"The defeatist attitude has at last been defeated."

The President came to Omaha on his campaign special from Lincoln where he told a huge crowd in front of the State Capitol he was confident of the result of the November election and said money spent by the administration to feed millions of families had been expended "in a good cause."

No Tax On Homes

He promised there that "as long as I have anything to do about it, there never will be a Federal tax on farms or homes."

Senator Norris, who supported Roosevelt in 1932 and is now up for his reelection, rode the special train with the chief executive as it came across from Iowa, and stayed on from Lincoln to Omaha. He was on the platform tonight.

In advocating the Senator's reelection the President told the coliseum audience he was making, and so long as Norris lived, would continue to make, "one magnificently justified exception" to his rule of non-participation in elections of States other than his own New York.

"George Norris' candidacy," he said "transcends State and party links. In our national history we have had few elder statesmen who like him have served the aspirations of youth as they accumulate the wisdom of years."

A RESOLUTION

We, your Resolutions Committee of the Chilton County Association, in session, this, the 11th day of October, 1936, first wish to say that it is with a deep regret that we have to give up Brother J.W. Jones as moderator of our association. We feel that in his going the association and Chilton County, as well, is losing one of our strongest ministers and workers for Christ and His cause;

Second, we feel that our loss will be Columbia's and surrounding territory's gain; and

Third, we pray God's richest blessings on him and his, in his new field of work.—S.J.M. Webb, Mrs. Lee J. Grant, Committee

SECRECY VEILS POLIO PROGRESS

Further Studies To Be Made By Scientists With Alum Spray

Washington, Oct. 11—How far scientists have gone toward learning whether the alum spray will prevent infantile paralysis is still a secret.

The men who worked with it last Summer have some more studies to make before they will be ready to put their findings before the world.

Dr. Charles Armstrong, of the public health service, who is credited with inventing the nasal spray, put it this way:

"We are getting reports from all over the country. We are not sure yet. The doctor said he would speak for himself and the public health service next month in a report to the Southern branch of the American Public Health Association at Baltimore."

Week after week during the summer reports came from Alabama that those who had taken the nasal spray escaped the disease.

But those persons, said Dr. Armstrong and others, might have been immune anyway.

The theory behind the spray is that the disease germs enter through the nose and touch the tiny naked nerves of smell. From them, the effect moves into the central nervous system, the physicians reasoned, and finally into the limbs or body.

In order to immunize the surface of the exposed nerves, they developed a solution of alum and picric acid.

It is the outgrowth of years of study and many attempts to control the spread of the disease. Isolation of patients and places still are tried, and last year the public health service made experiments with a vaccine.

Gambling in the city jail has been broken up by the municipal fumigation in Salt Lake City, Utah. He killed all the cockroaches which inmates were training and using for betting.

1937 CHEVROLET TO BE SHOWN AT EARLY DATE

Hayes Awaiting Showing Of New Models To Be Held Here

Announcement was made recently that $26,000,000 has been expended in retooling, new machinery, and rearranging the plants and assembly lines of Chevrolet for production of the 1937 models that will be announced early in November, according to Hayes Chevrolet Co., local Chevrolet dealers.

This is one of the largest sums ever appropriated by the automotive industry for the change-over of machinery for the annual new models, and gives an inkling of what the motorists of America may expect when the cars are revealed to the public.

It was said that the usual procedure in automobile manufacture is to make new models with certain changes, each year and other changes the following announcement time, but that this year Chevrolet has produced an entirely new car for 1937.

It is because of the complete redesigning of the 1937 models that such a large expenditure for retooling and rearrangement was necessary, it was pointed out.

It was disclosed to the field forces and newspapermen that Chevrolet is now in production on the new models, and that the 10,000 dealers of the company will have display cars for announcement day and an ample supply for immediate delivery to purchasers. Schedules at the factories are increasing, with heavy volume slated for the latter part of October.

Powerful Arguments Advanced By The New York Times in Advocating Re-Election of President Roosevelt

In its stirring appeal for the re-election of President Roosevelt, under a leading editorial entitled "A Reasoned Choice," The New York Times reminds its readers that it "has long been known as an independent Democratic newspaper and placed chief emphasis on the word 'Independent,' never having followed in blind faith any political leader or party."

"Roosevelt and Landon," it continues, "stand as party leaders today, free of all political mummery. If the Republicans originally intended to attack the Administration and all its works, they have since dropped that strategy. Gov. Landon would use every dollar of Federal money necessary to care for the needy. He finds fault with the Administration's farm policy mainly on the ground that it does not go so far, or spend so much money as he proposes to do. Other adaptations or continuations of the Roosevelt policy he quietly makes his own."

"But the Republicans... would make protective tariffs more prohibitive of foreign trade than ever before. They would at once abrogate the existing reciprocal trade agreements, and repeal the very law which gives the President power to negotiate these agreements—a law long endorsed by eminent Republicans. After thus proposing to do all in their power by legislation to shut foreigners out of our markets, the Republicans proceed to the pitch of absurdity and effrontery by demanding that foreign nations pay us the debt while depriving them of the means of paying. All this policy leaves the advantage on international issues distinctly with the Democrats."

"Weighing what has been accomplished, what is now proposed and what uncertainties still lie ahead, The New York Times, a conservative newspaper in its own sphere, believes that the public welfare will best be served this year by continuance of the Democratic party in power and by the re-election of the President. Three considerations which we regard as dominant have led to this conclusion:

"First, we believe that Mr. Roosevelt is a keen enough judge of public opinion to make his second administration more conservative than his first, in the sense that conservation means considering ground already gained and perfecting measures hastily enacted. Second, not only do we believe that forces now operating strongly will tend to make the next Roosevelt Administration more conservative, in the sense of conserving the best of what has been accomplished since 1933; We also believe that in a very fundamental way the President's re-election will provide insurance against radicalism of the sort which the United States has most to fear. We say this for several reasons.

"It would be blind not to recognize the necessity of adapting and ameliorating our political and economic structure to the changing circumstances of the modern world, and equally blind not to appreciate at full value, and to wish to conserve for the uncertain years which lie immediately ahead, the unquestioned confidence which Mr. Roosevelt enjoys among the distressed masses who have been the worst victims of the depression. These masses still acutely remember their disillusionment of public leadership in 1932, and have with reason felt the President has tried to restore equalize opportunity and prevent excesses of the recent past.

"We prefer to have in Washington immediately ahead a Governor during the still critical period united in all its branches, with to take instantly action which become necessary in any emergency which may arise.

"The Republican party cannot us such a Government. Even Landon should be elected and the Republicans should carry the Representatives, the Senate is main Democratic, because its majority is too large to be in the next two years would threaten country with precisely the same tradition of purpose and parity which will proved to be so disastrous in 1931 and 1932.

"We do not believe that the and economic measures pursued the Democratic party should be in other hands at the behest of who have not been the real victims of the malady and who or supported the policies which the roots of its cause. Reform be administered by those who have successfully proposed the Democratic party's aid in relation to the public.

"Finally, we believe that the nationalism for which the Republican party stands today is in itself a if put into force, would carry idly in the direction both of 'reaction' and 'radicalism.' It is loss of foreign markets for plus farm commodities that is officially responsible for the for crop control and a 'planned' ony' for agriculture. It is a foreign markets for our factors is responsible in large part for industrial unemployment that exists.

"The best antidote to both reaction and discontent is a re international trade, and the treaties sponsored by the and negotiated by his able State lead step by step in rection. That way lies hope other leads to economic suicide a Hawley-Smoot tariff."

Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui. I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. Before I had taken half a box Cardui I was stronger and w up and around."

Thousands of women testify Cardui fitted them. If it does not help consult a physician.

Getting a Job and Getting Ahead

Getting the True Perspective
On Your Job

EDUCATORS and business men of long experience have estimated that it takes anywhere from two to ten years for the high school or college graduate to adjust himself to the business world. The more you can shorten this period of adjustment, the greater and quicker will be your success.

Much of the difficulty of adjustment undoubtedly comes from the beginner's inability to see in its true perspective both his own job and the business he is in. As a result he may soon become convinced that the business is dull and without opportunities, and his own job mere routine drudgery. Such an impression becomes an almost unsurmountable obstacle to success.

Try to see beyond the routine of your job to the essential part it plays in the functioning of the business. At the same time, by spare time reading and study of business subjects, seek to acquire a true picture of the part the business plays in the economic structure. Once you have succeeded in this, your own work will acquire a new interest and the opportunities your business offers will become apparent.

No matter how great your intelligence or your willingness to work, interest in and enthusiasm for your work are vital to success. Such interest and enthusiasm must come through knowledge and understanding. These come to few by instinct or as a gift from heaven. They are acquired through the extra study and thinking a man is willing to devote to his job.

HOWARD COLLEGE PRESIDENT REPORTS SPLENDID PROGRESS

Visits In Clanton Last Week: College Issues Many Graduates

Clanton received a pleasant visit last week from Dr. T. V. Neal, president of Howard College, Birmingham. While here, Dr. Neal told a representative of the News some very interesting things about his outstanding college. He was accompanied by another real friend of this county, Luke Sewell, who holds the responsible position as executive secretary of the college and is one of the most widely known men in the state. They had just returned from Lanett, where Dr. Neal addressed a Baptist association in behalf of the $25,000 debt drive of the Baptists of Alabama.

"Howard College is now entering its ninety-fifth year," Dr. Neal stated, "and we had the largest graduating class last year in the entire history of the college."

Dr. Neal, himself, is a graduate of Howard, having completed his studies

DR. T. V. NEAL
President Howard College

there in 1902 and is now entering his fifth year as president of the institution. In the year he was a graduate, there were only 142 students and thirteen composed the graduating class.

This is compared with the enrollment of 1,373 last year and a graduating class of 202. This does not include the summer sessions offered by the college.

"One thing we are particularly proud of," Dr. Neal stated, "is the fact that every one of our graduates are immediately placed in responsible positions and we are continually receiving calls for them. Seventy of the graduates last year became teachers, while others received good positions."

"We are the second largest Baptist college in the Southern States in enrollment, and I am proud of the splendid enrollment from Chilton County. We have some mighty fine students there from your county," he continued.

"Conditions are picking up considerably in Birmingham now and we note with a great deal of satisfaction that it must be the same everywhere. Howard College operated through the so-called depression without a loss and made many outstanding improvements.

38,728 Families

Washington, Oct. 10.—The debt adjustment program of the Federal Farm Loan Administration saved the farmers of the nation more than $50 million during the year ending September 1.

All of the adjustments, according to Paul V. Maris, acting director of the RA division, were made through voluntary action on the part of creditors.

The program directly affected farmers who a year ago owed $118,940,410. After adjustment, debts the same group owed $68,440,410. This amounted to a total reduction of 25 per cent, or an average of $786 per debtor.

baby came to bless our family and I am thankful that I was in better shape to take care of the youngster. We had plenty to eat, good clothes.

"This year has been a bright one and a happy one for me and my family. The President's CCC camps offered my boy a chance and he is there now, doing fine. We have paid everything we owed, bought a cow, some hogs and am paying on a good horse. I have plenty of hay, peas and peanuts, enough to even sell some. No one realizes any more than I do what this Democratic administration has meant to us farmers and working men who were down and almost out during the years before Mr. Roosevelt was elected. From now on I'm for the Democrats."

bigger, more smartly styled than ever and have greater all-round economy," Mr. Smith stated. "We believe that when we say millions will want to switch to this sensational new Dodge, we are correct."

The new Dodge embodies many outstanding features, among them being the new windshield defroster which forces warm air onto the windshield to keep it clear of ice and sleet during winter driving.

"The entire appearance of the new Dodge is attracting many people to our showrooms," Mr. Smith stated, "and we are indeed proud to show them the features of this car. We extend an invitation to the public to see this wonderful car now before making any selection."

the state convention.

The convention will begin at four o'clock on the afternoon of October 23rd and continue into the night with a program that will interest every young white voter in the state.

Features of the program include an address by the Hon. Claude Pepper, who was recently elevated to the Senate of the United States. This address is scheduled for six o'clock that night at the banquet to be held at the Whitney Hotel. From four o'clock until six there will be a business meeting of the organization.

Following the banquet, which will probably end about ten o'clock there will be a large and exquisite victory ball at the hotel in its beautiful ball room on the second floor.

This convention promises to be one of the most outstanding events ever held by the Alabama State League of Young Democrats.

Reservations to the banquet may be made by applying to Billy Smith at the office of the Chilton County News. Those who intend to attend this event are urged to make their reservations immediately. Chilton County should send a large delegation to this convention, and due to this fact these reservations should be sent in this week so that this county may be assured of a large attendance. There will be no charge for the entertainment.

Willie Tyus left last Wednesday for Houston, Texas, where he went to make his home with his brother, Newell Tyus.

GAS TAX

tax of 2 cents per gallon. The figures indicate that tax collections per employee, including active proprietors came to $2,669.

These figures do not include the sales on tires, inner tubes, accessories, nor the business license of filling stations which are among the heaviest paid by any business.

The average service station in the state transacted $6,890 worth of business last year and collected more than $4,080 in taxes. Retail stores in general enjoyed an average business volume of about $15,200.

The reports further show that employment in service stations increased 15.1 per cent over 1933, when the last census of business was taken in Alabama. This compares with an increase of only 5.9 per cent in employment of retail business generally. The stations in 1935 gave employment to 5,228 workers compared with 4,541 in 1933. Both figures include proprietors and firm members devoting their full time to service station work.

Payroll disbursements by service stations, not considering compensation for active proprietors and firm members total $1,435,000 or 11.7 per cent of taxes.

Thorsby Regrets Departure of Pastor To New Field

The passing of the mile posts on life's journey marks shadows and sunshine for every sojourner and many sad farewells as we come to the "parting of the ways."

Today, we are come to say goodbye to our dear companions, Brother Jones and his family. For eight years we have labored together in the cause of our Lord.

The achievements for good of Brother Jones and his wife have been most successful. He was always ready with a sympathetic voice in time of bereavement, quoting the words of the blessed Lord. Always ready in times of rejoicing to mingle a cheerful spirit with his people. The splendid Baptist church house, to which we point with pride, stands as a memorial to his faithful endeavors. His presence was always welcome, for with him all seasons were summer and the citizens of Thorsby will long remember his friendly greetings and cordial smile as he moved among them.

Mrs. Jones, as a faithful friend a loving neighbor and a capable leader of all the women's work of the church, has endeared herself to everyone. And so it is with heavy hearts, the grateful hearts, that we look back over the years to the blessings which have been ours because of these dear associations with them.

And in memory of their wonderful service, we lay reverently the wreath of laurel and forget-me-nots upon the altar of imperishable friendship, a tribute which will not fail with time.

In the new field in which they are called, we send our sincere congratulations, and to our dear pastor and his family, we offer our love and fervent prayers that God will continue with them in their journey, blessing them always.

Committee,
—G. F. Harper, Miss Elizabeth Law

Mr. Popwell has been offered large sums for these mares but refused to dispose of them. One of them weighed 1,000 pounds when sold by Mr. McCain and after a year in the care of Mr. Popwell, now weighs 1,275 pounds. Mr. Popwell takes pride in the splendid animals he uses on his farm here, and these two mares are examples of the farm animals sold by the George A. McCain Stables of Clanton. ## The National Debt And Chilton County's Part

(AN EDITORIAL)

The national Democratic administration with President Roosevelt at the helm has been spending a tremendous amount of money during the past years. Billions of dollars have been poured out of the United States Treasury into the pockets of farmers, merchants, bankers and every-day working men and women. The amount is huge. In fact there is no comparison in the amount of federal money spent by Mr. Roosevelt and that spent by the preceding Republican administration.

That is what opponents of Mr. Roosevelt are harping on in their misguided fight to defeat him next month. And, it is true that the present administration has been spending large sums of money—but where has it been going? Did any of the farmers and business men of Chilton County receive any of it? Has this plan benefitted any of your farmers and laborers out there in the rural communities? Have any of you business men enjoyed a better business during the four years before Mr. Roosevelt became president?

In 1931 you wanted something done. People were actually starving. Maybe YOU were not among that large group of American citizens whose families were destitute and suffering. But, you well remember that YOU, and everyone else except a chosen few, wanted something done to better business conditions.

It took money to feed starving people. It took money to raise the price of cotton. It took money to put factories and mills back in operation so a man could earn a decent living. It took money to put you farmers back on your feet. It took money to start the wheels of industry.

You wanted something done. It has been done. The opponents who are fighting the President today have not offered one single constructive idea of what THEY would have done, and they certainly had the opportunity. YOU voted a change of management in order to give the country a chance to win the game and the Democratic Party is winning it.

The Democrats have put their cards on the table, all face up. There is nothing being hidden from the citizens of the country, and as President Roosevelt said, "the only way to keep a government out of the red is to keep the people out of the red. We had to balance the budget of the American people before we could balance the budget of the national government."

"Something had to be done. A national choice had

Of Next Week At Seven O'clock; Expresses Desire To Meet Chilton Citizens

Those people of this section who have not had the opportunity and privilege of meeting Alabama's governor and hearing him speak, will have this rare opportunity on next Wednesday night when Governor Graves will visit Clanton and speak at the courthouse, on an invitation extended by citizens of the city.

100, advanced for the week ended Oct. 3 to 117.3 from 116.9 the previous week, compared with 101.6 for the first week of October last year.

Federal Reserve Board announced Oct.
6 there had not been a single suspension of a national bank since September 28, last year, breaking a record of more than 35 years.

The postmaster of New York City disclosed Oct. 7 an increase of 23 1-2 per cent in the receipts of the office for the three months ended September 30 over the same three months last year; hailed by financial writers as dependable barometers of recovery progress.

Poor's Investment Advisory Service reported Oct. 6: "Comparisons with a year ago reveal advances of 52 per cent in steel output, 167 per cent in automobile production, 11.1 per cent in commercial loans.
More outstanding is the strength of heavy industry, although current evidence points to a continuation of retail trade at levels well above the corresponding 1935 periods."

"We'll Do All These Things And There'll Be No Charge"

(From President Roosevelt's Speech at Syracuse)

"Let me warn you and let me warn the nation against the smooth evasion which says: 'Of course we believe all these things; we believe in social security; we believe in work for the unemployed; we believe in saving homes. Cross our hearts and hope to die, we believe in all these things; but we do not like the way the present administration is doing them. Just turn them over to us. We will do all of them—we will do them better; and, most important of all, the doing of them will not cost anybody anything.'"

Knox Pays To Advertise How Roosevelt Ruins U. S.

We quote the following advertisement of the Chicago Daily News in Printers' Ink, a magazine devoted to the publishing business:

"Here in Chicago, storekeepers are getting back their old pre-depression smiles.
People are milling in the streets—with crisp new packages under their arms. Cash registers jingling. Trucks clunking. And between the banks of Michigan avenue, the old 'gold stream' of shiny new automobiles is at high tide again. Chicago is showing more come back, faster than any spot on the map!"

The Chicago Daily News is owned and published by Col. Frank Knox, whose sole "issue" in his spectacular candidacy for the Vice Presidency on the Republican ticket is that Roosevelt is "ruining the country."

Can you beat it? Or do you care to try?
And why should you? When we find anything that looks slightly consistent in this "solemn crusade" back to where Roosevelt started the restoration, we'll let you know.

"The Unvarnished Truth Is Just The Opposite"

Showing that agricultural exports have increased steadily since 1932 and that the 14 trade agreements already negotiated gave reduced tariff rates to American farmers ranging up to 60 per cent, the Secretary quoted many increases in farm exports under the treaties in force. These include lard, etc., to Cuba up to 329 per cent; hams and shoulders to Canada, 169 per cent; other pork, packed and salted, 329 per cent;
lard, 92 per cent; canned fruits, 62 per cent;
Italy and Switzerland have substantially lowered tariff duties on products of the American farm, notably wheat and various kinds of fruits. The world economic log-jams beginning to give way."

Of the 1,106,000,000 of agricultural imports in 1935, Secretary Hull said that $484,000,000 were "entirely non-competitive commodities" and that exclusive of sugar, which is governed by international agreement, the increase in imports of commodities governed by trade agreements has amounted to only 13,000,000.

He pointed out that agricultural income rose from $4,328,000,000 in 1932 to $6,- 507,000,000 in 1935, excluding benefit payments. Cash farm income for 1936 approximately $7,500,000,000.

"In the light of this evidence," asked the secretary, "what fair-minded person will accept the reckless assertion that the Roosevelt Administration 'has taken the American farmer out of the foreign market?'"

"I will tell you when our farmer was taken out of the foreign markets. It was when our agricultural exports slumped from $1,692,900,000 in 1929 to $662,400,- 000 in 1932 and our farmers thus sustained a staggering loss of more than one billion dollars in their foreign markets.
This occurred under the Smoot-Hawley tariff of the Hoover Administration.
There has not been one dollar of loss since that time."

That Overall Tax

Out in Grundy Center, Iowa, there is an editor who knows his overalls.

Recently he has been slightly disturbed by Republican propaganda that one hundred and forty-eight separate taxes are hidden away in each pair of the honest toiler's apparel. The editor knew it wasn't so. He explained the situation the other day in his paper, The Grundy Register.
(Ind.) as follows.

"That story about the farmer being taxed out of his pants because of the hidden taxes on his overalls is still going the rounds. If the story is going over at all, it is with those who don't buy or wear overalls.

"To those who buy and those who wear overalls, the hidden tax story is a joke.
They know they can buy as much overall for the money now as they did four years ago—and they can buy a little more.

"A near newspaper played up this overall tax in a leading editorial the past week.
The paper said:

"Did you know, for example, that every time the farmer or laboring man buys a pair of overalls he pays forty-four different and separate hidden taxes, which, if added together, would account for close to half the cost of the overalls?"

"The overall story, when it was released to the press from the Republican National Committee, said that there were one hundred and forty-eight hidden tax patches on every pair of overalls. This nearby editor found this statement too raw for his own convictions and he removed one hundred and four of the tax patches and printed the number as forty-four. He is still plenty high. If there are forty-four taxes hidden on a pair of overalls now, there were that many taxes on them four years ago, because overalls now are better and a little cheaper than they were when farmers had to trade ten bushels of corn to buy a pair.

"If the Republican National Committee wants to avoid a damaging kick-back from this overall story, they should confine its circulation to high society, where they don't buy or wear overalls."

"Thus far Governor Landon has succeeded in creating the impression in even the most sympathetic circles that he is a fellow who agrees with everybody."—Montgomery Advertiser. (Dem.)

Since Landon is such a poor public speaker in contrast with other figures in public life, his 'John Alden' should be someone who is thoroughly conversant and in full sympathy with his views. Col. Knox certainly does not fill the bill."—Winston-Salem Sentinel. (Ind.)

MORAL ECHOES

The good doctor looked me over inside and outside and then with assurance he made the following little speech to me: "Your heart has been assaulted and your conditions such, that of necessity you must return to your home at once and rest flat on your back for six weeks." That was a staggering statement but I was sure that the physician knew what he was talking about and as quickly as car wheels could carry me, I hastened to my bed and I lived up to my instructions. My future life and health were at stake and I knew that I must follow medical advice. Many a time have I been consulted as the spiritual adviser for sin-sick souls and I have given safe and sane advice about what must be done to make sure the life here and hereafter, but not very many have followed my advice. Can you tell me why people treat spiritual advice with such indifference. We tell people what will kill their conscience and destroy their souls, but our advice is people will heed spiritual as well as not needed. O, for the day when medical advice!

I was awake a few minutes before four o'clock in the morning and as my clock struck the hour, I heard an alarm clock ring out at a neighbor's home. Evidently someone there wanted to get up at four. The clock rattled its bell and made enough noise to almost raise the dead but no one stirred.
This clock must have been a repeater for in less than a minute it was on the job again. I lay on my bed and listened to that clock as it shouted and called until its strength was completely exhausted and now a soul stirred in the building. The little clock was asked to deliver a certain call at a certain hour and it did its best, but its efforts were in vain.
Many times have I thought of myself as being like that clock. God gave me a message to be delivered and I delivered it with all the earnestness of my soul but the people slept on. I have repeated the message, I have sounded the call time and time again and still the folk are sleeping. When God's call rings out "awake, awake," why not stir from sleep and with a wide awake heart walk out to enjoy
His day of deliverance?

A few miles out from a well known town in Alabama there is a blind man who is making an honest living. This man suffered the loss of his sight while he was just a lad. He could have given up and made himself dependent upon his family for life but he preferred to make his own way.
This man now owns and operates a community store and is making a good living for himself and family. The shelving to his store is behind screen wire and this blind man waits on the public through a window, delivering his goods and receiving his pay. To watch that man in his business and to see how success makes us to wonder.
This proverb, "Where there is a will there is a way" should do us all good to consider.

Once upon a time a country gentleman of distinction prided himself because of his beautiful hair. He made it his business to sit on the front porch of the crossroad grocery and talk much about everything in general.
In the passing of the years the wisdom of this talkative man turned as white as snow while the hair on his head remained a jet black. He became very much worried over this peculiar occurrence and went to the country doctor for information as to why his hair should be so black and his whiskers so white. The good doctor was a frank individual and replied with the wisdom of Solomon
"My friend, this is easily explained in that you are using your jaws and your tongue much more than you are using your brain." May I not say there are many people in our time who are like that country gentleman of many years ago. On street corners and around depots and filling stations we are forced to hear many who use their jaws and tongues more than they use their brains. That may be the reason why some folks have black hair and white whiskers.

Graves Proclaims F. D. R. As Leader

Russellville, Ky., Oct. 17.—Referring to the United States as a "team" and President Roosevelt as the "only man capable of managing it," Gov. Bibb Graves, of Alabama, urged Roosevelt's re-election last night. He spoke at a political meeting at the court house.

Graves said "the bankers," whom he credited Mr. Roosevelt as "saving from the poorhouse," had turned against the administration. He reiterated a previous charge that the Republicans were preaching the world is round to "up-to-date people" and flat to the "old Bourbons." The governor speaks today at Greenville and tonight at Morganfield.

ABOUT BOY BABIES

Researchers and statisticians are going into everything imaginable these days, figuring out the possibilities of this and that. Dr. A.J. Lotka, a specialist in life insurance statistics, has studied the prevalence of boy babies and these are some of his conclusions.

When a boy baby is born he has chances out of three to grow up to become a father. He has even devoted to become the father of a son, only one chance in four to become father of two sons. A few grow up have ten sons, but there is only one chance in 2,000 that this will happen.

Many other more or less inter-conclusions with respect to the duration of a family name are set by Dr. Lotka who finally estimates that in about nine cases out of ten the name will eventually die out.

He fails, however, to state exactly how he thinks this a fortunate thing for the human race. We venture the guesses that in most cases it pays to be a father.

1,874 FARMERS SAVED THEIR FARMS BY DEMOCRATS HELP

This Many Alabama Farmers Might Have Lost Homes Had Not Administration Come To Their Aid In Past Year

Auburn.—Alabama farmers totaling 1,878 have saved their farms from threatened foreclosure during the year ended Sept. 1 by asking the help of the farm debt adjustment specialists in the Democratic Resettlement Administration.

In making this announcement, Charles A. McKinnon, Alabama farm debt adjustment specialist, emphasized the fact that 161,155 acres of farm land were involved in these adjustments and that resulting tax payments amount to $16,124.

The total amount of indebtedness prior to adjustment was $1,723,872. While readjustment to the end that both creditor and debtor may be satisfied, rather than reduction, is the primary purpose of this activity, according to McKinnon, a reduction of $372,016 in the total indebtedness resulted from these adjustments.

This service is not limited to farm owners who are clients of the Resettlement Administration in its rehabilitation program, McKinnon said, but is available without cost to all farmers whose debts are so great that they cannot see their way out and foreclosure is threatened.

"Any Alabama farmer," he said, "who can't pay his debts and is about to lose his farm should get in touch with his local county farm debt adjustment committee. All county agricultural agents and county supervisors of rural rehabilitation will be glad to put their debt-burdened farmers in touch with the committee chairman."

This work is entirely voluntary on the part of the local committee members and, without the force of law behind them, these men depend on voluntary adjustments in which both creditor and debtor concur, according to McKinnon.

FARMERS' CASH AIDS INDUSTRY

Heavier Buying Stimulates Business In East, Report Shows

Washington, Oct. 12.—The farmer stimulated industrial recovery by increasing his purchases from industrial states in proportion to the boost in the farm income from 1932 to 1935, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration said today in a special study.

In answer to campaign charges that the Administration's farm program has been advanced at the expense of the industrial centers, the AAA said shipments of goods to agriculture states from 16 North and Northeast states increased 60.1 per cent from 1932 to 1935. In the same period, farm income increased 64.3 per cent.

To obtain data on the relationship of farm buying power to industrial recovery, the AAA inspected more than 100,000 freight waybills of 16 railroads which handle approximately 75 per cent of the traffic in manufactured commodities delivered to agricultural section. Only the shipments were from 16 important industrial states east of the Mississippi and north of the Po-

Some of the manufactured commodity shipments registering large advances in tonnage in the three years were: Scales and parts, 520.7 per cent; farm implements and machinery, 309.3 per cent; tractors and parts, 302.9 per cent; refrigerators, 259.6 per cent; automobiles, 219.9 per cent; tools and equipments, 218.9 per cent; steel fence posts, 197.3 per cent; road machinery, 154.4 per cent.

Farm Bureau Meeting Set For Nov. 17-18

The annual meeting of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation will be held in Auburn on Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 17 and 18, announces J. Litt Edwards, president.

The meeting had previously been set for September 1 and 2 but was postponed, due to infantile paralysis in the State.

Several hundred Alabama farmers are expected to attend the meeting and hear talks and discussions by State and National agricultural leaders. They will also formulate a program of work for the remainder of 1936 and 1937.

The State Extension Service and Progressive Farmer-Ruralist will name five Master Farmers of the State during the convention.

Presenting the phenomenal facts about GULFPRIDE

THE WORLD'S FINEST MOTOR OIL

THE facts on this page sound hard to believe. But here is the reason why GULFPRIDE—and only GULFPRIDE—can accomplish such results . . .

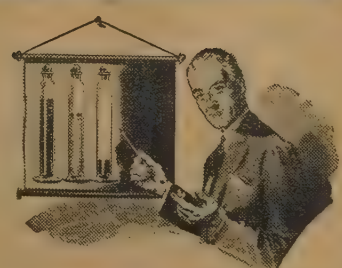

Gulf begins with selected Pennsylvania crude, refines it to a motor oil that equals the best—then further refines it by the exclusive Alchlor process.

Only GULFPRIDE is made by this process—result of 15 years' research—the same scientific research that has made every Gulf product a leader.

Read the facts below. Then drain your dirty summer-worn oil and refill with GULFPRIDE now. At all Gulf dealers.

THE U. S. NAVY specifications for motor oil, as well as those of all other government agencies, are bettered on every point by GULFPRIDE. For instance, this oil forms only 1/4 the amount of carbon allowed by Navy specifications. That's why GULFPRIDE almost completely banishes carbon cleaning.

AN AMAZING TEST. Bottle No. 1 shows a mixture of 6 famous Pennsylvania motor oils. Bottle No. 2 shows them after being put through Gulf's Alchlor process. Bottle No. 3 shows the 20% waste removed from these already highly-refined oils by Gulf's Alchlor process. This process starts where others stop! That's why GULFPRIDE is the world's finest motor oil.

TOPS IN THE AIR—8 out of the 11 winners in last year's National Air Races used GULFPRIDE OIL, the identical oil you can buy for your car at any Gulf dealer. This "aviator's oil" will take you farther before you need to add a quart than any oil you ever used!

CONFEDERATE HERO IS DEAD IN SELMA

William R. White, 93, member of Last Escort For Jeff. Davis, Selma, Ala., Oct. 12—(Special)—William Robert White, 93, hero of the Confederacy, died at 9:15 a. m. Monday at the home of a son, E. M. White, 2518 Alabama Avenue, reducing to one the number of Confederate veterans on Dallas County's pension list. Born on Feb. 28, 1844, in Chambers County, where he was reared, Mr. White came to Selma 14 years ago from Chilton County where he later moved, residing here with his son continuously since 1922.

The only surviving veteran of the War between the States in San B. McCarr, of Selma, one of the large and gallant group which made up Camp Jones, local unit of men who served the Confederate cause during the war. Twice married, Mr. White's first wife, Martha Sewell, died in 1874; his second wife, Mattie Blount also died some years ago. Of 10 children born of the two marriages nine survive. They are E. M. White, of Selma; S. J. White, of Birmingham; L. D. White, of Magee, Miss.; W. R. White, Jr., of Maplesville; Mrs. Oliver Chambers, Mrs. Coy Klinger, and Mrs. Tom Kemp of Maplesville; Mrs. W.

W. Broadhead, of Verbena; two sisters Mrs. John Sewell, of Montevallo; and Mrs. Henry Sewell, of Maplesville, and a number of grandchildren.

The funeral will be held from Antioch church near Fletcher, the time will be announced by Brislin Service. Enlisting in the first Alabama cavalry, Company G., on Nov. 1, 1861, Mr. White served under many Confederate leaders during the four years of fighting. Outstanding, however, were Jefferson Davis and Gen. Joseph Wheeler. He was a member of the company which was detailed to escort Davis from the Charlotte, N.C., to Washington, Ga., in effort to protect him from capture which took place a few days later. Mr. White received his first bullet wound in the thigh, during the Battle of Atlanta, on July 22, 1865, but did not withdraw from active fighting. At the close of the war, Mr. White was engaged in farming in what is now Elmore, then Coosa County, going later to Chilton County. He was a Democrat and a member of the Methodist Church.

A dog was left to guard the jewelry store of A. H. Enoch, in New Britain, Conn. When Enoch returned he found nothing missing but the dog.

WITH YOUR HOME Demonstration Agent CONDUCTED BY MISS META GRACE

Discoveries Here and There in Chilton
The plots of fine late tomatoes here and there and what could be better than late tomatoes and potatoes for the Frost comes wrapped in paper and stored away in boxes or barrels and eaten daily until after New Years or all the winter if not allowed to freeze.

Mrs. George Sansom's collards: My! My! A garden and huge garden at that just filled with the finest looking collards you ever saw and such perfect looking ones. When asked how she kept the bugs off Mrs. Sansom replied: "I picked them by hand and I believe that is the safest and surest way for you to have good collards."

The collards strike Mr. Sansom, many of them at the waist and they look to be four feet in diameter. Mr. and Mrs. Sanson win the prize as being the champion collard growers. Chilton County is Prolific Chilton County has many future 4-H's coming along. The Home Demonstration club women in Chilton don't let their babies keep them home. They take them with them to the meetings and if the weather is pretty. Why not? The Home Agent has a bucket of toys and a box of crackers that are kept busy and the mother gets the lesson, has an outing, and much fun in addition to getting them started early. One mother said: "Miss Grace, we're late getting started in our club work but our children won't be late." "My last meeting just attended," says Miss Grace, "there were eleven women and seven babies!" But the prize baby goes to Isabella Club. This darling baby weighed two and one-half pounds at birth. Today it is four months old and she weighs eight pounds. The doctors said she would never live but she "bill, coot" and "sucks" her fist in a great big way.

Thoughts of October
October with its "bright blue weather"—with its cherry chilly feeling—brings to mind "traditional ideas" practiced today as a result of our forefathers from England, Wales and Ireland. We call it Halloween including the black cat the witch riding the broom, the harvest of foods especially the pumpkins, the apples and the pies. "Playing tricks" on our friends and neighbors still being used as stealing and hiding things on the front porches and under the doorsteps are symbols of joys that it brings.

Similar customs known as scattering and clemencing and souling were practiced in November in the above foreign countries. "The Annual Feast of the Dead," which was called "November Nights" was celebrated as a holiday and called Hallowmas. For ages the church bells would ring in England throughout the night and the Celts would build huge bon fires on top of the hills and merrymaking in general was had. We find Queen Elizabeth's Council forbade this to continue. Later we find that villagers would go from house to house singing and begging for food and drink. This was called "Souling." The belief was that dead souls would come back for charity and if the living would sing and beg for food and drink for the "Lost Souls" their larders would always be filled and those who would give generously would be rewarded from heaven.

"Clemencing" to us is "Apple Bobbing." St. Clements was tied to an anchor and drowned in the sea and it was said that every year the sea would recede seven days far enough back which showed the body of the saint which was entombed in marble. The blacksmiths shaped and weighted the ship anchors and they adopted "Old Clem" as their saint of the blacksmiths and the apple became their symbol of Clem's anchor therefore giving us "Apple Bobbing."

"Cattering" was another day spent in begging and giving. Geese, goblins and

NEW SALEM NEWS

The New Salem social club will meet at the church Tuesday, October 7 to quilt a quilt, and next meeting will be at church and it will be a spend-the-day to do some work. Everyone bring lunch.

SHOULTS DEMONSTRATION CLUB MET LAST THURSDAY

The Shoults Home Demonstration Club met Thursday afternoon, October 8th, in the home of Mrs. Brooks Shoults with ten members and one visitor present.

Business of the club was carried out in order. A very nice and helpful demonstration on "Table Service" was given by the vice-president, Mrs. Clarence Latham. Mrs. Shoults, then served ice cold drinks and cake to all present.

Our next meeting will be held on Thursday, November 12, in the home of Mrs. Stella Shoults. We hope all members will be present and more visitors.

James Oxford of Belfast swore out a warrant for his wife and Charles Cook, who had eloped, charging them with stealing all the furniture in his home.

Shap Kimes of Portageville, Mo., dreamed his home was on fire. Still asleep he jumped through a second-story window and suffered a broken leg.

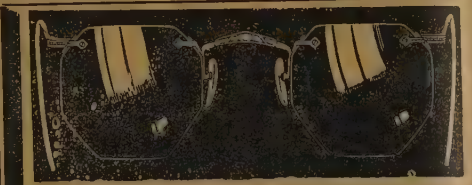

the ghosts will get you if you don't watch out! So the song sung showing sentiment of the beggars was:
Roll! roll!

Gentlemen butler, fill the bowl!
If you fill it of the best,

God will lend your soul to rest!
If you fill it of the small,
You shall have no rest at all!
If you fill it from the bell,
God will send your soul to hell!
So, if the young people visit on the eve of October 31 which is considered All Saints Day, they continuing the festivities of their fathers and enjoying their singing pranks and don't forget, you are posed to serve them something, so prepared for the goblins will get if you don't watch out! How about glass of apple cider, a sip of wine, a slice of cake or let them come and "Bob for the Apples."

Rural Electrification IN ALABAMA

Ask Yourself These Further Questions

By E. C. Easter

CHAPTER VII

6. Your TVA-inspired association will start in business with a mortgage of many thousands of dollars saddled on its back. Suppose the business does not turn out as rosy as TVA promises and the surcharges its members will have to pay are not enough to meet the interest and principal payments of the government or TVA mortgage, won't you and the other members have to pay increased charges and rates? (The TVA contract says you must)

7. TVA requires that members commit themselves to use 662 kilowatt hours per mile a month. Suppose some of the members do not use and PAY FOR their share of these 662 kilowatt hours? Won't YOU have to use and pay for the difference so the association will have enough money to operate on?

8. There is nothing in the TVA twenty-year contract which will prohibit it from raising the rates or requiring your association to raise the rates at any time during that period. On the contrary, TVA contracts have contained this requirement: "If it should appear that the rates provided for in said schedule with the surcharges provided for therein do not under economical and efficient management by association produce revenues sufficient to maintain the system on a self-supporting and financially sound basis, then upon application by ASSOCIATION, AUTHORITY shall consent to such changes in rates as will provide for increased revenue as will place the system upon a self-supporting and financially sound basis when operated under economical and efficient management."

Suppose that your association's rates become higher than the low Alabama Power Company electric rates? What can you do about getting out from under that long twenty-year TVA contract with which your association will be saddled? The Legislature of Alabama has decreed that the Public Service Commission shall have no authority to regulate it.

9. If the TVA co-operative proposition is so good, why do its promoters demand a twenty-year contract? Why not a year to year contract such as Alabama Power Company offers, or a five-year contract at the most?

10. If your association loads itself up with this mortgage of many thousands of dollars and should find itself unable to make a go of the electric light and power business, and thus unable to make the payments, don't you believe Uncle Sam is going to take some steps to enforce payment? (His Home Owners' Loan Corporation has already foreclosed on many homes with government loans on them.)

CHAPTER VIII

Careful Farmers Won't Want to Take These Chances—They Have to Take Chances Enough With the Weather

ASSUMING you are considering membership in one of the TVA associations, you may want to also consider these things:

11. If at some future date a difference of opinion develops between your association or co-operative and the TVA, to whom will you appeal? The TVA will not admit that the State of Alabama has any jurisdiction over it and you can't sue the TVA without its consent. Alabama Power Company is subservient to both Federal and State laws and must also conduct its business in accordance with rules and regulations established by the Alabama Public Service Commission.

12. Do you know that the TVA may cancel the 20-year contract it will impose on your association at any time it chooses under certain conditions, but that your association cannot cancel it?

13. The TVA contracts have specified that co-operative association books be audited by TVA. Will this auditing be done according to the TVA faulty bookkeeping practices so vigorously criticized by the Comptroller General of the United States?

14. Suppose the co-operative associations fails, would you want your name connected with anything that "went bust" even though your participation in it would not make you liable for anything, but your dues?

There are many other things in connection with operation of a rural electric line which you, as a prospective shareholder in a TVA-inspired membership association, might overlook in your enthusiasm. Some of them will be presented for your consideration in our next several advertisements.

This advertisement is the fourth of a series which has also been printed in booklet form. T. H. Martin, President of Alabama Power Company, Birmingham, will cheerfully send a copy to any interested person requesting it.

Strawberries Need Fertilizer In Fall

Auburn, Ala.—The size of next year's strawberry crop will be determined by the treatment farmers give their strawberry plants this fall, states R. W. Taylor of the Alabama Experiment Station in advising that the strawberry plants form their flower buds during the fall and winter months for the crop of the following year.
 "A liberal supply of fertilizer materials should be added to the soil at this season so that growth will not be checked," he says. "To insure an adequate supply, use about 500 pounds per acre of a complete fertilizer, such as a 4-8-4. This will be at the rate of 4 pounds for an ordinary row 100 feet long.
 The fertilizer may be put in the furrows made by barring off the rows, or it may be hoed into the soil around the plants with good results," he states.

George Haley of Gordonville, Tenn., has built out of automobile parts a hencoop elevator on which the hens ride from floor to roost and return. It makes ten round trips a minute.

Former Chilton Youth Sees Fine Future For Young Demos

Gives Interesting News About Chilton Students Now At Jacksonville School

Jacksonville, Ala.
Oct. 18, 1936

Dear Mr. Smith:

I certainly do enjoy reading your paper. It has just as much news as a daily paper near here has.

Chilton County should be congratulated on being able to secure funds to complete the paving of the Clanton-Selma highway. The road will be a great asset to the county and state.

The Chilton County students in school here are taking an active part in the various school and religious activities. Lorene Lecroy is president of the B.S.U.; Arra B. Jones of Plantersville is president of the Y.W.A.; Louis McGhee is vice-president of the Y.M.C.A. and I am president of the student B.Y.P.U.

I have noticed in the paper that the Young Democrats down there are gaining ground which sounds very good.

With best regards, I am,
SIDNEY GRIFFIN.

Judge Parrish Points Out Weakness In Digest Poll

Pointing out that the Republicans lay great stress upon the Literary Digest straw ballot, Judge Parrish declared: "They make the claim that this poll has been uncannily accurate in past campaigns, but they do NOT tell you that never has the Literary Digest compiled a nation-wide ballot in a close election."

"In 1916," he added, "the first ever compiled by this publication, the ballot included only five states. They do not tell you that any one with any knowledge of affairs whatever could have accurately predicted the result of the last four Presidential elections, unless that person was a hopelessly blind partisan."

The Digest ballots, he explained, are sent only to owners of automobiles and persons whose names are listed in telephone directories, though more than half the country's voters do not own automobiles and two-thirds are not listed in telephone directories.

"If we are to argue for the re-election of Roosevelt and a continuance of Democratic policies and principles," he continued, "nothing more need be said or done than to secure a copy of the local newspapers in any city or town in the country date along in February or March of 1933, and read the headlines of business disasters, closing banks, moratoriums, bread-lines poverty, despair and suicide. Then take a look at today's issues of these same papers, whether they are Democratic or Republican and read the headlines telling of rising prices, returning employment, business profits record sales, booming industry, and 'last but by no means least,' the farmers return to prosperity."

Thirty litters of pigs from 20 counties were exhibited by farmers and 4-H club boys at the ton-litter show and sale in Montgomery, Sept. 9-10.

NATIONAL DEBT

to be made. We could do one of two things. Some people who sat across my desk in those days, urged me to let nature take its course, and continue a policy of doing nothing. I rejected that advice. Nature was an angry mood.

"And so the program of this administration protected the small business, the small corporation, the small shop from the wave of deflation which threatened them. To have balanced the budget in 1933 or 1934 or 1935 would have been a crime against the American people."

And so, with those few broad and meaning statements, your President describes the conditions of what was done for YOU in the face of what appeared to be an approaching revolution in the United States because a self-respecting people were hungry and needed to be fed. Can YOU turn your back on a man who has administered like that? Chilton County owes President Roosevelt a debt of sincere gratitude.

Several newspapers and magazines are deep in fight to oust Mr. Roosevelt, and yet, we will be willing to wager that not one of these newspapers or magazines can show that its business has not increased most twice—or more—since the Democrats took office in 1932. Every one of these Republican newspapers have shown a tremendous increase in the volume of advertising they carry now, over the same period of time during the Republican administration. News has more than doubled its advertising business from merchants and other business concerns, and do not hesitate to tell it.

The Republican administration under Mr. Hoover increased the national debt in net amount of three billion dollars in THREE DEPRESSION YEARS. There was little to show for it. President Roosevelt's administration increased the national debt in the amount of about eight billion dollars and there is more to show for it.

Over a billion and a half dollars of this went for payment of the World War veterans' bonus this year instead of in 1945. That payment is now out of the way and is no longer a future obligation of the government.

As for the other six and a half billions, it was just spent—it was spent for something and Americans got something for what was spent. We suspect all every man, woman and child in Chilton County received a part of it, directly or indirectly. Even those are today conducting a campaign against President Roosevelt, benefitted from this program.

We again quote the President: "And now as to this foolish fear about the crushing load this will impose upon your children and mine. This debt will impose upon your children and mine. This debt is going to be paid by oppressive taxation on future generations. It is going to be paid out of an increased national income produced by increasing national prosperity."

The government of this great nation, solvent, strong in credit, is coming through a crisis as grave as without having sacrificed American Democracy or ideals of American life. And yet, we find a few people in Chilton County who have the audacity to stand against a man, crippled, but yet strong and brave enough to face a starving nation and succeed in pulling it through a crisis—in short, biting the hand that fed and fed them.

Every voter in Chilton County should go to the polls on November 3rd and cast a ballot for the great President since Washington. Certainly our county express its appreciation for what he has done for it in this humble manner.

Farmers Advised Paint Their Buildings

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers should paint their buildings because (1) much longer; (2) look better and are more sanitary.

"In addition a painted farm building indicates pride, progress, and the part of the owner," says the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, "advocating that farmers paint farm buildings as soon as it is not needed in the field."

"To get a good job," he says, "the surface must be clean and dry. Painting is to be done on a dry surface. No cleaning will be necessary, a slight brushing to remove dirt. However, if surface is weather beaten, all loose material should be removed with a wire brush down to firm wood."

Literary Digest Straw Increases In Absurdity

Returns in the Literary Digest straw poll grow curiously every day. Latest returns show Landon leading by three to one. But of 653,630 ballot recorded in 1935 are from voters who supported Hoover in 1932, while only 290,675 are supporters of Roosevelt that year. Yet in 1932 those who voted Democratic numbered 22,800,000 to 15,000,000 Republican. In other words 43 per cent of the Digest ballots mailed to the 59 per cent of voters who were Democratic in 1932.

Mr. Jesse Sam Gowan and Mr. and Mrs. John Hollis of Mitchell Dam returned Wednesday after attending the Trans Club State meeting in Huntsville.

"Never Again" Says Former Republican Voter In Chilton County

Here's A Man Who Knows What It Means To Have His Children Fed When Hungry And Clothed When Naked; He's For The Democrats

A well known citizen of Chilton County walked into the News office one day last week and sat down at the editor's desk with a sincere, honest look in his eyes. "If you have time Mr. Editor, I want you to listen to a story," he said. "I have a wife and eleven children. We live out near the Double Bridges. I notice that some people have been telling of their experiences under the Republican administration and also under the present Democratic administration. I want to tell you mine and there are lots of other cases in this county just like it. "It was back in 1930 and 1931 that I raised six bales of cotton and sold it for six cents a pound, after I tried holding it, waiting for a better price. I had seven children to put in school at that time and if it hadn't been for our friends who gave us something to eat and wear, my family would have been one among those that practically starved to death, and right here in Chilton County. I had to get out, cut wood and sell it at any price I could get, to feed my family in those lean Republican years. "My kids went almost bare and it brought tears to my eyes to see my children suffering from the cold when they went to school just because I couldn't find work, couldn't sell my farm produce. It's true that I have always voted the Republican ticket, but mister, let me tell you something. I'll never vote that ticket again. "The Democrats and Mr. Roosevelt have done so much for families such as mine that I can't see how any man or woman could vote anything but Democratic. "Why, just as soon as you Democrats put Mr. Roosevelt in office, he started pushing things around and helping our poor farmers who couldn't help themselves, and it makes my blood boil to hear some of our citizens in this county say that Roosevelt hasn't done anything. "Why, it was them and the Republicans that never did anything. In the Spring of 1933 I borrowed ten cents a pound on my cotton, bought my family some food and clothes, paid my guano (Continued to Back Page, this Section)

I. S. LEVINE

A new five and ten cent store will soon open in Clanton, and in addition to a complete line of merchandise in this price range, the store will carry a new and complete line of dry goods and ready-to-wear.

This announcement was made this week by I. S. Levine and Sol Levine, brothers, who have climbed the ladder of success in business in Clanton. The new store is now almost ready for business. The Levine Brothers stated, it is located on Main Street, next door to the Big Four Hardware Co. It will not be difficult to locate this new and progressive business as it will have one of the most attractive fronts in Clanton.

The Messrs. Levine showed a representative of the News through the building this week, and from all appearances, this new concern will be an outstanding credit to the City of Clanton and the entire county. Long piles of new, up-to-date merchandise was on tables, awaiting their turn to be placed in the new fixtures that grace the entire front section of the building, and painters were still busy decorating. ## YOUNG LADY SAYS WE NEED A DEMO- CRATIC COMMISSIONER AND DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENT

Dear Readers:

Voters, what are you going to do about changing Commissioners?

I do hope that the next Commissioners, Republicans or Democrats, will fix the roads and bridges, because up in the northern part of Beat 4 they don't fix the roads like the commissioner did before this one we have now.

When we had a Republican president, we had a Republican commissioner and he fixed the roads. Now we want to try a Democrat Commissioner and also want to keep the same President.

I don't know what the people would have done if the commissioner before had not put the roads in good shape when he went out of office. The people would have not been able to get their mail by now.

I do hope that the next commissioner,

MUCH INTEREST IS BEING SHOWN IN NEW IDEA

New Crop Would Bring Large Sum To This County's Farmers

A group of 50 farmers met at the Court House in Clanton Tuesday night of last week. The possibilities of developing a Tomato Industry here were discussed. From the information given by farmers who had visited the West Tennessee tomato producing area and by Mr. Hayden, Agricultural Agent of the L. & N. Railroad, who is familiar with the tomato production in different parts of the South, it seems that we might develop this industry to the advantage of Chilton County farmers.

It seems that tomatoes grown here should go to market at a time of the year when there would be very little competition. Tomatoes properly grown here should go to market as green wrapped tomatoes the first few days of June.

It would cost the farmers approximately $300.00 an acre to produce an acre of tomatoes. The West Tennessee growers harvest from 135 to 200 bushels of tomatoes per acre and receive an average of about $1.50 per bushel delivered to the shipping point. If we could grow tomatoes this would indicate that we could make considerable profit.

We are calling another meeting Friday, 7:00 p. m., October 23, at the Court House in Clanton. We would like to have a large group of farmers and business men present at this meeting.

Very truly yours,

J. W. FANT,

YOUNG LADY SAYS WE NEED A DEMO- CRATIC COMMISSIONER AND DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENT

Republican or Democrat, will fix the roads and bridges up in the northern part of Beat Four. There are roads that have washed out two feet deep. Certain bridges are to where an automobile can hardly get over, and it is real dangerous for a pair of mules to go over. They hauled the lumber there two months ago but have never fixed the bridge.

So come on voters and let's put in a Democratic commissioner and president.

Two Young Ramer Farmers Awarded Highest Honor In State Organization

It's the Old Standpat Spirit
More recently, one of the prospective Presidential electors in New York was accused of being a Communist, and thereby it was sought to show that the President leaned that way, despite his direct statements that he repudiated Communism and wanted no votes from individuals or groups who got their political orders from anti-American sources. In vain even those employers who had tilted with the prospective labor struggles publicly declared that they were being one of the syndicalist group he had actually purged the unions with which he was affiliated of the Communists.

Hayes-Brooks Wedding

Solemnized October 14

The marriage of Miss Alice Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Douglas Brooks, and Minter Carney Hayes, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hayes of Clanton, was solemnized at a beautiful ceremony Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, in the First Baptist Church of Andalusia, in presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends.

As the guests were arriving a program of wedding music was played by James McClendon, organist, of Birmingham, and Mrs. W. L. Longshore, violinist, also of Birmingham. Miss Mary Frances Suggs, of Montgomery, sang, accompanied by Mrs. Matthew Dick, of Opp. The bridal chorus from Lohengrin announced the approach of the bride party and the wedding march from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" was used as the recessional, and were played by Mrs. Dick.

The ushers were: Alex Hayes and James Wade, of Clanton; Tommie Sewell, of Titus, and Tisdale Brooks, of Andalusia.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Barbara Brooks, as maid of honor, and Mrs. James Wade, sister of the bridegroom, as matron of honor. The bridesmaids' group included, Miss Elizabeth Sessions, of Columbiana; Miss Mary Harris, of Birmingham; Miss Virginia Cook, of Clanton; and Miss Ruth Powell of Andalusia.

The attendants were gowned alike in models of taffeta, featuring the color tones of copper glow, precious gold and starboard green. They presented a pretty picture, their quaint dresses being fashioned with bouffant skirts and tight basques. Their bonnets of brown velvet were in keeping with the style of dress. They carried arm bouquets of Talsman roses tied with two-toned copper glow and gold ribbon.

Little Helen Hayes, of Clanton, niece of the groom, served as flower maid. Her frock, made of gold taffeta, was of the same design as the bridesmaids, and she carried a miniature colonial bouquet.

Escorted by her father, who later gave her in marriage, the bride was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, J. W. Hayes, of Clanton. The ring ceremony was performed by Dr. J. A. Cook, pastor of the church.

A radiant figure was the bride in a wedding gown of lustrous ivory wedding ring satin, a Paton model, made along princess lines, with built-in train. Seeded pearl clips were used on either side of the square neck which had a small upstanding collar in the back. A misty veil of illusion extended the length of the train and was fastened to her hair with a wreath of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of white rosebuds and lilies of the valley, tied with white satin ribbon, and holding a detachable corsage which she used later on her going away costume.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks entertained at a reception immediately after the ceremony at their home on East Three Notch Street. Receiving at the door were Mrs. Brooks and Mrs. J. P. Hayes, mother of the groom. In the receiving line were members of the wedding party and the bride and groom.

The bride's book was kept by Miss Rebecca Darling. Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. J. S. Waits, Mrs.

The bride's table was appointed in crystal, and overlaid with lace. A large three-tiered cake, topped with a miniature bouquet of lilies of the valley centered the table. Prisms vases of crystal were filled with white rosebuds and valley lilies, and crystal candelabra with white tapers completed the setting.

rating the store.

I. S. Levine, the senior partner of the new firm was formerly manager of Mazer's Department Store here, and Sol, the junior partner, has made quite a reputation in Clanton in the dry goods business.

"We hope to be able to have our store open by Saturday of this week," they stated. "In fact, we will be open for business but it will be a few days before we announce our real big formal opening which will interest everybody in this county."

Clanton and the entire county should feel a pardonable pride in this new business concern. It is headed by two of the most progressive young business men in this section. The people of this section will find at Levine's, a most cordial welcome and will also find that it will be a pleasure to shop at this store. The proprietors stated they wanted the people to watch for their formal opening next week.

bill, sent my kids to school, and had a little money to rattle. Now, that's what makes people self-respecting and I thank God for a man like President Roosevelt.

"I know the little girl who wrote you last week and begged again for Mr. Roosevelt, and she is telling the truth when she said she had to plow when Hoover was president. That's not right—but I know it was necessary to try to make ends meet."

"When I feel free, I know when I'm burned, and mister, I'm not voting the Republican ticket again. You Democrats have done too much for me and other people and made us happy again. I'm not one to forget favors and I'm for Mr. Roosevelt and the Democrats one hundred per cent."

That man is C. J. Moatts, one of the county's well known and well liked citizens. Mr. Moatts says that he is glad to tell this story and that he feels Chilton County owes the President a debt of gratitude. The only way this county can return the favor to the President is to give him an overwhelmingly "vote on November 3rd."

On the 10th day of October, 1936, he heard the summons that carried him to the great beyond whose bourne no traveler returns. He was buried in the cemetery at Billingsley October 11, 1936, with full Masonic honors.

Now, therefore the Supreme Grand Master of the Universe has seen fit to call Brother Marlar from this life and Whereas, from the hands have dropped forever the working tools of life, and Whereas, Clanton Lodge has lost one of its most loyal and faithful members.

DEMOCRATS PLAN HUGE RALLY

Brilliant Carnival Coming Here The General Public Is Cordially Invited

Everybody In Chilton County and Surroundings Invited To Attend Huge Rally To Be Held In Clanton On Saturday

It has been many, many months since Clanton and Chilton County will have such goings-on as will take place in the county seat on Saturday of this week, according to an announcement given the News. Bands will be playing, music will fill the air, parades will take place, and people will be having more fun than anybody. Clanton stores are offering special bargains for this eventful day, also, and it will be a real red letter day in Clanton.

However, there will be a little serious side to this big day. Not too serious, and even enjoyable, the whole program. Two of the state's most outstanding speakers and attorneys will be in the city to deliver addresses at the courthouse.

The Boys Industrial School Band, of Birmingham, will arrive in Clanton shortly after noon to give a street concert and a concert in the courthouse auditorium as well as stage a parade. Then the brilliant circus band, all white-robed, of the famous "Happy Days Shows" will arrive in the city sometime Saturday morning to join in with the festivities of this tremendous Democratic Rally during the afternoon and night.

The entire program will be FREE. Everybody will enjoy the music and the speaking. Hon. James S. Parrish, prominent attorney of Montgomery, who is being mentioned over the state as a probable candidate for lieutenant-governor of Alabama, will address a huge crowd at the courthouse at seven o'clock, Saturday night.

Hon. Thomas H. Watts, another well known attorney of Montgomery will speak at two-thirty o'clock Saturday afternoon. He is a grandson of the former governor of Alabama, the late Governor Watts. The entire population of the county should hear these two outstanding men speak here Saturday.

Come on to Clanton, bring the entire family, take advantage of the morning by shopping, hear the two band concerts and the speaking. DON'T LET ANYTHING KEEP YOU FROM HEARING AND SEEING THESE TWO OUTSTANDING PROGRAMS

R. L. OUSLEY DESIRES TO SERVE DIST.

Life-Long Resident Of This County Desires Place As Commissioner

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY: I have seen a great number of our voters, though I know I have failed to see many of you, and this is not because I did not want to but time will not permit.

I was born and reared in Chilton County, and I have lived here all of my life, and I want to say that I love Chilton County and its people, and I want the people to give me an opportunity to serve them as their Commissioner from District Number 3.

Thanking you for any consideration you will give me, I am,

Sincerely your friend,

R. L. OUSLEY.

JUDGE SMITH PRESENTS SOUND REASONS FOR DEMO SUPPORT

Asks Voters Of County To Stay With The Party
And Man That Put Country On Its Feet After Years Of Suffering

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY: "We have only a short time now before you will again have the privilege of exercising your constitutional rights by going to the polls on November 3rd, to cast your ballot for the men you wish to handle the affairs of your country, state and nation."

"As a citizen of your county, and as an official, I want to call your attention to the tremendous benefits Chilton County has received from the hands of the understanding Democratic Administration with our great man Franklin D. Roosevelt at its head."

"It is needless for me to go into details and enumerate the large number of things that have been done for our County and our people. It is needless for me to remind you that our farmers were in dire circumstances during the four years under the leadership preceding the administration of President Roosevelt. Farms were being sold. Homes were being lost. Banks were closed. Business was paralyzed. People were begging for work, and were pined for jobs. They were asking for food and clothing and were entitled to local charity. The voters of Chilton County can not afford to go to the polls on next Tuesday and vote against the progress which has been made under the leadership of our great President, Franklin D. Roosevelt. He has done so much for the small business man, the laborer and the farmers of our country, who were forgotten and forsaken by the former administration."

"We all well remember the trying years of a National Administration that had the time and the opportunity to do something to relieve a suffering country. They failed to try anything."

"We remember too, that when this great nation of ours, went into office such Democratic officials as Roosevelt and his excellent ticket business became better, people were given work and now we are definitely back on even footing, on a level that every self-respecting man and woman want to be and should be."

"We can repay a part of this debt to our great President by going to the polls on next Tuesday and casting a ballot that will mean a vote for this man, and the National, State and County party to which he belongs. Let me ask every voter in the County to do this. He did not fail us. Now let's not fail him."

"Respectfully yours,"

J. LEE SMITH,

"Judge of Probate."

An Invitation

To The Former Republican Voters Of This County

As the official Democratic newspaper of Chilton County, and as a newspaper whose editorial policy is for community interest and the interest of the farmer and working man, the News extends to the Republicans of Chilton County an invitation to come into the general election on next Tuesday and cast their ballots in behalf of the Democratic Party and President Roosevelt.

It is reported that a well known automobile manufacturer notified his thousands of employees in 1932 that if Roosevelt was elected the tremendous plant would close down. It didn't. Instead they are advertising they have sold more cars in the past four years than ever before. So, things will move along, but possibly much better under the leadership of the Democratic Party.

Let's keep Chilton County in direct line with your Democratic state and national government. It means much more to be in step than out of step.

FIGURES vs. PROPAGANDA

Whether the national Democratic administration and President Roosevelt's recovery plan gave Chilton County citizens any material aid and placed the county back to business and financial normalcy is best shown in sworn statements issued by the two largest banks in the county.

On October 15th, 1932, when we were under the national administration before President Roosevelt, the deposits in the two banks in Clanton totalled $547,427.10.

On October 15th, 1936, at a time when those men, (Democrats) who are interested in the welfare of the poor man and had his interest at heart were in charge of our government, the deposits in the two banks totalled One Million, two hundred sixty-two thousand, five hundred sixty-nine dollars.

Right here in our own good city, our county seat, we have more than twice on deposit this year than we did under the Republican regime. Does that mean anything to YOU? This money belongs to Chilton County people.

WHO'S WHO AROUND THESE PARTS?

Last week, in a blaring statement, the official Republican organ of this county declared that the Democrats are full of fraud in handling absentee ballots, and made accusations to that effect.

Well do we remember in the Republican primary of the past May, there was a considerable stir-up in that party regarding the alleged mis-use of absentee ballots, alleged forgeries, double voting and what not, right in our own county. And too, we don't remember anyone accusing them of fraudulent work.

We remember also that a certain Notary Public of the county stated his name was signed to many Republican absentee ballots when he declares he knows nothing of having signed them.

So what? Who are these people accusing the Democrats of mis-use of absentee ballots? Where were they when their own party was apparently burling with corruptness in this matter. We presume it is perfectly all right if they do it. But, no, it just won't do even if a Democrat makes the slightest slip. 'Tis most amusing.

Be Sure You Receive All Your Paper

Again this week your News comes to you in two sections, full of news and information. Be sure you receive both sections.

"MANY WOULD LIKE TO KNOW

H. LEE DAVIS WITH HIS SOUND TRUCK TELLS COUNTY

This equipment, considered one of the most powerful in the south, brought a huge crowd to hear Governor Graves in Clanton last night, whose address went into the large speakers of the truck. Mr. Davis rendered considerable aid to the campaign with his powerful sound apparatus.

PUBLIC IS INVITED TO INSPECT REXALL MILLION DOLLAR TRAIN

When it comes into this section on its 29,000-mile tour of the country from coast-to-coast, the United Drug Company's million dollar Rexall Train will be thrown open to public inspection of its four exhibition cars. The train is specially built for conventions of Rexall druggists. Stops will be made in 150 cities and towns, in which 109 conventions will be held aboard the train.

Tickets To Enter This Modern Train In Birmingham November 6th Can Be Secured At Upchurch Drug Company, Local Rexall Store

The Rexall Train, world's first convention train, which will stop in this section during its eight month journey, is creating tremendous interest along the route of its 29,000-mile tour through the United States and Canada. In the first three months of the trip, more than 800,000 inspected the exhibits aboard the 12-car train and its specially built 350-ton streamlined locomotive.

Designed especially for convention purposes, the train includes four cars for merchandise exhibits, two cars which comfortably accommodate 250 in convention sessions and are used at night for dancing by those attending the convention, a cafeteria-diner serving lunch and dinner for Rexall agents and their guests at the meetings and a lounge car for their convenience. The entire train is air-conditioned. A power car—the first built by the Pullman Company for such an enterprise—two cars with sleeping accommodations and a private car for the United Drug Co. executives compose the remainder of the train. A permanent crew including the company's sales officials of 50 is carried on the train.

Hauling the 12-car Rexall Train is a gigantic 350-ton locomotive its streamlined specially designed by the New York Central Railroad. This engine is pulling the train on its 29,000-mile journey without relief, an unprecedented record in railroad annals. An engine foreman has been assigned to the train for the entire trip to supervise sectional engineers who run the train in the different parts of the country.

If Your Vote Helped Even These Families, Then It Was Certainly Worth All Of It

More True Stories Of What YOUR Democratic Administration Has Meant To The Farmers Of Chilton County

If YOU thought that you could do a neighbor a favor—or even do a human being a favor without much effort—then read these stories of what happened to these families right here in Chilton County, and what politics did for them.

"It's An Injustice"
Out near Pool's Cross Roads lives W. R. Ledbetter and his family. Mr. Ledbetter is a fine man, honest and hard-working. But, when high-toned politicians back in the so called "Hoover Prosperity" Days, began to clamp down on the ordinary man, Mr. Ledbetter and his family of eight children and his mother and father suffered. The latter two died last March.

But here's Mr. Ledbetter's own words, "Back in 1929 I actually lost everything I had. I didn't have much but it was something. That went right into 1930 and in 1931 I lacked fifty cents of even making anything.
"In 1932 and 1933, I was still having a tough time, like everybody else I suppose. But when the Democrats and President Roosevelt kind of put things in hand, I borrowed some money and the Resettlement Administration to get a new start farming.

"I cultivated twelve acres with a steer and the seed they gave me. I will always thank those men, although in high positions, who say that we farmers were suffering. Then in 1935 I was able to buy a mule with the money I received from the government and after pushing right on into another year I was able to pay out of debt and had some money left to buy clothes for my wife and my children, and now I am back on my feet, thanks to the Democrats who know how to take care of the ordinary fellow.

"Any man who has to work for a living, and there is lots of them, will be doing himself and his neighbor an injustice to vote against President Roosevelt and the Democratic ticket. That's all I've got to say.

"The ONLY President"
"He is the ONLY president who ever tried to help the men and women who needed it, and especially the man who plows the steer," says Will T. Carter, who resides near Pletcher and who is one of the county's sound hard-working farmers, when telling of his experiences.

"My wife, eight children and myself had some hard times back when the Republicans had control of everything," Mr. Carter stated. "And I know what I am talking about, too.

"Any man who remembers back in 1929 and 30, should know what an ordinary family went through with and what we all prayed for. But, when the Democrats came in I was able to borrow a little money from the government through the Resettlement Administration and get a foot-hold. They put me in good shape. Of course, it took me some time, but I knew they didn't expect to just hand everything out to a fellow. It had to work. But they gave me a chance to make a decent living for my family and now we are all happy. I've cleared all my debts and we are in good shape for the winter. Yes sir he is the only president that ever did anything for the man who had to plow a steer."

'Lost All I Had'

"I lost all I had in one year and then gained it back in another year, thanks to the Democrats," says Luther Payton, who lives on Route 2, Clanton.

Mr. Payton has a fine wife and two fine children. He stated that the government under the Democrats helped him with a loan and the past year after working hard, he was able to pay all his old, back debts, bought a good mule, had plenty of corn, meat, lead peas, peanuts, syrup and is now going to get a cow.

"I made five and a half bales of cotton and at the price President Roosevelt fixed things I am now in fine shape for the winter and for next year."

"Roosevelt is the only president who has ever helped the farmer and I am for the Democrats one hundred per-

The Council voted to reach County Club to appoint a committee of three for the following: Citizenship, Scholarship and Farm Bureau at their next club meetings.

The County Council will work up some plan at next meeting for development of our clubs, on membership and attendance, it was also voted that each club member donate five cents to purchase gift for Miss Pardue in appreciation of her work. This amount was to be taken out of the County Council funds until it can be collected from each club member.

There being no other business the meeting adjourned.

Accomplishments Home Demonstration Work of Chilton County, 1935-36

The three County Chairmen are:

(1) Scholarship, Mrs. W. A. Adams;

Outstanding things accomplished in the county are:

1. Stalls were sold for funds for cripple children and the amount of $35 was raised for this purpose.

2. Sponsored Chilton County News contest among clubs. In order to make funds for treasury the clubs decided to enter the contest for the Chilton County News. As a result they won first prize amounting to $150.

3. Sponsored Attendance contest. In order to increase attendance at clubs over the County the contest was sponsored whereby the club having the greatest attendance at the meetings and at the Rally would win first, second or third prize accordingly. Prizes given by the Council were: First prize 25-quart pressure cooker; second prize 1 can sealer. These are to be awarded October 31, date set for rally.

4. Sent delegates to short course held for state 4-H girls. Four girls' way and expenses were paid amounting to $20.00.

5. The County Council met October 17 and decided to continue rally day which had been postponed due to epidemic of Infantile paralysis. A splendid program is being planned and at least three hundred club women are expected to attend.

6. Attendance contest to continue: Another pressure cooker and can sealer will be given away during new year to encourage greater attendance and this time the contest will include addition of new members for clubs.

Generally speaking:

There are fifteen Home Demonstration Club organized in county with an enrollment of three hundred and eighty-five women. Each club has its officers and leaders. The project for the year is "Foods and Nutrition." Table service being the first demonstration given and twenty lovely tables with dinners have set and served. Much interest has been manifested in developing the cultural side of this demonstration.

The picture above shows the Thorsby Home Demonstration Club women and the "Well Set Table" in full display. The leaders are in action giving the demonstration and club ladies and their guests are shown seated at table being properly served. The Home Demonstration Agent is standing at the front left of picture and next to Miss Grace can be seen Mrs. Anna Phalin, president of County Council; next to her can be seen Mrs. Lena Downs, secretary of Council and in center in white is Mrs. Charles Howard, treasurer. Attending the meeting of the Thorsby Ladies Demonstration Club.

Readers of a Colorado paper were amused recently by the headline "Mutton and Lamb Marry in Denver." But the facts were not as strange as that. The couple who got married were Douglas Hutton and Mary Laub.

Johnny Gentry, a Kansas boy, is very fond of a pet pig he calls "Doc," and for a very good reason. When Johnny's foot was crushed some time ago, skin from the pig was grafted on the injured member and he was saved from being a cripple.

A supposed bad debt of B. A. Sellers of Burlington, N. C., proved to be a good account, for he received a check to cover it, plus interest for 31 years.

3 GOP Polls In Kansas Leaves Landon In Lurch

Staff correspondents of metropolitan newspapers in recent tours of Kansas confirm the fear, expressed by ace Republican columnists that Gov. Landon would be lucky to carry his home State by 20,000. His majority for governor was 62,153 in 1934, but, as in 1932, two years ago he supported every policy of the Roosevelt Administration. The Federal Deposit Insurance law was the only measure he had opposed and it was already in operation.

Without exception, the city newsmen relate that the main argument being made by the G.O.P. high command in behalf of Gov. Landon in Kansas is based on "home pride" and "favorite son."

Another scheme in behalf of the Republican nominee started in Kansas is the "straw vote." Three Republican newspapers have been conducting them and in each instance they reveal more than was contemplated.

The only one yet mentioned outside of Kansas is that of the Parsons Sun, in the Southeast, as the paper is owned by Clyde M. Reed, prominent Republican, former governor and for whom Landon served as secretary—for a brief interval. Parsons is a strong Republican city in a strong Republican county, yet the latest figures show Landon leading Roosevelt by only 14 in the first 3,000 votes counted.

As revealing are the results of The Hutchinson News poll, in the South-central part of the State. The News is a strong G.O.P. paper; Hutchinson, the fourth largest city in Kansas and also the county of Reno, are decidedly Republican. Located in the district represented by Congressman Clifford Hope, co-author with Hoover, Peek, Aldrich et al of the Landon "farm program," it appeared that the News poll was designated to aid Mr. Hope. Which it is doing, he having nearly twice as many votes as his Democratic opponent in the latest returns. However, the figures the same day also showed Roosevelt 6,562; Landon 3,252.

Much further West, in Congressman Hope's home town of Garden City, the Evening Telegram, staunch Republican county organ, is conducting a poll which at last accounts showed Hope 634, his opponent 225; Roosevelt 485; Landon 385.

Coolidge carried Kansas in 1924 by 251,252; Hoover in 1928 by 120,691; Roosevelt by 74,706 and Landon in 1934—on a Roosevelt platform by 62,153.

Arnold Tolven of Portland, Ore., has the hobby of collecting records of famous camp meetings. He avers that the biggest camp meeting ever held was staged in Kentucky about a century ago, when 17 preachers got singers told during six days and nights. Emotional excitement became so great that 1,000 fainted and 500 others jerked and bucked.

Unmasking Time

"The best work that can be done by friends of Roosevelt is in vigorously, clearly and positively refuting the false statements by speakers on the other side. It is time to nail the lies and to unmask the hypocrites."—Columbia State (Dem.)

CASH FARM INCOME GAINS HALF BILLION IN SIX MONTHS

American farmers received $462,000,000 more for products marketed during the first six months of this year than in the like period last year. Cash receipts from sales of farm products amounted to $3,132,000,000 during the first half of 1936, compared with $2,660,000,000 in the first six months of 1935, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics at Washington.

In addition, farmers received $169,000,000 in government payments this year but this was 40 per cent less than was paid in the first half of 1935.

Announcing gains ranging from 6 per cent in the South Central States to 22 per cent in the West North Central States, the Bureau said:

"Some groups of products, such as meat animals, dairy products and fruits, averaged slightly higher in price the first half of this year. In general, however, the gain in cash receipts was due to the larger quantities of products sold, since the prices of farm products as a whole averaged slightly lower this year than last. Consumer purchasing power has greatly improved during the last three years and this fact, coupled with the curtailment in supply, makes a prospect for generally advancing prices during the coming marketing season."

WEST END - CLANTON

Fine Meeting Is Held To Push Tomato Crop

More than fifty farmers met at the City Hall Friday night to discuss the possibilities of developing a green wrap tomato industry in Chilton County. This is the third of a series of meetings held in promoting this project. Those present were very enthusiastic over the tomato becoming an important cash crop in this county. From the information gotten from the tomato growing areas it appears that it would cost about $30.00 an acre to secure plants, fertilizer, and stakes, and produce an acre of tomatoes. In western Tennessee the tomato growers produce 125 to 200 bushels of tomatoes per acre. These growers receive from $1.25 to $1.50 per bushel at their shipping point. This indicates that there is considerable profit in tomatoes.

We have just as good land and just as good farmers in Chilton County as there are in the tomato growing area, therefore, we believe that it would be to the advantage of the farmers in this area to plant a few tomatoes and add another cash crop to what we have.

This crop would harvest just after our strawberries moved to the market and would fit very well into our scheme of farming.

In order to make this project work it would be necessary to have 100 acres or more planted in tomatoes in this area. We have at the present time 55 acres and we believe that we will have no trouble in getting the 100 or more acres. It is necessary, however, if a farmer is planning to grow tomatoes next spring that he see the County Agent before November 7.

POPLAR SPRINGS

Our Sunday school and B.Y.P.U. are progressing nicely. We had a large attendance Sunday and Sunday night but there is room for improvement yet. Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days. We had a large attendance at both services. There are lots yet that ought to come and one and all let's be a booster and make plans to start to build some Sunday school and B.Y.P.U. rooms for our church. To do this we need the co-operation of every member of our church. So we are looking for you to meet us at Sunday school next Sunday.

and tell him how much he wants to plant. It is important that we have this information in order to be able to secure good plants next spring.

All persons interested in this project should either contact the County Agent or write him stating the number of acres or fractional part of an acre that he would like to plant. We would not advise the average farmer to plant more than one acre. If interested please let me hear from you at an early date.

ARE YOU A CLUB MEMBER?

Are you a club member? If not, why not? To the Ladies of Chilton County: We are expecting to do some wonderful work this year. Join the Home Demonstration Club and work with us. Ignorance is no excuse now days. We have teachers—we can still learn how to better keep our homes. So why let such opportunity pass by. Join our club and be a wide-awake member. Let's be faithful workers and not slackers. We have a fine agent. If you have not met her you should. You will like her.

October 30—Montevallo High.
November 6—Siluria High.
November 13—Holtville High.

November 27—Mapleville.

The exact time for the game Friday will be announced later.

Rufus White With Polk Bros. Motor Co. Now

Mr. Rufus White, one of Clanton's best known and most successful used car salesmen has joined the sales force of Polk Bros. Motor Co., Chrysler and Plymouth dealer.

Rufus is very enthusiastic about the new 1937 Chrysler and Plymouth cars which will be announced elsewhere in these columns this week, and he states he knows you will want to trade your old car in on one of these new Chryslers or Plymouths as soon as you see them, so he is making some very attractive prices on the present stock of used cars in order to move the entire stock this week, so that the Polk Bros. Motor Co. will be in position to accept all used cars offered them in trade on the new 1937 Chrysler-Plymouth cars at very satisfactory prices.

So if you are in the market for a used car or a better used car than what you have, call to see Rufus this week at Polk Bros. Motor Co. and let him show you the used car clearance bargains he has this week.

New Manager for Mazer's Has Arrived To Assume Duties

Saul Goldstein Brings Asset To City; Will Make Home Here

Among the newcomers to Clanton and the county are Mr. and Mrs. Saul J. Goldstein, of Henderson, Ky., who arrived here last Friday to make their home and to assume management of the well known Mazer's Department Store of Clanton.

Clanton may consider itself most fortunate in having this popular young couple select this city for their home. They come here with most outstanding accomplishments behind them and with bright prospects for the future. For two years, Mr. Goldstein was a member of the high school faculty of Henderson, Ky., teaching Latin and Social Science and before he arrived in Clanton to assume his new duties the News received a most complimentary statement from the Henderson Junior Chamber of Commerce, which is published below.

He is a native of Alabama, received his early education in Birmingham where he was born. He holds a B.S. Degree from the University of Alabama and is now expecting his M.A. Degree from the Columbia University of New York, where he took post graduate work. For some time following he was assistant manager of the Newbreak Truck Co., of New York, in charge of advertising and exports.

At present he is serving as national executive secretary of Kappa Nu fraternity, ending his fifth year in this position. Having won first honors with a play he wrote while in Henderson he became an honorary charter member of the Henderson, Ky., Little Theatre, and is a charter member of the Henderson Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. and Mrs. Goldstein stated they are delighted with Clanton, although they have been having a little difficulty in locating a home. They are extremely anxious to meet as many people as possible as they intend to give of their time toward all civic movements of the city and county.

Those dropping in to meet this couple will find them most congenial, and this large store is fortunate in securing Mr. Goldstein as its manager.

"At a regular meeting of the Henderson Junior Chamber of Commerce, held in the City of Henderson, Ky., on Thursday, October 22, 1935 at Hotel Soaper, the following resolution was introduced and adopted, to-wit:

"Whereas one of our good members and a good citizen of Henderson has seen fit to remove his family and effects from our midst and

"Whereas, his leaving will be a distinct loss to this body and Henderson at large, but an advantage to the City of Clanton.

Now therefore, we the members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Henderson offer to Saul M. Goldstein our best wishes for his success in his new undertaking and express to him, our very great regret in losing him as a citizen of Henderson.

"Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this body and a copy thereof furnished the press of Clanton, Ala.

Here Is A Man Who Has Seen What The Democrats Have Done For The Farmer

"Just back from Southeast Alabama where I spent a pleasant week and met many fine and jolly people. They all seem to be of 'one mind,' and to be a better spirit of cooperation. That is, they are all for the New Deal Program. I went to the fields where several groups of men were picking peanuts. These men were smiling and always ready to talk when they saw the badge you wore that said 'I want Roosevelt again.' They would say 'Yes he is the man.' It was very interesting to listen to those farmers tell of their hope of the future. 'If Roosevelt is elected again' and then, 'I do not see how any farmer or working man could vote against him because he is the only president that has ever done anything worthwhile for the farmer.'"

"I would like to tell a complete story about one man in Dale County, but I will tell just a few important things. In 1932 he had a share-cropper who planted 30 acres in peanuts. After harvesting, picking and marketing was paid they had 30 cents each left. They sold these peanuts for $1200 to $1400 per ton. Today, they are making $40.00 per ton above harvesting and marketing. He said 'This year they had to take from two to three cents a pound for hogs and look we get now, a fool can see the difference.'"

"I visited the Federal Land office in Ozark in search of a farm for rent. Their answer was, 'no farms for rent. We have more than we have farms. We have 130 to 140 farms since July. We take in so many farms during depression that we had rather sell to rent.'"

"After visiting this wonderful life of our state and hearing these people's plea for their brave and hard leader, I am convinced more ever that we need our same old man again and I am making request that you do your own thing, take stock in 1936 to see if we are better off now than in 1932. Vote your conviction."

PASTORS OF CHILTON-UNITY ASSOCIATION TO MEET MON

The pastors of the Chilton-Unity Association will meet in their regular session next Monday, November 2, at 10 o'clock A.M., at the Clanton Baptist church.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS BAPTIST S.S. OFFICERS MEET

At the call of Mr. O.M. Webb, superintendent of Clanton Baptist Sunday school, forty officers and teachers attended a meeting in the basement of the church Wednesday night of last week. This was the best attended meeting of the officers and teachers of the Sunday school probably that has ever been held. Members of the Home Makers class served luncheon—or rather a full rounded dinner—to the attendants.

The purpose of the meeting was to formulate plans for the future of the school, which plans were presented by the superintendent. Some of the plans were adopted and some were not, but the meeting went off in a most satisfactory and harmonious manner.

One of the main plans adopted was that the school will begin promptly at 9:45 every Sunday morning; fifteen minutes will be allowed for class preliminaries, thirty minutes for teaching the lesson. One bell will be sounded at 10:30, and five minutes allowed for assembly. Ten minutes will be consumed for the closing exercises; and 15 minutes intermission will be allowed between Sunday school and preaching.

A committee was appointed to arrange for additional bells to be installed in the various departments; and another committee was appointed to arrange for a report register or blackboard to be used by the secretary in making his report to the general assembly.

Several other important matters were introduced by the superintendent and discussed by himself and Dr. S.J. Ezell, the pastor, and others.

Dr. Ezell announced that a study course would be taught at the church during the week of November 2nd to 6th. The course will be taught by Miss Mary Ellen Caver of Birmingham, a returned missionary from Africa. A good attendance at this training school is urged.

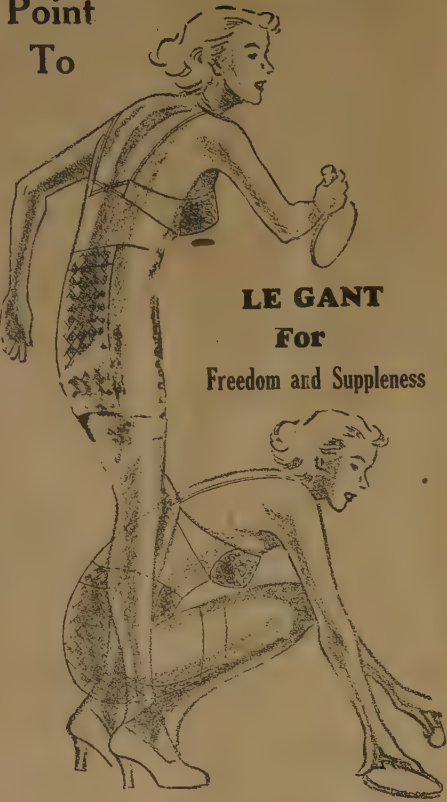

Superintendent Webb expressed himself as being very glad over the splendid attendance at the meeting, and voiced the hope that the same interest in the Sunday school continue until it shall spread throughout the membership of the Clanton Baptist church. Mr. Webb has taken up the job of superintendent with a great deal of zeal and determination, and he respectfully urges the cooperation of all in making Clanton Baptist Sunday school as nearly as possible what it really ought to be.

Pilot Club Sponsors Musical Comedy Friday Evening, Nov. 6, At High School Auditorium

Those who enjoy musical comedy of the highest type will be delighted to know that the Pilots have selected "Tumble Inn," one of the most popular amateur productions in the South for their benefit performance this fall. The proceeds from this production is to be used for the building of a lunch room at the Grammar School.

A meeting of the committees was held at the Thomson Hotel Monday evening, with the director, Thena Hathorn of Birmingham and plans were made for the carrying out of this delightful project. The following are the committees: Misses Sara Colley, Virginia Cook, Irene Smitherman, cast committee; Mesdames Mamie C. Smith, Nolan Meronev, Sophia Jones, Laura Little, publicity committee; Misses Lora Thompson, Ruth Sessions, Hortense Glasscock, ticket committee; Miss Edith Mae McCutcheon Mrs. Reid Mullins, property committee.

An excellent cast of the city's very best talent has been selected and rehearsals have begun. Among the cast are some well known local favorites and some new ones. The play has a large cast, beautiful costumes, catchy music, witty lines, and an interesting plot.

As an added attraction, an ugly (?) man contest is causing a great deal of excitement and merriment down town. About twenty-five of the most popular professional and business men of Clanton have been entered in this contest, sponsored by as many of the most cunning and charming little girls in the Grammar School. There is much guessing as to who will be the winner of the prize.

Look for a list of these men and the cast next week.

"I've swallowed a fly," gasped Margery Maxwell, Chicago opera star, as she finished the line "all things come home to rest" while singing in concert at Fargo, N. D. Conductor Krvl stopped the orchestra; the singer left the stage; got rid of the fly, and returned to finish her song amid loud applause.

AMERICAN COTTON SUPPLY IS REDUCED

Auburn, Ala.—The indicated supply of American cotton for the 1936-37 season is roughly 18,100,000 bales, or about 1,500,000 bales less than last season's supply, reports the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

The supply for the present season is the smallest since 1924-25. It is 13 per cent less than the average supply of 20,437,000 bales in the 10 years from 1923-33.

ONLY GOOD COWS PAY DURING WINTER MONTHS

Auburn, Ala.—The advancing cost of dairy feed means that only good producing cows will pay the dairyman a profit this winter.

Low producers will be an unnecessary expense and they should be sent to the butcher, said F.W. Burns, extension dairy specialist at Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Consequently, he added, this is the logical time to improve the average quality of the herd by culling out inferior animals. There is no reason for keeping them.

He recently accepted a position on the sales force of the Taylor Wholesale Grocery Company of Clanton, one of the largest concerns of its kind in this section.

Mr. Fiquette will be quite an asset to this concern as he is well liked wherever he goes. For some time he was connected with local Ford dealers where he made an enviable record as a salesman and made hundreds of new. Chick stated when commenting on his new position with this progressive firm. He will be out on the road at various times.

Chilean Nitrate Dem. Given At Oak Grove

The Jemison Chapter of the Future Farmers of America, sponsored a Chilean Nitrate Demonstration at the farm of Mr. W.C. Martin. Two and one-half acres were used in the demonstration. One acre on each side was fertilized with 200 pounds of Chilean Nitrate and Nitrate was applied every 40 days after the corn was planted. On the half-acre plot which was between the two acres fertilized with Chilean Nitrate of Soda was applied and was used as a check plot.

The demonstration showed that where Nitrate of Soda was applied at the rate of 200 pounds per acre 30.67 bushels of shelled corn was harvested. Where no Nitrate was used 8.1 bushels of shelled corn was harvested per acre. This was an increase of 22.57 bushels of corn which was made by the use of Nitrate of Soda. This increased yield cost 14.2c per bushel. With the present market price of corn and Nitrate of Soda Mr. Martin made $21.62 profit per acre by using Nitrate of Soda.

A guessing contest was held at Mr. Martin's farm. The winner of this contest was Edris Atkinson. He guessed 70 bushels on the fertilized plot and 8 bushels on the check plot. His average error was .88 bushels. Wallace Littlefield was next with an average error of 1.03 bushels. Harold Martin made the fourth best guess with an average error of 2.16 bushels.

Jemison, Chapter is working for the prize in the State Demonstration contest, which is a $60.00.

EARLE THOMAS FINDS PEOPLE NEEDED HELP

Ballots In Behalf Of Democratic Ticket

"To The Citizens of Chilton County:
"After spending several months in Alabama, South Carolina and Florida I have had an opportunity to really see what the New Deal of our present administration has meant to the South and our own Chilton County.

"I know it is easy to forget the past after you have had a chance to come back and get on your feet, but it is lots easier to keep building the structures we already have than to tear up and start all over again.

"So I am asking every citizen of Chilton County to take stock and see where you are and then make up your mind to be at the polls November 3, and cast your ballots as you think it will be of the best interest of our county, state and nation. Don't get busy and forget to vote and blame someone else later. Above all, let's vote and help carry forward the progress that we have been enjoying for the last few years.

"There Were Twenty Families Facing Starvation; Roosevelt Saved Them"

TO THE VOTERS-OF CHILTON COUNTY:
"My Dear Friends:
"When the New Deal came in we were selling cotton for five and six cents per pound and now it is twelve and one-half cents per pound. In 1932 there were about twenty families around me who couldn't have lived had it not been for the New Deal. I just want to say here that I don't see how anyone can afford not to vote for our great President, Franklin D. Roosevelt. His administration ended I was in debt and now I am out of debt, have plenty of corn, plenty of hog, other food stuff and have money in the bank. Have also bought some property and it is paid for. I think about as good example as I could give as I couldn't even pay my taxes in 1932, let alone have anything. "I just want to ask each and every person to stop and think about above conditions and what the Deal means before they cast their vote on November 3rd.

"Thanking you I am,

Tax Collector Of County Points Out Many Facts

L. McKee "Hits Nail On Head" In A Letter To The People Of Chilton County
And Asks Cooperation

The Voters of Chilton County: I am sure every one of you know politics, and in a large measure I am most of yours. You and I have common interest and that is the interest for most people, and I believe the Democrat party in the last years have proven beyond any doubt that they measure up to their duty of equal rights to all, special to none.

I can remember the selfish and rule of the Republican party brought us to a standstill in all of business. Also we can remember the false promises of the Republican party to give us two cars in each year and two chickens in every pot. I can remember the false doctrine of the great leader of the selfish few that grass would grow in the field if the Democrats were elected. I can remember the false propaganda of the Republican party that prosperity is around the corner and there is nothing to be alarmed about when the Democrats are elected. I can remember the Democratic party, under the leadership of Franklin D. Roosevelt, prospered and we were so starved to death we had to be fed before we could make the trip to prosperity.

I view of that false doctrine I like for you to ask yourself just one question, being honest with yourself in finding the answer, can I afford to risk them again?

"We in the Democratic party invite you to consider what you have in common with the best interest for yourself and neighbors, and after having seen how much better the living conditions are today than the way they were, we feel like we can, with pride, insist that it is better for us to keep prosperity up than to trade it for something unknown."

"We have noticed that the Republican party in criticizing us never go back three years to where their selfish and malignant rule was cast out by the voters of America."

"I would like to ask you, with out any explanation as space does not permit, to vote against amendment one (1) and amendment three (3). I have made a reasonable study of these two amendments and my honest judgment is that it is making a foundation for a rotten political machine to be ruled by a few people. I know you will not do harm to yourself and neighbors by voting no, but I also know that it would finally turn out to be harmful to vote yes, so pardon me for asking you to vote 'No' on these amendments without an explanation."

"Thanking you for your indulgence I am,

"Yours for success,
T. L. McKEE.

Who's Indebted To Whom?

Coosa County has a new office building. Without the county's cooperation and contribution of $2,500 for materials, the building would not have been erected. Without a WPA program under a Democratic administration, with $5,500 invested, the county would not have proposed the building. With a work program, the men who built it (shown below) and their families would have been without work and without funds. Who is indebted to whom?

When Patrolman Koster of Detroit stopped Mrs. Elsie Garland for speeding, she grabbed his book of violation tickets and slapped him soundly in the face with it. Sent to jail for five days she did not protest, but remarked: "It was worth it."

C. B. Cox Sees Fine Things Done By Administration

Member Of Legislature Asks People Of County To Consider Difference Now And Over Four Years Ago

"To the Voters of Chilton County: I feel that it is my duty and think every other citizen of the county should think the same way about it that I say something in the interest of our Democratic ticket, which we will vote on November 3rd. From what I have gathered I do not think there is any doubt but what the Democratic county ticket will be elected by a good majority, but the thing I consider the most important is our great leader, Franklin D. Roosevelt. I can not understand why it would be any trouble for the farmer to make up his mind as to who they should vote for on November 3rd, if they can remember as far back as 1932 and 1933. They can certainly remember when the papers were full of foreclosures, property being advertised for its taxes, and cotton was five cents a pound and corn twenty-five cents a bushel, every thing else was in proportion when the Republicans went out. Instead of Roosevelt allowing this to go on he has arranged to finance every good worthy farmer in the country to save his home. In my way of thinking, anybody that votes against Roosevelt, especially in the South, is nothing but an ingrate.

"There is no good reason why there should be just one or two Republican counties in the state of Alabama which puts them out of line with the state administration, they can not expect the same cooperation out of the state as the other counties which are Democratic."

"It will not do to turn the nation back over to Wall Street for they do not think as we poor people. They manipulate the National affairs to suit their greed and graft and we know that we poor people in the state can not thrive on the way they run the nation's business."

"I believe all unbiased voters will go to the poll on the 3rd, and vote the Democratic ticket."

Big GOP Club In Penn. Comes Out For Roosevelt

Developments of one day—Wednesday:

(1) The Second Ward Republican of Scranton, second largest G.O.P. organization in Pennsylvania, with membership of 3,367 men and 822 women, bolted to President Roosevelt's lock, stock and barrel. Bernard J. Harding, the club leader, also president of the Lackawanna County Republican Club, a federation of 22 organizations, pledged support of President Roosevelt "because he is a friend of the working man." The club had refused orders from Old Guard Republican headquarters to march in a parade of welcome to Col. Frank Knox, scheduled for October 23. Lackawanna county went Republican by more than 2,000 in 1934.

(2) The announcement of Senator Peter Norbeck, now serving his third term as United States Senator from North Dakota, that he will actively support President Roosevelt created a furor in his State, the only one carried by Gov. Alf M. Landon in a presidential primary in the West. Senator Norbeck was joined in his public announcement by S. X. Way, former Republican national committeeman of S. D., and publisher of the Watertown Public Opinion, a leading G.O.P. daily.

Four years ago, their statement read "it did not seem possible for the Democrats to bring us out of the chaos, but the substantial recovery of business and the improved agricultural situation is shown by our 32 billion dollar increase in national income. The farmer is daily reminded that the nation has become so deeply in debt under Roosevelt as to put a burden on his children and his children's children. But these politicians ignore the cold fact that the national indebtedness, measured in bushels of wheat and pounds of pork, is less than at the beginning of Roosevelt's term."

(3) And on the same day the Scripps Howard newspapers, published in 25 cities scattered from New York to San Francisco, urged their readers to vote for President Roosevelt's re-election "because it is vital to the welfare of the nation."

His Christian influence, his high character, and his constant striving for the better have endeared him to us all. The people of his life is worthy of emulation.

We will miss him as a wonderful pastor and advisor in our church circles.

Copies of these resolutions shall be sent to Brother Jones, to the two papers, to the Alabama Baptist, a copy spread upon the minutes of the Pastors' Conference of the Unity Chilton County Baptist Association.

MT. CARMEL

We are glad our union was represented at the W. M. U. Quarterly held at Bethel, even if the number was small. Mrs. Stall, our state worker, talk with the trip as she told some real facts about missions. Also, loved Bro. Lockhart's message to our aged ministers and faithful wives. Each union pledged one or more of these to the written message. The meeting will be at Thorsby and Hope Mt. Carmel will get the attendance banner.

Ben Higgins has returned to the new home at the Alabama Mills in Clanton. Sarah Sewell and little daughter, Mrs. Curtis Sewell and baby, Mrs. Sewell and Mr. and Mrs. H. S. were the spend-the-day guests at Silas Oden on last Wednesday.

Oleta Watley and Miss Letty Oden, the Sunday guests of Miss Oden.

Paul Oden visited his mother, Silas Oden last Sunday. Members of the W. M. U. are urged to be present at our next meeting on Friday, November 6th. The blanket also will be our next duty as payment on the piano is due. The $10 cents each member.

Miss Letty Oden refused to say she was declaring she would rather stay at home.

W. M. Polk Urges People To Support Roosevelt

"TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY:

"On Tuesday of next week, November 3rd, you will have an opportunity to exercise your constitutional rights of casting your vote for your choice of the Presidential candidates.

"While I know that the people of Chilton County are NOT UNAPPRECIATIVE people, also, that there still remains in their minds the DARK DAYS of four years ago. And, that it is still fresh in our minds the great benefits we have received from our Government, to not only save our homes, but, we were given ways and means whereby we could save our loved ones from hunger and distress. Still, I want to remind you that the farmers of Chilton County will have received during the four years of Democratic administration more than $750,000.00 in benefits. I also want to remind you that in 1932 cotton sold at 6 cents; cotton seed sold for $10.00 per ton and corn sold at 35 cents per bushel, while there was no market for some of our farm products. Just check the prices of four years ago with the prices of today.

"In 1932 the Automobile Dealers of Chilton County sold only 83 new automobiles while during the first nine months of 1936 they have sold 416 new cars and trucks.

"More business houses have been built and repaired during 1935 and 1936 than in any two years most of us can remember. There has been more modern residence buildings erected in Clanton during the past eighteen months than ever before in same length of time. There has been more electrical appliances sold during past two years than ever before. Still, with all this money being spent for buildings, automobiles, homes and home furnishings, the bank deposits in Chilton County are more than double that of 1932.

"Now friends, all this improvement in the economical conditions of Chilton County did not 'JUST HAPPEN.' Let's go to the polls November 3rd and show our appreciation for the things President Roosevelt has done for the interest of every citizen of Chilton County by casting YOUR vote for the DEMOCRATIC ticket.

W. M. POLK, Chairman, Chilton County Democratic Executive Committee.

THOMAS W. ROBBINS

On the morning of October 14, at 5:40 o'clock, the spirit of Thomas W. Robbins winged its flight to that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns.

Uncle Tom, as he was affectionately called by his many friends, was born in Autauga County March 31, 1856.

In early life (can't give date) he was married to Mrs. Robinson, a widow with one child. But on March 25, 1894, he was married to Mrs. Sallie Headley, a widow with three children. To this union was born one child, Verberna Bell (Mrs. R. C. Burkhalter, Verbena, Ala. Rt. 1).

He first joined the Missionary Baptist church. In the year 1905, he joined the Methodist church at Mt. Pisgah, near Clanton, and was a faithful member till the time of his death. He was buried at Mt. Pisgah October 15, 1936 by the side of his wife, who preceded him on December 24, 1934.

He leaves to mourn his loss one daughter, Mrs. Burkhalter, and a host of friends.

Truly, a good man has gone to his reward. I have known Uncle Tom since I was a small boy. I never heard a word against his character in my life. May Heaven's richest blessing be with the loving daughter. May she realize that her loss is his gain. She will find comfort in John 14:1-4.

Q. C. MERONEY.

Women Supplied By G O P With "Arguments" So Rancid They Support Roosevelt

"I intend to approach the issues fairly, as I see them, without rancor or passion," said Gov. Alf M. Landon at Topeka in accepting the Republican nomination for President.

There has been no more flagrant violation of this pledge than the manner in which the Old Guard high command has imposed upon women Republicans whose services they had solicited in the campaign. Scores of wives and widows of prominent Republicans in many parts of the country have rebelled at the type of "literature" supplied to them announced their purpose of supporting President Roosevelt. A notable instance was Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, wife of the former Republican governor of New York.

"I have always voted a straight Republican ticket, without thinking very much about it," she said in a statement issued at Democratic National Headquarters in New York City. "My change of political belief was crystallized by joining a class for public speaking at the Women's Republican Club. The statistics, data and so-called 'arguments' handed me, on which I was supposed to base my speeches attacking the national administration, turned me definitely to Mr. Roosevelt. I found I could not speak against him. There may be criticism of methods employed in attacking the unprecedented emergencies that confronted him, but there can be no criticism of the policies themselves. The country had in fact been waiting for them a long time.

Asked by representative of 'Old Guard' newspapers about "the tax outlook," Mrs. Whitman was reported in the orthodox New York Herald Tribune to have replied: "I am not frightened. I look at my children's trust fund, which had reached rock bottom during the Hoover administration, and I find it has now doubled its face value."

In an open letter to the Republican National Committee, the Chicago Times, (Ind.), revealed how that organization imposed upon another well-known woman Republican, Madame (former Princess) Cantacuzene, granddaughter of President U. S. Grant. The Chicago paper quoted in its open letter the following extract from a prepared speech by Mme. Cantacuzene broadcast from Chicago:

"... the veil has recently been lifted, providing PROOF that the leaders of the Communists in Russia have ordered American Communists to work for Roosevelt's election. Those Communist leaders, an official announcement in the press of August 9, revealed ordered their agents and their servants in the United States, which means ALL American Communists, to work for Mr. Roosevelt's election."

The Times advised the G.O.P. national organization that its editor "reached Mme. Cantacuzene at her home in Washington, D.C., by telephone. We asked her what proof she had to justify her statement. She replied that she had seen a reprint, sponsored by the Republican National Committee, of an article that appeared in the Chicago Tribune of Aug. 9 and she had taken the story in good faith."

Which was Mme. Cantacuzene's error. Because, as she explained, she had only heard of the sensational story in September, and she was not aware that the Times has posted a $5,000 cash reward for proof of the Chicago Tribune's August 9th headline: "Moscow orders Reds in U.S. to Back Roosevelt" the yarn the G.O.P. passed on to her and other Republican women workers.

Your sponsorship of this fake is an imposition on the right of the people to a free press," the Times concluded its open letter to the Old Guard outfit. "If you have a contrary opinion, please present your evidence to the American Newspaper Publishers Association and if your proof is sufficient to win their endorsement of the Tribune's story as authentic news, we will pay the $5,000 to the Freedom of the Press Committee of the American Newspaper Publishers Association."

Finding his recent bride had two children he hadn't known about, Joseph Manco of Omaha, Neb., requested an annulment. The judge told the bridegroom there was nothing he could do for him.

Pilot Club Brings "Tumble Inn" As Outstanding Musical Show To Clanton

Such interest is being shown by the people in town in the production of "Tumble Inn" sponsored by the Pilot Club for the benefit of the Clanton Grammar School lunch room.

An excellent cast has been selected for the city's very best talent and popular members of the younger generation.

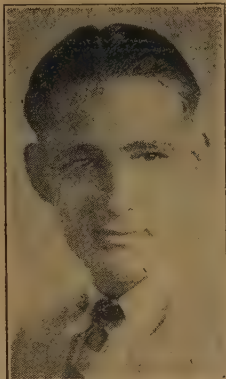

For instance: Miss Amanda Love, an old maid who has spent her life looking for "a da love," Mary Heard gets laughs in her attempt to attract a day (Reese Mullins) a proprietor of "Tumble Inn." Nothing could be more amusing than Reese in his frantic attempt to escape the clutches of this determined woman."

Wingard plays the role of a knight, the suave and polished knight, who is also a proprietor of "Tumble Inn." He shows a great of competence in dealing easily and deftly with the ladies, guests of his establishment.

Margaret Floyd, as Miss Helen, a new woman, exhibits much ability as her role is that of a man and later changes to a man-lover.

THE NATION GOES FORWARD

That the voters of Chilton County and the nation have awakened to the fact that politics control their well-being and that it is best to take a hand in the matter, was clearly shown in no uncertain terms in the result of the election Tuesday.

An unprecedented overwhelming vote swept the Democratic Party back into harness to continue the work of making this country a happier one, a healthier one and a more prosperous one, and as the official Democratic newspaper of this county, the News, on behalf of the Democratic Party, takes this opportunity to express its sincere appreciation for the record-breaking vote cast for the Democratic ticket.

We feel that it has ceased to be a party matter but a matter of principle that the people of Chilton County and the nation voted on Tuesday, and we sincerely hope that those persons who were not victorious in the election will join in and aid in erasing any scars that might have been left from the campaign.

The News is proud, also that throughout the campaign for the Party whose principles we believe right, well founded and for the interest of all the people, there was never a statement made in our columns that would cause anyone to be embarrassed or cast any shady coloring on their future happiness.

Chilton County is now safely in line with our State and National government and should go forward much more rapidly than in the past and we also hope and believe that not one voter who cast his or her ballot under the Democratic emblem will have cause to regret it in the future. And, we want to say to those who voted their convictions under the emblem of the opposition party, that there is certainly no ill-feeling for them, and may they join in pushing our county, our state and our nation onward.

and made a clean sweep of the offices of two commissioners, the county treasurer and a member of the Board of Education, with a lead of over one thousand.

Unofficial returns coming in from over the United States gave President Roosevelt the re-election by a large lead.

J. Monroe Parrish, Democratic candidate for Commissioner from the Fourth District led his Republican opponent, O. L. Devaughn by almost 1,100 votes, the unofficial returns showed, with only three boxes not heard from.

The figures given here are considered correct but are not official and do not include returns from Beat 2 Box 1 Beat 6 Box 2 and Beat 7 Box 2.

Joseph E. Easterling, Democratic candidate for County Treasurer, won over W. J. Billingsley, Republican candidate by a vote of 2,355 to 1,390.

R. L. Ousley, Democratic candidate for Commissioner from the Third District won over the Republican candidate, J. L. Burnett by a vote of 2,358 to 1,351.

Dr. W. L. Parrish, Democratic candidate for member of the county school board, was elected over his Republican opponent, P. M. Martin, with a vote of 2,401 to 1,297.

The result of this election leaves only one Republican office holder in the county after the new officials are seated. J. P. Bean, who now holds the position as Commissioner from District One.

It was impossible to get an account of the outcome of the Constitutional Amendment election in this county before the News went to press.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL TO OPEN NOV. 11TH; ENDS 26TH

Chairman J. Mell Martin Asks All To Join In Worthy Cause Which Will Open Armistice Day; Beat Chairmen Are Named

Residents of Chilton County will again be called upon to contribute at least one dollar each to the Red Cross, as the annual Red Cross Roll for this county will get underway on next Wednesday, November 11 which is Armistice Day, according to J. Mell Martin, Roll Call chairman for the county.

Next Sunday, November 8th, is Red Cross Sunday over Chilton County, according to Mr. Martin, and all pastors in the county are being asked to devote a part of their church services to this great cause for suffering humanity and emergencies.

"Of course," Mr. Martin stated, "if a person cannot afford to give one dollar, which constitutes a membership, any amount will be accepted by the corps of workers who are in the county now, soliciting these memberships." "Every citizen of the county should be wearing a Red Cross membership button and carry a Red Cross membership card," Dr. C. O. Lawrence, chairman of the organization as a whole in this county, stated this week. "Chilton County owes a tremendous vote of thanks to the Red Cross and we should go over the top this year in the number of memberships."

On Saturday of this week, all Beat chairmen and officers of the Roll Call will gather at the Exchange Hotel in Clanton for a rally and pep meeting. Luncheon will be served at twelve o'clock noon to all those attending. A letter leaves the office of Mr. Martin advising the workers of this noon luncheon at which time several short talks will be made.

Chairmen for various sections of the county, who will have charge of the campaign in their respective sections are as follows:

Merchants Advertising Responsibility

The editor of The News several days ago had the opportunity of discussing with a local merchant, a merchant who has been a merchant long enough to know some of the many business principles of merchandising and who is alert in following these principles in his own business. This merchant is a regular and consistent advertiser and is a fine asset to the community. He feels not only his responsibility to his own business, but he fully recognized that this is a day when business must be produced if there is to be business. To produce business buyers must be brought to his town first and finally to his store. This merchant is just that kind of a merchant, if his record of the past stands for anything.

The sad part of this picture is the fact there are too few of these kind of merchants in any community. On the advertising and publicity appeals which are made by a very small percentage of the merchants of this community or any other must hinge the prosperity and business of the community. Those merchants who are not advertisers and who must depend on those who struggle by or who are brought to town by the advertising merchant are not fulfilling their duty and responsibility to the community in which they live and secure a livelihood.

A town becomes a trade center in proportion to the number of advertisers among the merchants. Each advertising merchant is doing what is expected of a live merchant to aid the business progress of the community. There are not many of the non-advertising merchants who do not regularly complain of foreign competition. Their lack of advertising is in the most part responsible for the invasion of the community by foreign merchants. In this community there is such a variety of merchants as to satisfy the trade demands of the people of this section, but only through a cooperative advertising program can the public be properly solicited and given such an invitation as will cause people to spend their trade dollars with local merchants.

It is not the merchant across the street or in the adjoining building who is to blame for business going elsewhere. In most instances it is the merchant who is failing to help his fellow advertising merchants carry trade appeals to the buyers of the community that is responsible for business going elsewhere.—Chambers Co. News.

You Can't Get Away With It

Fake accident racketeers are an insidious threat to every honest business and every individual. Fortunately, agencies of justice are bringing them to book and can continue to do so with your help. Following is one of a series of articles describing some of the tricks of the racketeers. Watch for them yourself.

Real Scientific Farming

At the recent 12th annual session of the American Institute of Cooperation, farm co-op leaders and students discussed a wide range of problems relating to agriculture.

Fifty group meetings were held, and were participated in by 150 speakers. As in previous years, the Institute itself subscribed to no issues, but devoted itself to the dissemination of up-to-date information on marketing practices and procedures. According to the Dairyman's League News, questions discussed included the federal soil conservation program; foreign trade policies; transportation problems; marketing problems, etc. Almost everything that has a bearing, direct or indirect, on the farmer's welfare, came in for mention.

This is indicative of the splendid work of the co-ops in trying to better the farmer's lot, and in seeking to provide him with useful knowledge.

The Human Pincushion

Until a cussword in his native language trapped him, the Human Pincushion outwitted the best medical and legal brains of both sides of the Atlantic. For years, under a number of various aliases, chiefly as Arturo Castella, he tricked unsuspecting citizens into paying heavy damages for his trick back. Authorities estimated that by the time he arrived in Sing Sing his loot had exceeded $50,000.

Before he came to the United States, Castella had been a field hospital attendant in the Italian army. He learned to use a subtle drug which, when introduced at the base of the spine, paralyzed the subject from the waist down for a limited time.

Castella stole the formula for the drug, and decided to use it to advantage in winning an easy living in the United States. His practice was to dope himself with the serum and then, just as it took effect, step in front of a moving automobile.

Inevitably, he was rushed to the hospital where routine tests appeared to reveal him as totally paralyzed. He was able to win quick damage settlements.

His victims—those who paid the damages—finally placed a celebrated Italian detective on his trail. They were aided by the relentless undercover work of the Index Bureau System maintained by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. One day the detective talked to Castella as he lay presumably paralyzed on his hospital bed. The detective talked quietly for a time. Then, suddenly, he shouted an Italian profanity and yelled "Get out of that bed! You're caught." Castella leaped from the bed and rushed out of the hospital. He got five years in Sing Sing.

Pride Of A Nation

The railroads have shown through the depression the inherent efficiency and economy of moving the major commerce of this continent on steel rails, said J. J. Pelley, President of the Association of American Railroads, recently.

"They have demonstrated," he continued, "their ability to carry on under difficulties; to cut the unit cost of producing transportation while continuing to pay the highest transportation wages in the world; to improve their service and methods; in short, to maintain their position as the finest general transportation system in the history of the human race, and to keep that transportation system ready to go forward as America goes forward."

No industry has done more to lessen the cost of operation. In 1921, for example, it cost the railroads $19.78 to move a ton of freight one thousand miles. In 1929, the cost was $7.44. Today it is about $6.75. Similar progress has been made in every phase of operation.

Most important, railroad operating costs have not been reduced at the expense of safety and service. To the contrary railroad service was never as good as it is today—freight and passenger trains never ran between points in such short time—facilities were never so adequate. And every year sees improvement in the rails' remarkable accident prevention record.

In good times and in bad, the railroads play their role as one of the greatest, most necessary and most progressive American industries. Their welfare is inextricably related to the welfare of the nation.

Critics Of Business

It has long been the fashion for certain writers and speakers to criticize the American people for their commercialism—their desire to make money.

While it is true that the mere speaking of money is not a very high ambition, it must be remembered that it is through our genius for business that we have been able to provide the funds for innumerable things worth while, such as are not enjoyed by any other nation in the same degree.

Great sums donated to educational, religious, charitable and artistic purposes have been made possible through successful business pursuits. Scientific research, the advancement of health measures, better homes, and the comforts and refinements of civilization generally have been due to the ability of our people to acquire money and to their willingness to spend it for these things.

Many of the high-brow critics of business obtained their education at colleges and universities endowed and made possible by business men. Business and money-making are not the end of our national ambition, but the means whereby civilization may be promoted and preserved.

MORAL ECHOES

The chill of late September was in the air and I saw three large yellow butterflies as they passed over the back yard and came directly up to the wall of the brick church. The three went into a huddle as if to consult over what to do. They fluttered together for a moment and then one turned and came down into the flower bed as if to say "Why try to go over or around that great wall. I will just settle down here among the flowers on the ground." The other two went out of the huddle—one to go around the church wall and the other to sail up and over the top of the church. They seemed to say, "Why let a brick wall stop us in our southern flight. We will go around and over and go on our way." As I pondered the action of those butterflies I thought that they were only a picture of human life. All of us run against brick walls along the travel of life. We come up against problems, difficulties. About one-third of the race come out of the huddle and settle down to enjoy life as it is. The other two-thirds will strive to go around or over the problems and move on to success. Which butterfly represents you?

What about the kindness of women? Certain states in the Union have laws allowing a divorced wife to put her husband in jail if he does not pay the alimony awarded by the courts. In those states many husbands have been put in jail at the mercy of their wives. A prominent magazine sent out a questionnaire to eight hundred wives whose husbands were in jail asking them how long they would like to have their husbands remain in jail. Out of 800 divorced wives 250 of them made this reply: "Until he rots." Here is an answer that might well belong to the Dark Ages. It makes us wonder if we have made much improvement since Elizabeth chopped off Mary's head. It is a fact that the minds of many people and women need to be lifted up. When we see the horrors of war and the unkindness of human beings to humanity, we wonder if we are making progress.

Just imagine someone trying to find a street address, yet ignoring street crossings and street numbers. Just imagine the captain of an ocean liner trying to carry his ship through a reef-rimmed channel without charts or beacons to guide him. Imagine if you please the appearance of a skyscraper built by workmen who discarded the architect's plans and erected it according to their own individual whims. Ridiculous you say. I agree with you and yet there are thousands of women and men in this age who are failing to guide and direct something of their own being that is a thousand times more important than ocean liners and skyscrapers. The end of every life should be happiness and success, and yet the majority of us are indifferent to the plan and indifferent to the directions that lead out in that direction. There is a plan for victorious living; there is a way that leads out to happiness and success; and if we study the chart of living we cannot go wrong. When we follow the blue prints of life drawn by the Man of Galilee we will surely reach the goal of success and happiness.

It is said that a florist will sometimes go to his garden and dig up the rose bush that is so green and tender and transfer it to a dark place. For days the rose will remain in the dark, drooping and dying. The leaves drop from the stalk and it seems that the rose is going to die. Then the florist will come and take the lonely, desolate rose bush and carry it into the light and into the sunshine. It is planted into the rich soil and new life flows into the roots and stalk. New buds shoot forth and they run high into the air and rich and rare buds appear. So, my friends, in God's gardening of human life it is often the case that He will pluck us up when we seem to be doing so well and carry us away into the dark. We may be well and happy, and over night the hand of affliction will fall upon us. Our loved ones may be all around and without warning they may be lifted from our embrace. Often we find ourselves in the dark but God is going to bring us to the light again. When we come back to the light we should try so hard to produce a finer state of living than before.

FARMERS ADVISED TO USE TREE TOPS FOR WOOD

Auburn, Ala.—With the approach of cold weather months when a large supply of firewood will be needed, Lyle Brown, extension forester, advises farmers that they can improve their forests and at the same time obtain a large amount of firewood by proper thinning of trees and by using the tops and poor cuts of trees harvested for sawlogs.

"Practically all farmers in the State have enough poor trees or thinnings in the woods to supply their firewood needs for years to come if properly handled," he says.

In selecting wood for fuel the farmer should cut the crooked, short, unsound, bushy crowned, and poor timber trees where the stands are too thick and leave the good straight, sound timber trees.

"A great deal of good firewood is wasted on tops and poor cuts of trees harvested for sawlogs, staves, veneer stock and other purposes. This means waste and fire hazard when left in the woods," he declares.

The Man Who-o-o
Tales and Traditions from American Political History
by FRANK E. HAGEN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

GASTRONOMICAL

ONE of the best ways to win a Presidential campaign is to use a good slogan and din it in the ears of the electors. A good slogan appeals to the instincts or to the emotions rather than to the intellect. It combines that fact with the old saying about "the best way to a man's heart is through his stomach" and is easy to understand certain incidents in political history.

Back in 1840 when the Whigs were back to elect Gen. William Henry Harrison over Martin Van Buren, Democratic candidate, they used the cry of "Van's Policy, Cents a Day and French Cakes; Our Policy, Two Dollars a Day and Roast Beef." Would a very voter hesitate long between the two? Of course not!

But there was another gastronomic angle to this campaign. "Singing Whigs" set to the tune "Auld Lang Syne" such words were these:

Should good old cider be despised
And never regarded more?
Should plain hog cabins be despised
Our fathers built of yore?
For the true old style, my boys!
For the true old style,
Let's take a mug of cider now
For the true old style.

So the thirsty voters who wanted good old cider joined with the voters who wanted "roast beef" and together they elected Harrison.

Although the Whigs' slogan in 1840 was the ancestor of the "Full Dinner Pail" of a later era, that version didn't actually come into use until 1896. In that year the Democrats were Democratic Bryan and the Republicans were McKinley. The tariff was the principal issue and the Republicans had various prosperity plans. But wise old Mark Hanna led them all down into the voting slogan of the "Full Dinner Pail" and the American laborer wanted one voted for McKinley and elected him.

Forty-two years later the Republicans used a variation on the prosperity theme and their promise to the voters of "A car in every garage and a chicken in every coop" helped Herbert Hoover defeat Smith in the election of 1928.

The Rev. Marcus Dillahunt, a Negro preacher and farmer near Lebanon, Tenn., missed a corn from his field, so he pushed nails into the ends of several dozen ears. Later he took them to the hog pens of two suspected neighbors and found corn were preferred.

LITTLEJOHNS ARE GUESTS OF FORD ON TRIP

Local Ford Dealer And Wife
Join Other Dealers On Trip To Detroit

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Littlejohn will leave for Detroit Wednesday to join 175 Ford dealers from Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee, who with 7,000 others from all sections of the United States, will move into Detroit by special trains this week end for a two-day gathering at the Ford Motor Company's factory, the first assembly of its kind in the history of the Ford organization, for a display of the forthcoming year's models of the Ford V-8. They will be guests of the Ford Motor Company while in Detroit.

Wives and members of the families will travel with the Ford dealers in this spectacular gathering at Detroit, which will last through Friday and Saturday, bringing every dealer in the country into personal contact with Henry Ford, creator of the gigantic industry that bears his name, and Edsel Ford, his son, who is President of The Ford Motor Company.

The high note of Friday's program will be the first view of the 1937 model of the Ford V-8. The dealers and their guests will be taken through the Rouge and Linden plants of the Ford Motor Company for their first view of the car that will be offered to the public shortly.

This is the first time that Ford dealers have gathered at Detroit for an inspection of a new model. In the past the custom has been to assemble the dealers at the branch headquarters in the region where they operate, but this year the Ford Motor Company has had them assemble at Detroit where Mr. Ford can deliver personally a message that will outline his views on the business that is gathering momentum speed. Outstanding in the ceremonies Friday, the opening day of the meeting, will be the presentation to Henry Ford a huge old Cape Cod windmill, the gift of all the dealers in the United States.

The windmill has been standing on Cape Cod for generations but is still in an excellent state of preservation. It has been placed in Greenfield Village, the small city of original American buildings and homes that Henry Ford has bought and assembled as a means of preserving living chapters out of old American history. The purchase, dismantling, moving and reconstruction of the old windmill was made possible by contributions from the dealers and it will be an engaging addition to the scene in Greenfield Village.

Dealers in Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee will gather at focal points to board a special train for the ride to Detroit. These in the Macon territory will gather at that city, special cars at Columbus, Ga., and Montgomery, Ala., will gather in those towns.

These cars will be moved into Atlanta to meet other cars which will carry dealers from the Atlanta territory. The Atlanta train will then move toward Chattanooga, where it will converge with trains from Birmingham and from various sections of Tennessee, the whorls in making a huge special train that will arrive in Detroit for breakfast on Friday morning.

The meeting will open officially at the Coliseum on the State Fair Grounds in Detroit, Friday morning at 9 o'clock E.S.T. This morning program will consist of the presentation of the new models and a general get together meeting. From 12:30 until 2 P.M., there will be a luncheon, at which the windmill will be formally presented to Mr. Ford. The luncheon will be followed by a tour through Greenfield Village. Saturday morning at 9 o'clock the dealers will visit the Rouge and Linden plants.

F. D. Mann, manager of the Atlanta Branch of the Ford Motor Company, and W. K. Hanson, Assistant Manager, will be in charge of arrangements for the special train that will leave this section and will see that all dealers make the trip in solid comfort.

Will Head Speeches Of Red Cross Drive

R. J. GOODE

That R. J. Goode, of Gastonburg, present Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries, had been selected as chairman of the Alabama Speakers Bureau for the 20th annual Red Cross Roll Call, was announced today by National officials of the American Red Cross, Washington, D.C. "The selection was made," stated the officials, "after a cross state survey as to the choice had been made. Red Cross officials highly recommended Mr. Goode for the important leadership position due to his long-time record as a leader for the humanitarian movements in the state and for his knowledge of the leaders in every community that will aid in the Roll Call work."

Mr. Goode is especially suited for such a position as chairman of the Speakers Bureau for the membership campaign. He is a native of the state, educated in the public schools, receiving degrees from Marion Institute and attended other colleges. For a number of years he was engaged in the insurance business while at the same time being interested in farming and livestock. He at present has been years in the state legislature. He was

"The value of the Red Cross to our local community, state, and nation is great that I am accepting the Speakers Bureau chairmanship in order to do all that I possibly can to bring our state from the bottom of the list in membership standing to one of the top in membership throughout the nation. With the aid of the good people of the state, we can do that," stated Goode.

CHRYSLER REVEALS ITS REASON FOR INVADING THE LOW-PRICE FIELD

Walter P. Chrysler's invasion of the low-price field with a car bearing the name of one of the most significant events of recent motoring history, the J. W. Frazer, vice-president of the Chrysler Sales Division of the Chrysler Corporation.

The advent of the Chrysler Royal is a new car has been named, in and to cause a readjustment of value standards all along the line. The opportunity to purchase a car that maintains the Chrysler tradition of quality within reach of a much larger number of motorists than ever before is a welcome. Private pre-arrangements have already given evidence that there are many thousands of motorists who have longed to drive a Chrysler—a car whose name has been synonymous with the ultimate in quality and who have not been able to afford it. Now we have made it possible for thousands to possess the advantages of Chrysler quality without unduly increasing the domestic budget.

Naturally, it always has been the aim of Chrysler to make its premier quality available to an ever increasing market. The history of our company shows a constant increase in values and a constant decrease in prices. Always outstanding features have been added to our higher-priced cars when it was sought to make them available as low as possible in our lower priced line. Now we have a finer performance, greater safety, more safety factors and a beauty of line and appointment than ever before were found in a car of our make, selling at anything like this price. In fact, I can go even farther and say that in many respects the Royal is a finer car than we ever offered at any price, with the exception of our Airflow.

"The Royal is not built to sell at a price; the price adjusts itself to the car. We are able to get into the low-price field with this fine car for several very simple and understandable reasons. Among these are the great volume we enjoyed in 1936 and the anticipation of a much increased volume in 1937. When we showed the 1937 line to our dealers, we told them that we expected to double our 1936 production in 1937. They were so enthusiastic about the whole line, and particularly about the Royal which is bound to be the backbone of their business, that they have assured us it can be done.

"We have increased our manufacturing facilities by the addition of several large buildings, one of which measures 930 by 80 feet and by the purchase of much new and improved machinery. The building and machinery installation program involved an expenditure of several millions of dollars. In addition to acquiring new machinery, we have made an extensive rearrangement of our plant layout that will mean greater production of the highest quality work. We have purchased new tools that perform operations contributing to quality which never before were possible either by machine or hand.

"Another factor that influenced our entering the low-priced field, is that we have the finest dealer organization in our history. Our dealers have been constantly augmenting their plant and personnel and constantly improving their methods to the point where we have the outlets that can handle a much greater volume than every before. Added to this, the automotive buying need of the country is now very high and apparently is certain to remain there through the 1937 season. People want quality cars and they will not quibble over the few extra dollars that are found between the price of a quality car and one of those in the lowest-price field.

"Equally as important as the original cost of a motor car is the cost of operating and maintaining it. We realized that in entering the low-price field we must build a car that was economical in every respect. This we have accomplished in the Royal by means of a new Gold Seal engine, one of the most marvelous motors ever put into a car. This new engine, which uses ordinary gas, has shown in repeated driving tests from 18 to 24 miles per gallons of gas.

"A glance at the history of the automotive industry reveals that when a manufacturer steps into a lower price class he generally brings out a smaller edition of his more expensive cars and omits some of the features. Chrysler has done nothing of the kind with the Royal. On the contrary, this car's body is not only larger than its predecessors in the low brackets of our own line but larger than previous Chryslers in the price classes considerably higher. Its interior dimensions will amaze motorists who are compromising with roominess when buying a car in approximately this price class. We consider this and the others of our 1937 line the most beautiful cars that we ever have turned out and this opinion has been confirmed by our dealer body.

"I say confidently that this combination of forward-looking engineering, efficient manufacturing and strong selling organization, is going to make motor car history."

RED CROSS AID TO MORE THAN 500,000 DISASTER VICTIMS

Large Urban Areas Devastated As Elements Hit 20 States East of Mississippi

"The number of disaster victims assisted by the Red Cross during the fiscal year ended June 30, was more than four times the number aided in the previous twelve month period," Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman, said in commenting on highlights of the annual report just issued. "Over 131,000 families were given food, clothing, shelter and medical care, and thousands of homes were rebuilt or repaired by the Red Cross to enable them to carry on."

Pointing to the many-sided problems created by the wide variety of types of disasters which occurred during the year, Admiral Grayson said, "The Red Cross sent hundreds of trained workers into 39 states to meet the many exigencies of catastrophes which included earthquakes, epidemics, landslides, fire, hurricane, ice lock, tornado and typhoon. The Red Cross took charge at the scenes of 105 domestic disasters of major severity."

The report emphasized the marked value of Government-Red Cross cooperation when disaster strikes, giving as example the flight of Army bombing planes which dropped Red Cross food to marooned refugees at Renovo, Pennsylvania, during the Spring floods. More than 16,000 persons were rescued from the second floors of homes in Wilkes-Barre and Kingston through Coast Guard-Red Cross cooperation at the height of these same floods.

"Government agencies, and relief groups were of invaluable assistance to Red Cross relief forces at all times," Admiral Grayson stated.

The complete resources of Red Cross leadership, training and disaster experience were brought into play in the Spring floods and tornadoes which took so heavy a toll of life and property in eastern and southern states this year, the annual report reveals. The Red Cross aided 77,000 families in 14 flooded states east of the Mississippi and 6,000 families in 6 tornadic hit states south of the Mason-Dixon line in this one operation.

"Never before have as many metropolitan centers borne the brunt of attack by wind and water within a single year, challenging Red Cross preparedness and efficiency by so wide a variety of pressing human problems," Chairman Grayson said.

In its work of relief to disaster sufferers the Red Cross expended in excess of $5,200,000 for the year. The report added that this figure does not include assistance given in 27 lesser disasters with a total of 2,000 persons aided, and adds that additional millions will be used to "clean up" Spring floods and tornadoes.

"Numerous local disaster situations occurring during the year were met by Red Cross chapter funds and manpower," Admiral Grayson said. "In each major relief operation undertaken the great army of Red Cross volunteers aided trained workers with the task of rehabilitating those without resources who had suffered losses."

"The Red Cross disaster relief service is one of many Red Cross activities supported by the American people through membership at the time of Roll Call, held each year from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving."

Red Cross Nurses Combat Disease on Wide Front

At the close of the fiscal year ended June 30, there were 673 Red Cross nurses bettering health conditions and caring for the sick in 604 communities. These Red Cross public health nurses cared for a total of 233,616 persons during the year and made more than a million visits on their behalf.

The annual report of the American Red Cross states further that these nurses cooperated with doctors in examining 671,057 school and pre-school children, with 342,561 physical defects found and curative treatment arranged in 209,080 cases.

In 979 Red Cross chapters 1,733 graduate nurses taught Red Cross hygiene and care of the sick, issuing certificates to 53,126 persons completing the courses. In addition, 1,777 Red Cross reserve nurses were called upon during the year for disaster and epidemic control work.

The Rev. G. Brown, Negro of Washington, D. C., preached a sermon of 83,794 words which took 12 hours and 10 minutes for delivery.

'STRICT TEMPERANCE' IS WHAT MAKES HIM HEALTHY ENOUGH TO PREACH AT 93

Judge (Or Rev.) Honeycutt, Aged Missionary Baptist Minister, Uses His Pension For The Needy; Believes He'll Live To Be 100

In a few months he will be 93. He still wields a hoe with vigor in his garden, and regularly. He still preaches a forceful sermon, and he will walk four miles to the nearest Missionary Baptist Church and back home again to do it.

The man is Judge (or Rev.) Riley Monroe Honeycutt, who today operates a small but prosperous farm at Jewell in Chilton County, just 40 miles South of Birmingham.

The reason for his hale and hearty condition today, Judge (or Rev.) Honeycutt declares, is that "for 92 years I have been a strictly temperate man. . . I have never taken an intoxicating drink, never chewed tobacco, never smoked. . . I believe in regular exercise."

Elected Without Politics

Recently his slow, but steady, plodding gait carried him to the Missionary Baptist Church four miles from his home to preach a funeral for a friend. Then he walked back, and when he dusted off his shoes at his home, the slight stoop that the passing years have printed on his shoulders was not one whit more noticeable.

He obtained his title of "Judge" from his election as probate judge of Chilton County in 1892. The most pleasant memory of his term as judge, however, is that he made no campaign, no speeches, and simply rode in on his popularity.

The title of "reverend" applies because in November of 1869 he was ordained in the Missionary Baptist Church, a denomination which holds services only twice a month—on a Saturday and the succeeding Sunday.

Has Clear Memory

Judge Honeycutt's friends marvel at his remarkable memory. He can recall dates of important events in his life—his birth, marriage, enlisting in the Confederate Army, ordination, the year he ground a record run of 400 bushels of wheat at his grist mill—with astonishing ease.

A native Alabamian—he was born near Clanton—he has this barb to pitch at his neighboring farmers. "They raise too much cotton," he declares. "Why have they stopped growing wheat? They used to do it, and it was profitable."

Judge Honeycutt has his own ideas about how much money a man should have. What is more, he practices his beliefs.

This example in indicative of his theory: He refused to accept a pension from the state as a Confederate veteran until five years ago. Then when the depression hit families around him, he permitted a state auditor "to talk me into it, but the money goes for the needy ones in my community."

Judge Honeycutt says he is confident he will live to be 100. He has a son, H. I. Honeycutt, employed at the Fairfield works of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co.

IN MEMORY OF G. S. MINOR

On Tuesday, Oct. 20, 1936, at four a. m. the death angel visited the home of Mr. Sinkler Minor and carried his soul away. He had been in failing health for some time, although seriously ill for only a week.

Gradually growing weaker until the summons came. Mr. Minor was 61 years of age. He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife Mrs. Nora DeVaughn Minor and four children, three sons, W. M. Minor of Decatur, Ala., A. D. and P. S. Minor of Cooper. Also one daughter, Mrs. Roy D. Downs of Birmingham, Ala. Many relatives and a host of friends.

But as God in his wisdom saw fit to call him from us, we must be content. God's will be done. Weep not dear wife and children, for God knows best. But strive to be prepared to meet him when the Lord, says come.

Mr. Minor was a good neighbor, a friend in need and a friend indeed. He was always ready to lend a helping hand to those in need, a man who will be missed in the community. A place is vacant in the home that never can be filled. He was a member of Chestnut Creek Baptist church for many years and burial was in the cemetery of that place on Oct. 21 with Martin and Sons in charge. After an excellent sermon by Rev. J. W. Jones of Columbiana, Ala.

His Daughter-in-law,
MRS. A. D. MINOR.

IN MEMORY OF J.C. CULP

On Monday afternoon, September 21 about 2:00 o'clock, God, in His great power and wisdom sent the angels of heaven and carried away the spirit of our dear uncle, Mr. J.C. (Jim) Culp. Uncle Jim lived to be seventy years of age. He leaves to mourn his departure a wife, two sons, A.B. and R.G., seven grandchildren, one great grandchild, three brothers, two sisters and a host of relatives and friends.

Grieve not, loved ones, for we feel that our loss is heaven's gain. Uncle Jim is not dead, he is only sleeping that sweet and peaceful sleep. God did not take our uncle away from us to make us sad, but there is yet one more thing we can do for him to make him happy and rejoice, and that is to be ready to meet him when God sends for us.

Isn't it wonderful that God will give us privilege of meeting our loved ones and friends again if we will only do His blessed will. Dear Uncle, you have left us and your smiles we'll see no more. Our heart is filled with sadness for no time can heal the sore. We often sit and think of you, for memory the only friend that grief can own.—Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Williams of payments under the AAA this year will go to produce in November, December, and January, states Jesse W. Tapp, administrator.

A membership of 30,826, Alabama stands third in Farm Bureau membership in the United States. Iowa with 42,372 and Illinois is second with 41,765.

Farmers have substantially increased their tonnage of fertilizer since when about 2,750,000 tons were used this year the sales totaled 4,200,000 tons. Of this amount farmers purchased about 1,000,000 tons.

Statistics state that 86 per cent of food of the quail consists of grains and plant food and 14 per cent of animal life, including grass, weevils, locusts, caterpillars, bugs, cucumber beetles and other worms.

Net clover seed produced by Alabama farmers have given good results in Hampshire, reports the Extension Station of that State.

Successful forestry demonstrations about the State are causing a number of Alabama farmers to turn their attention to the production of lumber and pulp wood.

Play At Isabella High School Friday Night

Listen folks! Another night of fun and frolic at Isabella High School next Friday night, Nov. 6, when the W. M. U. of Mulberry Baptist church will present that grand old rip-roaring farce-comedy play "Two Days to Marry".

If you can stand a double dose of genuine side-splitting laughter, you are eligible to see this gay little play, but if you feel that laughing every two minutes will injure your complexion and disposition, then we advise you not to witness this entertainment, because the copy-right recommends it for laughing purposes only.

The cast is composed of the following local talent:

Braxton Lecroy—As black as his hair; Clifford Manning—A wifeless heir; W. T. White—A Timid Lawyer; C. Delle Davis—Blacker than Ink; Mrs. Fred Oden—A Widow by Choice; Frances Mims—A Sweet Young Thing; H. R. Oden—A Millionaire.

These characters are by nature fitted to portray their respective parts and a very clever presentation can be assured. So reserve 10c for any school child and 20 cents for adults, and be at the Isabella High auditorium at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night (Friday.) You will go back home feeling that this "ole

W.M. DEVAUGHN QUARTETTE IN CONCERT AT BAKER

The News has been requested to announce that the W. M. Devaughn Quartette will appear in a concert and musical program at the Baker Junior High School on Friday night of this week.

This local quartette has become widely known and popular over this section of the state and the public is invited to hear this concert. Admission will be ten and twenty cents.

A hen owned by Mrs. J. L. Liscomb of South Portland, Me., raises a terrible fuss until she is admitted to the bedroom of her mistress' home, where she lays eggs on the bed.

Charging that her husband, Abner had been drunk since 1897, Mrs. Jennie Bishop filed suit for divorce at Akron, Ohio.

Arrested for breaking a window, Bart Flynn of Chicago admitted to police that after throwing a brick through a window he would apply for the job of putting in a new one.

"Life" is a great course, even if it is filled with disappointments. Be present and let this clever little comedy completely dispel all your worries and scatter your gloom.

Remember it is for a most worthy cause. To purchase seats for the Mulberry Baptist church.

HERE'S ONE WAY TO GET ALONG IF THE COUNTRY GOES BACK TO HOOVER PROSPERITY, SAYS ONE WHO TRIED IT

The following was taken from The Birmingham News last Sunday under the popular column "What's Happening in Alabama" conducted by Percy Taylor:

Benefits from the Roosevelt administration? Sure, they're manifold and almost innumerable. Since Editor Billy Smith of The Chilton County News, Clanton, first printed a voluntary letter from one of his subscribers telling what the Democrats had done for him, he has received several more. This column reproduced a couple of them and now we are favored with a testimonial from Billy Mobley, of Alexander City, that recounts his blessings.

And he cites Jack House, of The News sports department, as a man who will vouch for every statement but he is still fighting for a living.

Here is Billy Mobley's testimonial:

"In the Fall of 1930, which was the dry year we had the drouth, I didn't have nothing but a wife and baby, a pair of rubber boots, and plenty of time. I couldn't get no job and if I could have, I couldn't have gotten any money 'cause they warn't none. Things wuz dirt cheap, but I didn't have the dirt, any my credit wasn't any good 'cause I hadn't been able to pay what I already owed.

"Wild life was almost extinct. There wasn't any squirrels 'cause there wasn't any hickory nuts fer 'em to eat, and there weren't no birds 'cause there weren't no peas. However, there were a few rabbits, but I didn't have no dog ner gun. If I had had a gun I didn't have the money to buy shells, and if I had had a dog I didn't have nothing to feed 'em on.

"I didn't have any clothes until my wife made me a shirt from a couple of fertilizer sacks, and from then on I looked like a walking advertisement for a fertilizer company. I donned my shirt, pulled on my rubber boots, took a little of my time and cut a load of stove wood. I swapped the wood for a hound, borrowed my pa's axe, and started out searching for rabbit hash.

"But them long, lanky Republican rabbits were too much fer the hound. He slunk off in shame, never to return, just another victim of Hoover Prosperity.

"By that time I realized that I could expect no help from the administration, so I borrowed a neighbor's dog, ground my pa's axe, and started out on my own after rabbit hash. I blazed several big trees about over the woods making the blazed spots about six inches above the ground and blacked them with axle grease. When the dog would get close after a rabbit he would mistake the black spot for a hole, and from then on we had rabbit three times a day, a la mode.

"We managed to live off my wits —and rabbit—till poke salet put out and from then on we did the best we could until Roosevelt was elected. Then just as soon as he was elected my neighbor, who owned the dog, started throwing out scraps, and my former pal got fat and lazy and refused to hunt with me any more. All he does is lay around and growl: just for the world like the Republicans.

"Dad-burn 'em they've lived off the Relief Administrations and are now ready to bite the hand that has kept them from starving.

"As soon as Mr. Roosevelt took hold he lent me enough money to make a crop on. Then he turned around and payed me enough, for plowing up half my cotton, to repay the loan. Just as soon as conditions got where you could ask a man for a job, and not get shot, I started working 40 hours per week at a living wage. Thank God, and Franklin D. I'm still at it.

"It pains me to think of Mr. Roosevelt not being reelected. But if he isn't I'll move back to Hamilton, up in Marion County, get out my boots and fertilizer-sack shirt, grind my pa's axe and grease up all my old spots on the trees, then it won't be long 'til my old pal will be hungry enough to join me in my activities and we'll be ready for another Prosperous Republican Administration."

IN LOVING MEMORY OF MYRA BRYANT

On October 7th, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Bryant and carried away their darling, beloved daughter and sister, Myra. She was twenty years, 11 months and twenty-three days of age.

Myra was a graduate of the Weogufka High School in Coosa County, where she was known and loved by every one there. Myra was a most patient, kind and loving girl, she had the ability for gaining and holding friends. Every where she went the clouds seemed to disappear.

For some reason unknown to us God in his infinite wisdom saw fit to call her from our midst. We know that it was God's will for her to leave us, but some sweet day we will better understand why she was taken away so soon.

She leaves to mourn her departure, her father, mother and three brothers, Robert, Arnold, and Francis. Her grandmother Conway of Thorsby, R. I. and a host of other relatives and friends.

May God bind this family's broken heart and cheer them as they look forward to the great reunion beyond where there will be no more sad parting.

Funeral services were held at the Mulberry Baptist church with the Rev. G. G. Williams officiating. Interment followed in the church yard cemetery with Spigener in charge.

Active pall bearers were as follows: Edward Atchley, Therman Bryant, Milner Bryant, Cassius Cummings, Vinson and J. W. Veazey.

Rural Electrification In Alabama

'Ask Yourself This Final Question: Do You Want To Pay Double for Half?'

By E. C. Easter
CHAPTER XI

THE rules of a TVA-inspired electric co-operative or membership association require that 1c per kilowatt hour surcharge above the regular rate be paid by members up to 100 kilowatt hours a month to help pay off the huge debt the association must start with.

Suppose you use a hundred or more kilowatt hours a month and your neighbor uses only fifty. That means you'll be paying $1.00 a month surcharge above your electric bill and your neighbor only 50c toward paying off the debt.

If the association doesn't go broke before the 20 years are up, or the line doesn't wear out within that time and the debt is eventually paid, you will have paid membership fees, perhaps assessments AND $240 BESIDES your electric bill! Your neighbor will have paid only $120, or only half as much as you.

Under the terms of the Alabama law permitting the formation of electric co-operatives, you will have only equal rights with your neighbor, no matter how much you will have paid in. Shouldn't you have twice as much interest in the property? You will have paid twice as much.

Customers of Alabama Power Company DON'T have to buy memberships to get electric service; they DON'T have to make themselves subject to surcharges; they DON'T have to buy shares; they DON'T have to depend on amateurs for their electric service; they DON'T have to worry about amortization and other complicated things. ALL they have to do is enjoy dependable electric light and power service.

CHAPTER XII

How Alabama Power Company Handles Rural Electrification Projects

WHEN the request is received for electric service from any individual or group from any community not now receiving electric service, the company sends an experienced representative to make a survey of the community.

This survey includes a map of the highway or route along which the proposed extension would be made. On this map the houses are shown and whether the occupants are prospective users of electric service and the electric equipment they would probably use. On this map are indicated existing telephone and telegraph lines, trees or other obstructions that might affect the construction of the electric lines.

If the survey indicates that the electric service would NOT be economical to the community, the company so advises those making the request but suggests that if in their opinion we have overlooked some possible business, we will gladly rework the survey and assist the community in any reasonable way to develop sufficient uses to make the service economical.

If the survey shows that

Our Rural Electrification Policy Re-Statement

Alabama Power Company does NOT oppose the formation of rural electric "co-operatives" or "electric membership corporations," but it does believe that if prospective members of such associations can secure electric service directly from the Company and without the legal, moral and financial responsibilities which membership in an electric membership corporation or association involves, they will find it to their best interest to take service direct from the Company. Where for some reason direct service cannot be furnished, the co-operative organization is as welcome a customer as the individual.

This advertisement is the sixth and last of a series which has also been printed in booklet form. T. W. Martin, President of Alabama Power Company Birmingham will cheerfully send a copy to any interested person requesting it.

electric service WOULD be economical, it is submitted, together with the map and all estimates, to our Engineering Department which makes up the estimates for construction cost. The Operating Department then reviews this estimate and if the comparison of revenue against cost is such as to indicate that the line has reasonable possibilities of developing to the extent of sound business, the company proceeds with detailed plans for the construction of the line.

When construction of the line is approved, those requesting the service are advised and a community meeting is held, at which a representative of the company is present to explain the basis on which the company is willing to extend the line. A complete explanation is made of the rates and the decreasing cost of electric service with increased use. Uses to which electricity may be put in the home and on the farm are explained. Questions are invited and any misunderstanding points discussed.

At the conclusion of the meeting the people are asked if they want the company to proceed with taking applications for service. If they so indicate, a company representative visits each prospective customer the following day or shortly thereafter. Rates are again explained as applied to his individual use of electric service and he is given the opportunity to make formal application for service by signing the service application blank.

If sufficient applications for service are received to warrant construction of the extension, detailed construction plans are made. Necessary rights-of-way, anchor rights (to keep the line from blowing or falling down) and tree-trimming rights are secured from property owners.

As soon as the prospective customers make arrangements for wiring their homes (in which the company is glad to give advice), construction of the line is begun and completed as rapidly as weather and other conditions permit.

Sometimes this can all be accomplished within a comparatively short time. At other times, depending upon complications which might arise in connection with the many details involved, a longer period might be necessary.

Motor Vehicle Owners' Aid Asked By State

The State Highway Department and the United States Bureau of Public Roads are cooperating in a State-Wide Highway Planning Survey to obtain data which will aid in preparing a Comprehensive plan for building, improving and locating present and future roads in the State.

These Departments must rely primarily on the interest and cooperation of all motor vehicle owners to supply the travel, gasoline consumption and related facts necessary for this study. The Probate Judges of all the counties in the State are cooperating by handing out questionnaire cards with each license tag for all types of vehicles. The questions asked on these cards can be answered from actual records or from estimates. These cards are addressed to the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads and require no postage. No signature is necessary and the figures on the cards cannot be identified with the person returning them. If any motor vehicle owner does not receive a questionnaire card with his license tag, he is requested to ask the clerk in the Probate office for this card.

In order to obtain the greatest number of improved Highways from the amount of money available, it is necessary to have information on which to base a program for roads in every section of the State.

If the citizens of this county are interested in their State and County obtaining these roads, it is necessary for each and every motor vehicle owner to supply the information by complying with the request to fill out and mail in cards promptly.

Every motor vehicle owner should be sufficiently interested enough to cooperate with their State Highway Department in obtaining these roads.

CARD OF THANKS

Will you give us a little space in your paper to thank our many friends for the kindnesses and help during my sickness. We do sincerely thank Mr. Keel and Mr. W. W. Broadhead. May God's richest blessing be upon each and every one.

Mrs. Martha B. Gray and L. P. Cagle and family.

FOREST LUMBER & TIE COMPANY FORMS LARGE BUSINESS FIRM HERE

Becomes Incorporated With Tremendous Holdings

The announcement was made this week to the effect that J. B. Downs of Clanton, and Frank A. Davis, of Clanton, formerly of Hattiesburg, Miss., and their associates have joined and incorporated The Forest Lumber & Tie Company, making it perhaps the largest lumber concern in this section.

These two prominent men have engaged in the lumber business for some time. Mr. Downs has been prominently affiliated with The Forest Lumber & Tie Co., while Mr. Davis was connected with the J. J. Newman Lumber Co., of Hattiesburg, before coming to Clanton to enter this business.

In the future the firm name will be as The Forest Lumber & Tie Co., Inc., with large concentration yards located at Clanton, Jemison and Columbiana and shipping points at these places. This firm also handles the output of approximately twenty mills in various lumber products, and will maintain their offices in Clanton as in the past. The joining of the interests of these two lumber concerns means a great deal to Chilton County. It was also announced that they will continue with the same office personnel.

JEMISON F.F.A. COMPLETES CHILEAN NITRATE DEM

A very interesting demonstration of the use of Nitrate of Soda on corn was completed this week by the Jemison Chapter of the F.F.A. at Mr. Walter Allen's farm. The plot which was side-dressed with 200 pounds of Nitrate of Soda forty days after planting, yielded 32.98 bushels of corn per acre and the plot without Nitrate of Soda yielded 18.64 bushels per acre. This was an increase of 14.34 bushels. The Nitrate of Soda at present price costs $3.20 and the increased corn cost 22.3 cents per bushel.

A guessing contest was held at this demonstration on August 28 and a prize of $2.00 was offered to the person guessing the nearest amount. Miss Ernestine Moore of Thorby and Mrs. P. L. Lewis of Jemison Route 2 tied for first place. Their average error was 1.31 bushels and total error was 2.62 bushels. This prize will be split and each will get $1.00. Mr. George Lewis was second and Raymond Reynolds guess was third.

LARGE CROWDS THRONING TO CARNIVAL HERE

Ride And High Dive
In Attractions

Crowds thronged to the opening Tuesday of the Happy Days Shows, which arrived in Clanton Monday. Although not as large as a state fair, the Happy Days Shows, known here as the Clanton Fair, presents many of the spectacles as shown at much larger midways.

Side shows, games, fireworks and a daring high-diving stunt bring entertainment to the hundreds who have visited the grounds already this week. The carnival, under the management of Col. Ted Dedrick, is located just north of Clanton, near the city waterworks and is easy to get to. It will continue through Saturday night.

L. H. Reynolds Praises Play At Jemison H.S.

Chilton County News,
Clanton, Ala.

I attended an entertainment at the high school at Jemison last Friday night and I want to compliment the sponsors on the fine entertainment and the splendid manner in which it was presented. The play "Thanks Awfully" by the high school students was very fine. Each member of the cast carried out their part well. Miss Gail Gletty's "Marionette Show" was extraordinary fine, and she should be complimented for the splendid entertainment she furnished on this occasion.

I was impressed with the difference in the building and equipment now and the schools we had when I was there thirty-five years ago. I was also impressed with the fact that there was no indication or evidence of whiskey so far as I saw or could ascertain and this also speaks well for the community.

L. H. REYNOLDS.

It wasn't Eloyde, however, but her twin sister, Eileen. The sisters are identical twins, 26 years old, blonde, 114 pounds, and five feet, four.

PASSING FOOTPRINTS Of The Times

— Billy Smith

It is the same old expression we hear almost everywhere—We're glad it's almost over. Referring to the election. And especially are the candidates, whether victorious or defeated. We are able to get down now and hunt for news and when during the election it was difficult at all to be able to find anything to print and tell the people about. We're glad it's over and we're glad the people saw fit to place in office the man for President whose courage has inspired many of us.

Another Step
You will note a new feature magazine section to your paper this week. A new section will come to you many weeks. Perhaps it will be less for us to point out the many interesting things you will be able to find in it. But, we believe the features contain will fit every member of the family, from the kiddies on up, comes to the readers of the News. No additional cost. Just another of your News has taken to give you a real, live, good county newspaper. Remember that next week a splendid serial story will start in this new section. Don't miss a single copy.

It Again
That Jimmie Bell, down at Murray Hardware Store is at it again. Last he went at it sometime ago, we were so engrossed in the political campaign we failed to mention he has arranged one of the most active window displays in town. Quail, the fox, the pheasant and he so arranged they look truly real. In fact, we hear that a certain warden started to tell Mr. Bell he couldn't do that to live birds.

New Feature
It seems that your News is just getting with new things this week. It comes Saul Goldstein with one of the most interesting columns we read about local matters. You know Saul. He's the man behind the new and his column, the first which appears this week, is titled "What I Think" and he is doing some nice things about Clanton and Chilton County. We note he does the housing problem in our area and we agree. Never a week goes by that someone does not inquire of the News office for a house. Some of our lumber men should take advantage of this tremendous growth of the little city and build up a house now—or three.

Ben Again
And so, here comes Ben Margolis with his first sale. Ben has been doing like a rhyme in business in town for a number of years with one of the most up-to-date little stores now he is holding his first sale, it is announced in a full page advertisement in this issue of your News.

To See It
As we moved into our new home, the election campaign broke and we had to go into action. So, we moved us not to be able to extend to you our most cordial invitation to visit us in our new home, across the Ford place, and one of the modern buildings in Clanton. We had that too—come to see us. Make it at home, whether we are there or not.

Let Them Down
We hesitate to write about what this week went through with when the voters struck and took so many of them. But, we shall always remember it as will everyone. And, we also remember that the American Red Cross came in here, built new, furnished clothing, furniture and medical care. All without anything in return. Now that the Annual Roll Call is underway, do it. Become a member and be of it. We are.

L. Ousley Sends Message To Voters

I take over my new duties, I hope everyone to feel that I am at service, but at the same time expect to devote my time and efforts to the interest of our county. Again I thank you all.
Respectfully,
R. L. OUSLEY.

OFFICIAL VOTE COUNT GIVES BIG MAJORITY

Democrats Cause Huge Turn Of Parties In Chilton County

What can be termed a complete turn-over in political parties in this county took place in the November 3rd election when the Democrats were swept into four major county offices by a voting majority that has never been equaled before in the history of the county by either the Republican Party or the Democratic Party. The entire nation gave the Democratic ticket the same support in all states except two which stayed in the Republican ranks.

The official count made last week gave candidates the following total votes:

Asks That People Who Seek Contributions Be Reported

"It has been brought to our attention that business establishments in Clanton have been called upon to contribute rather heavily in recent months to various individuals who are petitioning for cash assistance. We deeply appreciate the generosity that such establishments have from time to time manifested toward people who are unfortunate or in distress, but we do not think it quite fair to have this generosity imposed upon.

A Message To The Voters Of The County

To the Voters of Chilton County:
"As a young man, I realize more than ever that the large and pleasing vote given me in the November 3rd election was an expression of the faith and trust the people of the county had in me.

The campaign for this office was conducted on a high level and to my opponent I wish to say that he was straight and honest throughout the entire campaign.

"I find it difficult to put into words my deep appreciation for this splendid support which will place in the office as your County Treasurer. I want to assure you again, as I did during the campaign, that I shall carry out my duties to the best of my ability, and shall endeavor to conduct myself and my office on a plane which will not cause anyone regrets for voting for me. Again, I say 'Thank You' from the bottom of my heart.

Respectfully,
J. E. EASTERLING.

LOCAL CHAPTER USES FUNDS TO AID STRICKEN

Reports Show Money Is Not Idle; Needed
In Emergencies

CITIZENS ARE URGED TO BE MEMBERS

The Annual Roll Call of the American Red Cross is well underway this week, according to J. Mell Martin, chairman of the Roll Call, who stated that response to the campaign for membership is most gratifying.

It is needless to say that Chilton County should be a banner county in memberships in the Red Cross this year. We owe it to the organization—every one of us.

Perhaps the people of the county wonder what the Red Cross is doing for the county now. Records shown by Dr. C. O. Lawrence, who is chairman in this county, state that many pellagras cases have been cared for through local Red Cross funds and that two newly born babies were brought to life after apparently facing death through improper nourishment.

In other words, it appears that funds of the local chapter of the Red Cross can be credited with saving at least the lives of seven people right in this county. That alone is worth every cent that the citizens of the county may contribute.

It might be well to remember also that from each one dollar membership one-half of that money remains in the treasury of the local Red Cross Chapter exclusively for local use. And, Chilton County can never tell when its people will need every dime of it in an emergency.

If a Red Cross membership worker has not called on YOU for your membership, then see if you can't find a worker and give him or her YOUR membership. Even if it is a five dollar membership, only fifty cents goes to the National Red Cross. The remainder stays right in Chilton County.

J. Monroe Parrish Writes To Voters

"To the Voters of Chilton County:
"I have not the words to express my gratitude and thanks to the voters of Chilton County for the wonderful support you gave me in the election on November 3, 1936. I feel that this is the people's victory, and that the people are now looking to me to measure up to the great confidence and trust they have reposed in me.

"I want to say to the voters, and to those of our people who did not vote, that I am going to make every effort to make Chilton County the best Commissioner you have ever had, and when I have finished my four years of service that the feeling between us will be the same as it is today. I want to work with the people of my district and I want to work and serve the people of the entire county, feeling and knowing that to do so, I will receive your approval and if I do not do so, I will and should receive your disapproval.

"This is about all I care to say, and I want the people to come to me and talk with me pertaining to our county and its welfare, and I assure you that I will do nothing under the table and behind the door, everything will be done in the open. I am,

"Your servant,
J. MONROE PARRISH."

Dr. Parrish Extends Thanks To Voters

To the Voters of Chilton County:
"I have long since had the utmost confidence in my friends and in the people of this county, but since our final election last week, when you all gave me such an overwhelmingly majority, I just simply cannot find words to express of your faith and trust in me by electing me to serve as a member of your Board of Education.
"I shall at all times endeavor to conduct myself in such manner as to never give you reason to regret casting your ballot for me. It shall be my policy to work for the interest of the schools of our county.

"Respectfully,
DR. W. L. PARRISH."

Miss Pearl Davis spent the week-end with Miss Jessie Davis in South Clanton.

Where Now For The G.O.P.?

Having met its second successive—and most overwhelming—defeat, the Republican Party faces the question of whether to live on, or die.

We are not among those who think the G.O.P. has been destroyed. Destruction from without has never been the lot of any American political group. But two major parties in our history have committed suicide. That could be the fate of the Republicans.

What has just happened to the Republicans is strikingly reminiscent of what happened to the Federalists in the second election of Thomas Jefferson in 1804. Writing of that election, Claude Bowers, in his latest book, "Jefferson In Power," records:

"Incredible as it seems that the Federalists could have hoped for the defeat of Jefferson, it must be borne in mind that they had no contacts with the average man and that they were inebricated in their vituperation and called Jefferson a Jacobin (Communist). They accused him of trying to destroy the courts, violate the Constitution and set himself up as a tyrant. Jefferson was an 'anti-Christ,' they said. And the Louisiana Purchase! 'Fifteen millions for that waste land! Ridiculous! Four dollars a head for every man, woman and child... Thirty dollars for every family... Ruin—It meant ruin!'"

The result was a landslide. One clear-headed young Federalist tried to make the others realize what had happened. Of the Federalist old deal, John Quincy Adams wrote: "There never has been a system... more completely and irrevocably abandoned... by the popular vote... it can never be revived... and to attempt the restoration would be as absurd as to undertake the resurrection of a carcass seven years in the grave."

The next big political suicide was the Whig Party. It choked itself to death on the delusion that the nation could exist half free and half slave.—The B'ham Post.

If Fire Strikes!

When fire strikes, be calm, if you value your life! That sage advice is given by "Safeguarding America Against Fire."

Should your clothing become ignited, drop to the floor and roll into a rug or blanket. That will cut off the supply of oxygen and smother the flames. Thousands of people, insane with panic, have run, thus fanning the blaze—at the cost of their lives.

If you are in a public building when the fire alarm sounds, remember the old adage: "Walk, don't run, to the nearest exit." A legion of lives have been unnecessarily sacrificed to panic-stricken mobs in theatres, hotels and similar buildings.

If you awaken at night and smell smoke, DON'T OPEN THE DOOR! That is vital—to open the door may permit super-heated air and fumes to enter and smother you. First place your hand on the door to see if it feels hot. If it is cool, open it very slightly, with your face averted. If you feel "fire-pressure" against it, close it at once and seek another means of exit.

Even as 90 per cent of fires can be prevented through the exercise of simple precautions, so can ninety per cent of the lives now lost in fires be saved—if we don't get excited. Knowledge of a few rudimentary facts, such as those given above, plus presence of mind, makes the best life saver of all.

Fire may break out in your home, your place of business, in a building or theatre you are in, at any time. When it does, keep calm, think and the act!

Look Out For "Twisters"

John Jones owned a life insurance policy issued by one of the old-line, established companies. He had had the policy for a number of years, and had paid out hundreds of dollars in premiums. Then an agent for another company came along with a new policy, turn on the heat in a smooth sales talk, and John dropped his old policy to take the new one. The company issuing this policy was also good and responsible—but not long afterward, John found that he had suffered a substantial loss.

The agent who seeks to persuade you to drop a policy you've had for some time in order to buy one from him, is called a "twister." Every legitimate life insurance company is opposed to such agents and will dismiss them when they are caught. But they may operate for years before their company gets on to them. Only the insurance buying public can really put them out of business, by turning a deaf ear to their blandishments.

It is almost invariably true that you will lose if you drop an old policy to take a new one. Time is the essence of an insurance contract. Time builds up cash values, surrender values and loan privileges all of which increase with each premium paid. Furthermore, the cost of insurance rises as you grow older.

If a "twister" approaches you, turn him down and report him to his company. "Twisting" is fundamentally fraudulent, whether the laws say so or not, and life insurance salesmen who practice it dishonor their profession and harm the public.

Liberty And Crime

In their efforts to find an explanation for the increasing prevalence of crime, many thoughtful persons have concluded that the tendency to burden the public with a growing multiplicity of laws may account for much of the lawlessness which now prevails.

Before an international convention of police chiefs, one of the speakers said: "We can limit and harass human freedom to such an extent that even the normally balanced individual feels that he is oppressed and will seek unlawful means of expressing his personality."

Through the operation of innumerable laws and the activities of government agencies employed thereunder we are restricted, inspected, spied upon, investigated and caused many unnecessary annoyances which are resented by a people who love freedom.

If more attention were paid to apprehending and punishing real criminals, while allowing greater freedom from harassment to respectable citizens, we should doubtless have a more law-abiding and happier citizenship.

Educate The Adult

The casualty insurance industry, said Henry Swift Ives in a recent address, is taking an increasing interest in accident prevention, especially highway accidents. It has long realized that it is more desirable to prevent accidents than to merely indemnify victims and their heirs—and today it is asking public cooperation in seeking to reduce America's horrible and unnecessary death and injury toll.

The soul of accident prevention work that will produce results in education. It is necessary that law enforcement agencies, especially our traffic patrols, be improved, and that laws governing motor vehicle operation be brought up to date. But the reckless or ignorant driver will continue to endanger lives in spite of the best efforts of legislatures, judges and police officers—unless the force of public opinion is enlisted to make him mend his ways, or keep off the highways.

Proof of what safety education can accomplish is found in the magnificent record produced by safety instruction in the public schools. This work was started some fourteen years ago, and was inaugurated by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, representative of our leading casualty insurance companies. During those fourteen years, there has been a 196 per cent increase in traffic fatalities to adults—and a 2 per cent decrease in traffic fatalities to children of school age or under. According to Mr. Ives, if the trend in the case of children had been the same as in the case of adults, 53,800 more young lives would have been snuffed out.

Now it is time we educate the adult. The insurance companies are doing their utmost to this end. So are other private and public agencies. But their campaigns can produce little unless the people wholeheartedly join them.

MORAL ECHOES

When I was a school boy studying Grammar the school matron taught me to say, "First person I, second person thou, third person he." The world of today has caught the rule of its conduct. Where ever you look it is indeed "First person I." It is "I myself and me." However this is not the Grammar of heaven. Neither is it the ideal of Jesus Christ. In our Christian ideal we are taught to say "First person He—that is God; second person thou, that is we are obligated to love our neighbors; third person I—that is we are to be last." Christianity is going to prosper when we learn to make God first, our fellowman second and ourselves last. Selfishness is the one outstanding sin of our age. It is the tap root of all sin.

One afternoon I was out calling on people who were very indifferent toward the church, and rarely ever entered the church door. I had heard all-bis for non church going until I was sick at heart. Coming out of the house where I had made my last call a rather amusing incident occurred. Such things will happen sometimes, and we have a right to guess why. An old car came chugging along in the mud. It was making much noise and was slinging the mud in all directions. On the side of the mud splattered car I read these words, "Just another Dodge." It occurred to me that all the afternoon I had been seeing the sin splattered church members chugging along and on the face of every excuse I could read, "Just another Dodge." When you hear people giving alibis for not being at church you can mark what I say—they are most likely to be just another church member slashing and splashing along, dodging the privilege of church loyalty and life.

In company with a saddle man I went out to his barn to look over his fine herd. On the pasture he had many very fine steers, but he was anxious that I see his blue ribbon cattle in their stalls. I had to conclude that those cows were very fine down to the last hair. While we were under the shed we saw a lad, freckled faced, hump-backed, unkempt, uncultured coming toward us leading one of the finest-looking yearlings that I ever saw. I saw the calf, but my attention was directed entirely toward that unkempt uncultured lad leading the calf. I found out later that the boy was none other than the oldest son of the cattle man. It was very evident that the calf occupied a more important place in the mind of that father than did his own boy. Some of you who read this know where your car, your mule, your cattle are at night, but you do not know where your son is. "Where is your wandering boy tonight?"

I saw a devoted mother take the nose of her babe between her fingers on one hand, while she held a spoon full of bitter medicine to the lips of the child with the other. She coaxed the child in this language, "Take it, darling, it is good and sweet." Our heavenly father does not treat us that way about the bitter things of life. God says to us "It is bitter my child, but you must take it for your good, and it will make you feel better by and by." Take courage my friend—God knows when the medicine of life is bitter.

Not long since the newspapers announced that a skeleton of a man had been found in the Alps. Investigation was made and it was learned that a tourist had been lost in that locality a few years ago. This tourist went in to the mountain in search of the Alpine flower, Edelweiss and never came back. It was supposed that as he was reaching for a flower on the brink of the rock that he lost his balance and was plunged to his death on the crags below. He was reaching for what he wanted but he lost his life. We see young people today who are out after the flower of pleasure. They are reaching for the dance hall, they are reaching for the midnight ride, and many of them lose their balance and self control and down to ruin they go. Better be careful when you reach for the Edelweiss flower of pleasure.

SIMPLE METHODS GIVEN FOR STORING POTATOES

Auburn, Ala.—A number of simple methods of storing Irish potatoes may be used by Alabama farmers in saving potatoes for use during the cold winter months and until the new crop is harvested next spring.

"Irish potatoes may be very satisfactorily stored during the winter in dry sand, in dry sawdust, in cotton seed, in straw banks, in trenches, in cool cellars, or in the regular sweet-potato-type of banks, advises Prof. L. M. Ware, head of the horticulture and forestry department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Whatever the method used, three points should be carefully observed:

1. "After harvesting, the potatoes should be spread out in an attic or under an airy shed long enough to permit the surface of the tubers to become dry.
2. "Sufficient protection should be given the potatoes so that they will not be subjected to extremely low temperatures during the winter.
3. "Rain and water from all sources should be kept away from the stored potatoes."

IS GOOD TIME TO CLEAN ORCHARDS

Ala.—Now is the time to clean up the orchard and get it ready for the winter sprays, reports L. M. Ware, head of the horticultural department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, in advising that "fruit trees must receive some attention if the fruit is produced. General sanitary measures, such as pruning dead limbs, removing all mummified fruit from the trees, and raking leaves and burning all the refuse, will help a great deal toward reducing injury to the fruit and trees by insects and diseases," he states. Stone fruits, such as peaches and apples, are injured every year by the tree borer, which can be controlled with a material known as P. or paraffin crystal gas, or paraffin benzene. Now is the time for treatment. Apple trees are attacked by an insect known as roundheaded apple borer. The only safe way to destroy this is to dig them out with a sharp knife, he advises. Insects which attack apple, peach and plum trees in Alabama is the San Jose scale. In order to save a tree heavily infested with this insect should be sprayed as soon as the growth starts in the spring. An early start is the best for the control of this insect.

Party Line-Ups in 10 Congresses

This chart shows how Republicans and Democrats will share seats in both houses of seventy-fifth congress, as compared with nine preceding congresses.

Election Sets a New Record With 43,000,000 Votes Cast

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, elected to a second term by a greater plurality than any candidate has ever enjoyed in the past, finds himself now with perhaps more power than has ever before been trusted to any man in the world. He polled some 25,500,000 popular votes, to set a new all-time record. Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, his Republican opponent, was a bit shy of 16,000,000, while William Lemke, the Union party candidate, polled about three-fourths of a million.

These results were based upon 107,308 districts reported out of the 122,772 in the United States. It was estimated that the total vote, with all districts reported, would approximate 43,000,000 also a new all-time record.

The American people, providing the incumbent Democratic candidate with 523 votes in the electoral college to 8 for Governor Landon, also voiced their approval of the New Deal by materially increasing the Democratic majority in both houses of congress.

The senate in the Seventy-fifth congress will find the Democrats with 75 of the 96 seats, outnumbering the opposition more than 4 to 1. The house of representatives, where the Republicans had hoped to recover as much as 125 seats, will see the Democrats even stronger than before, holding 334 seats against 89 for the G. O. P.

PRESIDENTIAL VOTE BY STATES

President Franklin Delano Roosevelt swept to re-election on the crest of the largest wave of votes, both popular and electoral, ever cast for a Presidential candidate, it was apparent with 105,251 districts reported out of a total of 122,772 in the United States. The table below shows the number of districts reporting in each state, the popular vote, the electoral vote and the winner's plurality in each state. Pluralities are estimated, since in most cases complete returns will not be available for some time:

FARMERS ASK THAT AGRICULTURE ACT CONTINUE

CAPITAL WAITS NEW AAA MOVE AS PLEA VOICED

Prospects For Revival Are Strengthened By Request From Farm Leaders

ADMINISTRAT'N SILENT

Washington, Nov. 9.—The prospect that the new deal may seek to revive AAA principles of crop control appeared today to have been strengthened by developments over the week end. While there was no official announcement of intentions, officials who deplored the death of AAA at the hands of the supreme court were believed to be highly gratified by the unanimity with which a meeting of farm leaders on Saturday demanded a return to the original agricultural adjustment program.

This development, combined with recent forecasts by the agriculture department that possible farm surpluses may lead to declining prices next year, was taken as an indication that the administration may make some new move along the lines of production control. The farm leaders had been called here to talk over an administration proposal for federal crop insurance designed to bolster the present soil conservation program. The farm men were lukewarm in their discussions of this, relegating it to a distinctly secondary status.

Ask "Stronger" Program

But they left a resolution with President Roosevelt's crop insurance committee calling for "strengthening of present program" and asserting that no farm program could be "permanently effective" unless it included "means of controlling production and distribution of farm products." Secretary Wallace, chairman of the crop insurance committee, went directly from the conference with the farmer leaders to the White House for a talk with Mr. Roosevelt. Afterwards he told reporters that farmers wanted the original AAA program re-enacted.

The supreme court majority, in holding that program invalid, said farming was a local affair over which the government had no control under the constitution but spokesmen for the farmer group contended the ruling did not block future action. "The supreme court has been known to change its mind," said Edward A. O'Neal, head of the American Farm Bureau Federation and spearhead in asking return of the "old triple-A. Some presidents have changed the supreme court," he added with a laugh. "Abe Lincoln did."

Committee Not Surprised

The demand for a return of AAA was not believed to have been a total surprise to the president's committee. Secretary Wallace said many of the farm spokesmen present had helped shape the original AAA program. O'Neal and other speakers favoring revival of direct farm control have been advisors and supporters of the administration. They asserted that the farm region vote for the president was indorsement of the original program.

The invalidated AAA was devised to adjust farm production to demand through benefit payments to farmers who would adjust their crops. The money for benefits was obtained by taxing processors. The soil-conservation program substituted by congress stressed building up soil fertility by payments that encouraged a shift of farm lands from major crops to grasses and to growths that enrich soil.

Chilton County Exchange Sends Message To County's Farmers

To the Farmers of Chilton County:

"The Chilton County Exchange is a cooperative organization that belongs to the farmers of Chilton County. It is not controlled by any person or persons outside the county, as some people seem to think, but has a board of directors, each a farmer of Chilton County. Their names are to be found at the conclusion of this article.

"The purpose of the Exchange is to sell seed, feed, spray materials, fertilizers and other supplies which the farmer uses, at a very small profit. This probably helped to lower the prices on seeds, especially legumes.

"The Exchange buys a great many of the farmers' products. We pay top prices for chickens and eggs. We now have an order for 5,000 gallons of sorghum syrup. We have bought several hundred gallons and can use several more at a fair price."

"The past year the Exchange sold about 40,000 baby chicks to the farmers of the county. We expect to install an incubator soon, thus enabling us to sell number one chicks.

"In June, 1936, Mr. John McSwain became manager. He is also with the Alabama Cotton Cooperative Association. S.A. Jones, assistant manager, has been connected with the Exchange since its organization. He has had about three years experience in seeds and feeds. He invites the farmers of the County to come in and trade with him.

"Osmond Grant came to us in the early spring. He is the man to get in touch with when you wish to sell produce or buy feed.

"A farmers' organization (The Farm Bureau) began operating the first cream station in Chilton County in 1928. We now buy cream for Southern Dairies, Inc. Our cream station is the most modern and sanitary station in the county. This station gives employment to four local people. They are: Dalton (Buck) Bice, who has about three years experience in testing; Morris Mims and Jerrell Miller, who are experienced and wide-awake helpers; Mrs. J. L. Downs, clerk in store and cashier for cream tickets. We give you good tests and quick service.

Board of Directors:
"The following are members of the President—M. C. Wyatt, Clanton Rt. 5.
Vice-president—T. F. Patterson, Ver-beno, Rt. 1.

Secretary—C. C. Cofer, Jemison Rt. 1.

Members are: A. B. Jones, Plantersville Rt. 2; J. M. Culp, Clanton, Rt. 6; Chas. W. Burgess, Clanton Rt. 4; R. M. Foshee, Clanton Rt. 4."

AAA BENEFITS CHECKS TO BE DISTRIBUTED SOON

Auburn, Ala.—Forms for Alabama farmers to use in applying for $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 in benefit payments have been sent to county agents and plans have been completed by AAA officials for the bulk of the payments to be made during November, December and early January.

Most Alabama county agents have already started preparing the application forms for farmers to sign in applying for their payments. When the forms are ready the agents will notify the growers, advises Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the Alabama Extension Service, in asking that farmers wait until they receive notice before going to the county agent's office to sign the application.

Instead of waiting until all applications for payments are in, the AAA is going to make initial payments of 90 percent of the Class, or soil conserving, and 100 percent of the Class 2, or soil building payments, to those farmers who have properly completed their agricultural conservation practices.

Most farmers participating in the program in the Southern Region completed the practices in connection with which payments are to be made. However, it is not yet possible to determine the full extent of participation by all farmers, and until this is determined it will not be possible to make what adjustments may have to be made.

For this reason, 10 per cent of Class 1, or soil-building payments, being withheld until the exact participation of each farmer is calculated. Later on, when all this information is available, any part of the 10 per cent that may remain unexpended will be distributed.

"Take A Tip From The Airlines," Says Noted Flyer

In a recent interview Major Al Williams, famous aerobatic flyer and speed ace, emphasized the importance of an airline keeping its ships in the air as much as possible. Each time a plane is grounded to undergo repairs, the depreciation and other fixed charges rapidly eat up the profits that it has made for the operators.

A few years ago, many of the giant airliners that operate on the Skyways of America had to be withdrawn from service every 200 hours so that their motors could be completely overhauled. Upon examination, the bearings, pistons, pistons, and cylinder walls were found to be considerably worn. The oils used to lubricate these parts were classified as being among the best obtainable, but the best was none too good and science had to discover a lubricant that would permit the operation of these ships for longer periods. Science has bridged the gap with Gulfpride Oil, and today many of the planes of Eastern Airlines and other air transport companies operate for more than five thousands hours before they require overhauling.

"Motorists who want their cars to last longer, perform better, and operate more efficiently should take a tip from the airlines," said Major Williams. "Alcohol-processed Gulfpride is the choice of many airmen whose lives depend upon the perfect lubrication of their motors. Car owners will discover that this remarkable lubricant will slash the operating costs of their automobiles, and will permit easier starting when the temperature takes a nose dive."

SOUTH CLANTON

OWNER OF GRAND CHAMPION

COW DELIVERS RADIO TALK

Buster Popwell Tells Radio Audience About His Work

With Calf Club And Of The Grand Champion

Following is an address delivered by Buster Popwell, of Clanton, owner of the Grand Champion Cow of Alabama, Over radio station HAPI recently. Buster is one of Chilton County's promising young farmers:

"The Chilton County Calf Club was originally organized in 1929 by the County Agent. At that time a number of high grade, pure bred Jersey cattle were bought by progressive farmers and given to their sons as a project for them to work with. However, my brother, Clyde Popwell, had some grade cattle which he sold and bought my cow's grandmother with his own money. This cow, along with others was bought from Mr. Hall in Midway, Alabama. Cows at that time along with everything else were quite high, and my brother had to pay $104.00 for his cow when she was eight months old.

"June 1, 1936, B.N. Ivey, Assistant County Agent in 4-H Club Work, was employed by Chilton County to re-organize the 4-H Clubs in general. During the month of July the Calf Club was re-organized, and it has been quite active since then. At this time I joined the Calf Club and bought a pure bred Jersey calf for $100.00. I also took care of and claimed the calf's mother. I took much interest in these two animals and brushed them daily, as I was planning to enter them in the local show and State Fair.

"At the local show in Clanton September 19, my cow and calf were in competition with 30 other pure-bred Jersey cattle. I won 5 prizes as follows: 2 first prizes, 2 championships, Junior and Senior, and the grand champion prize. A total of $34.00. My cow and calf were in competition with each other for the grand champion prize. The judges, Mr. A.A. Lauderdale, and Mr. F.W. Burns, gave it to the cow.

"This show created quite a bit of interest among the Club boys and others over the county. September 27 these cows and calves were carried to the State Fair in Birmingham.

"Our club entered a judging team in the Judging Contest September 28. Howard Martin, Quinton Kelley and myself made up the Chilton County Judging team. Quinton Kelley won a second and third place, and I won second place in judging individual beef animals.

"The livestock were judged at the State Fair Tuesday morning, September 23, and my cow and calf won first in their individual classes and the cow was placed as the grand champion of the show. These two animals won $51.00 in cash and a trip to the National Livestock Show in Chicago.

"I am very proud of the honors which were given to my cow and calf. Thursday night of the week of the Fair I enjoyed a delightful banquet at the Hotel Tutwiler given by some of the industrialists of Alabama. I have enjoyed working with the Club since July and especially the week of the Fair, and I am going to have this cow and calf in still better condition next year.

"I wish to thank the Radio Program Committee for the opportunity given me to make this talk over radio.

Exposure to cold rains causes a serious reduction in milk production. This being true, it will pay Alabama dairymen to provide a cheaper shelter for their cows this winter.

That's What I Think

○○○

Saul M. Goldstein

(Saul M. Goldstein)

we don't think about taking war- seriously until they strike home. When or other, the average human being is pretty callous about death, and injury unless they happen to someone near and dear, and then awful truth comes up suddenly smack in the face. Right in the heart of an important arterial high- way, Clanton sees cars from all over country come speeding through, around and southbound; but when of our own goes southbound at rapid rate and goes headlong into a house, or some sort of contest every time to stop and think. An automobile gliding smoothly along at a reasonable pace is a joy and sport; but an automobile hurtling on the highway at excessive speeds, a massive hulk of steel and iron, a human flesh and bones cannot stand.

now that the elections are over, we stop calling each other names and get down to being friends again. In my opinion it's a good thing to have an election, or some sort of contest every year, in a while so we can get all the inflated meanness off our chests and start all over again. It's a rare thing to the American people the American system of govern- ment that we can hold an election and play bridge or enjoy an evening of. In Spain, when they differ, they say it with machine guns and gas; in Germany they say it with concentration camps and purges. Adolph Hitler was elec- ted Chancellor by a bigger com- parative majority than Franklin D. Roosevelt received; but some suspicion still lingers that Hitler's majority was won by the bayonet, whereas Roosevelt was reelected by the good American custom of the free and honest use of the secret ballot. We can continue to make intelligent use of the American system of gov- ernment only so long as we continue to elect our coming generation to do and there, in a nutshell, you have the secret of the success of the American system. Free and universal suffrage. Above all things we should vote to all future generations of our citizens a thorough, system- atic education which will make them citizens, healthy and comfortable in their habits of living. President Roosevelt has designated week as National Education Week. Go to your nearest school and make a visit; get acquainted with the teachers and discuss their problems with them; find out if your children and your neighbor's children are get- ting their just due in preparation for adult lives. Just as modern ma- chines are making available to all peo- ple products for everyday use, so modern train- ing is making available to all peo- ple luxuries to kings and barons of centuries ago, so modern train- ing is making our ordinary citizen a better and better equipped to deal with the problems of life than the aristocrats of those days were.

Clanton. It's alive and grow- ing. The houses and business build- ings are the faces of men and women looking a new light ahead and who are going ahead to bigger and better things. The people in Clanton walk with their heads up and smiles on their faces. I like an attitude like that. It shows progress and achievement. Clanton is growing, and there is every rea- son to believe that its future is unlim- ited.

It depends on people and more people. More people will come to Clanton when and because they have jobs here. It takes industry to create jobs for people in sufficient number to mean rapid growth for the town. Add those three statements together and the sum is obvious; we need new industries. A factory moves into Clanton and it takes people to work, that will mean ten or fifteen new fami- lies; if it puts two hundred more to work, it will mean perhaps twenty or more new families in Clanton. Industry all over the United States is booming; factories are unable to get orders, and new factories are being opened every day. If Clanton has its share of those factories, there is no reason in the world why it should not get it. In Kentucky, they used to have a real estate tax of thirty cents on every dollar of value. When the new administration reduced it to ten cents and substituted instead a sales tax of three per cent on everything but gasoline. Then "Hap- pender" campaigned for and won the governorship on a platform to abolish the real estate tax. He did it, and reduced the automobile li- cense to a uniform fee of four and a half dollars. He substituted for that a graduated luxury tax on soft drinks, cream, candy, cosmetics and other items averaging about twenty per cent. He increased the state appropriation for the public schools, and reduced the state debt by about eight million dollars in the first nine months of his adminis- tration. Anyway you look at it, that's something.

I've run across lots of people in Clanton who are newcomers to the city; people who haven't lived here much longer than I. And the universal cry seems to be "it's so hard to find a home!" That's another one of the symptoms of growth and before long owners of real estate and contractors will be getting together to provide new, modern homes for this increasing de- mand. Big cities whose history dates back for many years need no apology for old-fashioned homes and tumble- down neighborhoods; but Clanton's new homes should lack none of the 1936 equipment that is fast becoming necessity rather than comfort. Colder winters call for better heating facili- ties, and new homes that go up in the future should not overlook their debt to the progress of a community.

The community's population has doubled in the last four or five years, and it's no wonder there's a shortage. Boys and girls growing up find them- selves often exceeding the possibilities of their clothes, and they either re- make them or get new ones. It is no wild vision to think of Clanton re- porting a population of 10,000 souls when the 1940 census comes to be taken, and city and county residents should begin to take stock and prepare for that increase. I say county ad- visedly, because Clanton's success is Clanton's success; and both are tied up in one common bond. The promise

C.R. Copelan Now With Polk Bros. Motor Co.

The Polk Bros. Motor Co., Chrysler-Plymouth dealers, announce that they have secured the services of Mr. C. R. Copelan for their automobile re- pair department.

Mr. Copelan is an expert mechanic with over 20 years experience. He, for several years, has been connected with one of the largest automobile dealerships in the state, therefore, you can now take your car, regardless of make, to the Polk Brothers Motor Co., for service and repairs with the assurance of an abundant life is here for Clanton residents and Chilton County residents, and it is our own fault if we don't take advantage of it.

There is no need to stress the ad- vantages of one particular project that should be no longer neglected in this community. I am referring to a public library. With the WPA prepared to furnish labor and a large share of the materials for the construction of a building, and the Carnegie Foundation ever ready to cooperate with the local people in maintaining both building and books, there is little left to us to do but furnish the initiative and the energy to put it across. That initiative and energy will prove an investment which will yield increasing returns for generations to come. Both informative and entertaining, books help to keep old and young out of mischief and keep up that high standard of education for which America has made itself famous.

that it will be fixed right and the charges reasonable.

Mr. Copelan invites the car owners to drive their cars to the Polk Bros. Motor Co., and let him get acquainted with you and inspect your car and offer suggestions of things you should have done to your car now in order to prepare it for the winter driv- ing.

The girls who attended the state meeting at Montevallo discussed briefly their visit. A list of the girls' names who are eligible for second degree were read, after which the social committee took charge. Amusing games were played and delicious refreshments were enjoyed. Short speeches were given by the new officers and the retiring presi- dent.

"I want diamond rings, not plain ones," grumbled a robber who stopped Mrs. Kathleen Coros in Chicago. She had turned her rings on her fingers. Hiding diamonds worth more than $1,500.

Mrs. Malone Thanks Groups For Part In Victory, Urges Organizations Retained

Mrs. A. Y. Malone, of Dothan, democratic national committee-woman for Alabama, congratulated Alabama women Monday for their part in the recent national campaign and urged the leaders to retain and enlarge their county organizations.

The various county and district chairmen, Mrs. Malone said, are a permanent part of the state democratic force.

L. W. "Chip" Robert, secretary of the national committee, in a telegram to Mrs. Malone congratulated her and her co-workers for "the wonderful results in this state." Mrs. Malone replied that Alabama women considered it a privilege to have had a part in the campaign and assured Robert that Alabama's organization would be a permanent one.

Transmitting Robert's telegram to the county, district and various committee chairmen, Mrs. Malone declared that "You are indeed a permanent part of the state democratic force."

Therefore, I urge that you retain and enlarge your county committee and that you at all times be prepared for service. After the inauguration in 1937 you may be called upon by the national committee, women's division, for duties of a constructive nature. Until then we will rest awhile."

Campaign committee chairmen included: Radio, Mrs. Luther Patrick, Birmingham; speakers, Mrs. Louise Charlton, Birmingham; chain teas Mrs. Thelma Turner, Montgomery; publicity, Mrs. I. T. Quinn, Montgomery; lawyers, Mrs. Chelly Moseley, Union Springs, Mrs. Van Allen, Mobile, and Miss Alice Doyle, Montgomery; labor, Miss Mollie Dowd, Birmingham. # Chrysler Offers Dynamic New Cars in 1937 Lines

The Chrysler Royal, four-door Sedan. This is the car with which Chrysler makes the low-priced field. Beauty, performance and exceptional roominess are its leading features.

The hood of Chrysler Royals and Imperials are hinged at the base, enabling them to be raised from the front to give easy access to the engine.

The Chrysler Imperial, 204 inches overall and 110 horsepower. This car is a larger and more luxurious model on the same general lines as the Royal.

The Chrysler Airflow has been greatly improved and refined. A new front end treatment adds to its beauty. Its unique integral body and frame construction give it maximum safety and its scientific streamlining reduces wind resistance and thus permits unusual economy for so large a car.

Radical changes in exterior appearance, increased roominess in interior dimensions and the addition of a number of important new engineering advancements feature the Chrysler line for 1937.

In introducing this new line, Chrysler announces its entrance into the low-priced field with a car that it expects to increase the volume of its production to double the 1936 figure.

The new low-priced car, which has been named the Royal, is large, handsome and high-powered.

The company makes it plain that the Royal is not built to sell at a price but is even finer in performance, beauty, comfort, roadability, safety and economy than its predecessors.

Interior dimensions have been so generously increased that the Royal has a roominess previously associated with much more expensive cars.

The line comprises four cars, with a total of 20 body styles. They are the Chrysler Royal with 93 horsepower and 199 inches overall length; the Chrysler Imperial, with 110 horsepower and 204 inches overall length; the Chrysler Custom Imperial with 130 horsepower and 223 inches overall length; and the Chrysler Airflow, with 120 horsepower and 213 inches overall length.

The Royal is made in 10 body styles, covering the requirements of every possible prospect. They are: Business coupe, rumble seat coupe, convertible coupe, two-door brougham, two-door touring brougham, four-door sedan, four-door touring sedan, convertible sedan, seven-passenger sedan and limousine.

Six body styles are offered in the Imperial; namely, business coupe, rumble seat coupe, convertible coupe, two-door touring brougham, four-door touring sedan, and convertible sedan.

The Custom Imperial comes in seven-passenger sedan and sedan-limousine models.

The Airflow is offered in six-passenger sedan and coupe body styles.

Heading the list of 1937 features in the Royal is an amazing new Gold Seal engine, which produces 93 horsepower with 228.1 cubic inches piston displacement.

This tremendous power is delivered with a smoothness, efficiency and economy never before possible in an engine of comparable size.

The high compression ratio of 8 to 1, the highest ever achieved in an engine of this bore, is one of the principal factors in producing horsepower with economy.

Valves have been new-designed and increased in size to permit greater volumetric efficiency in the exhaust valves.

A new material, Austenitic steel, is used.

The new engine is lighter in weight than its predecessor. Tests under a variety of driving conditions reveal a gasoline mileage considerably higher than that of the 1936 Chrysler car of comparable size.

The Gold Seal engine produces its high efficiency with any ordinary type of gasoline.

Chrysler body engineers have made a notable contribution to the new Royal. The width of the front seat cushion has been increased from 44 to 47 inches, giving ample room for three persons.

The width of the rear seat cushion has been increased 2 1/2 inches and now measures 48 1/2 inches. The body measures 48 1/2 inches wider at the cowl than formerly and the windshield is 4 1/2 inches wider, improving vision for greater safety.

The shaft tunnel has been eliminated from the rear compartment through the use of the Hypoid rear axle. This has been accomplished without sacrificing the comfort of Chrysler's "chair-height" seats or any of the room in the compartment.

The newly-designed instrument panel has the instruments and accessories conveniently grouped and so well illuminated that every figure and character is plainly visible at night.

Every control is flush with the surface of the panel and all knobs and dangerous protruberances have been completely banished both from the inside and outside of the car. This is done in the interests of safety.

Hardware and trim and upholstery are of the most attractive design, giving the interior of the car a luxurious appearance generally associated with much more expensive vehicles.

The insulation of the body has been greatly improved, with the result that the car is quieter and more impervious to heat and cold.

An entirely new method of mounting the body so that it is insulated from the frame is another factor in producing a quiet ride.

The ventilation system has been improved. The ventilating windshield has been adopted and the large screened cowl ventilator retained. Ventilating wires are built into the forward section of front door windows. Rear quarter windows on the four-door sedan models swing outward on friction pivots.

The redistribution of weight that was first featured in the Airflow and adopted in the Chrysler cars last year has been carried still further. In the 1937 Royal and Imperial the engine has been moved farther forward, thus increasing the cradled between the axles in which passengers ride.

A feature that will contribute greatly to riding ease is the new Aero Hydraulic Shock absorber. This is a two-way scope type, acting on same principle as the landing mechanism of a big airplane or the recoil mechanism of a heavy gun.

The independent type front wheel springing that has been so successful on Chrysler cars in the last two years retained, as is the ride stability, two important factors in riding. Floating Power mountings which insulate vibration from the body frame of the car will again be used on all Chrysler production.

Trunks are standard equipment on touring models and well with the body lines. They are more commodious than sedan models not supplied with trunks. Large luggage compartments which close flush with the rear panel.

The Chrysler Imperial includes all of the features mentioned in connection with the Royal and is in addition a more luxurious and more powerful car. Its 110-horsepower eight-cylinder engine has a displacement of 271 cubic inches and compression ratio of 6.7 to 1. Dual carburetors on this engine get the maximum efficiency from its fuel.

The interiors of the Imperial are characterized by luxury, good taste. Finish, trim and appointments are of the finest materials and most artistic design.

The Chrysler Custom Imperial is the latest word in style and luxury. It is designed to meet the needs of the motorist who requires a car of large capacity with ample room for passengers to ride comfortably.

The two body styles each have seven persons.

The rear seat of this measures 51 1/2 inches and front seat cushion is 49 1/2 inches wide. Auxiliary seats are large dimensions and of the comfortable design, high enough to permit passengers to sit out and relax.

The eight-cylinder engine, 323.5 cubic inches piston displacement develops 130 horsepower, producing a smooth, efficient performance at high speeds. The Chrysler motor overdrive is standard equipment.

The Chrysler Airflow has been refined and improved in many respects, while retaining the fundamental features that have won approval as America's most modern car. A new front end sign gives it additional safety and preserves the styling that has made it famous.

ADDING EQUIPMENT FOR MORE AND BETTER SERVICE

SOUTHERN BELL spent twelve million, three hundred and sixty-seven thousand dollars during 1935 for improvements and replacements in telephone "plant" in order to meet the public's service needs in nine Southern states.

This money was required for such items as land and buildings, switchboard and other equipment, subscriber telephone equipment, local and long distance lines. The estimate for 1936 is that sixteen million dollars will be needed.

The increased demand for service in 1935 resulted in a net gain of 55,950 telephones. Local calls increased 8.6 per cent over the previous year, and toll and long distance messages gained 9.6 per cent.

Better business was reflected also by the addition of twelve hundred employees, bringing this total to seventeen thousand by the end of the year. The payroll was nineteen million dollars.

Taxes, too, increased to the highest sum in the company's history, when six million, five hundred and five thousand dollars was paid to federal, state, county and municipal agencies. This was an average of 60.9 cents per telephone per month, or $7.31 per telephone for the year.

Calls were handled efficiently—service criticisms decreased 35 per cent, although 8,39 originating calls per telephone per day were averaged, the highest calling rate in more than ten years.

Such facts as these show how well telephone folks are accomplishing their de-cision to give the most service and the best, at the least possible cost.

GENERAL FALL PLOWING DISCOURAGED IN STATE

Auburn, Ala.—It is a mistake for Alabama farmers to do fall plowing, except where there is a heavy crop of organic matter to be turned under and followed immediately with some kind of cover crop.

This is reported by J. B. Wilson, extension agricultural engineer, in advising that "fall plowing is not recommended for Alabama soils if soil conservation is to be considered."

For a number of years farmers of Alabama practiced fall plowing but found that a great amount of plant food was lost during the winter months.

On land with a large amount of organic matter, Mr. Wilson recommended ed that all rubbish, such as corn and cotton stalks and crotalaria, be cut with a stalk cutter and left on the ground to decompose during the winter months.

When he applied for a divorce in Detroit, Ernest Boston told the court that his wife talked so much that he didn't get enough sleep and as a result lost weight.

This majority for the Democratic Party shows a tremendous pick-up in strength in this county, which until 1932 was rock-ribbed Republican for about twenty-five years. WELFARE DEPT.

the past year by lack of adequate funds, and by lack of working staff large enough to enable us to make investigations as thoroughly and as promptly as we would like. However, we do not believe that actual starvation should occur in Chilton County, nor do we believe it necessary for any individual in the county to resort to begging on the streets in order to prevent starvation.

"If business establishments, homes or individuals, when approached by an individual asking for alms, will report the case to us, we will make every effort possible to investigate the case and if the individual is found eligible for assistance through our department, we will, to the limit of our ability, render the needed aid. The Department may be unable to meet the needs of an individual fully, and someone may wish to assist this person by private gifts, or cash donations. We have no objection to this. We recognize the fact that were it not for the kindness and sympathy of neighbors, families might sometimes suffer before they could be reached by the Department of Public Welfare, but we do not want house to house begging in Chilton County. It is not only degrading to the individual but an unnecessary annoyance to people in business. A thorough investigation sometimes reveals resources which make public assistance unnecessary. We do not like to see the public victimized by such begging."

Popular Store To Open Big Sale Here This Week

BEN MARGOLIS

"Ben's First Sale" is the heading of a full page advertisement appearing in this issue of the News, and what a sale. Ben's, one of Clanton's most popular stores, is holding its first sale since it opened its doors here several years ago.

Located next door to the First National Bank, Ben's has continually built up a splendid business with high quality merchandise and low prices. Under the management of Ben Margolis, who is widely known over the county, the store is offering exceptional values in this sale event.

"This is our first sale since we have been in business," Mr. Margolis stated. "And we really want it to be a sale that is seldom equalled, so our prices have been slashed down to truly sale prices. It is a lucky day for the people of this section if they want some real values for their money," he continued.

Ben's First Sale opens today, when they open their doors for business. And, the public is invited to attend this event, which itself is unique and attractive.

M'KEE URGES PAYMENT OF POLL TAX

Expresses Thanks To Voters For Their Support Democrats

"To the Taxpayers:

"Kindly let me call your attention. I have already advised you and advise you all to pay your taxes in December, to save the penalty interest. The other is that every man and woman in this county should and to do this it is necessary for you to pay your poll tax, and I would insist that you do this within the period prescribed by law. The reason your taxes are not paid and you not qualified to vote. "I would like to extend my congratulations to the people who participated in November 3rd elections for quiet way that the elections were held. It impresses me that have become more united in thought of what is the best interest everyone. That in itself is the best purpose of having a government and I feel like the best administration of government has, without doubt, proven it's desire to care for the needs of the average people."

"Let me thank you for voting the amendments, as well as to had no selfish interest to serve or was there anything for me to be fighting these amendments, was my honest conviction that they led in the wrong way, and I know by this time the whole state them out by a sizeable majority."

"I again thank you for every you have done for me and the Democratic party, and trusting that have the pleasure of being associated with you in as many Democratic victories as we have elections, I am Yours for success in the future."

VALUABLE PRIZES OFFERED

New 1937 Dodge Offered As Prize

One of the Grand Prizes offered by the Chilton County News is a 1937 Dodge two-door sedan, in the huge circulation campaign which opens this week.

NEW 1937 DODGE AMONG PRIZES TO BE AWARDED BY THE NEWS

Each Person Entering Competition Paid Weekly While Winning. $27.50 Elgin Wrist Watch Given For Best First Week's Work. Extra Cash Given

ENTER YOUR NAME FIRST; YOU CANNOT LOSE; A NEW DODGE CAR, GO TO EUROPE AT EXPENSE OF NEWS, OR CASH

The Chilton County News today announces a most unusual drive for new or renewal subscriptions.

We pay participants in this campaign each week, a commission of ten per cent of all collections for subscriptions, while adding credits toward winning one of the handsome prizes we are going to award in a few short weeks. You can win several prizes in this race, and still win the beautiful 1937 Dodge. Now is the time to earn extra Christmas cash without holding any position. You can be very successful during your spare time. This offer is worth investigating. There are no charges for entering. You cannot lose anything.

The Prizes

The winner of the first prize will be given a handsome new 1937 Dodge automobile. Think of winning the prize car without it costing one dollar! Perhaps the winner may already have a new car and would wish the European Tour with every expense paid, including hotel rooms with bath while in London and Paris, and sight-seeing trips by motor each day spent on land. There will be a tour of the Shakespearean Abbey, a trip to Westminster Abbey and then on to Versailles and through the Hall of Mirrors. No doubt it will be spent at the Folies in Paris.

If the winner of the first prize should not wish the new Dodge car, and not care to take the trip abroad then perhaps she would prefer the cash. The cash equivalent of the tour will be given if the winner so desires.

The new 1937 Dodge may be seen at (Continued to back page)

State Speaker For Red Cross Campaign

R. J. GOODE

Commissioner of Agriculture Goode has been doing some excellent work over the state in behalf of the annual Red Cross Membership Drive.

GRAND JURY WILL CONVENE NEXT MONDAY

Criminal Term Circuit Court Is Set To Be Held
December 7th

The Chilton County grand jury will convene in Clanton at the courthouse on Monday, November 23, according to an announcement made this week by Hon. Arthur Glover, judge of the Nineteenth Judicial Circuit, which is composed of Chilton, Autauga and Elmore counties.

Judge Glover also advised that the jury term of Circuit Court would convene beginning on Monday, December 7th, for the trial of criminal cases.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE OF RED CROSS TO END

Chilton Lacks Big Sum Of Filling Quota Set For The County

Chilton County is coming to the front this week in its number of memberships to the Red Cross, although it is still somewhat behind its quota, according to J. Mel Martin, chairman of the Roll Call.

Workers have been most faithful in their carrying out of the program designed to secure members and the people have responded generously, Mr. Martin stated.

However, it is realized that many persons have not been called on for their membership, and these people are asked to please make some attempt to join the Red Cross now and place this county in a position to take care of its own emergency cases if possible.

J. R. Mullins Opens Exclusive Toy Shop

The only exclusive toy shop in Clanton is now open, according to an announcement made elsewhere in the News this week by J.R. Mullins & Sons, one of Clanton's largest stores.

This new addition to this complete store is located on the second floor, with entrance on the outside. There you will find dolls, wagons, trains, toy automobiles, and in fact everything that a youngster would like it to be. J.R. Mullins & Sons invite you to visit their toy shop now, and ask that you make your selection of toys now, if you wish, using their lay-away plan.

Don't Let Chickens Annoy Your Neighbor

Due to numerous complaints being registered at the city hall about chickens annoying people by digging into flower beds and gardens, attention has been called to a city ordinance which prohibits this.

Mayor Jones stated that the city would greatly appreciate the cooperation of owners of chickens within the city limits in seeing that they are properly fenced in so as not to annoy neighbors.

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Taylor were among those from Clanton who attended the Auburn-S.U. football game

Outstanding Work Is Being Accomplished At Local Airport

Modern Brick And Steel Hangar Is Now Under Construction; Field Taking On Splendid Appearance This Week

A visit to Gragg Field, Clanton's airport, will give a beautiful sight now since workmen have been busy for some time there. In fact, it is somewhat difficult to describe just what has been done and just what is being done to make this airport one of the most modern for its size in the entire state.

Dr. V. J. Gragg, for whom the airport was named, visited the field Tuesday afternoon with a representative of the News. Extensive grading and leveling has already been done, and the ground is being prepared for sodding with grass.

One run-way measures approximately 2,850 feet and another approximately 3,150 feet, said by pilots who have seen it to be one of the best in this section. The entire field covers ninety-two acres.

Deep and well planned ditches on either side of the field take care of all water and in the center there is a concrete "center circle" which shows aviators which is the longest run-way etc. This center circle itself adds a great deal to the appearance of the field.

Now, bricklayers and carpenters are going right on up with the modern hangar which when completed will measure eighty feet front by sixty feet long with the back walled with wood for possible future extension. (Continued to back page)

Executive Committee Will Meet On Friday

The Democratic Executive Committee of Chilton County will meet at the courthouse on Friday afternoon of this week at two o'clock, according to W. M. Polk, chairman.

Notices were mailed to all members of the committee the early part of the week. Several matters of importance are expected to be brought up at this meeting, it was stated.

THANKSGIVING PLAY TO BE GIVEN AT M.E. CHURCH

The News has been requested to announce that an interesting Thanksgiving play will be presented at the Clanton Methodist Church on next Sunday night at seven o'clock.

This play will be given by the Intermediate Department of the Methodist Sunday School. The public is cordially invited to see this.

Theatre On Wheels Coming To Clanton

The Hayes Chevrolet Co., local Chevrolet dealers, announce this week that they will bring the unique Chevrolet "theatre on wheels" to Clanton on Saturday of this week.

This large truck carries a complete motion picture outfit, and will stage two showings while in the city. The first showing will be at two-thirty P.M. and the second at seven o'clock. It is all free and the public is invited.

EDITORIAL

A WONDERFUL OPPORTUNITY

To those who have not had the pleasure of visiting Gragg Field, Clanton's airport, this editorial will perhaps mean little. But to those who have visited the field within the past few days, we hope they will get the idea, and we hope that those who haven't seen the field will do so this week.

A visit to the field will show anyone that it is rapidly becoming an asset to the entire county and that there are still wonderful opportunities for the citizens of the county to get behind this project and without small effort, make it one of the beauty spots of the county.

The next step, in the opinion of the News, should be the construction of a modern swimming pool and recreation center at the airport. There is plenty of space, water and the location is ideal. There is not a decent swimming pool or recreation center within twenty-five miles of Clanton where the young people and the older ones, too, may go for an afternoon of recreation.

This is one of the best opportunities ever presented the citizens of the county in some time, and should not be allowed to pass without some reasonable effort made to take advantage of it. We owe it to the young people of the county to provide for them a clean, wholesome recreation center.

LEGISLATORS TOLD PREPARE FOR S. SESSION

Each Member With Date

Gov. Graves Saturday dispatched letters to members of the Legislature, informing them they would be summoned to meet in extraordinary session on November 23, which falls on Monday.

The letter, which the chief executive made public soon after some 141 copies were placed in the mail, contained no information aside from the fact that the formal call would appear subsequent to the letter.

His letter to legislators said: "For your information, let me say that I shall issue a call for a special session." (Continued to back page)

Tuskegee Quartette To Present Program Here

A male quartette from the Tuskegee Negro Institute will come to Clanton to render a program of songs and music at the courthouse on Tuesday, November 24. The program starts at seven o'clock.

This is said to be one of the best quartettes in the South. Proceeds go for the benefit of the Concord Consolidated School.

HOMEMAKERS CLASS WILL MEET NEXT FRIDAY—20TH

Mrs. Ezel's Sunday school class will have its regular business and social meeting Friday, November 20th, at 2:30 o'clock. The meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Vivian Rhinier. The subject of the program will be Mrs. Mitchell's book, "Gone With The Wind." All members are urged to be present.

REAL TURKEY DINNERS ARE TO BE ENJOYED

217 Families Of This County To Get Turkeys From Government

National turkey day again comes to Rural Rehabilitation farmers. Farm families who have been forced to forget about this royal bird for the last few years now look forward to a real Thanksgiving, with all that goes with it according to Marvin Durbin, Rural Rehabilitation Supervisor in Chilton County.

217 families will have much to be thankful for and are proud of their achievements in home and farm improvement, and of the fine record they have made. Many of these families will substitute other delicious meats for the Thanksgiving bird in the district. Of the $41,316.86 advanced to farmers in Chilton County more than 75 per cent already has been repaid and more will be repaid as late crops go to market.

"Files in this office," continued Mr. Durbin, "contain many letters from farmers who have been aided by this program and all letters indicate such improved conditions that all of us have much to be thankful for."

POLK BROS. OFFER SPECIAL USED CAR BARGAINS HERE

According to Geo. C. Polk, sales manager for Polk Brothers Motor Co., local Chrysler-Plymouth dealers, the wonderful reception of the new 1937 "Safety Styling" Plymouth, has enabled them to trade for several late model cars of popular make at prices that enable them to offer you some very attractive buys in the used cars.

According to Mr. Polk, their used cars are all thoroughly checked by expert mechanics, and are priced just as low as possible for quick sale.

You will find a list of their this week's special bargains elsewhere in this paper. Mr. Polk says "Don't buy any used car anywhere, until you have seen and priced ours."

PASSING FOOTPRINTS Of The Times

— Billy Smith

How Is On
In the middle of your News this is a two-page announcement of the subscription campaign of the Chilton County News which opens today. We remember about five years ago conducted a similar campaign which was most successful. Here is one. Some person will win the prize—either a new 1937 Dodge automobile, a trip to Europe or the cash. And, too, there are other prizes and the weekly check commissions. In our opinion this is a wonderful opportunity for one to make some money or win a prize. Mrs. Myrtle Atkinson has secured to manage this campaign and we are glad we were able to get her services. You will find it most pleasant and we would like you to meet her.

Coming To You

Each week, or any other week, when the News office you will in probability be greeted by a young man who has had considerable experience in the newspaper and printing business. She is "Mrs. Billy" or "Mrs. Nell," perhaps, to you. She is on the job now and in addition adding the affairs of the front page has the tedious and nerve-racking job of looking after us.

For Black Visits

Clanton was honored last Saturday by a visit from our good friend, Hon. Hugo Black. It has been some time since the Senator paid us a visit. Now he is a busy man—but not any to want to come back to Clanton stay longer. In fact, we were not surprised if he came back to a speaking engagement here in the near future. If he does, shouldn't be a man or woman in Clanton who didn't hear him. We were or less decided to start the drive on the road to being groomed for the Presidential election in 1940. At the same time, we believe he could handle the job, however, that President would decline to run again.

For Friend, The

One should walk along the streets and see a well-dressed policeman wonder if you are still in. He is none other than the one who is a friend of all of us—Chief Hugh Simpson. We are truly glad to see that the city now has a policeman, and Mr. Simpson the bill just right. Since we mentioned it, we might go ahead and say that he is making one of the efficient day officers of the city and with Officers Arthur Willis and R. Plyler, we are perfectly content.

Forget It, Either

Though the News reminds you in place this week that next issue will come to you a day later, we want to remind you again so, if you have anything you want in the paper next week, get it in earlier than usual, or less it might get out.

It Is?

Some time ago, C.W. Wade and his Charles, erected one of the most theatres in Clanton to be found in this section. It is comfortable, convenient, and excellent. They are shown there. It is truly the pride of Clanton. But, we seem to learn that certain young boys seem to appreciate anything and convenient. We have learned from some mothers or fathers boys to find delight in causing mischief in the theatre. They even resort to vandalism in the convenient lounge on the second floor. We want, too, but at the same time, we are ashamed of this—for them, if not have the decency to stay out of the theatre if they cannot control themselves as gentlemen. Clanton and of its new theatre and why these boys delight in making it a place of those common places?

ER. ODUM OCCUPIES OFFICE IN NEWS BLDG

In latest addition to the modern building, is the offices of Dr. E. M. Odum, chiropractor. Dr. Odum occupies one of the front offices in the news building and extends an invitation to the people of the county to visit his location.

News Will Come Out Day Earlier

Due to next Thursday being a giving and there being no service or rural delivery on that day, the News will be published one day earlier, so that you will not have to wait for your paper and that the News office may enjoy a day off.

Remember this and if you wish to get in the News, bring it in not later than Monday night. The News will remain open until a late Monday night for your convenience. Your cooperation in this is appreciated.

Partnership In Glory

From any corner of the country, at any moment, this story may come—from some corner at almost every moment it is coming.

"In the midst of ruin and disaster, the Red Cross has arrived, taken charge, is meeting the need."

It happens in San Francisco or Miami or Minneapolis or in any of the thousands of small communities in between; in the past twelve months it happened in 39 of the 48 states, and this past Spring particularly it held the world breathless as flood and storm swept 17 Eastern and Southern states. It is impersonal news—the expected has happened, to meet the necessities of the unexpected. The process is familiar; it becomes routine; perhaps it thereby loses, in the general acceptance, some of its dramatic appeal.

But it is no routine and it is no commonplace in the communities where it happens.

Flood victims, victims of storm, gripped by a force against which no struggle seems possible, have suffered the worst of disasters. The penetration of the chill of terror to the heart—and then the Red Cross, competent, experienced, sympathetic, adequate, takes over the situation. Fire victims face loss of their all, survey the pain and suffering around them, begin to experience a hurt that is worse than the original disaster itself—the dread conquest of despair—and the Red Cross accepts the situation, mends its immediate hurts with gentle, competent hands, and then plans the way out.

These are mere glimpses at the daily routine of the American Red Cross, as the story is told in the current news of a nation. And back of the functioning of the emergency service is a less conspicuous service which goes forward constantly, in the local training for various of the requirements of everyday life, and in meeting its harder necessities.

The annual Red Cross call which is now in progress is not a solicitation for gifts—it is the sale of Partnership in Glory.

The dollar membership is an expression of the intent that "we," and not "they" shall do these heroic things; that "we" shall be associated in the making of that news which flashes from every scene of disaster—the news that sympathy and skill and understanding have arrived on the scene as soon as the blow has struck and are building it back to normalcy without haste, without loss, without red tape; but with Red Cross efficiency.

We can be remote spectators, or we can be partners and participants. The difference is the expressed wish to be a member, and the dollar membership fee.

It is a tremendous value for a dollar. And it represents the difference between personal responsibility and doing for ourselves—and being dependent on someone else to look after us and maintain society for us.

Fear And Faith

Mankind's greatest enemy is fear. Fear is at the root of a high proportion of the ills of the human body, reports the famous experimental surgeon, Dr. George W. Crile of Cleveland, after years of intensive study into the causes of heart disease, with its accompanying histories of high blood pressure and sudden death and all the other ailments which take such a heavy toll of lives in America every year. It is customary to attribute these and other diseases of civilization to the nervous tension in which a large part of the inhabitants of the modern world continually live and move. But the cause of nervous tension, Dr. Crile believes, is primarily fear.

It has long been known to physiologists that physical fear stimulates the action of the heart and causes tension of the blood vessels. It is Dr. Crile's belief that the same or similar results follow the various forms of fear which we speak of as worry, apprehension, jealousy and by other names, all of which simmer down to the fact that we are afraid of something. This conclusion may point the way toward the reduction of elimination of many of the causes of premature old age, and of the infirmities due to nervous disturbances.

Just how fear can be eliminated from the human subconsciousness Dr. Crile does not undertake to point out. There probably is no rule or remedy of universal application, and it is also probable that the habit of fearlessness is one which must be acquired in youth or childhood. The interesting conclusion can be drawn, however, from Dr. Crile's report, that there is sound foundation for the teachings of spiritual leaders that the physical and the spiritual life are inseparable, and that in the long run it is the spiritual nature which controls the physical body.

That this is true is the accepted belief today of the most advanced thinkers in the medical profession as well as of the foremost religious leaders. This conclusion still leaves us facing an unsolved mystery, but brings home the vital importance of faith as an element in human life.

$60,000,000 A Year In Rents

A recently completed survey of the rentals paid by chain grocery stores provides food for thought for the nation's property owners.

The survey covers stores representing about 40 per cent of the entire industry, scattered throughout the country, and provides a highly accurate cross-section. It was found that the average rental paid per store amounted to $1,241. The average sales of each store were $45,540. As a result, rentals averaged 7.72 per cent of the sales.

If this ratio is applied to total chain grocery and combination store sales in the year 1933, it is found that these stores paid more than $60,000,000 to landlords. As a store's rental amounts to about 10 per cent of the property's value, this means that these chain stores were maintaining property values of more than $600,000,000 in 1933. This is regarded as a highly conservative figure, inasmuch as both rentals and property values were at extreme lows in that year, and have been rising steadily ever since.

To carry the comparison a step farther, if the landlord pays 30 per cent of his income from rent for taxes—the ratio given by a number of authorities—it means that the chain stores were paying more than $18,000,000 a year in indirect taxes through their rents alone.

These statistics speak for themselves. It is beginning to be realized that the attack on the chain stores is doing great harm to the nation's consumers and producers—and the nation's property owners fall into the same category.

"Heaven knows that heavy taxation will be necessary in the United States for a long time to come. But the voters are entitled to insist that it be levied wisely and equitably, and that the money raised be spent without waste or extravagance."—The New York Times.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

Two intelligent, right thinking young women visited the pastor in his study and unburdened their hearts to him. They said something like this: "Dr., we want to live right. After hearing your message on Sunday we resolve never to drink or smoke, or keep bad company, but as soon as we are invited out to socials and parties where we mingle with older people we are urged to do everything that we have resolved not to do. We are not bad at heart, but what are we to do when older people urge and lead us wrong?" As Roger Rabson would say, "That is the sore spot in the social life of today." Our young people are not bad at heart until they have been led wrong by some older people. I know no greater offense against character, life and destiny than for men and women of mature life to offer the glass to young men and women. The greatest enemy you have is not that person who will burn your home in the middle of the night, but that man or woman who will place the bottle to the lips of your boy or girl. Such folks are meaner than the devil would have them to be.

Not long since in a Southern State a tall negro man entered a place where whiskey was being sold and he bought a flask, drinking about half of it. He then went out into the night and soon was standing near the sidewalk waiting for the passing of a lone woman. A beautiful girl came along. He tapped her head with a brick and drug her into a secluded place, and there committed that crime that merits death. The community was enraged and the negro was lynched. However, nothing was done about the place where he bought the whiskey. Justice cried, "If you are going to lynch the negro for raping the girl, then you should lynch the man who sold him the whiskey." They were partners in the crime. The negro would not have committed that crime if he had not been under the influence of that flame of hell that was sold him by some one who was breaking the law. No one can handle whiskey without being a partner in all the crime that whiskey commits.

The coach of a high school team was lamenting before a church body that the sport of ball had been shackled by the gambling spirit that was on the outside of the school. He said that men would approach the boys of the team and offer them twenty-five dollars to throw the game a certain way. Such low down gambling trades would bet a hundred dollars on the game and then offer the lad twenty-five to throw the game so that he would win. All honor to the boy who would "biff the nose" and smash the line of such a scam as that. Any red blooded American loves a game of ball but when the low brows of American life sneak in with the gambling mania it is time to discontinue the game and punish those who gamble on them. As little as you think about it, our teachers are having a hard time to hold the lads of high school to a clean standard of life and all because of outside influences. My Lord, when are we going to get a stop to the gathering of gambling buzzards around our ball diamonds.

The husband came in from the ball game and he carried on his face that "Down and Out" expression that was always his when he had sustained a loss. He growled and snapped at everything coming near him and his wife questioned what had taken place. The life about the table were all delirious because the husband had won, but that old dad was an old bear. He had bet on the wrong side and had lost. When the wife had him in the room alone she shook her finger in his face and told him a few things that he needed to know. When her explosion was over, the husband said, "How would you have felt if I would have come home with a clean hundred dollar in my pocket?" She stammered but managed to say, "That would have been different." I sometimes wonder if the wives know that their husbands gamble. No wife can endure a husband who is a steady loser, but when he comes in with the cash, "Well that is different." The sad part about it all is that women are gambling with as much zest as are some men. A woman who gambles, especially she can bet, drink, curse, and smoke.

A serious shortage in draft animals has developed in Tuscaloosa County.

Between now and April 1, 1937 farmers have an unusual opportunity to modernize their homes and farm buildings through FHA Insured Modernization Loans being made by local banks, building and loan associations and other financial institutions, points out a letter to Alabama county agents.

Alabama lamb producers, especially those of the blackbelt section of the State, are manifesting a great deal of interest in the nation-wide efforts being made to get the lamb buying business on a grade basis. For a number of years, Alabama producers have sold most of their lambs on a grade basis at cooperative sales.

EVER GASOLINE TAX STATE WOULD MEAN MORE JOBS, KELLEY ASSERTS

Approximately 2700 jobs could be created for Alabama workers now on rolls, if this state were to reduce its 6 cent gasoline sales tax to the reasonable level, it was stated by J. B. Kelley, Vice-Chairman of the Alabama Petroleum Industries Committee.
Retail census figures covering the 1935 recently made available by the U. S. Department of Commerce show that the average annual business of service stations in this state is 44 per cent below that of a group taxing gasoline at rates not exceeding 4 cents per gallon. Mr.
Kelley explained, "The exact figures show $1,000 for this state as against $1,400 for the group of low tax states."
The situation again illustrates how taxes discourage consumption and low taxes stimulate consumer activity, thereby contributing to business recovery and consequent re-absorption of unemployed workers.
The figures show that lower gasoline taxes mean to Alabama business employment. If the average annual business volume of the 3003 service stations operating in this state could be brought up to normal through tax reduction, it would mean an increase of $10,841,000.00 of service station business for the state as a whole.

"Data published by the Department of Commerce also reveals that 252 service station workers were required to handle $1,000,000 worth of service station business. A return to more reasonable levels of gasoline taxation by this state consequently might well be productive of 2700 service station jobs.

"Encouragement of greater automobile use by lower gasoline taxes would rebound not only to the benefit of service station operators and service station workers. In addition to the 3003 service stations, there are 1281 business establishments operating in this state catering exclusively to the needs of motorists. These are comprised of garages, repair shops, body and fender shops, tire and battery shops, etc., operated chiefly by small business men. According to census statistics these 1281 establishments did $51,732,000.00 worth of business in 1935 and gave employment to 6117 workers.
"Service stations and other automotive establishments as a group accounted for 22 per cent of all retail business transacted in the state in 1935 and provided jobs for 18 per cent of the state's workers employed by retail establishments. It would seem to be to the state's best interests to remedy the lopsided and excessive taxation of a product upon which is based such a large share of the state's business and employment."

night, November 20, when the W. M. U. of Mulberry Baptist church will present that grand old rip-roaring farce-comedy play "Two Days To Marry."
If you can stand a double dose of genuine side-splitting laughter, you are eligible to see this gay little play, but cause the copyright recommends it for laughing purposes only.

The cast is composed of the following local talent:

to portray their respective parts and a very clever presentation can be assured. So reserve 10 cents for any school child and 20 cents for adults, and be at the Vermont School at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night (Friday).

IN MEMORY

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claud Smithman on Sunday morning, Nov. 8 and carried away their beloved daughter. She was only a bud of life. We loved her, yes we loved her, but God loved her best and we can't understand why but our loss is heaven's gain. She was always loving and true and to know her was to love her. She took everything so patient though she suffered for several weeks. No one knows what she suffered but God.

Weep not, dear friends, she said she was gone to rest her dying word was Heaven! Heaven! And why should we all trust to see her sweet smiling face in a better world.

We know not why but God knows best. He took her on with him to rest. She leaves here many friends but let us trust to meet again. She's gone she's gone to be at home with angels, bright where there is no night.

Fire Department Has Busy Time Recently

It has always been said that when there is one fire in Clanton, there will be two more following shortly. The volunteer fire department had all three within a very short time recently, when they answered three calls within twenty-four hours.

The first call came Sunday night early when burning brush and woods endangered property near the grammar school. The second call carried them to the frame dwelling near the depot while the third call proved the most serious.

The home, occupied by T. L. Cassel across from the Hester home was damaged considerably by fire early Monday morning. But quick work of extinguishing the flames was made by the efficient department, although the entire roof was almost burned.

FARM FAMILIES TO HAVE MORE MONEY DURING 1937

Auburn, Ala.—A higher level of farm family living in 1937, resulting from a marked improvement in farm income is forecast by the United States Bureau of Agriculture Economics.

"The outlook for 1937 income from agriculture the country over is a continuation of the upward trend of 1933-36," says the report.

"It would seem that farm families in general will have somewhat more money to distribute in 1937 among items of family living, in spite of the fact that farm equipment, farm buildings, and livestock for replenishing herds will doubtless claim a goodly share of the increase in income. Increased cash available for family living may be offset in part by higher prices of food and of some other commodities."

HIGHER LIVESTOCK AND MEAT PRICES EXPECTED

Auburn, Ala.—The general level of livestock and meat prices in 1937 is expected to be higher than for several years, says the annual outlook report of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Prospects for the smallest supply of meats in more than fifteen years and "further improvements in consumer demand" are given as reasons for predicting a higher price level. The meat supply for 1937 may be about equal to that of 1935.

"Even under favorable conditions for feed production in 1937, 1938, and 1939," the bureau says, "it hardly seems probable that total slaughter supplies will reach before 1940 a level equal to the 1930-34 average."

ALABAMA FARMERS GREW 238 POUNDS PER ACRE HIGHEST EVER RECORDED

Auburn, Ala.—Present indications are that Alabama farmers this year produced 238 pounds of cotton per acre the highest on record, surpassing the previous high of 226 pounds made in 1935 by 12 pounds and the ten-year (1923-1932) average of 172 pounds by 66 pounds, reports J. C. Garrett, state and federal agricultural statistician.

Alabama's 1936 cotton crop is now forecast at 1,155,000 bales compared with 1,059,000 bales in 1935.

VERMONT GIRLS 4-H CLUB

Our leader, Miss Grace was here November 5. She gave us a lesson on "Table Etiquette." We learned many rules on how to set the table and how to serve it.

We elected Miss Willie Dean Ratliff, Miss Louise Chambers and Miss Elvina Klinger for program leaders for this month. These girls are supposed to give a program for Christmas. We are to bring our gifts and draw names for whom we are to give the gifts to next meeting.

Rep. LOIS SEWELL.

"HE WAS A GAY SENORITA" TO BE PRESENTED AT BILLINGSLEY

"He Was A Gay Senorita" will be presented by the Senior Class of Billingsley High School on Saturday, November 21, at 7:30 o'clock.

In this amusing comedy, Otis Owens masquerades as a Spanish girl, gets into difficulties when he makes love to the chauffeur (Buck Culp), the gardener (Dave Griffin). His troubles will make the audience laugh hilariously throughout the play. The German gardener, Fritz (Dave Griffin) and his wife, Lena (Lois Ousley) will amuse the audience also. Arnold Benjamin (Bill Gaines) finds that the course of true love does not always run smoothly, but eventually he wins Vera Stewart (Mildred Herrod). Others taking part in the play are Ella Mae Smoot, Lois Limbrick, Ruth Williams, Doris Jones and C. E. Jackson.

Barnes, Blair Boswell, who likes Serena—J. W. Pickering.
Frank Fairfield, who likes Sophie—W. H. Harris.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. J. H. ELLIOTT

On Saturday afternoon, November 7 1936, about 1:25 o'clock, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Owens and carried away the loving spirit of his daughter, Mrs. Ella Mae Elliott. She had been in failing health for some time, gradually growing weaker until the summons came. She was thirty years of age. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband, four children, mother, father, three sisters and many relatives and a host of friends.

As God in His wisdom saw fit to call her from us we must be content. God's will be done. Weep not loved ones, your loss is heaven's gain.

Church the following Sunday, Martin & Sons were in charge.

The "WEEKLY PAY" PLAN IN BRIEF

The object of this big "WEEKLY PAY" drive is two-fold. Primarily to increase the already large subscription list of this newspaper; to collect arrearages and advance subscription payments from present or old subscribers and at the same time to afford the live-wire energetic men and women of this territory an opportunity to profit in a BIG WAY through their spare time during the next few weeks. So it is a plan that works both ways, and to the ultimate good of all concerned.

Let us be understood at the very outset that this is not a "Beauty" nor "Popularity" contest, but a strictly legitimate, competitive proposition for enterprising men and women, and one into which no element of chance enters. Each active participant will receive a pay check every Saturday afternoon. One feature of this drive is the fact that "Everybody Wins." There will be no losers.

How to Enter

Clip the entry coupon appearing below; fill in your name and address, mail or deliver to the Campaign Manager of The Chilton County News. This coupon entitles you or the person whom you may wish to enter, to 25,000 Extra Votes—if with one subscription, 150,000 votes additional.

For further information come to The Chilton County News and have the Campaign Manager explain in full details, without any obligation on your part.

Early Start Means Profitable Finish

The advantages of an early start are manifest. This "Weekly Pay" Drive is of such short duration that immediate action is necessary for success. Orders taken during the early part of the campaign carry the MAXIMUM number of votes. Then, too, the first in the field will undoubtedly get the easy subscriptions, while those who put off entering until a later date will have to take what is left.

Don't lose valuable time "Waiting to see what the other fellow is going to do," but pitch right in and show the "other fellow" how to do it.

ENTER THIS "WEEKLY PAY" DRIVE. BE YOUR OWN BUSINESS MANAGER FOR A FEW WEEKS. AND BE PAID A CHECK EACH FRIDAY AND AT THE SAME TIME BE PILING UP VOTES TOWARD WINNING THE MAJOR PRIZES.

Comfortable

-as you own home

Oursms, the wind may be blowing a gale...the rain may be coming down in torrents...but in your "Home Sweet Home" on rails, you are snug—comfortable—safe.

It takes a lot of money to maintain this "home" for you—$40,000,000 per year for wages; $12,000,000 for materials and supplies; $4,500,000 for taxes; $4,000,000 for fuel.

These are just a few items of our carefully planned routine. But they are contributing to the welfare of your community and helping to make it a better place in which to live. We believe that's what constitutes being a good citizen—and that's what the L&N has tried to be for more than 85 years.

The L & N is your

HOME SWEET HOME on rails

teaching Mrs. Foshee many times, Mr. H.L. Davis. Everyone wished for the bride many happy days.

MEMORY

Whereas it has pleased Almighty God in His infinite wisdom, grace and goodness to take out of the world the soul of our departed friend, R.O. Neighbors.

And, whereas, we knew him to be a man of extraordinarily good ideals, a good citizen, a good husband, a good father and a good law enforcement officer. We therefore, as a part of his great host of friends, bow in humble submission to the will of Almighty God as we offer the widow and fatherless our words of condolence.

Be it, therefore, resolved that the Sheriff's force of Chilton County, Alabama, mourn justly and share the sad- ness with the friends and relatives of this, our deceased friend.

Be it also resolved that we commend the lovable family of his to our Heavenly Father. He looks down on us all in our dark hours of desolations with compassion and will surely give us rest, joy and comfort if we will trust our lot to Him.

Be it further resolved that as we think of his passing we are also re- minded of the beautiful memory poem which tells us this:

I had a friend who is no more, In terms of life to seek, He'll never walk my threshold o're My comradeship to seek. In terms of death the smile is gone And stilled the voice I heard. Last night his face I looked upon, The eyelids never stirred.

And yet in terms of memory, He'll call and call again, That smiling face of his I'll see Untouched by grief or pain,

In terms of Memory I shall bear His footsteps at my door And ever thought shall bring him And often there before.

A thousand things will bring him To walk or sit with me, I'll stop to shift my heavy pack And at my side he'll be. Someone will sing his favorite song, Or praise his favorite book, And I'll all see him in the throng With his familiar look.

To those who think in terms of A friend no more will come, Eyes closed with life's expiring breath, Henceforth the voice is dumb, But tho the dead have journeyed The dark, uncharted sea, Thy're nearer to us than before In terms of Memory.

—Sheriff J. R. Hardy and De-

WESTERN AUTO STORE TO OPEN NEXT WEEK

Claude Craig Announces The Opening Date For New Business Concern

One of the outstanding events in Clanton's business history is the opening of the new Western Auto Associate Store, owned and operated by Claude C. Craig, next door to Hayes Chevrolet Co., and J. Mell Martin & Sons.

Most car owners in this vicinity are familiar with the Western Auto Supply Company of Kansas City, Missouri, because this is the firm that used to send out so many of the little catalogs known as the "Auto Owners' Supply Book" offering attractive prices on practically everything needed for an automobile. It is the oldest and largest organization of its kind in the world, having been founded in 1909 and now operating more than 170 stores all over the United States.

This Company is now cooperating with individual merchants throughout the country to enable them to offer the public merchandise with an established reputation for quality at money-saving prices that would be impossible without the Big Company's buying power.

The Western Auto Associate Store here in Clanton will carry the same general line of supplies, accessories and tools, including such well-known brands as Davis DeLuxe tires, Wizard bata dream that is not hard to make come true. All it needs for fulfillment is the interest and cooperation of the citizens of Chilton County, and a little time and energy from a few active members of the community. Anyway, that's what I think.

SEVEN FEDERAL PRISONERS ARE LODGED IN JAIL HERE

Seven federal prisoners are serving their jail sentences in the county jail here, according to the report from the office of Sheriff Hardy this week. They were brought here last week.

A quiet week is reported by the sheriff's forces in the county for the past week. Only four arrests were made up to Tuesday morning. Two of these were for reckless driving, the arrests being made by highway patrolmen. One for public drunkenness and one for violating the prohibition law.

LETTER OF THANKS

Editor: The Chilton County News

I will appreciate space in your paper to express my thanks and deep appreciation to my friends during the illness and death of my wife, Mrs. Macie Smith. Your kindness and floral offerings will always be a kind memory to me.

Especially do I want to thank the following: The Clanton Quartette Coca-Cola Bottling Co., Gulf States Steel Corp., Luquire Co., Dr. V. J. Gragg, Dr. T. J. Marcus, the hospital Polk Brothers, the Highway Patrolmen, and the Rev. Grady Williams—Geo. W. Smith and Son.

teries, Truettone radios, Rubber-Coat top dressing, etc., hitherto offered only at the big city stores.

It is stated that the new store offers one of the largest and most complete stocks of auto supplies and accessories in this city. Every item is of selected quality and backed by Western Auto's guarantee of "Satisfaction or Money Back."

He explains that because of his favorable arrangements with the Western Auto Supply Company he will be able to offer the same merchandise at approximately the same prices as those in the big Company's main stores thus bringing car owners of Clanton the benefits of that Company's big buying power and volume distribution.

The new store is now open for business, but Saturday, November 28th will be "Official Opening Day" and Mr. Craig promises to have special prices on a number of popular items in honor of the occasion.

That's What I Think

Saul M. Goldstein

number of deaths and injuries automobile accidents on Highway continues to mount. Crowds going forth for the football games usually in high spirits and more often a bit reckless. Only a second time stands between a car smoothly along and that same car in a ditch with its occupants in a state of torn flesh and broken bones.

riding along the highway last weekend can testify to the number of being pulled out of the ditches of the road.

seems more than evident that, education the general public against the perils of highway traffic will not be enough. There will always be with us those who feel that it cannot happen to them, and who go on disregarding the limits, danger signs and hills and curves. For these the public must be educated.

Projected three-lane highway is in the right direction. Further improvement is not only possible, but probable. A four-lane highway, with many of the dangerous curves either straightened or banked, and leading from Birmingham right to Montgomery, should be the wish of every citizen whose interests are in any way connected with a public highway.

The last two week ends have seen the football games of national prominence being played in Birmingham. The Alabama-Tulane and the Auburn-LSU games took the headlines as attracting more interest in the United States than any other football game played on these respective dates. They drew thousands to Birmingham from all directions, filling Legion Field to capacity.

was Highway 31 through Clanton. A four-lane concrete highway, with banked curves and protected embankments would bring many of those people this way who otherwise choose the more level road through the more northern sections of the state.

Next year there will be more big games in Birmingham. The ground-work should be laid now for a bigger and better highway through Clanton for lessening the number of accidents and for increasing the traffic through here with its resultant business for local merchants.

Several people who paid me the compliment of reading this column last week were interested enough to ask me how a town goes about getting new industries to provide more employment and development of the city. Other towns have done it before, and we can learn about it before them. A manufacturing concern which is open to conviction about settling in a new location usually wants certain concessions to offset the costs of moving and starting up a new factory. Those concessions vary according to the town and the factory, but the most popular type is the one which includes free rent, light, water and taxes over a certain period, based on a long-time lease after that period.

Another type of concession calls for an outright grant of a stipulated sum in cash based usually on a percentage of the annual payroll and payable on a contract between the city and the manufacturing company.

This should not be confused with investment in a stock issue of the manufacturing company. It is an outright grant contributed by public-minded citizens. It usually returns manifold in jobs and in increased business and in growth of a city. A grant of between two and three thousand dollars, for instance, could bring here a factory with a payroll amounting to almost that much every week.

It may be just a dream, but men have to dream about things before they get them—before they can get them. Imagine a factory opening up in Clanton and requiring the labor of two hundred men. Perhaps fifty could be found here ready to go to work; the other hundred and fifty would have to move in from other places. Contractors, lumber companies, and dealers in building supplies would suddenly find themselves swamped with orders for a hundred and fifty homes. Empty lots would be filled. Tax revenues would rise, providing more public benefits. The opening of such a factory, with its attendant boom in building and business would mean the doubling of the population of Clanton and its increase in importance as a Central Alabama town.

It may be just a dream, but it is

The Rev. Paul Oden delivered a wonderful message Sunday morning at the eleven o'clock hour, which all who heard seemed to enjoy. And Sunday night at 6:30 o'clock he brought to us the "Life Test of Christianity" in pictures and songs. I am sure everybody enjoyed the pictures and will welcome him back.

Messrs. C. Ray Glenn and son, C.R., from West Clanton, were the guests of Mr. W.F. Glenn and sons, Otis and Arnold, a while Sunday morning.

"CLOSED LIPS" TO BE PRESENTED AT COLLINS CHAPEL NOV. 28

The P.-T.A. of Collins Chapel will present "Closed Lips," a comedy drama in three acts, starring Nell Traywick, John Culver, with Sara Crim, Harry Anderson, E.K. Woods, Lucile Traywick, Gordon Williams, Lola Bean, Doris Tomlin, the Shirley Temple of Alabama, and Walter Eason.

A prison term served by an innocent man, "John Clay," played by Walter Eason. To gain the love and respect of his only son, Bart Clay, played by John Culver, he must not keep his lips closed; if he talks, it will bring more unhappiness to his son, but "Star" played by Doris Tomlin, the Shirley Temple of Alabama, helps to bring the story to a never-to-be-forgotten and loved ending.

Collins Chapel, Friday, November 20 at 8 P.M. Admission will be ten and twenty cents.

PRIZES OFFERED

H. N. Smith Motor Co. This new car is worth owning and you can be the happy winner in a few short weeks if you decide to enter this campaign and do your very best work. What other opportunity has a person to earn that much cash in eight week's spare time?

The winner of the second prize will win $200.00 cash. An attractive sum of money during spare time work.

Workers in this drive failing to win one of the six prizes will receive fifteen per cent of their earnings, added. All details of this liberal drive for subscriptions will be found in the double page advertisement in this week's issue of the News.

Extra Prize For Best First Week
A pretty natural gold Elgin wrist watch, value $27.50 will be given to the person who turns in most cash for subscriptions during the first week's work, in addition to being paid ten per cent cash for all collections, while adding votes toward winning the new car or other prizes.

This Campaign Is Different
Many persons reading this announcement will think "I would enjoy collecting new and renewal subscriptions for the Chilton County News, especially since I am being paid weekly for spare time work and while adding votes toward one of the attractive prizes, but I am afraid there might be some unfairness in the Campaign Department." We have many inquiries about how the campaign is conducted. Our rules are entirely different from most competitions of this kind. Each participant is permitted to select her own judge to assist in counting the votes. The judges appointed by the contestants have charge of the campaign during the last week and determine the winners. Each contestant assists the Campaign Manager in counting her subscriptions and votes when she brings her collections to the Chilton County News office each Wednesday and Saturday. No person is permitted to subscribe from any one contestant for a longer period than five years.

Who Will Be The First To Enter?
Anyone may enter this campaign as soon as they read this announcement and after coming to the Chilton County News for further information and supplies.

The first step toward being a winner is to clip the entry coupon appearing in the double page advertisement and bring to this office. Many persons will subscribe from the first participant who asks them. It is so much easier to gain the winning votes in the beginning of the campaign. Each subscription counts more votes now than in the last period of the campaign. The new car will be given to the one having the most votes at the end of eight weeks—not the most cash turned in for subscriptions.

This liberal offer is worth investigating. We will gladly give full information without any obligations on your part. The Campaign Manager will drive to your home and explain this offer to you if you will only call the Chilton County News. You may have a friend wishing to take the wonderful European tour or earn some Christmas cash without holding a position working—perhaps someone who would like to win their own new car without any extra expense? Think of winning a new 1937 Dodge during spare time work!!!

Enter this campaign today—work one day and get paid for the day and decide whether you wish to continue the work. You do not know what you can do until you try. You can win the Elgin watch valued at $27.50 for the best first week's prize while adding votes toward winning the new Dodge or $200.00 cash or one of the other prizes.

The first six to enter will be paid $1.00 for the first ten subscriptions they collect.

DR. C. O. LAWRENCE TO BE OUT OF OFFICE 26TH

The News has been requested to announce that the office of Dr. C. O. Lawrence will be closed all day Thanksgiving, Thursday, November 26.

Mrs. J. B. Atkinson and children Joan and Gwendolyn, spent the week end in Vincent, Ala., visiting Mrs. Atkinson's father, Mr. W. T. Darnell.

For beating his mother-in-law with his wooden leg, Stephen Flood of Belfast was sent to prison for a month. Robert Dehart of Lincoln, Neb., sued a widow who had jilted him, and asked that the $2,000 he had spent courting her be returned.

GRAGG FIELD

The remainder of the structure will be of brick and fabricated steel with concrete flooring. It occupies a part of the northwest corner of the field. Citizens of the county and the county should feel justly proud of this tremendous project which is being made possible with government aid and the aid of the county government. There are still wonderful possibilities there. It is difficult to imagine a splendid concrete swimming pool and recreation center at the airport with sufficient filtered water for the pool. There is plenty of space to take care of just such a place.

It does take a great imaginative mind to visualize a huge parking space, large enough to accommodate approximately six hundred automobiles at the field and still not interfere with its original plans. Every citizen of the county should make it a point to visit the field right away and see that Chilton and Chilton County's dream of a modern airport is now nearing completion.

LEGISLATURE

sion of the Legislature to convene in the Capitol in Montgomery, at noon on Monday the 23rd inst.

"I am giving you this information in advance of the official call in order that you may have time to arrange your affairs for that special session and also in order that you may begin the advertising of any local bills that you would like to introduce."

The Governor had no comment to offer as he handed copies of the letter around to reporters assembled in his office and declined to be led into a discussion of the letter.

The contents of the call, it is now generally assumed, will include such reference to the liquor question as to place repeal in position to be effectuated by a simple majority of both houses. It is also assumed that a receipts tax will be asked, but what else will be included is largely a matter of conjecture.

While some vented the view that the Governor would wish to see a speedy session, adjourning before Christmas, there were few who conceded the possibility of this. It was predicted that a recess would be taken early in the week before Christmas which falls on a Friday, and that another recess would become expedient in January to permit patriotic members of the Legislature to attend the inauguration of President Roosevelt.

Under the lame duck amendment the presidential inauguration will be held on next January 20.

HUNTERS WILL BE GIVEN MORE HUNTING DAYS

Open Seasons Announced By Game And Fish Department

Montgomery, Ala.—That date on the hunter's calendar with the big red circle around it arrives this month.

For the first time in Alabama's game regulated history one day—Nov. 20—will witness the opening of the hunting season on such prize game as quail, deer and turkeys.

The scattered shots that thus far have marked the squirrel and dove seasons in North Alabama and the abbreviated squirrel season in South Alabama will be supplanted by ear-splitting detonations as 75,000 to 100,000 hunters unlimber their heavier artillery on the bigger game.

This date likewise will raise the curtain on such lesser lights as rails and gallinules and will open the 1936-37 season for taking fur-bearers for commercial purposes. The hunting season on bears, fawns, opossums and raccoons has been open since Oct. 1.

For several years there has been a growing sentiment among the sportsmen of the State for a more uniform season on game in South and Central Alabama for a delayed opening on those species whose mating periods carry over into early fall.

The farmer was prompted by the belief that such a season would tend to reduce game law violations and the latter by a desire for a more propitious shooting season over shooting until Dec. 20. In South Alabama, where the cry long has been no doves in September and no season in January, the season

North Alabama also enjoyed an open season during September on doves but cannot resume dove shooting until Dec. 20.

TAX MEASURES AND WET ACTS URGED IN PLEA

Additional Revenue And Regulation Of Liquor, Wine
And Beer Advocated

Governor Bibb Graves issued his annual call for the November 23 special session legislature Saturday and asked for additional taxation and regulation of the manufacture and sale of whisky and beer.

Handing his formal call to newsmen today, he said: "The call is for myself. I have no comment to make."

The text of his proclamation follows:
Whereas in the opinion of the governor of the State of Alabama an extraordinary occasion exists which demands the convening of the legislature in Alabama in extraordinary session prescribed by section 122 of the constitution of Alabama of 1901, Now therefore, I, Bibb Graves, as governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby proclaim and direct that the legislature of the State of Alabama assemble in extraordinary session at the seat of government in Montgomery at 12 noon Monday the 23rd day of November, 1936, and I do hereby designate the following subjects and matters to be considered and acted upon by the legislature in extraordinary session assembled:

1. To revise the revenue laws and provide additional revenue for the state and to enable the state, county and city governments to function adequately.

2. To provide for the payment of all educational activities, experimental extension services, out of the Alabama special educational trust fund to relieve the general fund of all educational expenses.

3. To provide for an appropriation from the general fund to take care of deficit in the special educational fund.

4. To provide for the exemption of the various taxes of homesteads defined by the constitution and laws of the state of Alabama.

5. To set up a "property tax relief and reduce state ad valorem taxes."

6. To regulate the manufacture and sale of spirituous, vinous or malt beverages through state owned and operated stores or other state supermarkets, and to provide for a referendum on the election of Alabama.

7. The legislature probably will be in session Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and returning the following day for three weeks of activity terminating again for the Christmas holidays.

The taxation plan favored by Governor Graves calls for a state privilege tax based on a one and a half per cent on gross receipts of retail merchandise. The governor also calls for a tax to be levied on the 30, 1939 year. It was learned that the chief executive would deliver his message to the legislature at a joint session Monday at the annual draft of hills to be introduced that day or Tuesday.

Tax Bills Drafted
The governor's tax bill, being prepared by Clint Harrison, associate chief of the public service commission and Lawrence Lee, the governor's advisor, was near completion Saturday. It would not tax personal property, such as domestic work, dry cleaning, dentistry, hairdressing and similar firms and corporations already paying a gross receipts tax to the state.

Representative R. C. Boswell of Montgomery will introduce the tax bill. He said that the tax not exceed sales of less than $1,000 monthly. Representative Boswell said he would introduce his bill or offer an amendment to the administrative measure. His amendment, he said, would exempt a "lot of bookkeeping and no money from this class owner."

County's Almshouse Doors Are Closed

OVER TWENTY INMATES ARE GIVEN HOMES

Affects Large Saving To County; Called Real
Humane Act

Chilton County has joined the ranks of those counties which have closed their almshouses and are caring for the needy aged through the Old Age Assistance, which is administered by the Department of Public Welfare.
The Federal Social Security Act makes it possible to maintain aged persons in their own homes and for the Federal Government to bear one-half the cost. Other counties in the state which have also closed their almshouses are:
Franklin, Marion, Lamar, Fayette
Pickens, Sumter, Marengo, Wilcox
Clarke, Monroe, Washington, Baldwin Conecuh, Escambia, Lowndes, Winston Cullman, Limestone, Madison, DeKalb Cherokee, Cleburne, St. Clair, Randolph, Elmore, Macon, Bullock, Barbour, Dale, Henry, Coffee, Geneva.

Chilton County's almshouse, now considered closed, has cost the county a considerable sum each year to operate it. For instance, each of the twenty odd inmates cost this county approximately $17.50 per month as long as he or she were at the home. The county now pays only $5.00 per month for each person who has been placed in some private home or with relatives, who receive sufficient remuneration for the care of the person or persons, part of which is paid by the state through the national government.

Those connected with the branches of the county government here, who were responsible for this progress and humane move state that they have had no trouble in finding homes for these aged people who were housed

WELL KNOWN RESIDENT OF CITY PASSES

Former Coosa County Sheriff Passes Away At Home
Recently

Early on the morning of Thursday, November 12th, Roscoe Owen Neighbors passed away at his home on 6th Street.

Mr. Neighbors had not been a resident of our town and county quite two years and yet our people had learned to know and love and respect him. He was a man of sterling honesty, rugged independence and self reliance and at the same time a man of broad and generous sympathies. He was public spirited and thoroughly interested in everything that was for the best interest of his county. He believed in and practiced the segment expressed by the Apostle Paul when he said, "No Man Liveth to Himself."

Mr. Neighbors loved his church and supported its institutions. He loved his family and gave himself unstintingly to the promotion of their happiness and welfare.

We have appreciated Mr. Neighbors as a citizen of our town and a member of our community and feel that his death means a great loss to us, for we need more men of his sterling qualities.

Will He Be The Next Presidential Nominee?

SENATOR HUGO BLACK

Alabamians eyeing the senatoria toga of Hugo Black were waiting to see how things went Tuesday. They can find no consolation as it now stands.

Black has grown in national stature and is now one of the first powers in Washington. Already there's talk about him in connection with the national ticket for 1940, based in part on the conspicuous service he rendered in the recent campaign.

THE LEADER TO OBSERVE IT'S SEVENTEENTH ANNIVERSARY

M. Lande Announces Big Anniversary To Open Friday

Again the people of this section are talking about one of the biggest events of the day in Clanton. It is the seventeenth anniversary event of The Leader, one of Clanton's largest and most complete dry goods stores.

In announcing the observance of their seventeenth anniversary, M.
Lande, proprietor of this large store, stated that in this event they intend to show the people just how much they appreciate the splendid patronage and friendship they have enjoyed while here.

The Leader has always grown by leaps and bounds and enjoys the confidence and business that makes it most outstanding. Its seventeen years of existence in Clanton has been marked with many commendable acts, through which Mr. and Mrs. Lande have endeared themselves to hundreds of people in the county.

Mr. Lande stated that they will open their doors to the public on Friday morning of this week with some of the most astounding values they have ever offered, to show their appreciation of the friendship they are enjoy-

Strong Urge To Buy Is Seen After Roosevelt's Election

Nation Gripped By Urge To Buy After Democratic Landslide Of November 3rd; Stocks Mount

New York, Nov. 8.—An urge to buy has tightened its grip on business since the Democratic sweep at the polls Tuesday.

Temporarily lulled before the election, it flooded markets with orders after the returns were in. The scramble for industrial stocks and commodities hardly matched the buying stampedes early in the New Deal reflation program. But for extent it was a close rival.

What was behind the buying evoked a variety of explanations in Wall Street —ending of election uncertainty, world industrial improvements, renewed speculation in anticipation of continuation of Federal production controls.

For many traders the New Deal had become synonymous with higher prices.
Its early objective to restore the pre-depression price level was fresh in memory.

Emphasizes Long Road
At any rate the post-election uprush, particularly in basic commodities, served to emphasize the long recovery road prices had traveled.

Wholesale prices have retraced about half the ground lost in the paralyzing deflation after the 1929 stock market crash.

With the return of the New Deal to power for another four years, there rose the question in financial circles whether a continuation of the campaign to reach the higher price objective could be expected.

In the year or so preceding the election, with business expanding and a modest revival of new investment in capital facilities, business had heard little from high quarters in Washington about necessity for full restoration of 1926 wholesale prices.

Industrial prices, in fact, settled into a relatively stable course following a sharp advance in 1933 and the first half of 1934, as the dollar, hitched to its "new model gold standard," found a firmer footing in the foreign exchange market in 1934.

Farm Prices
Farm products, however, stretched recovery gains, driven up partly by crop losses from drought, and attained a better relationship with manufactured goods.

But talk of higher prices persists in business circles, fostered by the broad upsurge in raw materials the last week.

Outstanding in the latest rise has been such important raw materials as

FARMERS ARE PAYING BACK GOV'T LOANS

More Than One-Half Of Money Loaned Has Been Paid In

More than 57 per cent of the money advanced to Rural Rehabilitation families in Alabama by the Resettlement Administration has been repaid according to Julian Brown, State Director in charge of rehabilitation.

The total advanced to rehabilitation clients, up to October 31, is $2,372,469.
This report shows repayments as of October 31 totaling $1,368,655, about 57.7 per cent.

Cotton sales yet to be made and cash from the peanut harvest now being realized will produce another $250,- 000, according to Mr. Brown, bringing the percentage of repayments to 68.2 per cent.

"This is a fine showing," said Mr.
Brown, "and it more than justifies our rural rehabilitation demonstration based on the belief that if given intelligent planning, expert supervision, and a minimum loan for necessities, a farm family can get back on its feet and enjoy a scale of living in some cases higher than ever known before."

These loans to farm families were made to purchase tools, equipment stock, fertilizer, seed and other necessary supplies. They were made on two plans: 1. Short time advances for sub-

MORE PRIZES THAN WINNERS IN CAMPAIGN

You May Make Your Weekly Earnings As Big As You Wish

CASH COMMISSIONS PAID EACH WEEK

Many complimentary remarks are being heard about the unique subscription campaign the Chilton County News is inaugurating. Six attractive prizes are being offered and the participants in this drive are paid cash commission when the subscriptions are brought to the Campaign Department of the Chilton County News.

Dodge Sedan Offered
The winner of the first prize may choose between a new 1937 Dodge Sedan, value $860.00, or an all expense European Tour or the cash equivalent of the tour. The second prize is 200.00 cash. The second prize is well worth seven week's spare time work. There are four other cash prizes and the details of this stupendous gift distribution may be found in the double page advertisement in this issue of the News. The workers failing to win a prize will be paid fifteen per cent of their total earnings, added.

The new Dodge Sedan may be seen at H. N. Smith Motor Company and must be seen to be appreciated. Go by H. N. Smith Motor Company and have them show you the new 1937
Dodge Sedan.

Enter Today And Win
This is not a popularity or beauty contest, but a strictly legitimate competitive proposition for wide-awake, energetic men, women, girls and boys.
The only requisites for success are ambition and determination to win.
Most of your friends are subscribers to the News and will give another subscription to someone who enters the campaign. Each person is paid for their time, if they only collect two, subscriptions.

As in all life's games; business, political, social or otherwise, the most aggressive players pluck the "plums," while the half-hearted "trust to luck" or "afraid to venture" variety never get anywhere.

Those who have been thinking of entering this race, but have not done so, should lose no further time, for every day you put off entering is just that much time lost.

More Prizes Than Workers
Very few have definitely decided to enter this race of no losers. We do not have as many active workers as we have prizes to award. There is still time to win the $27.50 Elgin watch for the workers best first week. Represent your community and work for a week and see what you can do. You cannot lose and you do not know what you can do until you try.

The rules of this liberal prize campaign are different from most competitions of this kind. Each participant may choose a judge and we issue more votes on a subscription during the first period of the campaign than during the last week. We also pay each worker when they bring the subscriptions to the News.

Someone will be the happy winner of a new 1937 Dodge Sedan value $860.00 in seven short weeks. Call or write to The Campaign Manager and get full details of this stupendous offer, without any obligations on your part. You may be a winner and you cannot lose.

CLANTON TO PLAY MAPLES-VILLE HERE FRIDAY AT 2:30

The Chilton County Tigers are scheduled to play the strong Maples-ville football team at the local park next Friday, November 25.

According to Coach J. B. Varnell, this is the only football game scheduled to be played in this county on the day, and everyone is urged to turn out and support these deserving boys.

The kick-off will be at 2:30 P.M.
Admission will be ten and twenty-five cents.

"It's So Much Better That Way" Say Those Who Had To Face The Poor House Once

"Over The Hill To The Poor House" is an expression that will never be used again in Chilton County in true life.
It is the hope of those officials who have been instrumental in seeing that the twenty-odd inmates of the home have been placed in private homes where they will continue to be well taken care of.

"It's so much better that way?" say many of the aged men and women who, through misfortune, were forced to go "over the hill to the poorhouse," but are now comfortably spending the remaining years of their lives in homes, and are given the pleasant thoughts they will not have to end this life on earth in the poorhouse.

This step of closing the county almshouse is made possible through the cooperation of the state and national governments. There have been few such humane movements sponsored by the President—movements that "get next to a fellow" who might be fortunate enough to see the pleasant smiles on the faces of the aged men and women who were former inmates of the home.

The National Human Barbecue

In the last 12 months, approximately 10,000 persons have been burned to death. One-third of them were children.

Two-thirds of all the victims perished in residence and apartment fires.

Read that over again. If anything can awaken the American people to the gravity of the fire problem, that brief statement should. If you have a strong stomach, think of those 10,000 roasted bodies. And then realize that at least eighty per cent of fires, big and little fires alike, could easily have been prevented.

It is a human frailty to read such a statement as this, reflect for a moment on the horror of it, and then forget it with the mentally-made observation that, "Well my home is safe." Perhaps your home is. But there's better than an even chance it contains hazards that you don't know about. An up-to-date house is not necessarily a safe house, from the standpoint of fire—many a $50,000 mansion has gone up in flames. Expensive furniture will burn as easily as cheap furniture—and the finest interior fabrics and woodwork will burn as easily as a piece of cotton cloth and a pine board.

Whether you live in a four-room bungalow or a fifty-room country palace, inspect your property regularly, or have it inspected by someone who understands fire hazards and their prevention. Get the necessary information from your fire department or a similar institution. Once hazards are found, do away with them and make sure they don't reappear.

Help reduce the national human barbecue.

New Freight Rates

J. J. Pelley, President of the Association of American Railroads, has announced that proposals for adjustment of the freight rate structure, to take effect upon the expiration on December 31, 1936, of the emergency rates now in effect, have been practically completed by special committees representing the railroads.

These proposals will be submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission and the various state commissions. They represent an effort on the part of the railroads, after a close study of the freight rate structure, to work out equitable adjustments through increases and reductions, that will partially offset the drop in revenues which will take place when the present rates expire. The roads do not contemplate that the emergency increases now in effect will be carried into the permanent freight rate tariffs.

As part of the general adjustment, the railroads are planning an important step toward simplicity in rates and tariffs, by making practically uniform for the entire country the classification of all classes now moving on first, second and third class rates, less than carload lots. This is to be accomplished in most instances by making the ratings in all territories the same as the lowest classification now in effect in any territory. The railroads feel that this marks the most important single step ever taken to promote simpler and more unified freight rate structures for the nation.

The railroads will ask that the proposed adjustments be made effective January 1, 1937, so that the lines may avoid the serious losses which would result if the emergency rates expired and a new schedule was not ready.

It would seem that the rails are making every effort to be fair to the shipper—and at the same time to assure the lines sufficient revenue to keep our greatest single industry going ahead. And that is vital to the public interest.

160,000 More Electrified Farms

According to Charles W. Kellogg, President of the Edison Electric Institute, the miles of rural lines being built by the electric light and power companies this year are almost twice the number built in 1935.

Nearly 100,000 rural customers are expected to take electricity from these new lines, and 60,000 customers will be added to existing lines. The average cost of the lines, including meters, transformers, etc., is about $1,250,000 per mile.

This should take some of the wind out of the sails of those who claim that the private electric industry isn't interested in advancing farm electrification. The truth of the matter is that the industry is just as eager as the farmers themselves, or the critical politicians, to bring the blessings of power to a larger part of the nation's farmers. But there are difficult problems involved that can't be worked out in a minute.

For instance, the principal cost factor is charges on investment. This year's figures show that the combined investment of utility and customer averages $476 to get power to farmer whose average bill for current consumed, in areas not dominated by irrigation pumping, is about $4 per month. It is obvious that in many parts of the country economic conditions make it impossible to rapidly extend lines under these circumstances.

Yet the power industry is working constantly on the problem, and it is going the limit in building new rural lines. It is co-operating to the fullest extent with the farmer. And the result is that we are gradually attaining rural electrification on a sound basis—on the basis of self-supporting private investments, not government subsidies charged to taxpayers.

"Silencing The Workers"

"Of all the devices used by employers against workers, the 'blackball' is the most universally, and rightly hated, by the working people," said the Portland Oregonian recently. "It amounts to a check list, so that a person discharged from one company finds employment denied him in all the related companies."

"American workmen will do well to notice that Germany has organized the blackball system on a nationwide basis. Every manual, clerical and technical worker must have his 'work book', in which his detailed record is kept."

"Thus 22,000,000 Germans enter what amounts to an indirect slavery, or at least it will appear in that light to American workers. Certainly it is little wonder that when this is added to the coercive methods which have gone before, there are no disorders in German industry. But it is an ominous quiet."

This condition is not peculiar to Germany. In Russia, the Soviet authority, supposedly a "people's government," has silenced workers just as effectively, and if any workman protests he is liable to long imprisonment, exile to Siberia and even death. A similar situation exists in Italy and in a large number of smaller powers.

Nowhere else in the world is the workman so free as in America, and so completely secure in his civil liberties, of which the right to protest is one. These are the things to think about in considering any criticism of our American system, under which both the law and the force of public opinion guarantee that workers and employers may adjust their differences without resort to violence.

Can Clanton Have A Band?

We have oftentimes printed articles from our imaginative mind about the possibilities of our city and with some pardonable pride we have lived to see many of these possibilities realized. We have written of Clanton's growth. And, it is needless to say that we are enjoying a small boom over the entire country.

Now, we have another idea. It occurs to us that Clanton needs a band. Not just an orchestra to play at dances or at entertainments of various kinds, but a real, honest-to-goodness brass band. We remember back when Clanton did have a fine band and it was a good one. That was when we could count our population on both hands, almost, and everybody knew everybody else.

But since we have grown into a city, we are not complete without a band. People like music. People like loud music and soft music, and music lends inspiration and creates a jubilant spirit among its listeners, and a brass band creates that kind of music.

Our suggestion is that some organization in the city take this matter up. Or, we will attempt to find out if our merchants are sufficiently interested to give the idea a start. We have seen what bands have done for other cities. That, what one could do for Clanton, and Clanton needs a band.

MORAL ECHOES

I sat by and watched a man as he was taking photograph records and I found the process to be very interesting. Before him was a turn table on which rested a disc of plastic wax. Some such material. While the song was being sung the disc was revolving and a needle like point was cutting its way on the wax as the disc revolved. The groove being cut was deep or shallow according to the intensity of vibrations being made. Evidently these recording machines are very sensitive and the slightest flaw is recorded as quickly as the loudest sound. In the making of the record the greatest care had to be taken in order to make it correct. To these recording machines all is grist that comes to the mill, and all sounds are recorded with accuracy. A cat fight can be recorded as easily as the music coming from a Symphony orchestra. Has it ever occurred to you that you are making records every day that you live? The judgment is going to be nothing but that time, when your record is placed on God's turntable and the deeds of your life are repeated as you perform them in this world. Think now—what are you recording day by day?

Christmas holidays had come and a company of us college boys boarded the train for our homes. A happy bunch of boys were we. As the train traveled on the young men would leave the train at almost every station and it was a joy to see them as they would meet mother and father who were there waiting for them. I looked through the coach after a hundred miles had been left behind and there were only three of us left. Soon the other two leaped from the standing train into the arms of their parents and then I was alone on the train. Since that day I have found that to be true to the travel of life. My comrades of young life have been leaving me—yours have been leaving you and now the most of our childhood friends have left the train and they have been welcomed home to loved ones gone on before. It won't be long now until we leave the train and loved ones are waiting for our coming home.

While I was guest in a country home I went with the man of the house to his well in the yard and stood by while he drew water for the stock. Up and down the buckets went and after many buckets had been drawn I was sure that the water in the well was about exhausted, but I was told that there was as much water below as there was when the first bucket went down. As the man drew out the water the water was running in. He could have kept up his drawing all day and the well would have been giving out its supply in abundance for it was connected with an ever flowing stream. Have you not watched your mother weep and your child as they have poured out upon you floods of love and have you not wondered how they could continue? Many a time we have thought—"Surely you can not love me tomorrow as you have loved today." But the stream of love flows on. Why is that? It is because mother's heart is connected with an ever-flowing stream of love. That is why we say that mother love is like Divine love, it flows on every day and the more we receive, the more gathers to be poured out upon us.

While brushing my teeth one morning I discovered that I had an exposed nerve. The day before I ate some sour grapes, and the acid brought out the fact that a nerve was exposed. How that nerve did hurt as it was touched by the fiber of the brush. To prevent pain I tried to learn that I must skip that tooth. There are people all around us who have exposed nerves. The nerve may be pride, it may be selfishness, it may be sensitiveness, it may be egotism. It matters not what may have produced the exposed nerve, it is there and every time you touch it you meet a reaction. Some folks go to church with an exposed nerve of some kind, and they growl and gripe about the preacher, or fuss and fume about the folks not speaking to them. When you find that you are grinning about something you should examine your own self and it may be that the exposed nerve is one of your possessions. You owe it to yourself, to your family, to your neighbors and to your God—to have all of your exposed nerves treated. It will save you and your friends a lot of suffering.

Brief Farm News

Production credit loans during the past 3 years have demonstrated that farmers are good credit risks, says R. J. Goode, Alabama Commissioner of Agriculture, in reporting that the loans have been repaid in full.

Twenty-four per cent of the cotton produced in Alabama this year has graded strict middling and better, reports the Atlanta office of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Sweet potato acreage next year probably will be about 4 per cent less than the 890,000 acres this year but with average yields, the crop next year will be about 12 per cent larger than the crop this year.

To get the most economical return from horses and mules on the farm they should be kept in comfortable dry quarters and fed according to the work they are required to do, advises Dr. R. S. Sugg, extension livestock specialist, in reporting that "the average horse or mule will drink from 10 to 12 gallons of water per day."

Exports of a limited quantity of unshelled pecans will continue to be encouraged under a program approved by the Secretary of Agriculture for the 1936-37 marketing season.

CONGRATULATIONS

Congratulations were the expressed feeling of both faculty and student body to thirteen of their number who were awarded diplomas at Isabella High School Friday night, November 13. Congratulations were spoken to each member of the class but especially were they deserving to two of those completing their high school course. These two were those receiving medals offered by Mrs. C. K. Green and Mr. Clifford Manning of the Isabella community.

Mrs. Green offered to the student making highest marks during four high school years a very valuable medal and one to indeed be proud of. This was awarded to Miss Jewel Williams of the New Cedron community. Congratulations, Jewel, you are indeed worthy, but in the writer's opinion no one should have been prouder than to be awarded the medal offered by Mr. Clifford Manning, which was awarded to Mr. T. Carson Williams of the Vermont community. This takes into consideration five points, achievement, loyalty, sportsmanship, social activities and grades.

This, to be sure, takes in the higher type student and to be recommended by members of your community, the entire faculty and many others must eliminate those not deserving. Having known Mr. Manning, the faculty and Carson, we say "congratulations" and knowing you as we do we question not our sincerity. We do not know of anyone anywhere more deserving than Carson. We regret that efforts to do good are too few times rewarded but are proud to say Isabella community is creating the initiative to work and the desire to excel among high school students. Keep it up, Isabella.—A. D. Headley.

The "WEEKLY PAY" PLAN IN BRIEF

The object of this big "WEEKLY PAY" drive is two-fold. Primarily to increase the already large subscription list of this newspaper; to collect arrearages and advance subscription payments from present or old subscribers and at the same time to afford the live-wire energetic men and women of this territory an opportunity to profit in a BIG WAY through their spare time during the next few weeks. So it is a plan that works both ways, and to the ultimate good of all concerned.

Let us be understood at the very outset that this is not a "Beauty" nor "Popularity" contest, but a strictly legitimate, competitive proposition for enterprising men and women, and one into which no element of chance enters. Each active participant will receive a pay check every Saturday afternoon. One feature of this drive is the fact that "Everybody Wins." There will be no losers.

How to Enter

Clip the entry coupon appearing below; fill in your name and address, mail or deliver to the Campaign Manager of The Chilton County News. This coupon entitles you or the person whom you may wish to enter, to 25,000 Extra Votes—if with one subscription, 150,000 votes additional.

For further information come to The Chilton County News and have the Campaign Manager explain in full details, without any obligation on your part.

Early Start Means Profitable Finish

The advantages of an early start are manifest. This "Weekly Pay" Drive is of such short duration that immediate action is necessary for success. Orders taken during the early part of the campaign carry the MAXIMUM number of votes. Then, too, the first in the field will undoubtedly get the easy subscriptions, while those who put off entering until a later date will have to take what is left.

Don't lose valuable time "Waiting to see what the other fellow is going to do," but pitch right in and show the "other fellow" how to do it.

ENTER THIS "WEEKLY PAY" DRIVE. BE YOUR OWN BUSINESS MANAGER FOR A FEW WEEKS. AND BE PAID A CHECK EACH FRIDAY AND AT THE SAME TIME BE PILING UP VOTES TOWARD WINNING THE MAJOR PRIZES.

Roast Turkey With All Trimmings To Greet CCC Boys On Thanksgiving

Seventy thousand turkeys, 450 tons of them, will be set before the khaki-clad nephews of Uncle Samuel on Thanksgiving Day, when both the Regular Army and the CCC boys put on their best bibs and tuckers for the holiday feasting.

But the 901,000 pounds of turkey which will be roasted to a golden brown, bulging with chestnut dressing, is only a starter on the Thanksgiving Day dinners that the Army will put on the tables for the boys.

Here's how the 22nd Infantry at Fort McPherson will tease their appetites and test their capacities:

First with branch celery, stuffed olives, head lettuce, sliced tomatoes, sweet mixed pickles.

Then the turkey, which must be young and prime, with giblet gravy chestnut dressing and cranberry sauce.

For more hardy souls, there will come then a barbecue loin of pork candied sweet potatoes, creamed mashed potatoes, Parker House rolls, asparagus tips on toast.

Having become thoroughly wound up about this time, the soldiers will start on mince pie, pumpkin pie, English plum pudding with hard sauce.

An interlude with grapes, oranges bananas and apples will follow, after which dessert will be served, which

Thanksgiving Service At Rocky Mt. Church

The News has been requested to announce that there will be an all day Thanksgiving service Thursday, Nov. 26th, at Rocky Mt. Church. The activities of the day will begin at ten o'clock and you will hear some good speakers. Everyone is invited. Bring your dinner and enjoy the day.

IN APPRECIATION

I wish to express my sincere appreciation for the deeds of kindness and expressions of sympathy shown me during my stay in the Central Alabama Hospital, following my recent accident. Especially do I wish to express my thanks to Miss Grace Robinson, nurses and Dr. Gragg for their kindly attention.—Jesse Lee Headley.

will include chocolate layer cake, and ice cream. Coffee or sweet milk accompanies the dinner.

Cigars and cigarettes will be distributed to every man, after which the soldiers will relax for a while before coming back to supper.

There are 350,000 CCC boys who will dine in true Army fashion this year, and 165,000 regulars, requiring a total of 515,000 cigars and about 10,000,000 cigarettes.

This Thanksgiving "feed" is an annual custom and a part of the Army ration, served up by Army cooks who are specialists in the dining room. It costs 50 cents a day per man to feed soldiers like this, and that doesn't mean that there's any skimping on the ordinary work days. Every day, the soldier sits down to three square meals—the kind that cause recruits, the new soldiers in the Army, to gain from 10 to 15 pounds each within a few weeks.

There's an old adage about the Army fights on its stomach. On Thanksgiving Day, if the Army had to fight, it would have in its collective stomach no less than 250,000 pies and 65,000 gallons of coffee.

That's What I Think

Saul M. Goldstein

There's been a lot of talk going around lately about a bridge over the Lay Dam, connecting Chilton County with Coosa County. There should be no doubt that it is a good thing for all parties concerned. Man's history of progress has been a series of meeting obstacles and overcoming them. Whether it came to a river, he either waded across, swam across or bridged it. In this day and time, when one reads daily of new great engineering feats, such as the Holland Tunnel under the George Washington bridge over the Hudson River, and the spans across the bays at San Francisco, the Boulder Dam and Norris Dam constructions, the matter of spanning a river between two neighboring counties should come under the head of Good and Welfare and be taken care of without delay.

And while talk is going on about a bridge, action should be taken on a paved highway from Clanton to the bridge. Such a paved stretch would form a connecting link in a major highway scheme, to eventually provide an arterial roadway between New Orleans and Mobile on the west, and Atlanta on the east. Clanton would then become one of the crossroads of the nation. Situated in the center of Alabama, it is the ideal spot for such a crossroads.

Good roads leading to and from a central location have always made that location a great market center. The ancient Romans realized that when they made Rome the hub of a system of highways to the provinces. We all are, or should be, interested in developing Clanton into a great city, and one of the prime requisites for that end is a trading market. Let's go on with a paved highway to the Lay Dam and a bridge across it to Coosa County.

Fascist rebels besiege the gates of Madrid, the seat of a Spanish government that is a mixture of Socialist, Communist, Anarchist and Republican political philosophies. Charges and counter-charges of unwarranted cruelty are being hurled by both sides. Brother is fighting brother in one of the worst civil wars of history over the proper form of government. Germany and Italy, the two outstanding examples of the fascist type of government recognize the rebels as the rightful administration, while Great Britain refers to them as pirates, thereby laying the groundwork for another great European, and possibly World War. And if it starts, it won't be long before many mistaken individuals in this country will be anxious to make the world safe for democracy again.

There is not much that we can learn from either the Fascist or the Communist philosophy of government despite a lot of arguments to the contrary. The countries that adopted either of these forms found themselves faced with the necessity of making a change in the administration of political affairs; the people were getting the bad end of an extremely bad bargain and violent revolution was the only answer. Ordinarily, they might have learned a lesson from us and instituted democracy; but democracy means government by the people, and that is only possible where the people are educated enough to use the ballot intelligently. In Russia and Spain, under the Czar and King, the great mass of the people did not know how to read or write. But granting all that as a possible excuse for the rise of violent governments in other countries, it still won't hold good for the United States. We have managed to keep a safe and sane government by keeping our people literate and letting them make their own answers to their own problems. To carry it one step further and establish the point; since we have so little to learn from either form of government, there is absolutely no point to our sacrificing lives, money and public welfare to take part in a European fracas.

The money we spent on the last World War, out of which we got nothing but trouble, would have provided every city in the United States with free libraries, free public hospitals and clinics, and would have endowed major universities in all our states. That would have done far more to serve the cause of democracy than any war could possibly do.

Education doesn't and shouldn't stop with graduation from a normal school, whether high school, college or university. It is a continuing process from the cradle to the grave, and its greatest medium in a country where the people rule is the Free Public Library. That institution is sadly lacking in Clanton, and much has been said about it; but to repeat Mark Twain's oft-quoted remark about the weather, "everybody talks about it," but no one ever does anything about it." Now, while Clanton is forging ahead rapidly, is the time to do something about it.

Bringing it down to every man's language briefly, the situation is this: We need a building, and we need books and we need a fund to keep the library operating. For the building, the WPA will furnish labor, the major portion of materials, and the city need supply only the expense of the small percentage of the materials cost. For the books and the operating fund, if we can't raise that in the city, the Carnegie Foundation is still operating, and it seems to me that if other cities and towns the country over can get Carnegie cooperation, there is no reason why Clanton can't. The process is simple, the method is there. As I see it, the main thing lacking is a real popular demand. If you and you who write into this paper, expressing

SOLUTION IS FAVORED FOR FARM TENANCY

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama farmers want some something done to solve the serious farm tenancy problem in the South.

"Farm tenancy is a serious problem throughout the South and we hope that Congress will pass legislation to solve this problem," say farm bureau members of the state through their official representatives.

"We ask that our officials assist in all ways possible in finding a solution to this problem. This will require close study of all proposed national legislation on the subject."

your sentiments, you will see some real action, and a Clanton Free Public Library.

Anyway, that's what I think.

PRODUCTION CONTROL DESIRED BY FARMERS

Auburn, Ala.—Enactment by Congress of adequate legislation to control production and to promote conservation is advocated in a resolution passed by the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation.

After pointing out that great surplus were made in cutting the surplus of farm products under the Agricultural Adjustment Act and that the "objective of the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act is fundamentally sound and essential to the welfare of agriculture and the nation," the farmers asked that production control be linked with the present agricultural and soil conservation program.

"We recommend that such legislation be based upon and include fundamental principles and machinery that have been successfully applied in the Agricultural Adjustment Act, Bankhead Cotton Control Act, and Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act."

"Be it further resolved, that if constitutional amendment is necessary for the enactment of a program to attain these objectives, we hereby unqualifiedly endorse such an amendment."

"Be it further resolved, that the farm people are most appreciative of the great service which is being rendered by the Senator H. H. Black, and Senator John H. Bankhead, and other members of the Alabama delegation in Congress."

PEANUT PRODUCERS' REQUEST ASSISTANCE

Auburn, Ala.—A program to dispose surplus peanuts from the 1936 crop uses other than for shelling purposes to avert unnecessary prices declines for growers, has been requested by representatives of peanut growers.

Under the proposed plan being considered by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, growers would receive diversion payments for diverting surplus peanuts to mills for crushing into oil and meal. These diversion payments would be in addition to the price paid growers by crushers. The proposed program is similar in part to diversion program in effect last year except that diversion payments in year would be made only to growers.

FED'R'L RESERVE SAYS RECOVERY IS AT NEW PEAK

Current Level of Business Activity Higher Than At Any Time Since 1930

EXPORTS INCREASING

Washington, Nov. 8.—Reporting that business this year shows "the cumulative effects of continued recovery," the Federal Reserve Board said today that "the current level of activity is higher than at any time since 1930."

Citing numerous favorable factors, the board said in its monthly bulletin that "improvement in domestic conditions has continued to be the principal phase of recovery, but exports, particularly of industrial products, have also increased."

Since 1932, it said, the country's merchandise foreign trade has increased about 60 per cent but still "is only half as large as in 1929."

"Imports have increased more than exports," the board continued, "and in the 12 months ending Sept. 30, 1936, the export balance amounted to $136,000,000 as compared with $225,000,000 in the previous 12 months and with $288,000,000 in the calendar year 1932, when the total volume of trade was much smaller."

The board reported that unemployment has been on the decline "but is still large."

Long-range reasons for the continuance of unemployment in the face of sharply expanding output it added, include growth of population and the progress of technological improvements. The board said:

"In the past two years larger increases in production than in employment have been due in part to increases in the average number of hours worked, which have been reflected in expanding payrolls. It appears that at present the amount of part-time employment has been reduced and that further growth in output will result in a larger increase in the number employed."

"The fact that expansion is now proceeding in industries where unemployment has been greatest also contributes to this end."

Dividend payments have shown a

FARMERS REQUEST RURAL ELECTRICITY

Auburn, Ala.—Organized farmers have asked that plans be worked out for electricity in reach of every farm home in Alabama.

"The Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, representing the organized farmers of Alabama, wholeheartedly endorses and commends our Government on its efforts to establish a yard-stick in determining the cost of electricity working toward a reduction in these costs wherever possible," says a resolution passed by official farm bureau delegates.

"We feel that the farmers of Alabama who are interested in securing electricity for rural Alabama and at a cost that they can afford should join in all efforts that are being made to that end."

"We believe that the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation should work with the T. V. A., Alabama Power Company, Municipal Power Companies and any other company that can and will render them the most efficient service at the most economical cost consistent with good business."

"To this end we ask our own Alabama Extension Service and Experiment Station to cooperate with the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation in working out a practical relationship that will get results. The farmers of Alabama we feel want electricity and at a cost they can afford. We believe the Extension Service and Experiment Station can and should help us to find a way to accomplish this end."

steadily increase this year, with larger disbursements coming more from industrial corporations than from railroads and public utilities, the board reported.

In a special bank study, the review reported that there is a close relationship between the proportion of a bank's deposits in large accounts and its liquidity.

Banks having high percentages of deposits of more than $100,000, it was said, were found to have high proportions of liquid assets to total deposits.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in its "Washington review," said that "the momentum which has been gained in business activities is impressive, both in its extent and in its promise for the period ahead."

The review said that the last 17 months had not been a "period of spectacular bursts here and there," but that processes had been at work to bring "all activities nearer the average instead of some being far above and others equally far below."

"It is necessary to go back a decade to find another period in which business momentum had within itself equal elements of strength," the report declared.

Sees Cities Linked Closer by Modern Stainless Steel Trains

INAUGURATION of two 12-car, light-weight, stainless steel streamlined trains in over-night service between Chicago and Denver marks the beginning of a new development in railroad transportation which is destined to rival the airplane in saving time, in the opinion of Edward G. Budd, of Philadelphia, pioneer in the field of light-weight trains.

The new 12-car Diesel-powered trains of the Burlington Railroad, known as the Denver Zephyrs, longest streamlined trains in the world, flash through the night at speeds of 50 to 100 miles an hour and average 66 miles an hour including stops. They make the 1,039-mile run from Denver to Chicago in 16 hours, 50 minutes, so that no time is lost from the business day.

Within a few months another stainless steel streamliner, the 8-car Super-Chief of the Santa Fe, will go into service between Chicago and California. Other roads, too, are planning the extension of fast, light-weight trains in over-night service between distant points.

"These trains, capable of making a thousand miles over-night without the loss of any time from business, are what the railroads have been coming to," Mr. Budd said. "They are the answer to a public demand for 'all-weather' speed service that surpasses air schedules by not cutting into the business day. The Zephyr type trains have proved themselves for safety, dependability and economy as well as speed. Railroads which have them in service have proved that they can operate profitably with fares at two cents a mile.

"In the near future we shall see many of our cities that are a thousand miles or so apart linked by over-night service with these stainless steel streamliners."

NEW AND IMPROVED ALL-STEEL BODIES IN THE 1937 CHRYSLERS

It is only natural that Chrysler, a pioneer in the use of steel bodies, should constantly improve on this type of construction. The all-steel bodies used on the Chrysler Royal and Chrysler Imperial for 1937 embody a number of such improvements, with the result that both strength and safety have been enhanced.

The cowl construction has been strengthened and stiffened by a new type of X-bar bracing. This bracing at both the top and bottom of the cowl ties the box section front corner posts and floor much more rigidly together and forms a box construction at the door hinges. A bracing on the windshield belt bar helps to strengthen the entire upper cowl.

Doors have been strengthened and all possibility of sagging has been eliminated. Gusset plates in the lower front corner of the front door have been redesigned to increase strength. The channels for the sliding portions of the front door window have been moved to the center of the door. This together with a new horizontal member gives the door additional bracing.

The center post, made of box section steel has been stiffened and given a wider flare at the top. A new rabbetted or offset surface of both center post and door edge gives a more sturdy construction and at the same time prevents drafts from entering around the door edges.

Rear ends have been strengthened. The separate frame of the two rear windows add new bracing to the rear panel. New brackets have been added at the extreme lower rear corners of the body. These, with new diagonal braces from the rear quarter windows to the rear of the wheel housing, contribute to strength and rigidity.

A new one-piece steel top is welded to the sturdy body construction giving a complete steel box. These tops are one solid piece of steel extending back from the cowl to the trunk or luggage compartment opening. They are stamped in one solid unit by huge presses. The steel top is fastened to the steel sides of the body by a new method. The lower edge of the top panel is turned in and the new drip moulding is welded to the flange thus formed. The upper edge of the side panel is turned in and is joined to the top by pinch welding. A very sturdy type of construction. Thus the floor top and sides of this new all-steel body all receive strengthening qualities from one another and the whole assembly is remarkably rigid and durable.

"And to my divorced wife I leave a 'kiss,' concluded the will of J.C. Roberts of Los Angeles, which disposed of a $250,000 estate.

Henry Sunshine and Violet Stern were charged with intoxication before a Chicago court on the same day.

Isabella FFA Holds Crop Demonstration

The Isabella Chapter of The Future Farmers of America, with the aid of the Chilean Nitrate Corp, sponsored an interesting demonstration at the farm of C. L. Lecroy, west of Clanton. This project was conducted by Odus Lecroy in his studies in Vocational Agriculture at the Isabella High School. The plot of land that was fertilized with nitrate made 48 bushels of corn per acre while the plot that received no nitrate yielded only 29 bushels per acre, which was an increase of 19 bushels or a net profit of $15.90. The fertilizer costing $3.10.

The chapter also held a guessing contest on this demonstration and Willie Davenport was awarded a prize of $2.00 for guessing nearest to the yields for the two plots.

ENTERPRISE

The Enterprise Home Demonstration club met Wednesday afternoon Nov. 4, at the school house. There were only a few present due to bad weather.

The Demonstration on Food Menu was given. We had a nice, short Thanksgiving program.

Our next meeting will be Dec. 2 at the home of Mrs. J. C. Bookholdt. We are going to have our Christmas tree and program at the next meeting. Each member please bring a small gift (kitchen utensil) to put on the tree. Games will be drawn after we all arrive. Each one try to come and bring someone else.

MT. SPRINGS

On Sunday evening, November 22 we reorganized our Christian Endeavor new officers are: Miss Evelyn Williamson, president and Mrs. Oscar Williamson, vice-president. Mr. E. C. Williamson is secretary-treasurer.

We were very glad indeed to enroll twenty-two members. This included some of the most promising young boys and girls of the community.

If these and others cooperate with us we will endeavor to make this an interesting and profitable C.E. It has been suggested that we meet at six and sing until six-thirty when the program will begin.

The interest in our Sunday school is increasing, also the attendance. We especially invite those who do not attend other churches to worship with us.

At the age of 71, Andrew Garmen Workmen at Martin's Ferry, O., called off work for a day on finding two large jugs of booze which had been buried under a slate pile for 35 years.

A NEW RADIO FEATURE BRINGS SOUTHERN LORE

"Uncle Natchel and Sonny" Make Their Bow Over the Air Beginning Week of November Thirty

A new type radio entertainment goes on the air the week of November 30th. The Natural Chilean Nitrate dealers, in behalf of all Chilean Nitrate dealers and agents, presents Uncle Natchel and Sonny. These fun makers are the two characters who first attracted attention on the Natural Chilean calendars. For several years these calendars have been distributed and the two characters Uncle Natchel and Sonny are familiar to thousands of Southern farm families.

The new program will be broadcast twice each week over twelve Southern stations.

Uncle Natchel is an old deep south daddy whose interest lies in natural things. That's where he gets his name and agent. His pronunciation, His part is played by Fred Wilson, the colored actor who played "Moses" in both the stage and motion picture version of Green Pastures. Wilson is one of the leading character actors of his race, having to his credit in addition to his Green Pastures roles, notable parts in Porgy and other stage successes.

Sonny's role is played by James Franklin Allen, a child actor of unusual ability. Although only nine years of age, he has already scored a number of radio hits, particularly on one of the well known children's programs. He is regarded as a "comer" in every sense of the word.

Other characters in the various episodes are played by capable stage movie and radio performers.

Each story in this new twice-a-week program has been written by Mrs. Florence Richardson, a Southerner who has made a life study of Southern folk lore, who is reported to know more Southern songs and stories than any other writer. Her American Mountain Songs published seven years ago has been accepted by the American Library Association as a permanent record of American songs. She has had wide radio experience.

Chevrolet Expresses Thanks To Public

The Chevrolet Motor Company today offered its thanks to the American people for having given the company the greatest year in its history by buying 1,130,000 new 1936 Chevrolets.

In display advertisements printed in newspapers throughout the country, Chevrolet expressed its appreciation for the warm friendship of the American people, which enabled the company to break all previous marks for domestic production and sales.

The Thanksgiving offering is considered unique in industrial advertising.

ing, but Chevrolet has done it in the past. The company has depended largely on the newspapers of the country in establishing its all-time records in selling not only an unprecedented number of new passenger cars and trucks during 1936, but also in moving two million used cars at the same time.

The advertisement, appearing today, declared, in part: "The builders of Chevrolet are thankful for many things but most of all for the warm friendship of the American people."

"All we can say is, 'Thanks a million' for more than a million cars in 1936; and all we can do is offer you the still finer Chevrolet of 1937 in return for the finest friendship ever bestowed upon any motor car manufacturer."

Trip to Auburn

Fifteen Club people including the Chairman of Citizenship, Scholarship and Farm Bureau attended the Annual County Council meeting held at the Baptist church in Auburn, October 29. An address was given by Dr. L. N. Duncan, Director of Alabama Polytechnic Institute and Mrs. Bledsoe, State President of County Council. The program was interspersed by Organ selections. Lunch was spread and served by Lee County Home Demonstration women, which was delightful. On the return trip the group visited Tuskegee Institute, and were guided thru the various buildings and the different subjects were explained by David Washington, the youngest son of Booker T. Washington, who is still connected with the school.

MAPLESVILLE YOUTH IS MAKING FINE RECORD

Marion, Alabama, November 16—Cadet Joe Graham, a Maplesville, Ala. boy, was among the fifteen Marion Institute students named on the Lean's List for the month of October by Mayor L. H. Baer, dean.

Inclusion on the Dean's List requires that a student maintain an average of 85 with no grades below 80 for high school and college students. Cadets taking special preparatory work for entrance to the United States Government Academies must rank in the upper 15 per cent of their class. Good standing in conduct is also required.

Cadet Graham is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Graham of Maplesville and is attending Marion Institute for his second year and will graduate from the college department in May.

FELIX McQUIRE RE-ENLISTS IN ARMY

Fort Benning, Ga. —(Special)—Felix Mcquire, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Mcquire, of Clanton, who reenlisted in the United States army in September, 1935 at Fort Benning, Georgia, for duty with the Rail Transportation Division of the Quartermaster Corps, after having served three years with the Field Artillery in Hawaii, has been rated as a specialist, according to information received from headquarters of the Quartermaster Corps.

Located at Fort Benning is the Infantry School, the largest school of small arms in the world, where the government has spent over $20,000,000 to properly house over 6,000 officers and men, and the various activities of the School. Every branch of the army is represented here with the exception of the cavalry and many vocational opportunities are offered to young men who enlist for duty at the school. Of the various branches represented, the Quartermaster Corps offers the largest variety of opportunities to men who have special training in mechanical or clerical work, due to the fact that this branch of the Service has several specialized units.

URGE TO BUY

rubber, copper, tin and cotton. The effect of this rising trend in raw materials, commodity men say, has been to generate a widening circle of buying in finished and semi-finished goods in belief mark-ups eventually would go down the line.

A growing tendency to accumulate inventories in anticipation of higher prices and better trade has been noted in some industries, notably textiles. Cotton cloth mills, for instance, have built up the largest backlog of orders in years.

Similarly, expectation of rising material and labor costs is credited with being a potent influence behind long delayed buying in heavier goods.

Indications of a year-end acceleration in payrolls gains were seen in the steel wage boost.

How far worker's buying power has recovered is evident in earnings figures compiled by the national industrial conference board.

They show weekly earning of factory workers in 25 industries averaged in September $25.12 compared with $22.54 a year before and $14.23 in March, 1933. The September figure was the highest since July, 1930.

in the county almshouse due to misfortune. In fact, it was stated that they have received many applications from people who wish to secure one or more of the inmates.

Just what is to be done with the property of the almshouse has not been decided, the News learned this week. However, it is understood that some worthwhile step will be made to turn the property into some other purpose for the benefit of the people of the county.

R. O. NEIGHBORS

was spent on a farm near Hanover, in Coosa County. In 1927 he was appointed Chief Deputy Sheriff of that county and four years later was elected Sheriff. During his Administration as Sheriff he won the love and admiration of the citizenship of the county and his work in that capacity was highly efficient. At the expiration of his term as sheriff he moved to this County where he has been connected with the W. T. Rawleigh Company.

He suffered a stroke of paralysis on October 24th and continued to grow weaker until death came. Funeral services were held Friday afternoon from the Hanover Church in Coosa County, the community where Mr. Neighbors lived a large portion of his life. Interment took place in the Andrews Chapel cemetery of that community with J. M. Martin in charge of arrangements. Rev. S. J. Ezell pastor Clanton Baptist church, of which Mr. Neighbors was a member, conducted the funeral and the burial was with Masonic honors. A great many members of the Masonic Fraternity of Hanover, Weogufka, Goodwater, Rockford and other lodges were in attendance and the services were deeply impressive.

Mr. Neighbors is survived by his wife, Mrs. Vera Fulmer Neighbors; two sons, John Neighbors of Rockford and Fulmer Neighbors of Clanton; two daughters, Miss Bertha Neighbors and Martha Sue Neighbors, of Clanton; one brother, Jim B. Neighbors of Hanover; one sister, Mrs. C. H. Beatty of Hanover; one half-brother, Denson Ward of Birmingham; one half sister Mrs. W. G. Duffy of Birmingham.

We again express our regret at the loss of this good citizen and remind ourselves that it becomes our duty and obligation to endeavor more earnestly to conduct ourselves to right living privately and publicly, in order to help to make up to society that which it has lost in the passing of one of its trust members.

HUGO BLACK

board of strategy, helping to make major decisions of policy, and he was used liberally as an ace trouble shooter on the hustings. He delivered something like 40 speeches, all of them in what was regarded as battleground states. He spoke in New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Missouri, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and Indiana.

The fact that he is chairman of the Senate committee on education and labor made him a specially effective campaigner in the industrial states. An authority on labor questions, he likely will have an important part in shaping of legislation in which organized labor is interested.

Worn out by his campaign exertions he is now resting in anticipation of a return to Washington in December. It is commonly understood he will be a conspicuous figure in administration affairs during the next four years. Not since the days of Senator Underwood has any Alabamian loomed so large on the national stage as Senator Black now bids fair to do. He comes up for reelection in 1938.

Born On November Third, This Young Lady Named For Wife And Mother Of President

Being born on a day that a presidential nominee swept the country in an election, is something to be remembered. But, being born on that day and then named for the mother and the wife of the President is something to be proud of.

That is the case of little Sara Eleanor Minor, who made her debut into this world on Tuesday, November 3rd, when President Roosevelt swept the nation in one of the greatest landslides ever afforded a candidate for President of the United States.

Sara Eleanor is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Minor, who reside on Route One, Clanton and who are proud of their fine young daughter. Not only is Sara Eleanor to be named for the mother and wife of a great man, but she has other things to be proud of. Her maternal grandfather, great-grandfather and great grandfather are preachers. Sara Eleanor stays in her mother's arms, unaware that she has already made front page news.

CHILTON TIGERS DEFEAT ISABELLA "MUSICIANS" 7-0

The C.C.H.S. Tigers removed all doubts as to the supremacy over their annual rival, Isabella, in defeating them by a score of 7-0 last Friday afternoon.

The most outstanding players, as to yards gained, shown by the C.C.H.S. barometer were: Williamson, Armstrong, Thornton, Lawrence and Mims. As to the number of tackles, Johnson, Aldrich and Ware were outstanding players.

The game was hard fought by both teams and much credit for clean sportsmanship was registered by both teams, which is gratifying to real football enthusiasts.

In the second quarter a pass from Armstrong to Williamson was incomplete that just missed another scoring effort for the Tigers from Clanton High.

Clanton made ten first downs while Isabella made only six. This does not include yards gained by loss or by penalties.

The Chilton Tigers will take on the strong team from Maplesville next Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Since this is the only football game in the county, your presence will be very much appreciated.

FARMERS PAY

sistence to be repaid from crop sales after harvest. This included food for family, feed for stock, medical aid and consumable necessities. 2. Loans were made for various periods, in some cases as long as five years, for the purchase of capital goods such as improvements to home and farm, livestock, wagons and implements.

All advances were made as provided for by a definite farm and home plan worked out in advance and based on the farm and the farm family to repay. The success of these plans is attested by the encouraging repayment figures in this report, according to Brown. Many families have made payments beyond their agreement, and satisfactory repayments have been made in most cases all over the region. Much of the unpaid balance represents portions of loans that are spread over a period of two to five years and that are secured by chattel mortgages on livestock, equipment, and crops.

"Besides the fine repayments made," Brown said, "the 13,405 rehabilitation loans that have been laid by food families in this State in most cases to and feed sufficient in most cases to last until the next crops are harvested. Garden surplus has been sold, and canned and dried foodstuffs under the expert supervision of home management supervisors. Improved living conditions and ample foods are now enjoyed by the more than 13,000 rehabilitation farm families in this State.

"The improved condition of these families is a remarkable achievement," Mr. Brown added, "when you consider that these same families were in various stages of destitution and were forced to apply to their government for aid. The live-at-home farm and home management plans of the Rural Rehabilitation division of the Resettlement Administration have demonstrated the value of supervised loans to worthy farm families."

PASSING FOOTPRINTS Of The Times

— Billy Smith

Waiting Closer

Justing from actions of the Legislature which is now in special session, some sort of move will be made this week to give Alabama liquors, wines and beers—as if we don't already have whiskey and imbibers are considerably worried over that outcome of legalized intoxicants. They fear that with the state controlling the situation, prices will take a big jump, while it is, there seems to be no trouble securing any amount and any kind of liquor or other beverages a fellow might wish. However, things regarding this are at a standstill right now (outwardly, we mean) and the makers will not get together again until tomorrow, so we read. We plan on spending the day with them to try to see what we can see.

Enough Luck

With thousands of merchants trek-ing to the capitol yesterday, they met with some disappointment since the legislature adjourned Tuesday afternoon of a clear sky, until Friday.
Maybe the purpose of the march to the capitol, namely to defeat the proposed sales tax, will not be in vain.
The merchants mean business. A large number from this county were present yesterday.

After 'Em

Yes sir, Clanton is out to get 'em.
Speaking of industries and more business. The Kiwanis Club is working on the matter with zeal and Saul distain cranks off this week in his column "That's What I Think" with some rather interesting pointers on it. We understand that Saul put a few oil on the coals of this movement.

In You Spare A Buck?

A lot of us fellows received an envelope this week with a supply of Christmas seals and a nice, appealing letter from a charming young lady.
We are using the seals and we are in our dollar, and hope everyone will do the same. A dollar to aid the fight against tuberculosis in this county is well spent, saying nothing of the seals dress up the back of envelope in the mails.

Not No Possum?

From down at Mountain Creek comes our friend, Raymond L. Duffey presents us with a goodly number of prize Japanese persimmons. We've been eating on those persimmons now about a week. They were truly one of the largest we have ever seen.
Thanks, Mr. Duffey. We'll let you go to get again with us sometime.

No 'Possum

We have an opossum, then we have 'possum and 'aters. That's what Chas. Bell comes breezing in on our sactum sanctorum the other day with some potatoes—some unusual set potatoes. There were three sets of three long potatoes all crooked and bent around. Charlie tried to stir up some of the potatoes by holding them up and the potatoes would fit us just what you know about that?

Wait Too Long

Some people miss a lot of things by waiting too long. Yes, we do it ourselves many times. We might drop a little hint that we understand it could be a good idea to look after the matter of paying your subscription to this paper this week. And, too, try to give some of the contestants to that pretty, new automobile we are giving away next month.

A Good Story

You are not reading the serial appearing in the magazine section of the paper, then start it now. You can catch up by reading the synopsis and then start with the story each week. We tried to get you started on the serial last week. There are many interesting articles appearing in it each week.

Up On Us

December 25th will be here before we realize it and then it's too late to buy that gift you have been thinking of for sometime. Need we remind you there are only nineteen more days until Christmas.

Kiwanis Club To Find Next Year Busy One

OUTSTANDING WORK SEEN DONE IN 1936

New Officers Elected At Last Meeting On Nov. 24th

Clanton and Chilton County will see much more action from the members of the local Kiwanis Club in the future than in the past, judging from objectives set out by the club recently.

The club has been quietly working for some time on the matter of bringing more and larger industries to the county and considerable effort is being put to this now, according to committees having it in charge.

At the meeting of the club on Thursday night, November 25, John W. Fant, county agent, was elected president and J. Mel Martin secretary-treasurer for the coming year. They will assume their offices at the first meeting of the club in January. They will serve for the past year as president of the club and Percy M. Pitts, secretary.

The club has already accomplished much in the way of bringing results on the establishing of Clanton's airport, Gragg Field, and they plan to see what can be done to secure a recreation center, swimming pool, etc., at the field. It looks as if the club plans a busy year for 1937.

WARNING ISSUED TO THOSE DAMAGING GOVT. PROPERTY

thinking, been doing some damage to building materials at the airport, according to L. M. Matthews, WPA director here. Mr. Matthews reminds these people that the materials, etc., at the airport are government property and those found doing any damage there could face serious charges.

Reuben Lowe Brings Down Two-Point Deer

There is one man in Clanton, who, during the recent deer hunts, brought home results in the form of a fine two-point buck. R. W. Lowe, of South Clanton, Dr. J. K. Odom and Reuben Clanton took part in a recent hunt in Hale County and Mr. Lowe bagged the buck.

"It was a real sport," Mr. Lowe stated. "And I kind of feel proud of that shot especially after waiting as long as I did for the shot."

DEMOS HAVE FINE MEETING OF EXECUTIVES

Meeting Expressed Belief That Party Will Be Of Help To County

One of the most enthusiastic meetings of the Chilton County Executive Committee was held last Friday afternoon at the courthouse. This was the first meeting called by Chairman W. M.
Polk since the November 3rd election and those attending were most enthusiastic.

The meeting urged every citizen to pay his or her poll tax before February 1st, although this coming year is an "off year" in politics. The attendance at the meeting was good and each member was asked what comments he had heard on the result of the recent election. Each one expressed his belief that the citizens were satisfied and delighted over the outcome.

Pro-Graves Solon Is Dead At Leroy

Leroy, Nov. 30.—Harry Lee Glover who represented Choctaw, Clarke and Washington Counties in the State Senate and who was a supporter of the Graves administration, died at his home here yesterday. Funeral services were held this afternoon.

Senator Glover attended the opening of the special session last week in spite of several months of ill health.
The strain of attendance is believed to have hastened his death. He was serving his first term in the Legislature.
Senator Glover was 58 years old.

MRS. VANDERVEER CONFINED IN BIRMINGHAM HOSPITAL

Mrs. C. E. VanDerveer, pioneer resident of Clanton and mother of John M. VanDerveer, Sr., in confined to the Bessemer General Hospital suffering from effects of a recent fall. Mrs.
VanDerveer, whose age is past eighty, is resting very well this week, it was reported, although it was found necessary to place a part of her body in a cast.

Repeal Of Liquor Law Appears As Certainty

Chilton High Defeats
Maplesville High 7-0

The Orange and Blue lads of Chilton County High School won the football championship of the county Friday afternoon of last week when they defeated the high school team of Maplesville by the score of 7-0. The local high school football team has played a very hard schedule, and when the small number of boys reporting for practice from day to day is taken into consideration and the number of players lost during the season from injuries are counted, the team has done remarkably well.

In the game with Maplesville Williams was the outstanding player for Clanton as he has been in all the games this season. He received valuable help from Mims, Thornton, Johnson and others.

CITIZENS ARE URGED TO PAY POLL TAX NOW

Is Important Although This Year Is Known As An Election "Off Year"

Although this year is what is known as an "off year" in politics and elections, citizens of Chilton County are being urged to pay their poll tax now, or before February 1st, according to Judge J. Lee Smith and W. M. Polk, chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee.

"It is somewhat difficult to a lot of people to pay two years at once," Judge Smith stated. "So, I urge every person who is old enough to vote to attend to this matter right away."

There is a bright possibility that the year will bring at least one, if not more, special elections of vital importance to the citizens of the county and then 1938 will be a most important political year.

BANKHEAD SAYS CONGRESS, F.D.R. WILL COOPER'TE

Sees No Reason For Serious Breach Of Solidarity Say Speaker

Jasper, Ala.,—Continuance of "a spirit of fine cooperation between the Congress and the president, on major questions of public policy," was foreseen today by Speaker William B.
Bankhead.

The speaker predicted "a long session" after the Seventy-Fifth Congress convenes in January.

"I anticipate no grave breach of solidarity in the House-overwhelmingly Democratic majority," Bankhead said. "I don't see any occasion where there should be any serious schism."
He disagreed with Washington commentators who have seen possibilities of a serious cleavage, but added: "We can't expect unanimity" in Democratic ranks, "or the solidarity which usually prevails when party strength is about evenly divided."

Bankhead is regarded as almost a certain choice for reelection as presiding officer of the House.

He will leave for Washington Dec.
14, or 15 and expects to see President Roosevelt shortly after the executive returns from South America Dec. 17.
"to talk over the general situation and discuss legislation of general importance."

LEGISLATURE TO CONVENE AGAIN FRIDAY

Even Foes Of State Stores Plan Will Give In Order To Obtain Goal

Montgomery, Dec. 1.—The House of Representatives by a two-vote margin today adjourned until Friday to give time for sentiment to cool on Gov.
Bibb Graves' revenue aid liquor legalization proposals.

Legalization of alcoholic beverages by the present special session tended toward a virtual certainty as opposing factions of the wet made overtures to compromise their differences on the governor's state stores plan.

Adjournment of the House until Friday was in the nature of a blow to administration forces, which tried to have the House reconvene tomorrow.
Rep. L. H. Ellis, of Shelby County, led the fight against the long adjournment, while Rep. Chauncey Sparks, of Barbour, sponsored the move. The vote was 47 to 45.

Senate Stays In Session Representative Sparks charged the effort to reconvene tomorrow, time set for the merchants' anti-sales tax march on the Capitol, was an effort to upset the protest plan of the anti-taxers and to force passage of the governor's program to passage.

The Senate, administration-controlled, voted 16 to 14 against concurring in the resolution and a conference committee began an attempt to settle the differences between the two houses.
Sen. Hardy Riddle led the Senate fight for non-concurrence. He was opposed by Sen. Isham Dorsey of Lee.
Sen. C. M. A. Rogers, of Mobile, also opposed reconvening the Legislature tomorrow.

Formerly republican in sentiment, the lawmakers appeared determined today to end the long reign of prohibition in the state after the Supreme Court held it is not necessary to submit the issue to the people again.
Rep. John D. Chichester of Jefferson, Rep. A. L. Staples of Mobile, and Mayor W. A. Gunter of Montgomery, all leading wets, let it be known that while they favor licensing private stores to sell liquor rather than selling up state stores, they are prepared to yield to the governor's plan if this is necessary to get repeal.

May Amend Bill

First definite move toward a compromise was made direct to Governor Graves by Representative Chichester sponsor of a liquor licensing bill introduced in the House last week.

The governor, it was learned, indicated he would consider Mr. Chichester's proposal that an amendment be made on the administration bill allowing the state to distribute liquor, beer and wine at wholesale only, with all retail sales left to private dealers.

Meanwhile, Sen. J. L. Kelley, sponsor of the administration's state store bill in the upper House, announced he is drawing a new bill to be used as a basis of compromise in committee.

Under it, state stores would sell only package liquor, while private dealers handled beer and wine under a licensing system.

ALABAMA FOOTBALL CAPTAIN VISITS FRIENDS IN CITY

Among the distinguished visitors to Clanton during the past week end was Bubber Nesbit, captain of the famous Alabama football team. Captain Nesbit spent the week end here as the guest of Jesse Frank Foshee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Foshee, who is a student at the University and also a member of the football team.

Christmas Seal Sale To Aid Tuberculosis Fight

People Urged To Use Seals On All Mail
To Aid Fight

One of the most important drives of the year for Chilton County got under way this week when the newly organized Chilton County Tuberculosis Association launched its first sale of Christmas seals. The money raised in this way is used for fighting Tuberculosis in our county and state. Thirty-one cases of tuberculosis have been reported to the local county health unit since the unit's organization in March, 1935 and doubtless there are others which have not been brought to the attention of the health authorities. For every dollar's worth of seals sold in the county eighty cents stays right here in the county to help in the fight against this dreaded disease.

Mrs. Luther Little is chairman in charge of the seal sales and over six hundred persons were mailed seals on Thanksgiving morning. The County Tuberculosis Association has several important things in mind which they hope to do with the funds realized from the sale of these seals. Among these are the purchase of X-ray sputum cups for those with the disease in the county, tuberculosis testing and X-raying school children, and they also are keeping in mind the establishment of a tuberculosis hospital in Chilton County.

At the Christmas season you will certainly be using seals to go on your letters, cards and Christmas packages so why not do a good deed and buy your Christmas seals today.

From Basement To Flagpole

The elections throughout the nation are over. Candidates for office on every ticket have promised to work for tax reduction...

It is becoming pretty generally recognized today that taxes are such a burden on industry that they restrict its normal development—that means they restrict prospective jobs.

The most pressing relief needs of the depression period have passed. But in their wake will be a hang-over of persons on the public payroll that will drain the treasuries of government and industry unless a drastic program is inaugurated to cut off useless expense and live up to campaign promises to hold down and reduce taxes.

The mopping-up process will have to begin in the basement of the smallest city hall and go right through to the gold ball atop the flagpole on the capitol at Washington.

Nothing would do more to encourage industry to develop and employ more and more labor than a feeling that an honest and determined effort was being made throughout the nation to balance budgets and reduce taxation.

The answer rests with the people. Theirs is the power to demand efficiency and economy in government, or theirs is the power to break their own public treasuries and the taxpayers (workers and industries).

The first course leads to steady jobs and good wages. The second course leads to unemployment, mortgage foreclosures on homes and businesses, and the eventual break-down of sound government.

We can't pass the buck—the answer rests with us—the taxpayers, the workers and our public servants.

A "Good Neighbor" On A Neighborly Visit

Have you not been thrilled by the reception the South Americans are giving the President of the United States?

They have welcomed this envoy of peace and good will with open arms and with tumultuous expressions of enthusiasm. They are overjoyed by his presence, abandoning all activity to extend to him a hearty welcome. They have faith in him as you have faith in your best friend and neighbor.

South America has every right to believe in Franklin D. Roosevelt. No other President in our national history has done more than the present chief executive to make real our friendship with all the nations to the south of us. He knows their problems and ours, and his heart is set on making ever more secure the peace that now reigns supreme on these two continents of the New World.

President Roosevelt's address Friday at Rio de Janeiro has been described by a correspondent who travels with the President for a Republican newspaper as "unquestionably one of the great speeches of his career." Today in Buenos Aires he will open the Inter-American Peace Conference with a speech long awaited by all lovers of peace.

Each year more and more citizens of the United States are traveling in South America. Reports have come that, like tourists in Europe, some of these Americans have not always conducted themselves graciously. It is unfortunate. The Latins are an impressionable people who do not easily or quickly forget insult or injury.

Now that our President is in South America cementing the bonds of friendship it is well for all of us to remember that we cannot maintain for ever these friendships won by Mr. Roosevelt unless the individual traveling in those southern republics does his part, too, to win the esteem and confidence of those people.

The President has succeeded already so admirably that we should have little trouble in keeping the good will of South Americans.—Montgomery Advertiser.

In Your Interest

In a recent address, M.W. Clement, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, said: "If the American railroads can today—and I am sure they can—get equality of treatment with other lines of industry before the court of the people, and be given the same opportunities as those industries, under the laws and regulations of those bodies created by the people to regulate the conduct of their business; and if they are permitted to give rein to their vision and their inventive genius... they will continue on to greater things. They will work out their own salvation and perform a great part in the rehabilitation of this country as it comes out of the depression, giving the people better service than they ever had before at low rates."

This same view is held by other railroad officials. More important, it is held by a preponderant percentage of unprejudiced economists and analysts who have considered the railroad problem not only in relation to railroad service, but in relation to its influence on the general economic scheme of things as well. If Congress created a railroad policy which would guarantee the lines equitable treatment at the hands of the law and regulatory agencies, there is no question but what they would embark on a vast improvement and expansion program. Millions of dollars would be spent for metals, fuel, concrete, timber products—almost everything that American industry produces. An untold number of jobs would be created, and our still vast unemployment rolls would decline.

We can forget the railroads' self interest and think solely of our own interest—of the interest of all people and all business—in a policy that would invigorate our greatest single industry. Then we will understand why fair treatment for the rails is one of the most vital needs of the time.

Who Would Pay Your Rent?

"One of our friends, whose house burned down recently, is not so cheerful these days," writes a correspondent. "At first he said everything was all right because his fire insurance would cover the loss. But now he is grumbling about paying rent for another house while his own is being rebuilt."

Who would pay your rent while your house was being rebuilt, if fire destroyed or daamaged it? Not the fire insurance company, unless you included such protection in your policy, as you can also do for water damage, aircraft property damage, explosions, etc.

The case comes to mind of a manufacturing plant which turned out delicate instruments. One day an airplane soaring overhead dropped a part of its landing gear which crashed through the roof and wrecked an important machine. Much of the company's production was held up for weeks because of this accident and considerable loss resulted from delay in making deliveries.

That is why aircraft property insurance has come into being. Protection also is afforded for loss of use and occupancy, for sprinkler leakage, water damage, explosion and steam boiler accidents—all new hazards in our high-speed living.

Numerous and interesting types of insurance coverage have had to be developed during recent years to meet hazards that many property owners are yet unfamiliar with.

Oh, The Pity Of It!

What force motivates men to acts the Spaniards are committing against one another? It is not patriotism. It is not courage. It is not a vision of something better and nobler. It is a bestial, mad force that defies description. The hopeless internecine struggle goes daily on with nothing but death and destruction triumphant. Neither side can win. But humanity can and has lost heavily.—Montgomery Advertiser.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

An old Indian Chief was confronted, so the story goes, by a white man with a bag of gold. The white man wanted to buy land from the old Chief. He was informed by the Indian that he could have all the land that he could travel around between sun up and sun set in exchange for his gold. The white man set out quietly, being well pleased with the trade. He traveled on and the farther he went the richer and better the land appeared and he became more anxious about the prospect of having a wide area. He traveled faster and along to the middle of the afternoon he set out on a run that he might encircle more territory. Just as the sun set he ran up to the starting place out of breath. He staggered about for a moment and then dropped dead. To be sure he had made it around a large body of land, but he had killed himself in his race. How true that is to life in general. We can have all we encircle while we are living. Why should we become so greedy as to kill ourselves in trying to get more. We have seen many a man run himself to death after things. When he gets them he dies. Better take life quietly and be happy as you travel.

While I was standing on the street corner I saw a car go by with smoke boiling from under the hood. After calling to the man he stopped his car and made examination. He found out that the lubricating oil had been consumed and the machinery was burning up because of friction. The greatest enemy to machinery is friction. When steel rubs together without lubricating oil, heat is produced. On the roadside billboards is the sign that says "Safe Lubrication." Your car must have it if you are to travel in safety. In a like manner human life must have lubricating oil or else society will be set on fire. We have a billboard on the highway of life telling us of "Safe Lubrication." The oil that makes human contacts safe is none other than human kindness, true religion, Christ in the heart. The fire that is now burning up Europe is being produced because the lubricating oil of true Christianity has been burned out. In America we had better be on our guard—our machinery is beginning to smoke. Our government machinery is going to burn up if we do not pour in more of the lubricating oil of our Christian faith.

I stood aside and watched the logmen as they drag the heavy timbers from the swamp. They were having difficulty in getting one log to move. As I should a man was sent into the swamp to see if he could locate the trouble. He found that the log had a big knot on it and the knot was digging into the ground, catching behind trees and plowing up the soil. He took his ax and cut the knot off the log and then it slid on its way without trouble. There are pleasure mad people who are doing their best to drag this old world down to ruin, but they are meeting with difficulty. They have discovered that it is the "Not" in human life that keeps them from accomplishing their ambition. They are trying to cut the "Not" off of all human conduct and leave every individual to do as he pleases. Listen to me, when you cut "Thou Shalt Not" off of human actions, you create a condition that will cause the individual to slide quickly into hell. You had better keep the "Thou Shalt Not" in your manner of living if you do not want to slide to ruin.

SHERIFF'S SALE—REAL ESTATE

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. ## CRYING FOR ATTENTION

Yesterday---Today Tomorrow

By J. Harrison Miller

There are two kinds of lies—white and black. What affectionate mother, for instance, seeking to get a spoonful of castor oil down the throat of protesting Willie, has not told him that it is nice to take and that she was sure he would like it? A white lie. And justified. And what person has not told another, on a sick bed, with only a few hours to live, that he certainly be able to sit up in just a few days? We all tell white lies. There's no harm in them. And often much good. They help to ease mental suffering. Sometimes they prolong a life. The fellow who tells a white lie does it to help someone. The fellow who tells a black lie does it to hurt someone. That's the difference!

As to the latter kind of lies, it may be said that they have become almost an epidemic, prompted by a love of the lighter things, a mad desire for money and an ever increasing struggle for existence in a topsy-turvy world. A girl dates a boy and willfully goes out with another fellow. A husband, caught handed, assures a heart broken wife that the "other woman" is only a usual friend. A merchant sells a dollar rug for $14.89 at the only place in town where you can save safety." Known by discriminating sons to be utterly dishonest, leaders a major political party now on power, insist that they have only country's best interests at heart. Blackest lies.

But behind it all there's a silvering. Historian Charles A. Beard says "When it gets sufficiently dark, stars can be seen." And for those who refuse to yield to despair in this international turmoil there is hope. Truth, crushed to earth, will rise again.

The eternal years of God are before error, wounded, writhes in pain. And dies beneath its conqueror.

THE CHILTON COUNTY NEWS

That's What I Think

—OOO—

Saul M. Goldstein

The editors of the weekly newspapers in Alabama got together a couple of weeks ago and decided to back a campaign in the state for industrial development. Alabama has been somewhat slow in that line, with even its great industrial center, Birmingham, depending mainly on one product. For that reason, Birmingham, Alabama, for that matter, felt the spot of the depression more keenly than any other part of the country. The editors have realized that economic safety lies in variety, and now, as the industry is booming, they are anxious to take advantage of the opportunity to boost manufacturing in the state.

When the great manufacturing center of the East began to sprout factories, high costs and crowded conditions, the manufacturers began to look for greener pastures. The South, purely an agricultural community, appeared most favorable in their eyes. This was particularly true in the textile industry, which saw in the southern locations a great saving in cost on raw cotton shipments. They did not, however, choose locations at random. They knew that in bringing industry to a town, they were in no way bringing a measure of prosperity to that town; they had a saleable commodity. On the other hand, bringing a factory involves a great expense, breaking in and training green hands involves another great expense, the time lost in changing locations was third great expense. The result was a matter of shrewd bargain—the community which could offer a concession which would come out of covering those three items, the factory.

In some cases, whole states got in concession habit. To encourage industries, tax concessions, light rent, and often rent for a varying period of time, were granted. The industrial factory, with its payroll, poured into the state treasury far greater through other channels of taxation than it could possibly have received through taxing the factory. When towns and villages mushroomed into cities almost overnight, now, in December, 1936, business is picking up again. Factories are unable to meet the demand for merchandise, though they are working day and night with extra shifts. Capital, which has been begging for one and one-half per cent and two per cent for years, finds a new vista of opportunity open to it—a field of investment which will yield a greater return during the next twelve months. During the next twelve months, it will read of new factories being added or built in all parts of the country.

The editors of the weekly newspapers in Alabama are backing a drive to get concessions to bring some of the factories to Alabama. The more progressive communities will get them. Now, satisfied towns and cities will get behind.

Clanton is to grow, it must not stop for factories. It must go out and get them. We have a cotton mill here. We have a suit mill. That automatically suggests a suit or pants factory. Factories for cotton washers are expanding rapidly at this time. If the proper lumber is available within a reasonable distance of here, or better still, right in Clanton, furniture factories might be added to settle here. The field is wide and rich, but we have to work it.

I might be wrong, but I would suggest prompt action. If the city charter does not provide for such an activity, I think that a representative group of Chilton County citizens should get together and form a commission to start one at once. Tax concessions could be worked out with the city, county and state; enterprising real estate owners could be persuaded to furnish property at low cost, since they would more than make up any loss they might suffer thereby in the increased value of adjoining property, and increased rentals for homes that would have to be built to house the employees of new industries. The business men of the city could well afford to contribute to an industrial fund for such a purpose, since it would bring in rich dividends, not in interest-bearing bonds or coupons, but in bigger sales and a richer market for their goods.

The abundant life is here within our grasp, but we must reach our hands out to take hold of it. It is not enough to say that it is a good idea, and something ought to be done about it. Every loyal citizen of Chilton County, for the good of the county, and for his own personal welfare, should join in a movement to develop an industrial Chilton.

At least, that's what I think.

Dahlia Society Of Alabama Is Becoming Very Active Organization

The Dahlia Society of Alabama, which was organized in Birmingham in February has become a very active group of dahlia lovers. It is beginning a membership drive on December 1.

The membership at present stands at 60 and the society is very much interested in having a trial grounds in Alabama. The membership must be much larger to make this project possible.

A trial grounds is used for trying out new varieties of dahlias to see if they are suited to the South. Dahlias have been a favorite flower with many people for years but these same people had to do their own experimenting. The Dahlia Society of Alabama feels that it would be filling a great need for the state if their plans can be carried out.

The Society has been very successful this year even if it is so young. Visitors to the Alabama State Fair were agreeably surprised and pleased to see the wonderful display of dahlia blooms which the Society had there. That show was a huge success and was one of the finest units of the fair.

Another great success was accorded the Society on October 7 when there was held another dahlia show at the Thomas Jefferson Hotel in Birmingham. The hall-room was filled with specimen dahlias of all colors and sizes. Secure in these two successes great plans are being formulated for next year. The shows will be bigger and better. The judging is done according to the rules and regulations of the

Alabama Dry? Have A Drink! Liquor Cheap And Easy To Get Now

State Laws Strictest In Nation Yet 1155 Dealers Licensed By Federal Government; Many Cities Issue Beverage Licenses

Editor's Note: The article below was printed in a prominent place in The Milwaukee Journal, Sunday, Nov. 15. It is reproduced here as others see us.

By Lindsay Hoben

Montgomery, Nov. 30.—Alabama is dry. Alabama drinks openly and freely. Liquor can be bought easily. Alabama is dry. That means there is no state liquor tax. So liquor is cheaper in Alabama than in Wisconsin. Alabama is well satisfied with things as they are. As a one-time governor, William W. Brandon, said publicly, paraphrasing Will Rogers: "Alabama will vote dry as long as she is staggered to the polls."

Alabama is dry. But "government liquor"—meaning legally manufactured liquor bearing Federal tax stamps—is so plentiful that local moonshine takes second place, at least in all urban communities.

Alabama is dry. It has strict laws prohibiting sale, possession, transportation or manufacture of hard liquor. Even beer of more than one-half of one per cent strength is outlawed.

Alabama is broke. Her schools operate only four or five months a year. Her teachers are but partly paid. But Alabama is so dry that in debates in the legislature many members and political leaders have announced that they would withdraw their children from the public schools if liquor tax money were ever used to support the schools. (To be sure, one legislator resigned in disgust, telling his colleagues that he could earn "a more honest living selling whiskey to dry members of this house.")

Alabama is dry. She voted last year in a referendum against repeal. But this year there are 1,155 Alabamians who have paid the United States department of internal revenue $28,940 for Federal liquor stamps.

But Dealers Are Licensed

In other words, Alabama is dry, but 1155 dealers have Federal licenses to deal in liquor. Let anyone believe this to be a "half-cocked" generalization, the details are as follows:

Ten persons have paid the Federal Government $100 each for wholesale beer and liquor licenses.

Thirty-one persons have paid the Federal Government $50 each for wholesale beer licenses.

Eight hundred and 22 persons have paid the Federal Government $25 each for retail beer and liquor licenses.

Two hundred and 92 persons have paid the Federal Government $20 each for beer licenses.

Alabama is dry. But there are no state enforcement officers, and when liquor dealers have Federal licenses they are not molested by Federal agents. In fact they are helped by Federal officers, inasmuch as these revenue patrol highways and seek to stamp out moonshine that might compete with the "Government" liquor which is sold so plentifully by Alabama's Federally licensed liquor dealers.

Municipal Licenses, Too

Alabama is dry. But 56 of her 65 counties have Federally licensed liquor dealers.

Nor do all the municipalities turn up their noses—as does the state—on luscious liquor license fees.

Alabama is dry, and Montgomery (population 70,000) is in Alabama, but 96 persons pay $15,200 annually for "small beverage" licenses. They are as follows: Three Montgomery wholesale beer and liquor dealers pay the city $1,500 each, one wholesale beer dealer pays $500 and 102 merchants pay $100 each to retail beer and liquor. In brief the city licenses dealers to violate the state law. The situation in Mobile is similar. In Dothan (Houston County) a "bootlegger" says he pays a "voluntary fine" of $54 a month for violating the law without being molested.

In Birmingham all is not so rosy. There have been frequent unsubstantiated charges of exorbitant bribe demands made by officials to liquor dealers. Nevertheless, 250 Jefferson County dealers (Birmingham) have paid for Federal licenses, so the liquor business must be worth while.

Birmingham recently repealed its city dry ordinance, taking its police out of the enforcement picture. A few days ago the Birmingham Restaurant Association, and two distributing firms obtained a temporary injunction forbidding Sheriff Fred H. McDuff from "interfering with the business" of the plaintiff. So Birmingham's 275,000 residents in dry Alabama find liquor easily obtainable.

The sheriff in Montgomery (which even votes about 15 to one wet) openly informed the liquor merchants in his community that if they had Federal and municipal licenses he would not molest them. If, he said, the Government or him to stop liquor law violation, he would telephone every dealer at least one hour in advance of a raid so that all liquor could be removed from the premises.

Practices Code Drawn

Alabama is dry. But her liquor dealers do not like to be called bootleggers. They do not have underworld or gangster affiliations. Most of them are reputable merchants in their communities who sell Federally tax paid liquor to their customers.

In Montgomery there was a little trouble recently when a liquor price war broke out. So the dealers called a meeting and drew up a fair trade practices cod. Alabama is dry. But The Montgomery Advertiser (wringing wet) printed a lead story on the meeting listing the regulations agreed to by the dealers.

They were: 1—All dealers must sell liquor for the same price; 2—They must sell for cash only; 3—They must not sell to drunks; 4—They must not sell from Saturday midnight to Monday morning.

The code—like some others—is not strictly obeyed, according to Thomas L. Brown, until recently news editor of the Advertiser. Item one is obeyed, he says; item two is used to deny credit to bad accounts; item three and four are almost totally disregarded.

They Truck It In

Alabama is dry. But jobbers have no trouble supplying liquor to retailers. Jobbers openly send trucks to wet states—Florida and Kentucky usually.

A truck is loaded and dispatched with a bill of lading saying, for instance, that the liquor cargo is being sent from Louisville Ky., to Pensacola, Fla., or vice versa. If the truck is stopped in Alabama the driver "proves" with his bill of lading that he is engaged in legal interstate commerce. The route, however, goes past the door of the jobber. The liquor cargo is unloaded.

Alabama is dry. Liquor is sold everywhere. Arrests are infrequent, convictions almost unheard of. In Mobile the prosecutor couldn't get a conviction in 18 months. Recently 18 cases appealed from the city court—where $100 fines had been assessed—were dismissed by the prosecutor who knew that he couldn't get a conviction. The defendants kindly agreed to the prosecutor's suggestion that they each pay $5 to go toward defraying the costs in their cases—to keep the community out of the hole, no doubt.

Alabama is dry. But you can't get an indictment in a liquor case in Montgomery County.

Alabama is dry. But a good whiskey costs 85 cents a pint. Some brands cost less and some cost more. In Wisconsin most brands cost about a third more than in Alabama.—Montgomery Advertiser.

Highway Mileage, Trade, Wages, and Jobs Reduced by Diverting Road Funds

Changing of taxpayers, curbing of road work, and losses in wages, and trade resulted last year from the use for purposes of motor tax revenues by the State alone to finance it was reported today by Hearn, Secretary of the Alabama Petroleum Industries Committee. Hearn declared that it is apparent from a study made by his organization that motorist taxpayers were "changed" about 4.8 cents on the dollar paid for roads. He estimated that approximately 680 workers kept out of employment, and that $200,000 in wages failed to materialize because money was not spent for road work. "In 1934 a total of $688,999 of their road tax money went to other purposes. "No one wants to argue the worthiness or the necessity of financing these 'other purposes,' but the spending of motor tax revenues for highways—the specific purpose for which these taxes are levied—is so generally beneficial that there can be no argument either as to the advisability, or the common sense and honesty, of doing just that. "Reports of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads show that every dollar spent on highways generates $3.15 worth of trade and wages in 24 different industries. Each $800,000 spent on roads provides a full year's employment for 103 workers. About one-third of them can have jobs directly on the roads, and the rest find employment in the 24 industries supplying road materials, equipment, service, etc. Now on this basis, it is estimated that 680 jobs could have been created and only 95.2 cents worth of roads in this state had all motor tax revenue been spent upon roads. Also business would have been able to show an increase of $2,090,000 in wages and trade. For instance, there would have been an estimated $600,440 gain in the construction industry, a $244,530 gain in the transportation industry, and a $263,340 gain in the machinery and equipment industry. "We estimate also that there would have been gains in such industries as quarrying and brick, $114,950; cement, $127,490; iron and steel, $109,680; petroleum, $56,430; fuels and power, $52,250; and retail and wholesale trade, $173,000. "As regards road construction, it is estimated that more than 110.6 miles of farm-to-market roads could have been built with the money, a real benefit to agriculture since a large proportion of farms in this state are still served by unimproved roads. "Successful efforts have been made in several states to halt this unwise and costly practice of diverting road funds. It is prohibited by the constitutions of Colorado, Missouri, Minnesota, and Kansas. The electorate of Maine overwhelmingly approved an anti-diversion measure by referendum vote in September. Petitions for a similar referendum are now being circulated in Massachusetts.

"Congress stigmatized the practice as unfair and undesirable when it inserted in the Hayden-Cartwright Act of 1934 a provision that states which misapply motor tax revenue shall lose up one-third of their federal aid roads grants. The practice has also been strongly opposed by agencies promoting safety as a menace to public safety, since the use of road funds for other purposes causes neglect of highways.

"BUNKUM" and the shorter word "bunk" both derive from Buncome, the name of a county in North Carolina. During a famous debate in Congress many years ago the representative for the district insisted on making a rambling speech when the House was impatiently waiting for an opportunity to vote. The speaker explained his insistence by saying the people of his district expected it of him; so he was bound "to make a speech for Buncome."

Do not say, "That is an entirely different matter than the one you have in mind." "That" indicates a comparison. Distinction or separation is indicated by "from." Say, "That is an entirely different matter from the one you have in mind."

Blind Will Receive Aid From State

By Capital News Bureau
Montgomery—More than 1,000 destitute blind men, women and children are groping hopefully for a "new deal" from the Legislature, now in special session. This relatively small group of unfortunate are the forsaken and almost forgotten people among the millions sharing in the humanitarian provisions of the Federal and State Social Security program.

A bill will be introduced this week enabling Alabama to obtain $25,000 to $30,000 from the Federal government to be matched by State and county funds for the care of the blind who are either too young to qualify for old age pensions or too old to receive aid as dependent children.

A similar measure was proposed during the last special session and though it was unopposed, the bill died on the House calendar in the conclusion of the last days of the session. The present measure would provide a maximum of $30 a month to the indigent blind—$15 to be contributed by the Federal government, and $15 jointly by the State and county governments.

Commissioner A. H. Collins, of the State Department of Public Welfare said the proposed bill would expressly forbid begging by recipients of the blind relief, as follows:

"xxx shall not during the period of receiving assistance publicly solicit alms. The term 'publicly solicit alms' shall be construed to mean either the wearing, carrying or exhibiting signs denoting blindness for the securing of alms, or the carrying of receptacles for the purpose of securing alms or the doing of same by proxy; or the stationary or house-to-house begging or any other means of publicly securing alms xxx."

At present about 200 blind persons are now receiving assistance from the State and counties averaging about $8 a month, though many receive as little as $2 a month due to limited resources. They are certified by welfare department workers as the more desperately need of the State's total blind population. Another large group of blind men and women over the age of 65 are receiving old age pensions, but existing laws make no provision for the care of need blind between 16 and 65 years of age.

A striking example of the urgent need for additional legislation to assist the thousands of more blind who cannot secure help at present was cited by Mrs. Ruby M. Boykin, field worker of the State Welfare Department. A mother in a south Alabama county received aid through the welfare department for the support of her totally blind twins under the "dependent children" provision of the Social Security program. A short time ago the twins reached the age of 16 thus disqualifying them from the dependent children classification though their physical handicap still exists. The mother and her blind children can no longer obtain aid under existing laws. Recently Mr. B. F. Ashe, regional director of the Social Security Board, Birmingham, received the following letter from a blind teacher in a central Alabama county:

"Dear Sir:
"Where there is no vision the people perish? Thank God President and Mrs. Roosevelt and scores of leaders have had a vision and they are seeking to bring light to those who sit in darkness.

"I do not think the government owes me a living, but as so much has been and is being done for the able bodied normal people, is it not just and honest that the blind and crippled have an opportunity to earn a living?

"Nothing has been done in my county for the physically handicapped to my sorrow. I am one of them. Years ago, I learned the Braille system at Talladega, Ala. I have taught blind pupils, private schools and in the public schools, but consolidation of schools has forced me out. My health is impaired, eyes and throat need treatment. Will you please consider my application for aid of blind?"

Christmas Suggestions

The pine makes lovely wreaths by taking wire and wrapping it around the limbs, insert at the top two or three pine burs and at the bottom tie a huge bow of red oil cloth. The wreaths are beautiful if clusters of holly and red hells are used. The Pyra-Cantha wreaths are beautiful in their natural green but if you prefer have them tinted. Aluminum paint or silver polish can be used to blow on the wreaths and can also be used at the same time to decorate the Christmas tree and other decorations for the entire holidays. Use your simple hand spray that is used to terminate mosquitoes. Place paper or sacks on the floor and pile decorations over them and spray accordingly. Turn decorations occasionally so that paint is not wasted. A ten-cent box of aluminum will be sufficient for you and your neighbor to use for your Christmas decorations.

Any left over boxes, baskets, coffee cans, mayonnaise jars, small odd fruit jars can likewise be painted and filled with many home products as nuts, peanuts, walnuts, hickory nuts, pecans or home made candies and canned goods as preserves, marmalades, pickles, jams, relishes or fresh meats. Wrap them in your favorite color cellophane and tie them with contrasting shade of Christmas ribbon. If preferred make attractive bows of silver and gold. Hand made gifts, as finger rings, luncheon sets bordered and lined, napkins, either breakfast or dinner napkins, aprons, collars and sets, ties, handkerchiefs are all gifts that can be made from the bag or often times from the table. We have only twenty-five days in which to make the gifts how much more you save by making them at home and too, the touch is so effective. Let's get until the last minute. Now is the time to do your planning, the thinking, lecturing the gift to suit the individual.

Plan Your Xmas Dinner Early
In order to have a more comfortable Christmas in general let's not only plan the gifts but plan the Christmas dinner. Now, the Christmas program is family, the Christmas program is the entire household and your program include games as a max. Have the devotional and carols and the stories and poems a Santa Claus and let your gift given in some unique way. Take other member of your family into confidence and together work on a program for the entire holiday have your gifts given in a surprising way and make the Christmas and again I say, "happy, let's be gay for Christmas coming. It's on its way."

President Roosevelt Endorses Bible Sunday

Washington, D.C., December 1.—President Roosevelt endorses the observance of Universal Bible Sunday on Sunday, December 6.

The churches of the nation will unite Sunday in the observance of Universal Bible Sunday. They will recognize the people of the nation of the world in the making of our nation the nations of the world. The celebration, as formerly, is sponsored by the American Bible Society by whose interrupted missionary activities, now for 120th year, more than 268,000 volumes of Scriptures have been translated in more than forty countries in 175 languages.

During the observance of Universal Bible Sunday President Roosevelt says: "It is to me a most impressive fact that the Bible, one of the oldest books known to man, remains today as fresh and as true as when it was first written. The universal character of the appeal of the Bible makes, to my mind, eloquent witness to its Divine origin. Unique in its form and in its message, no other work has made, in the countless centuries, such an appeal to the mind and heart and soul of mankind as has the Bible."

The American Bible Society has rendered service now for more than a hundred years by carrying this message to people all over the world. I trust that this good work will never be suffered to grow less.

Birds, rabbits, and other small game make their nests and dens in the brush, grass, and small trees. Much of their food comes from these same grasses, weeds and trees. These birds and animals give you pleasant recreation in the form of hunting and the birds help the farmer by eating insects that harm his crops. When you burn the woods you destroy their homes, their young and their food. Protect your game by not burning the woods.

Nature provides a ground cover of grass to keep idle and pasture fields from eroding. This covering often forms on cultivated fields after the crops are laid by and will help hold the soil during the winter months while it won't increase its fertility enough to mention. The farmer of today has learned the value of planting a winter cover crop such as vetch, Austrian winter peas, and clovers that protect the soil and then greatly enrich it when it is plowed under in the Spring. If such cover crops are not planted be sure not to burn the cover that Nature has provided.

The winter months are the best time to build up your terraces, to fix all breaks and to build up all low places. The heavy, steady rains of this season can cause big gullies in a short time and at the same time wash away tons of the rich topsoil. Every farmer should plow out his terrace channels at least twice a year. The best times for this are just before planting winter crops and just before planting the summer ones. When he does this he should fix the breaks and low places making sure that the fills that he puts in are much higher than the rest of the terrace as fresh dirt settles when rained on. After every rain, no matter what time of the year, he should walk over his terraces and repair any damage that may have taken place.

The winter months are the proper time for helping Nature reforest. Mother Nature will usually completely reforest a field but it will take many years for her to cover all of it. You can help her by transplanting young seedling trees from other areas that are too thickly covered with trees or the seedlings can be bought from your State Nursery at a very small cost.

You young people are the ones that should be the most interested in saving the soil and saplings because you have your life ahead of you and they are to be yours to manage and work. Therefore it is to your interest to do your part to save these arts of Nature and to get everyone else to do the same thing.

MINOOKA HOME DEM. CLUB

County Closes Doors Of Its Almshouse

Old Age Assistance is proving to be less expensive for the county than the maintenance of an almshouse; and it is more satisfactory to the individuals concerned, because they are given a chance to become contributing members of a family rather than residents of an institution.

There are many stories which might be told to show that the closing of almshouses has brought greater happiness to many old persons. There is the story of Mrs. L., who was so small and delicate. On a crowded day she came to the Public Welfare office to "sign up for a pension." She hurried into the waiting room and sat down to wait her turn. When she finally reached the Director's office, she rushed up to the desk and said "I am Miss Mary and I want to go home." If you don't hurry, and carry me I am going to walk." The worker found that she had been living in the almshouse for two years. According to her statement she had never been satisfied and now that she could have some money of her own, she could hardly wait to get back to her relatives whom she explained didn't want her to leave but they were not able to take care of her without some financial assistance. On the day of her arrival in the community, all the neighbors and relatives were there to welcome her. No question returning home could have been happier or felt more important than did Miss Mary.

In every case the Directors of Public Welfare are careful to see that the homes which are considered—even the homes of relatives—meet certain standards. The home selected should provide good wholesome food, clean and sanitary living conditions, and be situated so that the aged persons may have an opportunity to attend religious services and take a part in community activities, if they desire.

For almshouse residents who are not 65 years of age but who are in need, the state will match county funds dollar for dollar if these persons are placed in family homes. One county, which has been maintaining an almshouse for seven persons but which has closed its almshouse, presented the following figures to prove the great financial saving to the county.

|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------|
| 1. Total cost for care of 7 persons in almshouse                                                                                                             | $130.00            |
| 2. Total cost for care of persons in family homes outside almshouse                                                                                          | 90.00               |
| Total cost to County                                                                                                                                         | 28.50               |
| Cost to State                                                                                                                                                | 28.50               |
| Cost to Federal Gov't.                                                                                                                                       | 35.00               |
| (Two of the 7 did not qualify for old age assistance and therefore the county did not receive Federal aid for their maintenance, but did receive State aid.) |                     |
| Saving to County by closing of almshouse ($130.00—$28.00)                                                                                                  | $101.50 per month. |

A county commissioner in this same county stated: "The closing of the almshouse is not only a financial saving to the county but is a more humane way to care for this group of people." While the Probate Judge and chairman of the county commissioners said in this regard: "If it were not for this arrangement, I do not see how we could secure local participation for the welfare program."

Editor's Lament

Getting out this house organ is no picnic.
If we print jokes folks say we are light minded.
If we don't they say we are too serious.

If we publish original matter they say we lack variety.
If we publish things from other papers then we are too lazy to write our own.

If we don't print contributions then we lack proper appreciation of the other fellow.
If we do the paper is filled with junk.

Like as not someone will say we copied this from some other paper. WE DID.

Chilton Bears Heavy Storm Loss Again

Our county was badly damaged, financially and spiritually, last Sunday night, when another tornado dipped down in the western part bringing unhappiness to many of our citizens.

We notice that very little aid was offered by the people of Clanton in this emergency. Of course, there were only five people sent to the hospital with serious injuries. But, those people needed help and possibly need help right now. They have no homes, they have few clothes. Only those things the twister did not destroy or carry away with it.

We remember the strong appeals that have been placed before the citizens of this county to do their part for our Red Cross. Had that twister stayed on the ground longer Sunday night, a large part of the western and southwestern part of Chilton County would have seen the American Red Cross in action—without asking for help.

There are so many things one can think of in cases of this kind. At least six families will have to build new homes, barns, etc., as the result of Sunday night's storm. We know they are not in the best of financial condition. We know they would appreciate a little help—just as you or I would like to receive if we were victims of such a catastrophe.

From City Hall To Washington

Most of us think of the menacing problem of taxation primarily in relation to the Federal government. And it is true that the cost of the central government could be materially cut without reducing efficiency or eliminating any necessary function.

But there are other fertile fields for drastic tax reduction.

State governments, by and large, are no models of efficiency and economy. In many states great bureaucracies have been built up and turned into political machines—with the taxpayer footing the bill. In almost every state government there is waste, duplication of effort and overlapping of departments.

The same thing is true of county governments—which some experts believe are the most wasteful of all—and it is likewise true of many municipal governments.

Any complete program for tax relief must include all units of government. It will avail us little if the Federal government saves a dollar and the state government wastes two, or vice versa. When we demand a clean-up of one governmental unit, we should give the same dose of medicine to other governmental units, or bureaucracies will swamp us.

Tax reduction is as vital an issue as we face today. We must fight for a reduction of waste from the city hall to the national capitol.

They Can't Escape It

We quote below a statement appearing in an advertisement of the Alabama Power Company, in this issue of the News, which we think so well of, we bring it to your attention here:

"If you are a farmer, you may be inclined to say: All this talk and activity about new industries in Alabama is fine, but I can't see where it will help me any."

But let us see! Let us assume that a new factory employing 500 people opens in a town near you. That means there will be 500 more people to feed in that community. It means that they'll need the "fat of the land"—milk and vegetables and meat and eggs—things you can grow and sell. That means you'll be able to begin to diversify to greater extent than before. It means that you'll have a steadier and larger cash income."

The Heavy Industries Are Clinging Recovery

It will be recalled that back in the low days it was said on every hand that recovery would never be complete until the heavy industries again were set going at a normal pace. We might eat as much food as ever we did, we might wear as many clothes, but the only hope for all of us really to be back at work and busy lay in making repairs to and extending old plants, in building new factories, in a steady flow of the production of durable as well as consumable goods.

The announcement of Birmingham's great T.C.I. expansion was a kind of signal that has been followed by a great accentuation of activity in these heavy industries. And if the tendency now setting in so sturdily can only be maintained, we can only look for a consolidation of our recovery.

More than $125,000,000 in spending plans for new equipment by steel, railroad and public utility industries were announced last week, and from these a great impetus is expected for numerous "heavy" industries.

In textiles, which just now are undergoing something of a boom, in chemicals, in automobiles, in tires and in other lines activity has reached such a pace that a lively demand for replacements, repairs and extension is inevitable.

The ascending spiral goes higher, and having done so, in a manner of speaking, ascends yet higher.

Only the building industry continues a rather out-of-line lag. "The overdue boom in the construction industry," Paul Mallon writes, "has failed to materialize. The government has been spending a lot of money on it for three years but has only succeeded in keeping it from complete breakdown. Private expenditures have not been stimulated to any extent comparable with the pre-depression era." With general production at 109 of "normal," November building was only 55.

But all this seems to us to be quite natural. Building, generally speaking, involves the greatest of all expenditures for the average man. He is not going to put money into a new house until his feeling of security has grown quite firm. And, of course, rapid as has been the material progress of millions, still this better feeling has not yet been with us long enough for us really to yet used to it.

A building boom in which thousands of householders undertook the construction of new homes on inadequate resources would be disastrous for the entire country. This paper, in every way it could, would encourage sound building. But it believes we best can make haste by going slowly.

It is not discouraging if building is not quite keeping up with the procession of other industries. On the contrary, that is to be expected, and the fact may be an encouraging indication that this time we are going to build more solidly all around.—Birmingham News.

The Right Spirit

While Christmas Day is gradually but surely slipping upon us this year, we pause a moment to discuss with ourselves just what is the right spirit of Christmas. Of course we know and you know.

But, what we were really discussing with ourselves was the matter of whether the proper Christmas spirit is always carried out. We know a lot of people who really carry out the spirit of the day. We admire them, and we love them for this spirit and the unselfish manner they go into it with. They are also the kind of people who do not wait until Christmas—it is the year 'round with them.

This Christmas could bring cheer and joy to the hearts of those less fortunate ones and to those more fortunate. The latter will find much pleasure, cheer and satisfaction in seeing that their less fortunate neighbors receive some little ray of happiness on Christmas Day.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haske

I saw a rather strange thing at a country church. On driving up to the building I noted that it was unpainted, the front steps were falling down, many window panes were broken from the sashes. The building was in bad repair, but all around over the ground in front and behind fine new cars were parked, while well-dressed men and women stood about the door. They had come from good country homes and had driven to God's house in fine cars, and yet the house of God looked almost like a goat house. I am saying this not as a reproach to any country community, but I am saying it as a reproach to any community, in the country, or in the city, that leaves the church in a dilapidated condition while the worshippers have good homes and good cars. During a part of my life I was very very best to my church and it is hard for me to understand how a Christian can do less. Your church should have the best.

Just as the red light flashed across the street I was trying to get by, but it said, "Stop." Rather impatiently I waited. At the next street crossing another red light held me up. It seemed to me that the lights were against me and this time I took out my watch to see how much time I was losing. The red light held up traffic just twenty seconds. When a fellow is in a hurry, twenty seconds seem to be an age. After all my friend that is the trouble with the world today. We are in too much of a hurry to make things safe for ourselves and for others. We reach, but we are in a rush. Travelers have almost assumed the wreckless state of mind. We toot our horns and rush by traffic and on we go with no where to go—just going. When will we learn to take things quietly and when will we learn to think and then move.

Many people carry their religion just like a man carries a pack on his back. He struggles along with it but it has him loaded down. Looking up at the sky I saw a bird as it went swiftly on its way. The bird was not carrying its wings—the wings were carrying the bird. That is the way we should relate ourselves to our religion. Do not carry your religion, but let your religion carry you. Use your religion as the bird uses its wings.

The Mohammedan is very devout as he enters his place of worship. At the door of the temple he removes his sandals, washes his feet and then in silence and devotion he walks to the sacred before he enters his God as we should come before our God. We need to go to the Mohammedan to learn the reverence that we are due when we enter our churches. If you will observe a Christian congregation in the house of God, you will conclude that it must be a place of exchange, a place of gossip, a place of bartering the news of the community. A preacher in his pulpit looking out on his gathering congregation, is often made to wonder if the American people think very much of God. A large per cent of church goers will enter a church just about like they would enter a Theater or a political meeting. If God is to you what you know Him to be, why not come before Him with a devout spirit.

How many times have you gone into your bathroom for medicine? On the shelf before you there were bottles with labels that said, "Cough Syrup," "Soothing Syrup," etc. Over in one corner there was a bottle on which was a label as red as blood. On the label was a skull and under it you read, "Poison." You knew better than to touch that bottle when you sought for medicine to cure you of your trouble. That bottle had no right to be there, but it is to be found in most of our medicine cabinets. When it is there we have got to keep our heads with us, or we will get the wrong medicine and that means death. On the shelf of life, before all of us, we are going to find that which is good and that which is bad, and why not keep our heads with us and select only the good. All sin is labeled "poison" and we should keep our heads with us. If you want to live, and do well you had better be careful how you dose yourself.

ENTERPRISE

The Enterprise Home Demonstration club met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. C. Bookholdt. Though the weather was bad, we had a nice crowd present. Several new members were enrolled. Business of the club was carried on in order.

We had our Christmas program at this meeting. The room was nicely decorated with Christmas tree and bells. Each one present brought a gift. Everyone seemed to be proud of the present they received. There was plenty of fruit which we enjoyed after the program.

We hope to have you all present at our next meeting which will be January 6.

Tell Muhkestein, student of Brigham Young University, Utah, is partially paying his way through school with prize money won by entering his canaries in singing contests.

W. C. Bailey of Underhill, Vt., learned to ride a bicycle at the age of 78, hoping that this exercise would restore his health. Now, at 82, he thinks nothing of a ride of 60 miles in a day.

Mrs. Walter Edwards of London was granted a separation order on testimony that her husband often held a hot poker to her feet to torture her.

Chas. F. Hoffman, Michigan attorney, has his suits made without pockets to break a habit of keeping his hands in his pockets while trying a case.

Five Farmers And Wives Are Named "Master Farmers"

Auburn, Ala.—The Alabama Extension Service and the Progressive Farmer-Ruralist have selected five outstanding Alabama farmers and their wives as "Master Farmers." They are: Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Brunson, Greenville; Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Fleming, Huntsville; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Meadows, Lowndesboro; Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Riser, Alpine; and Mr. and Mrs. Elgie Hayes, Huntsville.

Dr. L. N. Duncan, president of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute and director of the State Extension Service, and Dr. Clarence Poe, President of Progressive Farmer-Ruralist, presented the new group with gold medals and Master Farmer certificates at the annual meeting of the Alabama Farmer-Bureau Federation. Both speakers praised the farmers and their wives for their outstanding accomplishments.

Records show that the Master Farmers raised more than one cash crop, followed a live-at-home program, built up the fertility of their soil, and improved their homes and home surroundings. They are also leaders in their communities, taking an active and constructive interest in national, state and county affairs.

The bulk of the income on the 293-acre farm of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Brunson comes from cotton, livestock, and livestock products, including hams, bacon, sausage, cattle, chickens, butter and eggs.

About half the cash income on the 853-acre farm of Mr. and Mrs. Elgie Hayes is derived from cotton seed, while the other half comes from corn, lespedeza, oats, wheat, hay, and hogs.

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Riser receive cash on their 1,278-acre farm from the sale of milk and butter, cattle, hogs, sheep, goats, hay, timber, wood, cotton, honey, corn, chickens and turkeys, and syrup.

On a 1,709-acre farm in Madison County, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Fleming receive a large cash income from cotton, cotton seed, corn, hogs, cattle and hay.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Meadows receive cash on their 5,287-acre farm from cotton, cotton seed, beef cattle, milk, and hogs.

Other Alabama farmers will be named Master Farmers next year.

M'Queen Thrilled By Hunting Sight

Birmingham's Dr. J. P. McQueen, member of the State Game Commission Board, still was enthusiastic about the 160,000-acre preserve of Col. E. Allison in Sumter County.

He admitted it after an article, scribbling the hunt appeared in the recent issue of Alabama Game and Laws, "scraped":

"I called up three turkey gobblers, just as these gobblers came within range I heard a noise on my left. I turned my eyes I saw a large buck eight does standing within 12 yards of me. It would have been a matter for me to have taken this titi buck but I took a gobbler."

"Next morning I saw two bucks about three years old meet about yards from me and fight it out. I fought by locking horns and pushing one another about until one got tiring and gave the other a hard shove in the side, and the fight was as the buck ran off. I forgot I had gun."

Chevrolet Exceeds All November Records

Chevrolet production for November exceeded that of any previous November in the 25-year history of the company, summaries of official figures revealed this week, with a total of 229 cars distributed from the company's factories, according to Hayes Chevrolet Co., of Clanton.

Domestic production for the month was 95,022; exports production, 853; and Canadian production, 4. The total was 3,353 more cars than 108,876 produced in November, 1935, which was the previous record.

At the same time, company officials said, unfilled orders for the new Chevrolet are running far ahead of last year, with 96,084 customers' orders still to be met.

Factory production schedules have been stepped up to more than 600 cars a day in an effort to keep up popular demand, with plants working at capacity.

Automobile Industry Expend Much Time And Effort With Large Investments

In response to inquiries, Walter P. Chrysler, Chairman of the Board of Chrysler Corporation, issued the following statement:

"No other major industry expends so much time and effort in research, makes such large investments in better means of production and is so ready to improve its handiwork as the automobile industry. Our social and economic life would not be what it is today if automobile men had ever been satisfied with their achievements. During the whole evolution of the motor car, from the horseless carriage to the air flow marvels of today, improvements have been at a rate and with a persistence for which history has no parallel.

"I have never been more optimistic about the automobile industry than I am today. Automobile transportation is now a necessity. Automobile designing, manufacturing and selling is in the hands of forward-looking, capable men and I believe they are competent to handle their problems and opportunities with a very high regard for the public interest and safety as well as the needs of their customers.

"Because the substantial shortage of passenger car and truck transportation accumulated during the red years of depression has not yet been replenished, more and more people are becoming dependent on individual means of transportation, because the continuing improvement of roads and highways opens new markets for automobiles and trucks, and because people generally have more money to spend than they did a few years ago, the market for cars and trucks should continue to make good business.

"The automobile industry has foresightfully prepared for this growing market by investing, during the first nine months of this year, more money than it has expended for similar purposes in a very long time. Many new plants have been built and equipped. Obsolete machinery has been replaced. Manufacturing methods, working conditions and employment conditions have been improved.

"Chrysler Corporation, for instance, has built an entirely new press plant and service parts building. It now has probably the most modern stamping plant in the industry. It has equipped a brand new assembly plant and enlarged its production facilities in several of its other factories. Today it is in a better position than ever before to manufacture the high quality, economical cars and trucks which a discerning public has long learned to expect from it. The Plymouth, Dodge DeSoto and Chrysler passenger cars and Dodge trucks for 1937 give new evidence of Chrysler Corporation's continuing leadership in fundamental automobile improvement—recognized

Highlights Of F. D. R. Plea

By The Associated Press

Buenos Aires, Dec. 1.—Highlights of President Roosevelt's speech at the opening session of the inter-American peace conference today:

"... this is no conference to form alliances, to divide the spoils of war, to partition countries, to deal with human beings as though they were pawns in a game of chance.

"In the determination to live at peace among ourselves we in the Americas... stand shoulder to shoulder in our final deliberations that others who, driven by war madness or land hunger might seek to commit acts of aggression against us will find a hemisphere wholly prepared to consult together for our mutual safety and our mutual good."

"I am profoundly convinced that the plain people everywhere in the civilized world today wish to live in peace one with another. And still leaders and governments resort to war."

"Beyond the ocean we see continents rent asunder by old hatreds and new fanaticism."

"The madness of a great war in other parts of the world would affect us and threaten our good in a hundred ways."

"Can we, the republics of the new world, help the old world to avert the catastrophe which impends? Yes, I am convinced we can."

"First it is our duty by every honorable means to prevent any future war among ourselves. This can best be done through the strengthening of the processes of constitutional democratic government."

"Secondly, and in addition to the perfecting of the mechanism of peace, we can strive... to prevent the creation of those conditions which give rise to war. Lack of social or political justice within the borders of any nation is always cause for concern."

Quinn Says Bigwigs

Must Pay Penalty

Montgomery, Dec. 5.—I. Quinn, Commissioner of the State Department of Conservation, today issued a statement to dispel any impression that he would "condone such violations of the law as that attributed to members of a recent legislative hunting party."

"I am quoted as stating that I do not intend to press charges against seven members of a legislative hunting party found shooting doves with 'unplugged guns' at Atmore Prison Farm, because the offense comes under the jurisdiction of Federal game wardens," Mr. Quinn said.

Mr. Quinn says he stated "that in the event the Federal authorities did prosecute in these cases that the Alabama Department of Conservation of Game Fish and Seafoods would not make cases against those alleged to have violated the law by the use of illegal guns.

"I understand that two of the alleged violators have already made settlement in state court rather than have charges preferred against them in Federal Court."

The Wide-Awake Farmer

CAN'T ESCAPE IT

IF YOU are a farmer, you may be inclined to say: "All this talk and activity about new industries in Alabama is fine, but I can't see where it will help me any."

But let us see! Let us assume that a new factory employing 500 people opens in a town near you. That means there will be 500 more people to feed in that community. It means that they'll need the "fat of the land"—milk and vegetables and meat and eggs—things you can grow and sell. That means you'll be able to begin to diversify to greater extent than before. It means that you'll have a steadier and larger cash income.

New Industries In Alabama

Mean Much To The Alabama Farmer

For the past 14 years, Alabama Power Company, cooperating to develop a better balance between agriculture and industry, has been one of the leading agencies in presenting the advantages of Alabama to industrialists. Many of them have located factories here as a result.

Farmers, storekeepers, public institutions and many individual citizens have been benefitted.

Evergreen, Ala.—(Special) — The Alabama Press Association, composed principally of the state's weekly newspapers, has adopted a four-point program designed to bring new industries to Alabama. It was revealed today by R. G. Bozeman, president of the association.

Resolutions declaring that "the future progress and development of Alabama is directly dependent on location of new industries to use its raw materials" were adopted by the association's executive committee in launching the program, Mr. Bozeman said.

The four points are:
"Presentation of the resources of Alabama to the outside world."
"Encouragement of the location of new industries of all kinds."
"Adoption of legislation favorable to the location of new industries."
"Elimination of unfair or discriminatory taxes which may handicap our state in its bid for new industries."

The resolutions, also favoring promotion of "better balance" between agriculture and industry and a more "friendly attitude" toward new industries on the part of state and county governments, provided for appointment of a committee of 10 to direct the program. Aid of industrial leaders will be solicited in carrying it out.

Resolution
"Whereas the future progress and development of Alabama is greatly dependent on location of new industries to use the raw materials with which our state is blessed, to establish a better balance between Alabama industry and agriculture, to create payrolls, to increase consumption of our state's farm products, and to improve

Economic Highlights

Happenings that affect the dinner pail, Dividend checks and Tax bills of every individual. National and international problems inseparable from local welfare.

A major political party can survive a long period of defeat of its Presidential candidates—as the Democratic party, which didn't even get close to control of the White House in 1920, 1924 and 1928, so vividly demonstrates today.

But can a major party survive an election in which its officeholders who are the sole source of the patronage that is so vital to any political machine—are reduced to the lowest number in history?

That question is now being considered privately by Republican leaders—and publicly by practically all of the country's publicists and political columnists.

Under the American elective system a party can receive a respectable popular vote and still be out in the cold when the time comes for calling the roll in Congress, State legislatures and municipal councils. That is what happened to Republicans in the debacle of 1936. Governor Landon polled around 37 per cent of the popular vote—yet received only 11.2 per cent of the Electoral College vote. Republican candidates throughout the country polled about 17,000,000 votes as against about 27,000,000 for the Democrats yet they were victorious in only a microscopic proportion of the contests.

Best example of this is the House of Representatives. It was universally conceded, before November 3, that the Republicans would make gains, irrespective of who won the Presidency. Democratic spokesmen said hopefully that these gains would not amount to more than 20 or 30 seats, while Republicans claimed they would gain well over 100 seats. Non-partisan commentators placed Republican gains at 40 to 50 seats.

Actual result was startling. Instead of gaining seats, the Republicans lost 75. In the Senate, it was mathematically impossible for the Republicans to achieve control, but everyone thought they would have a better showing in Congress than last. Result: The Democrats lost 6 seats. The discrepancy of one is explained by the reelection of Senator Norris of Independent ticket.

Worst of all, a number of the remaining Republican senators lost the "Progressive Bloc" which was opposed to Hoover, Landon, Hamilton and other leaders.

The next Congress, then, will answer the roll as follows: Democrats in the House 334; Republicans 166. Democrats in the Senate, 75; Republicans 17.

Also vitally important to a party are Governorships—a great deal of patronage that keeps political machines well oiled and members wealthy flows from statehouses. Here the Republicans made the worst showing in their long history. They lost 33 gubernatorial chairs to the Democrats and 27 of them are now in the hands of the Democratic party's 39 Chief Executives.

So the party that received the best vote ever accorded a losing ticket got almost nowhere in attaining representation in high offices. (Compare figures for county and municipal elections are not obtainable, but the Democratic sweep was overwhelming.) Leaders of the party thus say some justice, that our elective system is unfair to minorities. On the other hand, Democratic spokesmen say Roosevelt victory is important not because of the majorities attained, because it extended to every section of the country and broke down long established lines of partisan sympathies.

To get back to the original question can the Republicans come back? Party heads say they will. Among partisan commentators' opinion is that the party has a good chance to get back—but that considerable reorganization must take place, a new aggressive program must be adopted, new faces must replace some of the ones in party councils. One Republican Representative, Fish of New York, has already demanded present party heads resign.

What will happen remains to be seen. The hard fact is that no major party ever was at so low a state as the GOP is at present—the Democrats' hungry days always had a representation in Congress, courts, ships, state legislatures, municipal councils, etc. But politics is a long game—and the unprecedented always occurs. One guess as to what will happen to the two-party system the next four years is as good as any other.

Father Coughlin of the United Social Justice promised better representation if his candidate, William Lemke, did not poll 9,000 votes. He would go off the air. Father Coughlin is now off the air. Mr. Coughlin polled only about 500 votes.

Extension Granted By Security Board

Midnight Tuesday, Dec. 15, Is New Deadline For Filing Application Forms

The Social Security Board revealed yesterday that a U. S. Treasury decision is under preparation which will grant an extension of time from last Friday night to midnight Tuesday, Dec. 15, for filing of employees' application forms for accounts under the Federal Old-Age benefits program.

Expressing appreciation of the cooperation evidenced throughout the counting of the part of employers and employees in the task of setting up Social Security account numbers for some 26,000 workers, the board indicated that the extension of the deadline for filing had been decided upon. While the board a last-minute rush had been filed which thousands of employees had filed their applications on Monday, it was apparent that many would find themselves unable to do so before this week.

The board's statement also emphasized the following facts:

1. All employees in the fields of commerce and industry are expected to file applications for Social Security accounts as the first step in the maintenance of a wage record account for each of them under the system of Federal Old-Age benefits.

2. Employees can procure application forms, known as "Form SS-5," from their employers or from any postoffice.
3. Employees are expected to fill out these application forms in full, and to return them as promptly as possible to their local post offices.

4. Employees are urged to fill out every space on the form, writing the word "unknown" in any space for which the information requested is not available.
5. Employees may return their filled out applications to the postoffice through their employer, through an official of any labor union of which they are members by handing the application to a postman, or by mailing it in a sealed envelope without postage, addressed to "Postmaster, Local."

Duponts Campaign Against Roosevelt Cost Them $144,000.00

CONTRIBUTORS ON BOTH SIDES ARE GIVEN OUT

Committee Gather Data On Huge Cost Of Last Election

The Associated Press Washington—Campaign contributors on both sides of the election, totaling $144,430 by three members of the Dupont family, opponents of the Roosevelt administration, were announced today by the special Senate committee investigating political expenses.

Her husband's contributions, understood to be at least as large, have not yet been compiled.

J. P. Morgan donated $50,000 to 10 Republican organizations, investigators announced, while two members of the Melon family, long prominent in Republican councils, spent $40,000.

The committee said it would ask every person who contributed $500 or more to any political organization "to submit detailed information." The information will be used "in making legislative recommendations to the president and to the Senate."

Investigators indicated they probably would recommend far-reaching revisions of present laws to strengthen federal regulation of political spending. Their study has been spurred by the unprecedented expenditures—totaling more than $13,000,000—in the last campaign.

List of Contributions

The list of contributions made public today included:

J. Howard Pew, Ardmore, Pa., industrialist, $61,300 to Republican committee, the American Liberty League and other organizations.

Ernest T. Weir, Pittsburgh steel maker, $47,300 to Republican committees operating nationally, and to state committees in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia and Illinois.

Mrs. Anne Archbold, Washington, $6,200 to the National Republican committee and state organizations in Maine and New York.

Irene DuPont, Wilmington, Del., chemical manufacturer, $116,230, not itemized.

Henry B. DuPont, Wilmington, $25,000 including $10,000 to the smaller sums to Republican committees.

Pierre S. DuPont, III, Wilmington, $32,000 to Republican national and state committees.

Andrew W. Mellon, Pittsburgh industrialist, $20,000, including $5,000 to the Independent Coalition of American Women and $5,000 each to three Republican committees.

Richard K. Mellon, Pittsburgh, $20,000, including $5,000 to the Pennsylvania Protective Union of Philadelphia and $5,000 each to three Republican committees.

Charles E. F. McCann, Oyster Bay, L. I., $10,000 to the Democratic National Committee.

George F. Baker, New York financier, $55,000, including $5,000 to the Crusaders and $5,000 to 10 Republican committees.

Albert Bradley of Greenwich, Conn., $16,150 to the Republican National Committee and to Republican state units in Maine and New York.

Donaldson Brown of New York, $31,000 to 12 organizations, including $5,000 each to the Republican committees of Maine and Michigan, $2,500 to the Ohio State Republican committee and $1,000 to the Jeffersonian Democrats of Virginia.

A. Atwater Kent of Philadelphia, $15,000, including $5,000 to the Crusaders and $5,000 each to the Republican committees of Delaware and Allegheny Counties, Pennsylvania.

F. H. H. Simmons of New York, $1,000 to the Maine Republican state central committee.

The investigating committee, headed by Senator Loneragan (D., Conn.), said questionnaires have been sent to Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. F. McCann, of New York; Joseph E. Davis, of Washington, and Mrs. James R. H. Cromwell, of New York, all of whom were described as "large Democratic contributors."

Other Democratic contributors who will receive questionnaires include: James W. Gerard, Curtis Bok, Emil Schwarzhaupt, James Roosevelt, Nathan Straus, Henry Morgenthau, William C. Bullitt, Arthur Mullan, Edward A. Filene, Grover A. Whalen, O. Max Gardner, Walter A. Jones, Harold F. McCormick, Harry Woodring, Nicholas M. Schneek, John Cudahy, Jacob Rupert and Cornelius V. ## Ford Sales Break Record In December

December dealer orders for 1937 Ford V-8 trucks and commercial cars for domestic use are the largest in the history of the Ford Motor Company, totaling 35,043 units, it was announced at the home office of the company, according to Clanton Motors, local Ford dealers.

The record breaking December total is credited to public acceptance of the new 60 horsepower engine and other new features of the 1937 trucks and commercial cars as well as to the general improvement in business and agricultural conditions.

An improved 85 horsepower V-8 engine is offered in addition to the 60 horsepower V-8 engine. Engines incorporate many advanced engineering principles.

A feature of the commercial car line is the new 112-inch stake. Both trucks and commercial cars have been improved in appearance by means of new styling and changes in the design of hood louvers, radiator shell and radiator grille.

"Natchel" Program Makes Bow on Radio

New Broadcast Wins Many Listeners
As Calendar Characters "Come To Life"

Much interest is being shown in the radio feature recently inaugurated by the Natural Chilean Nitrate people, now a regular program on twelve leading southern stations.

The leading characters are Uncle Natchel and Sonny. The former is a sage dandy whose name derives from his intense love for "natchel things." The latter is his small white charge, the son of Natchel's employer, whose adventures and schemes are those that are natural in the life of a typical farm boy.

Uncle Natchel is played by Frank Wilson, who portrayed "Moses" in both the stage and film version of Green Pastures. Sonny is James Franklin Allen, a Tennessee boy of nine, who already has shown marked talent in radio and motion picture roles.

Uncle Natchel and Sonny are supported by a well-balanced cast of radio players, and the many musical numbers arranged by the author, Mrs. Florence Richardson, an authority on Southern folk lore and old negro songs, are especially appealing. The two leading characters, Uncle Natchel and Sonny, have been featured pictorially for three years on the Natural Chilean Nitrate calendars.

When a man telephoned Henry Goorley of the Utica, N. Y., humane society and asked for help because he was attacked by a wildcat, Goorley rushed to the man's house and found that the "wildcat" was the caller's wife.

Well Known Irish Evangelist Opens Series Of Services At Local Church

The Rev. William S. McBirnie, well known Irish Evangelist, professor of Bible Prophecy, a Presbyterian minister of Belfast, Ireland began a series of sermon-lectures in Clanton Wednesday night.

Through Miss Ashmun, field representative and secretary for Dr. McBirnie, arrangements have been made for the use of the Clanton Gospel Tabernacle.

Dr. McBirnie, educated in Europe, Canada and this country, including Princeton and DePaul, a graduate of Lane and McCormick Seminars, is speaking nightly, Sunday afternoon and evening on the general theme, "What Does The Bible Say About The Great World Change That Is Taking Place?"

A former medical and law student, battle-scarred veteran of the World War, world traveler and chautauqua platform lecturer, gives a background for his message, interspersed with his sparkling Irish wit, which holds his audience from start to finish.

The City Auditoriums of Birmingham, Chattanooga and Atlanta, had their seating capacities taxed on many occasions to accommodate the crowds.

Dr. McBirnie's coming here has gin belonging to E.E. Edwards was a total wreck although his home was not touched by the wind. A negro house and a barn at the place of Mr. Edwards were completely swept away.

The homes of Bob Owen, Hannan Owen and George Owen were badly damaged. Bob Owen suffered a severe loss as the twister damaged his home, barn and store almost beyond repair.

The home of Oliver Smith was a mass of wreckage and as the twister swept on it damaged the homes of Mrs. Emma Ratliff, Crawford Owens, W.F. Dobbs and other property.

The large barn belonging to Walter Powell located at Kinchmon, was a complete wreck and some livestock was killed there. The home of Reddie Dobbs was swept from the ground and the barn belonging to John Mims was badly damaged. The home of Harvey Dobbs was also badly damaged.

Residents of Clanton were considerably disturbed last Sunday afternoon by the stuffy, warmth of the atmosphere and many heard the twister as it rose just south of the city and passed overhead.

Other sections of Alabama and Mississippi suffered heavy loss from the same tornado, or others, Sunday night also.

The Red Cross is now doing some work in the stricken areas.

been made possible through the cancellation of an engagement because of a previous attack of influenza.

The series will continue through December twenty-first.

Sunday afternoon Dr. McBirnie will take for his subject "Mussolini Takes England And Egypt. When? How? Why?" Sunday night he will discuss "Startling Facts From Palestine." Actual slide photographic pictures of the fulfillment of prophecy with regard to the return of the Jew will be shown in connection with this message, said Miss Marian Ashmun.

The public is invited to all services.

tion with an office for Trustees Life Assurance Society. Lots have been purchased from Mr. John T. Ellis, located between Ellis Filling Station and the water works. Dr. Stephens will construct a beautiful, modern building, made of brick or stone, and work will begin on it within a few days. The new funeral home, as well as the branch office of the Society, will be in the charge of Mr. Harbison, after the building is constructed and their business is removed there.

Dr. Stephens is already operating a funeral home at Winfield, in Marion County.

The bringing of these businesses to Clanton most likely will mean much to our city in the future; and Dr. Stephens believes in Clanton, else he would not come here to invest his money and to build a branch office. The Chilton County News welcomes him to Clanton, and we bespeak for him much success for his undertakings in our midst.

tion financed by Alabama capital. Born and reared on a farm in South Alabama, Mr. Elmore remained on the farm until he was 21 and then became a clerk in a general merchandise store in Elba, Ala.

After two years as a clerk Mr. Elmore went into business for himself, but sold it in 1915 to establish a store in Clanton. The World War took him as a soldier in 1916, and he remained in service until 1918, when he again engaged in a retail business in Clanton.

In 1925 he changed his business to the 5-cent, 10-cent and $1 system of merchandising in Clanton, and thus began the system that today has 24 modern units strategically located throughout the state and with more being added as rapidly as desirable locations can be obtained.

Mr. Elmore expanded his business under the trade style of the V. J. Elmore 5-cent, 10-cent and $1 stores until 1935 when it was decided to incorporate the business. Mr. and Mrs. Elmore and Francis B. Latady were the incorporators.

It has been the policy of the company on the newer installations to use only the most modern of fixtures and equipment in opening new stores while the older stores have been remodeled and refurbished to give them the utmost in efficiency of operation and comfort and convenience of their customers.

XMAS SHOPPING

etc., it really is a problem to the shopper to determine just which of the thousands of beautiful and useful items of wearing apparel—the stores here are making a special effort to see that no shopper will be in want of anything in that line, so it seems.

By looking through your Chilton County News this week (both sections) you will be convinced that you may sit right by your fire and do a great deal of your Xmas shopping merely by reading the advertisements. In these ads you will find special prices for your benefit only until Christmas.

Politicians Accused Of "Hoodwinking" Taxpayers With Publicity Stunt

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 9. (Special)

—The politicians of the state have been taking money out of the taxpayers' pockets to "hoodwink" the citizens about a sales tax, B. C. Apperson, executive secretary of the Alabama Anti-Sales Tax Association of Alabama, said in a statement issued here this week in which he charged that a "news bureau" which furnishes alleged news to Alabama newspapers, free of charge, was a propaganda outfit operated by a man on the state payroll and while the man is listed as an employee of the tax collectors office, his job for the last six months has been to slip propaganda for a sales tax into the newspapers of the state.

"That shows what our association has been fighting for months and months," Apperson said. "The politicians take our own money and use it to fight us. Our association furnished regular news releases to the Alabama press, but this organization has never sent us a story to the press under disguise in an effort to try to slip something over the editor. Our news releases are plainly marked as coming from our office and we have never resorted to try to mislead anybody by sending a story out under a supposed 'news bureau'."

"A 'story' sent out by the capital publicity man, paid by the state, last week made an effort to ridicule honest, hard-working, taxpaying people—the men and women who furnish the food for the tax eaters who cluster by the state payrolls. A few of the newspapers printed the story in which the march by thousands to the capital to protest against the adoption of a sales tax was termed a 'fizzle.' Does the administration think they can Hiderize this state by such tactics? The march, as every person in the state knows who read the newspapers, was not a 'fizzle' as the governor and his tax-eaters would have you to believe."

"When the time comes in Alabama that propagandists, paid by the politicians with the taxpayers money can ridicule the efforts of the citizens to keep an unjust tax off the backs of the poor, it is high time that the citizens awake to the dangers of a free democracy."

The propaganda story continued to ridicule the hardworking men and women who left their jobs, spent their own money to go to the capital and protest this unjust tax by saying the marchers numbered "several hundred" and that they were "paid employees." The fact is everyone at the capital knows the marchers were not numbered in hundreds, but by thousands and was probably the largest legislative protest ever staged south of the Mason-Dixon Line.

"The story of the governor's publicity man made an effort to poke fun at the common citizens who stormed the ways and means committee was in session. The fact of the matter is that the 5,000 persons who crowded the capital building and stayed there for hours to cheer their leaders in the protest notwithstanding the fact that they had to stand packed and jammed together in the halls, stairways and corridors where they could not even hear the proceedings and the noise of the overflow crowd in the room where the hearing took place, became so noisy that W. A. Welber, president of the Montgomery Retail Merchants association had to request that everyone leave the room except those who were to appear personally before the committee.

"Only one or two editors in the state accepted this propaganda and published it and we are not endeavoring to make an answer to such a political trick, but go to the trouble of explaining it so that the people of the state and the editors of our newspapers will know to what length this extravagant expenditure is going in an effort to get more millions to distribute to their henchmen. Such tactics smell to the high heavens and will not be tolerated in Alabama by the citizens who pay the bill."

"Let me urge every citizen to fight this political octopus with all their might. Demand that your representatives in the legislature come out in the open and condemn such practice and ask them to stamp it out forever by defeating the sales tax," Apperson added.

MRS. AUDELL MILLER MAKES STATEMENT

To The People of Chilton County: I have just finished 14 years of service in the office of the Probate Judge of Chilton County. I have enjoyed my work and I have met most of the people of the county during my stay in the office, and I believe all of them are my friends. At all times I have endeavored to be as courteous as my position would allow, and I believe the people whom I have served know this.

I understand that information has been given out that I am out of the office on vacation, but this is not the case. When I was released from service a few days ago, I was informed that it was not because of any inefficiency in my work, but that the Democratic administration of the county was being criticized for keeping me in the county payroll, inasmuch as I am a Republican.

I am a Republican, and have always been one, but during my work in the Probate Office I have always tried to render as efficient service to Democrats as to Republicans. Everyone has known I like to me in my line of duty. I am glad of all the friends I have made, and regret any enemies I have made, if there are any. Again thanking my friends for their courteous treatment toward me, I remain, Yours Very truly, MRS. AUDELL MILLER

PHONY PEACH DISEASE WORK IN CHILTON COUNTY

According to Mr. Oscar Jones, agent for the Bureau of Plant and Plant Quarantine of the United States Department of Agriculture, there are inspectors for phony peach disease in Chilton County for two months. Practically every acre of the county was visited, and a total of 700 phony trees in 11 towns were located. A total of 428 less diseased peach trees have been moved on 685 farms.

The cost for this work, according to Mr. Jones, was 5,600, or a little over one cent per tree.

There are several hundred more worthless and diseased trees in the county, according to Mr. Jones. Mr. Jones is the agent for the department for three counties—Autauga and Elmore, and is strictly under the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington.

Maplesville Man Tells Of Seeing Home Spinning Through Air Sunday

Clanton, Ala., Dec. 6.—A graphic story of how his house was lifted up, spun around twice in the grip of Sunday night's storm and then shattered, was told by Oscar Sewell, of Maplesville, Route 2, whose wife, child and mother were injured.

"I heard the storm coming while we were sitting in the house," Mr. Sewell said, "and I grabbed my two young children."

"Just as I did," he continued, "the house was lifted up, spun around twice and then seemed to explode. All of us were thrown to the floor, while pieces of the house were scattered to points as far away as one-fourth of a mile."

Montgomery Fair Windows Show What Resettlement Has Done For Farmer

The exhibit which was sent to Washington by Rexford Tugwell, showing the "Before" and "After" story of what the Resettlement Administration has done for the farmer in Alabama, is being prominently displayed in two large windows at the Montgomery Fair store in Montgomery, according to an announcement in this issue of the News.

This exhibit is truly worth a trip to Montgomery to see. Even the Montgomery Fair usually fills its large display windows with Christmas merchandise at this time of year, they thought enough of this splendid exhibit to give it space.

Buildings Picked Up

"I ran into my house and told my family to run outside immediately. When we got outside, we saw the twister miss the house, but about 100 yards away it picked up a small blacksmith shop and two smaller buildings and took them along with it."

The twister struck in a section southwest of Clanton, doing its damage to Poole's Cross Roads and Antioch about 15 miles away from Clanton.

The home of Mrs. H. J. Dobbs, Clanton, Route 3, was demolished, causing injuries to her and a visitor, Mrs. Olive Entinger, of Billingsley, Route 2. Neither was seriously injured, although both were admitted to Clanton General Hospital. Six other persons in the house at the time were not hurt.

In the afternoon, hours before the storm struck, Clanton residents were remarking about the hot sultry weather and comparing it to the weather just before the disastrous tornado of 1932 struck this section, killing many and causing huge property damage.

Curb On Political Spending Planned

Roosevelt Launches Move As Survey Shows Last Campaign Cost $13,000,000

Washington, Dec. 5.—Senate investigators announced today they were giving "careful study" to a proposed legislation drafted by Prof. James K. Pollock of the University of Michigan to control irresponsible and indiscriminate political spending.

His plan was submitted to the Senate committee investigating campaign expenditures, which will recommend legislation to the next Congress for plugging gaps in the Federal corrupt practices act.

At the request of President Roosevelt, the committee has undertaken a detailed analysis of expenditures in the last campaign, estimated at more than $13,000,000.

Robert Jefferys, committee secretary said investigators were "deeply interested" in Pollock's suggestions, based on years of study of American and British election laws.

His scheme would forbid the national committee of any party to spend more than three cents for each vote cast in the preceding presidential election, and would lay similar restrictions on Congressional and senatorial committees.

On this basis, less than $150,000 could have been spent by each national committee during the last campaign, in comparison with the $7,400,000 actually paid out by the Republican National Committee, and the $3,400,000 by the Democratic National Committee.

Candidates for the House would be limited to four cents for every vote cast, and in no case would be permitted to spend more than $5,000.

Senatorial candidates would be allowed 2 cents per vote, without any lump limitation.

Grammar School P-T-A. To Meet

All members of the Clanton P-T-A. are requested to meet at the school Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

A most interesting program has been arranged by Mrs. Joe Mullins, chairman of the Program Committee.

This meeting is especially important because plans for the new school lunch room will be made.

If you are interested in your school and your child, make a special effort to attend this meeting.

His First Christmas

by Earle Hooker Eaton

RING up the Pole and telephone
Without a moment's pause,
Or by the wireless make it known
To dear old Santa Claus,
That Papa's Boy and Mama's Joy,
And Sister's Precious Mite,
While glad bells clang will gaily ring
His stocking up tonight!

"Ting-ling! Ting-ling! Hello, hello!
Is that you Santa, dear?
Be sure your reindeer hear your 'Whoa'!
When you are passing here.
What's that? You'll come and bring a drum,
A jumping-jack and ball,
And other toys for little boys?
Dear Saint, you're best of all!"

'Tis Christmas morn, and to his shop Old Santa's homeward flies;
'Tis five o'clock, but open pop
The baby's rags and eyes.
We're dead for sleep, but out we creep,
And dress at once to get What Santa kind, has left behind
For Tuddlekins, our pet.

From Pole to Pole there's surely not
A babe more pleased than he,
And how he crows, the happy tot,
And gurgles in his glee.
The jumping-jack, the ducks that quack,
The drum, the horns, the ball,
The chicks that peep, the horse, the sheep
He tries to eat them all!

On this his first glad Christmas morn,
The toys with blocks he pelts,
He makes old Noah wish the Ark
Had landed somewhere else!
A soldier blue he breaks in two,
A puncture gives the drum,
He fills the air with legs and hair,
And then—he sucks his thumb!

The Sand-Man's surely come to town,
And soft is muzzer's lap;
Clear up the wreck and snuggle down,
'Tis time to take a nap.
Then rock-a-bye, close each blue eye,
Rest, my darling, rest!
(He's fast asleep, with baby sheep Hugged tight against his breast!)

More than 1,500 purebred rams were sold at this year's annual ram sale at Salt Lake City. The top price of $1,000 was paid by James Lairlow of Muldon, Ida., for a 2-year-old Suffolk ram which won first prize at the Royal Canadian show last year. A yearling Hampshire brought $750.
In Czechoslovakia the usual traffic warnings are placed near dangerous and intersections, but an additional bit of useful information is also given. On all permanent traffic signs are directions for finding the nearest doctor.

Yesterday--Today Tomorrow

By J. Harrison Miller

The chief of a firing squad is ready to command his men to shoot. Says he to me "Which of these men should be shot first?" Says I to him: "What did they do?" Says he to me: "That first fellow whips his wife. The second one fishes without a license. The third one thinks no new idea will work." Says I to him: "Shoot that last fellow first."
No man has a moral or legal right to whip his wife. The law should permit her to put something besides sugar and cream in his coffee. As to fishing without a license, well, that's a violation of law. Also, it isn't a bit nice to take undue advantage of a fish.
As to the fellow who thinks that no new idea will work—and there are a good many of him—almost any form of painless extermination would shove the world a good many paces ahead in its progress. We have, very happily, reached the point where, in the field of science and invention, the most ignorant or prejudiced person no longer dares to scoff at the new ideas or processes tossed daily into our laps from those directions. Just about the time an unbeliever starts out to convince the world that this or that or so and so won't work, the scientist sets a new fangled contrivance down before his eyes and says: "There it is, mister,—and it works. We've proved it."

Thus it is that those who would set the brakes on national advancement are now directing their poorly aimed ammunition at governmental planning and social welfare. They say crop insurance and old age pensions are no good. They say the government could not operate a railroad for the common good. They say a state shouldn't print its own school books or manufacture the cement that goes into its highways.
They say a city shouldn't manufacture its own ice or electricity—and have them at cost. We are sorry we forgot to ask the commander of the firing squad for his telephone number. We might want to call him up.

PIANO RECITAL AT UNION BAP-TIST CHURCH (COLORED) SUN
Prof. Marc D'Albert of New York,
N.Y., and graduate of Chicago Piano College will be presented in a piano recital at the Union Baptist Church, Colored, West End, Sunday afternoon, December 13, 1936, at 3 P.M. Special seats are provided for our white friends.
A correction. Some of our people have been told that Prof. D'Albert is a graduate of Boston Conservatory, but stead, it is the Chicago Piano College.
You will miss a musical treat of your life if you fail to hear him. The admission price will only be ten cents.

STANTON BOYS 4-H CLUB

Assistant County Agent B. N. Ivey met with Stanton 4-H Club at Stanton Jr. High School Thursday, December 3, 1936. There were 25 boys present. The only business to come before the club was electing a song and their leader. The club elected Eugene Rush to fill this place.
Our program was on "Save the Sap-" ling and the Soil." This was a most worthwhile program especially to club boys as we feel it our duty to protect the land that will be ours in the future.

the body of a sister he had not seen for 45 years by the "family nose" peculiarly twisted like his own.

SPORTS AT A GLANCE

By MY BLOOD

(formerly of the editorial staff of the Ohio State Journal)

The Rose Bowl Express rolled right on through the cities of Baton Rouge and Tuscaloosa, as if they were only whistle stops. It went on up through the south to finally stop in the Smoky City, Pittsburgh, and give the lowly Panther of Pitt the ticket to Pasadena New Years Day.

The highly-touted Bayou Tigers were without a doubt the logical pick to represent the Eastern section in the annual event, but each time that the Tigers name was brought up in the conflag on in Seattle, Ray Eckmann, the Brain Trust of the University of Washington, was looking out the window.

The Huskies mentor stated as the reason for the choice of the Pitt aggregation was the fact they trounced the Irish, who beat the Wildcat of Northwestern, who conquered the mighty Gophers of Minnesota. We could go this way forever and end up with the same thing, but what is the use.

Personally, I think the committee was trying to act like Napoleon and Josephine, instead of trying to pick a football team. They might as well have considered the Night Riders of Duquesne University as anyone, for didn't the Dukes hand the Panthers a licking? They could have even considered the West Virginia Wesalyn, for the Mountaineers beat the Dukes 2 to 0, and if you wanted to complicate matters you could have considered the Hilltoppers of Marquette who have made Milwaukee more famous than that famous beer.

I think that the reason for their choice was that they were afraid of the Tiger. Why, the citizens of Louisiana would have guaranteed the Huskies a full house representation from La. for the game. They would even have brought Mike, their real Bengal Tiger mascot, along who cost $750.00 and consumes $4.50 worth of groceries a day, and that is something, for one S.U. Alumnus said, "My pet, we can get good tackles for less than that." So much for Mike.

Instead of the Rose Bowl Committee really being serious about their choice I think that while they were in the room their minds were on the outcome of the King Edward-Wally Simpson affair too much to really be in a football frame of mind. To make it right I should think that instead of being called a football committee they should be re-organized into a club called "Whorehead" ears whether Wally Marries the King or Dizzy Dean is Traded to the Reds." They tell me that in Pittsburgh they are already singing that well known Polish Anthem, "Californiasky Here We Comeky."

Standard Price Law Is Upheld

By Court In 'Good-Will'
Decision

Clanton, Dec. 7.—The Supreme Court delivered a blow today at a kind of price slashing. The State legislation which prohibits price cutting from selling standard prices less than the figures of manufacturers of the articles. Numerous decisions delivered by the Supreme Court held that the Federal District Court for the District of Columbia and Illinois were constitutional. Nine other States, Iowa, Ohio, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Washington and Wisconsin—have similar statutes.

Sutherland said the "sole purpose" of the law was "to afford a legitimate remedy for an injury to the good will which results from the use of trade marks, brands, or names."

Fifteen other decisions were announced by the high court today, all except one being by unanimous vote. Though five new deal controversies are pending, only one of these was decided today.

Test Holding Company Act
In that dispute, the justices directed the Federal District Court for the District of Columbia to determine again

whether it should hold up trial of litigation challenging the constitutionality of the public utility holding company act until a test case brought by the Department of Justice against the Electric Bond and Share Company is further advanced.

Heading a plea by the government, the district court had decided to hold up proceedings in question, but was reversed by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

Justice Cardozo, delivering the opinion, said the district court here had acted a year ago and should re-examine conditions as they are at present. The government, in asking for the delay, sought to avoid what is called a flood of "complicated and expensive suits."

In another ruling the court upheld a new method of determining telephone rates. It stipulated that properties purchased by telephone companies shall be entered on the companies' books at "original cost" instead of "prudent investment" figures. Telephone rates would then be based on the "original cost" figures.

An order by the Federal Communications Commission, providing for the "original cost" figures, had been attacked by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and other concerns.

The only opinion not unanimous upheld an act of Congress permitting government employees and pensioners to serve as jurors in the District of Columbia in minor cases in which the United States was a litigant. Justices McReynolds, Sutherland and Butler dissented.

Justice Stone, ill with dysentery since Oct. 13, did not participate in any of the cases.

Before starting on another two weeks of arguments, the court refused to review for the time being two attacks on the constitutionality of the 1936 act broadening Federal regulation of commodity exchanges.

Good Will Issue
In the "fair trade" decisions, Justice Sutherland said there was nothing in the litigation "to preclude the purchaser from removing the mark of brand from the commodity—thus separating the physical property, which he owns, from the good will, which is the property of another—and then selling the commodity at his own price, provided he can do so without utilizing the good will of the latter as an aid to the end."

The California act was challenged by a corporation known as "the pop boys, Manny, Moe and Jack of California," and by Clarence Kunsman, operator of a Beverly Hills drug store. The Illinois law was assailed by the Old Dearborn Distributing Company and McNeil's Liquor Store of Chicago.

AUBURN SUPPORTERS WILL FOLLOW TEAM TO HAVANA

With the Cuban government's selection of Auburn to represent the South in the New Year's Day football classic in Havana, comes word that hundreds of former Auburn students from all sections of the South will follow their team for the game.

An all-expense personally-conducted tour has been arranged by Roy Brown, Tours of Montgomery, offering the winter vacationist everything that goes with a visit to Havana, combined with Cuba's International Sports Week. The gay carnival season will be in full swing at this season of the year and the Alabamians will find the trip enjoyable and inexpensive.

Auburn was selected because of its outstanding record in football games in every section of the United States and also because of the large number of Alabamians who have visited Cuba this past year. The Alabama Press Association with 447 passengers was the first of several large tour parties to Havana. . . . "The Paris of the Western Hemisphere."

The tour leaves Birmingham and Montgomery, Monday, December 28th returning on Tuesday, January 5th.

Former Newspapermen Publishing New Magazine Called "Alabama"

WILLIAM B. HUIE

HUBERT BAUGHN

First issue of "Alabama, the News Magazine of the Deep South," went on sale Friday in 132 Alabama cities and towns, it was announced today.

The new weekly journal is to be edited and published by Hubert Baughn and William Huie, both former members of The Birmingham Post editorial staff. It is to feature state news of general interest, with a "militantly independent" editorial policy.

Printed on machine-finished paper with a striking two-color cover, the magazine will also carry pictures gathered from all sections of the state, as well as articles written by a distinguished group of contributing editors.

Mr. Baughn, 41, is known throughout the state for his hard-hitting interpretations of political news. Before his association with The Post, he was connected with The Atlanta Journal, The Birmingham Age-Herald, and for five years was Washington correspondent for the Frederick I. Thompson papers in Alabama.

Mr. Huie, 26, is a graduate of the University of Alabama, where he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, and for the past three years has covered general assignments over the state for The Post.

Editorial offices of the new publication are at 941 Martin Building, Birmingham. The Birmingham Publishing Co. is to do the printing.

ABUSES OF THE LAW

At a recent annual meeting of the American Bar Association it was openly admitted by prominent members that public confidence in the courts and their administration of the law is being steadily weakened.

A report was adopted denouncing "the growing prevalence of the use of expert witnesses with their conflicting testimony." This referred particularly to the use of alienists in criminal cases, where experts may always be secured to testify that the accused is insane, provided he has the money to employ them.

vention very frequently criticize the prevailing method of criminal procedure, but so far they have done very little to correct it.

As a matter of fact, lawyers in con-very frequently criticize the prevailing method of criminal procedure, but so far they have done very little to correct it.

Legislators are also to blame for the present state of affairs, but as most legislators are lawyers the responsibility still rests almost wholly upon the legal profession.

By the passage of innumerable laws regulating everything under the sun, and imposing upon peace officers the task of enforcing trivial and often foolish statutes, the perpetrator of major crimes such as murder and robbery have all the better chance to escape punishment. If more attention were given to the prevention and punishment of these serious offences, it might be possible to reduce their number.

BIRTHDAY SUPPER

A number of friends and relatives of I. W. Bice gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Easterling on December 4, honoring the seventeenth birthday of Mr. Bice. The gathering was a surprise but they enjoyed it very much.

There was a large table arranged in the center of the room filled with good things to eat. Supper was served in picnic style. There was one turkey that escaped Thanksgiving but he failed to get by this crowd. Everyone got a thrill watching Mr. Bice cut his birthday cake, that was baked by Mrs. Flora Mims.

Those present were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Easterling and daughter, Myrtis; Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Courtney; Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Baker and son, Howard; Mr. and Mrs. K. A.

Hardy and son, Wayne; Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Mims, Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Bice; Mr. and Mrs. Allie Easterling; Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Gray; Mrs. S. R. Collins and son, Lamar; Mr. F. A. Bice and son, Jones.

WITH YOUR HOME Demonstration Agent CONDUCTED BY MISS META GRACE

How fast the time is passing toward Christmas. Only two more weeks for the preparations.

May I call your attention to the stores. Yes, the Clanton stores. The department stores, the ten cent stores and the nice variety of gifts. One shouldn't need to shop elsewhere with this selection of lovely things surrounding you. Just pick your gifts early and get unique gifts thereby avoiding the rush.

I call your attention to the Alabama Power Company windows. Notice the newly enclosed electric water heaters for practically the same price as old heaters. The heating pads, ovenettes, toasters, cookers for all occasions including stoves and refrigerators.

The ten-cent stores have the best variety in as small a town as you will find and toys with action for few cents.

The clubs are having programs and gifts along with their demonstrations and, oh! What fun getting the spirit early.

The nearest gifts of all kinds may be found at Mullins and I hope you didn't miss the beautiful afghan in tones of brown that was both crocheted and knit. The lingerie and robes and jackets should win the hearts of all. Rockett's, Mazer's, and Lande's will make your heart skip a beat with their selection of specialties, showing apparel, accessories, novelties, etc. and last but not least the drug stores and the beautiful novices of China and silver and unexcelled handicrafts. Then with the grocery men well stocked with the goodies in store and a huge variety of fruits, vegetables and nuts.

Then comes let's eat! be merry, tomorrow may not come. Give kindness, thoughts of love both joy and gladness come from above. Then can be brighter in a helping way give sunshine and happiness on Christmas day.

"Say it with flowers" is an old way, but one of the sweetest ways to tell stories of love. In fact the have always carried messages of love. They brighten the nooks and corners of the table and persons and even entire house and its members are living with pride and beauty and pleasing fragrance fills the entire house.

If you want to make flowers gift then why not give a "Calla" or some other potted plant that last for weeks. Just try running to Lloyd Howard's Nursery and get your order. He certainly has a collection of both potted plants, shrubbery and at reasonable prices. While riding Sundays drop in and feast your eyes with gorgeous and see for yourself.

Of The Times
— Billy Smith

"Most any poor old fish can drift along and dream that it takes a regular live one to beat the stream."

—Selected.

Other pressing business in our office, attending any part of the present extra-ordinary session of the Legislature so far. We've wanted to go down to the capitol to see the boys in action again this time. There were two important matters were pending. Not that we have been of any assistance to them, it does seem good at times, but our lawmakers making laws.

Coming up with what was going on in the capitol through the news. We noted that our own Representative, C. B. Cox, voted for the liquor bill and that he voted to the liquor bill as it stood. Now, we know Mr. Cox for a long time. We have every confidence in his opinions and his judgment. We didn't question his action on these two matters.

However, we did have a chat with the other day and asked why he took as he did. While it took some space to explain it, we understand and can readily see that he was wise. He saw the plight of our schools. He also sees that Alabama, the reputedly a dry state, is perhaps one of the few states in the union where liquor wines and flows freely. Mr. Cox knows it is a fact that no person will find it difficult to purchase any amount of liquor, of most any kind and reasonable price right in Alabama. Now these things as practically every person who has been in the state knows.

Cox realizes, too, that despite the effort to stop the sale of intoxicating drinks in Alabama, they have not been less than open bars, liquor saloons. And, Mr. Cox realizes that the State of Alabama should be getting some revenue from the sale of beverage, since it is going to be in the open.

found also, in talking with him, that he is still "bone-dry" himself and now has a resolution pending in the Conference Committee of the Legislature to allow each county to hold its own election in regard to the sale of liquor. This resolution has been adopted. We learned the lips of Mr. Cox, in no uncertain terms, that he would head this home county in voting a decision.

Admire Mr. Cox's wisdom in his own mind, he did on the liquor issue. We do not say, however, we are in favor of legalizing liquor. But we say that since liquor, wines and beer are being sold openly and abundantly, it will continue to be sold. That the State of Alabama is receiving some revenue from its sales to go toward the aid of the badly torn educational system, to prevent the sending of young men to the penitentiary for a "year" for violation of the Prohibition law. It's akin to sending them to crime college, depending on the man.

We say to our Representative, Mr. Cox, we see your point of view. We believe you are right. We had the same opinion to some extent and we believe the people of Chilton County will back you up. If it is possible to stamp out, completely, the sale of intoxicating liquors in Alabama, we would say quickly. But, as everyone realizes, the sale of liquor, wine and beer in Alabama, tops all previous records. Now one can buy it either by the drink, a pint, a gallon or by the case. The Rev. Truett is rapidly making friends here through his sermons and congeniality. He has two children at college. Buford, who is attending Birmingham-Southern and Mandy, who is a student at Huntingdon College, Montgomery.

The new pastor and his family found a warm welcome awaiting them when they arrived. He succeeds the Rev. A. E. Middlebrooks, and comes here from Jackson, Alabama. He is a graduate of Vanderbilt University.

Sales Tax Bill Gets New Action

EARLY ACTION IS PROMISED ON TAX BILL

Liquor Bill Is Getting Favorable Attention From Senators

Apparently Alabama will have a sales tax in the very near future, judging from recent actions of the Legislature which is now in an extra-ordinary session. And indications are that state controlled liquor store bill also pass and become law.

It is impossible for the News to give the latest report on actions on these bills, but as we go to press Wednesday, the following report was available, as of Tuesday night:

The senate education committee gave a favorable report Tuesday of the administration's gross receipts tax bill by a vote of 14 to 3 and placed the measure on the calendar for final action on the next legislative day—Wednesday or Thursday.

At the same time, the committee announced that a two per cent general sales tax bill had been drafted for introduction in the house in the event the gross receipt tax was not passed into law.

"I have been asked to introduce this," (Continued to Back Page)

Baster Sale of Seals Brings Reminder Of Aid Given to Crippled Children

On Friday, December 11th, the Alabama Society for Crippled Children held its annual Clinic in Montgomery. This service is available to Chilton County and as a result of the Clinic three crippled children from Chilton County will be hospitalized during this week.

A fourth will be accepted when hospital facilities are available, probably within the next few weeks and a fifth will be accepted probably in February or March. In addition to this a brace is to be provided for one child and one adult crippled is to be given vocational training.

To anyone who wonders where the money goes from the annual Easter seal sale, this is the answer. One child was given treatment during the summer. It was an emergency case that could not wait for the regular clinic routine.

Local funds for participation in this program of service to crippled children are raised by the sale of seals at Easter. Many counties supplement the Easter seal sale by raising private funds in various other ways. The funds thus raised are matched by state and federal funds and used for hospitalization and treatment of crippled children.

There are numbers of crippled children in Chilton County in need of services which their families are unable to provide. Let us not forget these services and the needs of these children when another seal sale is launched next Easter.

A Policy We Approve

The unprecedented demonstration accorded to President Roosevelt on his visit to South America should bring a glow of pleasure and satisfaction to every American citizen regardless of political faith.

For all the cheering, all the honors extended with due formality, all the fine speeches and extravagant expressions of homage and good will were not for a man alone but for the nation which he represents. The people of South America were thus expressing their good will toward citizens of the United States. This attitude is significant in a time when the nations of Europe are tottering on the brink of a general war, where new armaments are being assembled behind each border, where dangerous threats are being issued from official sources.

In adopting the policy of cementing good will between North and South America and all the nations of this continent, President Roosevelt has chosen a course which meets with general approval. We have all come to see that there is little we can accomplish by meddling in the muddled affairs of Europe. We have also begun to realize that the nations of North and South America should stand together, determined to maintain a spirit of good will and mutual understanding.

By promoting this policy we will be doing our part to bring to realization that dream of all humanitarians and idealists—a world at peace without the fear of future war.

We Can Enjoy It

It's only a few more weeks now, or days perhaps, when old man winter with his sub-zero assortment of temperatures will leave his polar lair and come riding down on a northerly gale to pay us a prolonged visit. It is then that some of us will don our heavies, hug the radiator a little closer, and bemoan the fact that we cannot afford the time or money to spend the next few weeks frolicking on some sunny beach far to the south.

As the weeks roll on we spend most of our hours in heated rooms, confining our exercise to stoking the furnace and shoveling the sidewalk. Our physical resistance drops. In February or March we acquire a disagreeable cold. We look hopefully and almost impatiently for the first robin, for the time when this terrible weather will release its grip.

But some of our friends say winter is not so bad—if you only get out in it and enjoy the exhilaration of exercise in cool, crisp air. All interest in winter sports, they tell us, can make this one of the gorgeous seasons of the year, and when we note the vibrant health and the rosy flush and happy smiles that characterize the young and old who like winter sports, we are inclined to agree.

It would seem rational that Clanton might well give due heed and thought to the need and value of winter sports. A good skating rink or several good rinks will provide wholesome and healthful recreation for the young folks, and even some of us who have lost a bit of our youth and grace might take a try at outdoor recreation.

Now that so much emphasis is being placed upon the value and need of wholesome recreation, let's give this matter of winter sports some serious consideration. Let's forget all about the sunny beaches of the south where bathing beauties are always posing for the camera man, and encourage winter sports and winter recreation here in Chilton County.

Buy at home is certainly good advice. So good that a man ought to be willing to take it as well as to give it.

There are plenty of back seat drivers too when it comes to directing us over the way of community progress.

Thoughts On The Holiday Season

The Holiday season is approaching rapidly. Soon, very soon it seems, our stores will become veritable beehives of activity. It is then that the job of the clerk or salesman in the average retail store is not one to be envied. Is it any wonder that sometimes patience gives way when irritated nerves are extended beyond the limit?

We urge the public, therefore, to do your Christmas shopping now, as early as possible. You cannot get the service and you cannot possibly have the range for selection if you wait until the last minute. Start your Christmas shopping right now, and start here in Clanton. We have had an opportunity to note the stocks in local stores, and we assert without fear of contradiction that you cannot do better anywhere else in this section of the state.

Community Christmas decoration is another subject to which we like to direct public attention. A few years ago the writer visited a small city at Christmas season where the majority of home owners gave some thought to decorations outside the house. Those with evergreen trees in their yards lighted them. Others placed lighted wreaths and other decorative pieces in their windows or at their doors.

The effect created was highly pleasing. It was much as though the entire community were saying: "Welcome visitor, Merry Christmas."

Maybe there was no real dollar value in these decorations. But we certainly left that community with a pleasant recollection, and such impressions are always worth much though their value cannot easily be measured.

On Getting Full Values On Your Dollars

Years ago the old time merchant bought his season's supply of merchandise at one time. He filled his shelves and store room to capacity and then waited for the people to come and get it. He didn't advertise because he figured "everybody knows me anyway." He didn't consider turn-over, he didn't offer bargain specials.

We are not endeavoring to belittle his methods. He was usually a good, careful business man. He contributed notably to the community he served. He enjoyed the confidence of the public.

But his methods today are outmoded. The business world has changed, and we believe in many ways the change is all in the public interest.

Today's live-wire merchant doesn't stock a whole season's supply at one time. He wants to keep his capital moving rapidly. He understands the importance of turn-over. He expects smaller profits but more of them.

As a result he advertises his new merchandise, so that the people may know what he has to offer. If he finds that he is overstocked in some items, he reduces the price, offers the buying public real values in his advertising and turns to something new.

He knows it doesn't pay to carry merchandise over from year to year. People don't want to buy out of date goods—the idle capital thus tied up represents a big expense and a real loss. He can't get volume that way and volume is more important than unit profits.

The small cost of his advertising is a trifling item compared to the big cost of idle capital. This probably explains why it is usually easier and more economical to buy from the merchant who advertises regularly, who keeps his stock moving, who sells you this year's merchandise this year and next year's merchandise next year.

This explains why the cost of advertising is not added to the price of the merchandise. For advertising is an agency of moving merchandise economically and efficiently. It is indispensable in modern merchandising.

Men like horses get the most accomplished when they stop kicking and pull together.

The trouble today, avers the old cynic, is that too many people are interested in vacations and not enough in vacations.

Radio orators apparently don't realize that while the constitution may guarantee free speech it doesn't guarantee listeners.

Co-operation is the strong right arm of community progress. The community possessing all other natural assets but lacking a spirit of cooperation has a limited and circumscribed future. The community lacking many natural advantages but characterized by a pronounced spirit of cooperation among its citizens has indeed a brilliant and happy future before it.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Hasler

A large black tom cat walked into the police station in Atlanta and without ceremony announced himself at home. The gentlemen of the uniform had the night before brought in a leaking vessel of whiskey and had left it in an exposed place. Man like, the tom cat found the strong smelling liquid and began to lap it up. Some time later the police observed that his master, the cat, was in a stupor and that he would growl and snarl when disturbed. The next morning he showed a worse temper and even went so far as to offer fight when his back was stroked. Mr. Tom Cat had been on a big drunk and man like he was showing all the symptoms. Verily, verily I say unto you that whiskey is a bad thing for men and cats. If either one is induced to imbibe, whiskey will make them to growl and snarl and full of fight. If you are either a man or a woman and you do not want to be a mad tom cat at large, you had better let whiskey alone.

I knew a person who met with a sad accident that made him a cripple for months. The friends of this lad grieved about him and sympathized with him in his misfortune. The boy accepted the sympathy with great relish and responded to it with a determination to always be an invalid. The sympathy of friends developed in him self-pity and the narcotic stupor of his will power. Soon he had concluded that will power. Soon he had concluded that it was better to be an invalid and receive attention and sympathy than to be thrown out on his own resources. It is a common thing for people to be ruined for life because of sympathy. No one can know how many people have been made invalids for life through sympathetic friends. No one can know how many heroes have been deterred from heroism by those who were afraid for them. He is a man who is wise enough to deal firmly with his sympathizers before their sympathy becomes a narcotic. Blessed is that person who refuses to let an accident, a misfortune, or even sympathy make him less a man.

One day I was out calling and on entering a certain home I found Mrs. Huff sitting among the limbs of the Mill tree. As I entered the door she said to me, "Well, it is high time that you were visiting one of your members. I had decided that you cared nothing at all for me and my family." I did not care to pelt the woman with rocks and so in a kind way I answered her as follows: "Well, it is high time that you should throw rocks at me I thought that the barrage was over and all would be well, but not so. No sooner had she ceased to pelt me than she began to throw rocks in all directions. During her lifetime she had thrown rocks at everybody and everything. Behold how good and how pleasant it is for folks to make a visitor happy while in their home."

An engineer was pulling his train along the road when he saw a large sign by the side of the track which said: "Close your ash pan." He glanced down to see and saw that his ash pan was closed. Soon his engine thundered over a wooden bridge and then he understood why the sign was there. It was a bad one, but he did not know it. By the roadside of life we see many signs that warn us against the bad habit of dropping coals of fire from our lips. When we go to speak, especially if we are inclined to speak what we think, we should look for the sign "Shut your ash pan." Hot words will set on fire the bridge that makes safe the travel of life. Listen to the Bible: "Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth and the tongue is a fire."

At one time a man who I thought to be my friend did me an unbrotherly act. I was in trouble and in need of help and this man rendered the assistance needed, but took advantage of me to charge all that the law would allow. He saw his way to a large check and regardless of friendship he demanded his pound of flesh. I did not object to paying my bill, but to be imposed upon because he had the advantage was a test to my spirit. I sat down and wrote him a letter and told him all. I decided to hold the letter until next morning before placing it in the post office. During the night I thought over what I had written. I knew that I had told the truth, but something came over me that made me ashamed of what I had said. The next morning I tore the letter up that I had written and placed a check covering the entire amount in another envelope and sent it to him without a word. Any time that you have hot words to speak wait a week to speak them. Any time you feel called upon to write hot words leave the letter open and unmailed for a week. Most likely you will not speak your hot words and neither will you mail your unkind letter.

CHRISTMAS
"INSIDE"

By GERTRUDE H. WALTON

THE LARGE house interested Celia. There seemed little life within, no Christmas decorations in the windows as in many dwellings on the streets. Tonight, a dim light in the back, with the early Christmas eve twilight, heightened its drabness.

"One may be excused for inquisitiveness, tonight," Celia led Ann, her roommate onto the porch. "This house, outside, looks gloomy admit being disappointed because of no opening, after our singing audition over WGQ this afternoon," Celia, slipping to a side door, with Ann, began singing Christmas carols. A door opened and a dignified woman said:

"Come inside, girls, and sing. I'm Mrs. Ashby. There's a piano, no opened since Beulah—"

"We'll sing if you join us," Celia answered.

After singing, Celia told of ambitions for her voice and of the afternoon's disappointment.

"Girls, you have given me a happy pre-Christmas eve and birthday, as well as my club members have birthdays at this season. Please come again, tonight, if you wish. You're across the street."

Celia and Ann, at home, were eating, when, answering the telephone, Celia swung Ann around into dizziness.

"We're to report for a program tomorrow afternoon over WGQ! Someone not filling engagement! We'll practice on Mrs. Ashby's piano. Let's decorate her windows with these wreaths," Celia cried.

During the Christmas day program, dedicated to those with birthdays of the season, when Mrs. Ashby's name was mentioned, the announcer said:

"Mrs. Ashby will enjoy this program. She called us last evening—asked that you girls sing for birthdays of her club members—other members asked for you, too. Mrs. Ashby travels, gives of time and money to a shut-in club of which she is national president. Her daughter is the wife of a famed doctor in India. You probably will have a permanent program for birthdays of listeners."

"Maybe that house interested me because, even through boards and stone, human kindness, character, oozes through. Her windows look pretty, though, with our wreaths," Celia told Ann.

CHRISTMAS
IN THE HOME

CHRISTMAS festivities are likely to be much more fun when the whole family helps, says the New York state college of home economics.

The older children are always eager to trim the Christmas tree, collect Christmas greens, and make wreaths. Often they have good ideas on how to arrange these holiday decorations. Because these tasks are unusual they have a special appeal, but with the right encouragement from father or mother even the more routine work may seem a part of the general family-sharing at Christmas.

Big brother and sister can be a help if they show their small brother or sister how to help in odd carpentering jobs that come with Christmas. If mother is busy, older brothers or sisters can help the youngsters to dress or get ready for bed.

What can the small members of the family do? Little Johnny or tiny Mary can cut out gingerbread men and other fancy shaped cookies, which mother will lift onto the baking sheet. Father will also be pleased to know how well his small son or daughter can find his tools, cut the string used to wind the Christmas wreath when both of father's hands are busy, or to help with other preparations.

One thing father and mother should remember is to watch for signs of fatigue or nervous strain in the younger children. They should not ask the children to do too many or too difficult tasks.

MEANING OF "NOEL"

"NOEL" is the French name of the Christmas feast and of the old carols formerly sung in the French country churches at this season. Its derivation is from the Latin "natalis," meaning "born," and the word was originally shouted or sung to express joy over the birth of Christ. With the spelling "Nowel" it is found in Chaucer and other early writers.

Tasty Christmas Gifts

Small jars of jellies, preserves, relishes or jams make individual Christmas gifts. Arrange several in a small basket, and tie with Christmas wrappings.

Mississippi Editors
To Meridian Jan. 8-9

JAS. H. SKEWES
Host To Mississippi Editors

The Winter Business Meeting of the Mississippi Press Association has been set for Friday and Saturday, January 8-9, with headquarters in the Lamar Hotel, Meridian, Mississippi. Jas. H. Skewes of the Meridian Star will be host to Mississippi's Fourth Estate and other citizens of Meridian are cooperating with him in offering visiting editors one of the most interesting entertainment programs in the history of the Association.

The theme of the Winter Business Meeting will be "How to Get More National Advertising for Mississippi Newspapers" and several speakers will appear on the program representing national advertising agencies, each bringing new ideas and suggestions pertaining to the theme of the gathering.

Lester Williams of the Tylertown Times, President of the Mississippi Press Association believes that this will be one of the most important meetings of Mississippi printers and publishers in many years and states that the complete program will be ready for release around December 10.

The gathering will be climaxed with an Alabama-Mississippi Press Banquet on Saturday night to which Governor Hugh White and Governor Bibb Graves of Alabama, as well as members of the Mississippi and Alabama Press Associations have been invited. R. G. Bozeman, President of the Alabama Press Association feels sure that a large group of Alabama editors will avail themselves of this opportunity to break bread with Mississippi editors.

Sunshine News

Our Sunday school is doing nicely although there is room for improvement. Many are absent who should be in Sunday school. We hope they will see fit to be with us next Sunday.

We are beginning a revival at this place December 20. Our pastor, the Rev. E. J. Orange, is going to do the preaching. We are planning on having an all day service Christmas Day, beginning with a sunrise prayer service. We are expecting several preachers to be with us. Among them will be H. J. Stevens of Montgomery and Brother Jimmie Dubose of Jemison. We extend a hearty welcome to all. Come and be with us all day. Bring a well filled basket and let's all enjoy the day praising the Lord with other visiting Saints.

FORD

advances into 1937 with the LOWEST PRICE IN YEARS and new operating economy

THE ADDITION of a new 60-horsepower engine to the Ford line for 1937 brings you a new, low price and gives you a choice of two V-type 8-cylinder engines. 85 horsepower for maximum performance. 60 horsepower for maximum economy.

The 60-horsepower V-8 engine was originally developed for use in England and France, where fuel costs are high. It has been proven there for two years with brilliant success. Now, brought to America, it creates an entirely new standard of modern motoring economy!

The "60" engine, available in five body types, is built in exactly the same body size and wheelbase—to the same advanced design—with the same comfort and convenience as the "85." And it delivers V-8 smoothness at speeds up to 70 miles an hour.

Two engine sizes—but only one car and one purpose—to give you more miles and more satisfaction for your money in 1937.

Spirit of Christmas
By Katherine Edelman

SURRENDER yourself to the Spirit of Christmas! Let its joy thrill you—let its peace steal softly across your heart! Open your ears to the magic of its message—open your eyes to the miracles it accomplishes!

Read again Dickens' Christmas Carol, the best known and most inspiring of all the Christmas stories. And don't feel ashamed, if at the end, as Tiny Tim whispers, "God bless us, every one," you find your own eyes wet with tears.

Open the Book of Books, and let Luke tell you about that first Christmas—of the long journey to Bethlehem, of the birth in the humble manger, of the shepherds keeping watch over their flocks. Listen to the heavenly music that was heard upon the hills, to the thrilling words of the angel, "Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." Bow your head and give thanks for the Prince of Peace who came, saying with the angels, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

Let Matthew tell you of the coming of the Wise Men from the East, with their gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh, which they presented to the Christ Child.
Then, with the Spirit of Christmas in your heart, go forth and help make Christmas a brighter and a happier day for others!

—O—O—O—
"Robinson Crusoe," which first appeared in the London Post in 1719, was the pioneer of the serial story.

"WONDER if Harris would care? Shall I do it, then ask him afterward?" Rachel Stanton, the morning of Christmas eve, looked admiringly at the brilliant tree in the pleasant living room, then hurried to brush snow from Harris, who, stamping in from the back porch, panted:
"I've cleaned the driveways to barn and road but will have to do it again today. What were you saying?" he was interrupted by Rachel.

"The radio announces that the snow plow from Warnton has stuck at the corner and will have to be dynamited out. No one can get through highways farther than the corner to the telephone's jingling. "It was Martha calling. She and Gene and the children started here but are blocked in at a home of kind strangers. I wish we could get food to the Harrison family in the Bottoms. They have no telephone, no near neighbors, and would freeze if they tried to get here through high drifts. Such a winter! It looks as though our Christmas will be "we two," she sighed at the color-lighted tree.
"Well, I see I'll have to shovel out the driveways again," Harris announced, pulling on jacket and gloves.

Later when he went inside to warm his fingers he heard Martha humming and was thankful that she was cheerful over the disappointment of Christmas eve without her relatives. Odors of savory food and the attractive table with Christmas colors, were inviting as he stamped in after evening chores were finished.
"Tonight will be the worst so far this winter. The wind is rising and snow blowing. A terrible night. Surely no one would venture on highways—why—where is the tree? Did you dump it outside because our company didn't come?" he looked, to be sure Rachel was sane,

The Visitor Pointed Toward the West. "That Light Guided Us."

then at the empty corner where the tree had stood.
"Yes, the radio announced the temperatures will be lowest of season, so far."
"The tree, Rachel! Did you throw it out?"
"That's exactly what I did—only didn't throw—" a shout from outside sent Harris quickly to the door.
"Come in from the terrible blizzard, you poor frozen—how did you get here?" Rachel helped Harris unwrapped five shivering visitors, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison and children.
"Oh, it's been terrible getting here. But it was either to freeze and starve at home or risk getting here," Mr. Harrison wheezed.
"But, how did you?" Harris began.

"Outside—see the dogs. We hitched them to the sled. The blessed creatures helped us over drifts which are now frozen."

Steaming food was soon on plates and faithful dogs were lapping milk and broth near the kitchen range.

"How did you find the direction—the way in blinding snow?" Harris looked puzzled.

"Well, we got to the top of King's Ridge in the pasture, and came toward the light. The light near your grove, back there," the visitor pointed toward the west. "That light guided us."

"What light?" Harris stammered.

"Harris, dear, will you please carry our Christmas tree back into the house? I carried it outside this morning to the grove and put food on it for birds, wild ducks and any other wild animals that need food and shelter. Then, tonight, I hung that large lantern with the strong light on top the tree to guide whoever might need it."

Merry laughter rang into the night as nuts were cracked and corn popped. Christmas morning Mrs. Harrison helped keep snow from driveways and a path to the grove where the children carried food to a stack of fodder which the men had placed for the wild animals.

"Snow may be drifted high outside. But kindness inside of me needs never be blocked so it can not be scattered and be a guide to others," Rachel mused after the happy Christmas of the worst winter.

Hints for Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

CHRISTMAS cheer and all hospitality puts every hostess on her mettle to see that her home is as spotless and as inviting as possible.

Decorate your windows with wreaths by all means, and glowing candles on the window sills but with all this beauty don't forget to start with new, fresh cloth window shades and complete the picture! Remember your window is the eyes of your home—and want them to look their best—and best!

The new cloth window shades are a thrifty purchase, for they're made of cloth woven on a loom and "processed" for long life! You rest happily knowing these shades won't crumple up with driving rain or snow and rainstorms.

Miss Jettie Lou Armstrong returned to her home in Troy Monday spending a week here as the guest of her niece, Mrs. Ed Glasscock. She accompanied home by little Anne Glasscock, who will spend a week in Troy with her grandmother.

James Lovine, 93, Civil War veteran of Pulaski, Ky., was recently visited by a divorcee from his sixth wife, who stated that he intended marrying her and that he'd never stay single as long as there was a woman in the world. Sum Hopper of Altoona, Pa., prays so loudly from a mountain that he can be heard two miles away.

BASKET BALL AT MITCHELL DAM

The Mignon team from Sylacauga will play the Mitchell Dam Cardinals Saturday night December 19 on the Mitchell Dam court at 7:30 o'clock. The Mitchell Dam Cardinals have started the season with a bang. Having played 11 games, winning 10 and losing 1.

Manager Hollis is very well pleased with the type basket ball his boys are playing. The fans will be interested to know that Manager Hollis has in mind providing a good show as well as game for the county by inviting The House of David "Beard Five" to play on our court sometime during the season. The "Beard Five" boasts of a center measuring 8 feet 6 inches which will be a show within itself.

Every one is invited to come out and see some strong competition between the Mignon team and Cardinals Saturday night, Dec. 19.

Any one wishing to schedule a game with the Cardinals may do so by communicating with A. B. Stanley.

The Mistletoe Hunt

By FRANCES GRINSTEAD

"Bye-O Baby Bunting, Daddy's gone a-hunting!"

WHEN the mothers of young children in the east Oklahoma countryside sing this nursery song to their little ones they may out of loyalty to Mother Goose add the next two lines:

"For to find a rabbit skin, To wrap the Baby Bunting in."

But that isn't exactly what daddy does down there. When it comes the time of year that the baby needs warmer covering, daddy takes his gun and goes out to shoot down mistletoe! This he sells for the Christmas trade and buys Baby Bunting, a different kind of garment. For mistletoe, with its well-known holiday meaning, grows in abundance there and is always found high among the bare winter branches of the native elm. Little boys climb for it, of course, but the quickest way to gather it for commercial use is to shoot it down.

"Open season" for mistletoe hunting begins about the last of November and the demand increases steadily until Christmas. Truck loads of the green sprigs with their wax-white berries are driven to the cities of the north for the holiday trade. As the mistletoe is not always uniformly ripe at the time it is wanted, much "hunting" is required to find sprigs whose berries are at a stage to suit the demands of the buyers. At such times the roadsides may be strewn with discarded mistletoe, for the condition of the berries cannot be seen until the sprig has been shot down. But such waste is not lamented, for mistletoe is a parasite that reappears in abundance each year, however ruthlessly it may be treated.

MEANING OF CHRISTMAS

THE first meaning of Christmas is that of generosity, inspired by the great gift of God to mankind. The selfish way of the world is broken at least for a time, and the Christ spirit is born in our hearts. Sometimes the exchange of presents is carried too far and becomes a burden instead of a pleasure; but anything that makes the world unselfish is beautiful and good.

Blow in Christmas

In Denmark on Christmas morning they "blow in the Jul" at dawn from church towers, playing Christmas hymns to the four points of the compass.

DARK HORSE

WITH President Roosevelt's renomination by the Democrats a certainty for a long time and the selection of Governor Landon strongly indicated for several months before the Republican convention met, this wasn't a year for "dark horses." A "dark horse" is an unknown who is brought forward when convention delegates fail to agree on one of the leading candidates.

The phrase started as English racing slang, originating in the practice by jockeys of dyeing black the hair of fast horses in order to enter them in races under another name and thereby being able to "clean up" in the betting. Gradually the use of the term was extended to apply to any horse, regardless of its color, which won unexpectedly and similarly it was applied to candidates for public office.

American political history affords a number of examples of dark horses capturing the Presidential nomination but only a very few of them have gone on to occupy the White House. In 1844 James K. Polk of Tennessee won the Democratic nomination at Baltimore when there was a deadlock between ex-President Martin Van Buren, and Lewis Cass. In the election he defeated Henry Clay, the Whig, and became the first "dark horse" President.

Again in 1852 the Democrats assembled in Baltimore and again Lewis Cass was a leading candidate with James Buchanan and Stephen A. Douglas furnishing the principal competition for the nomination. But again there was a deadlock and when the tide turned toward Franklin Pierce, again there was a stampede and this "dark horse" from New Hampshire was nominated. In the election he defeated the Whig candidate, Gen. Winfield Scott.

As for the Republicans in 1876 they, passed up their strongest man, James G. Blaine of Maine, and his principal opponent, O. P. Morton of Indiana, and gave the nomination to Gov. R. B. Hayes, Ohio's "favorite son," who defeated Samuel Tilden, the Democratic candidate.

In 1880 they turned down Ex-President Grant's bid for a third term, again passed over Blaine, and finally selected another Buckeye "dark horse"—Gen. James A. Garfield. The most recent Republican "dark horse" to win the nomination and a election was still another Ohioan—Sen. Warren G. Harding, who was chosen after the Lowden and Wood deadlock at the Chicago convention in 1920.

I'm against a sales tax bill as long as we have a chance to defeat the gross receipts bill but as a last resort I prefer the sales tax to the gross receipt tax."

COUNTY COUNCIL

J. M. Kimmey, County Health officer, showed the group a moving picture, illustrating very graphically how tuberculosis is contracted, how it affects the patient, how it is spread from one person to another, and modern methods of treating the disease. He showed the group an X-ray picture of the lung of a patient in an advanced stage of tuberculosis. Dr. Kimmey also gave some very illuminating facts concerning the actual tuberculosis situation in Chilton County at the present time.

The Council was well represented by the various fields of public service, the following names being present at the meeting: Mr. J. W. Fant, Mr. B. N. Ivey, Mr. Marvin Durbin and Miss Bertha Dennis, representing the County Agent's office and Rural Resettlement Administration; Mr. Luther E. Little, Miss Elsie Schurter and Miss Edith Cochran, representing the Department of Education; Dr. J. M. Kimmey and Miss Irene Smitherman, representing the County Health Department; Miss Noran Meroney and Mrs. Percy Walburn, representing the Department of Public Welfare; Judge J. Lee Smith and Commissioners John Bean, Charlie Duke and Howard Oden, representing the Commissioners Court.

In discussing various other problems with which this group is concerned, the need for more information concerning the mental hygiene was voiced. The chairman was asked to contact Mrs. Cochran, psychiatrist, with the State Department of Public Welfare, and arrange for her to appear before the Council at a future meeting to tell us something of mental hygiene. It is hoped that her services will be available to the Council at its next meeting.

Week On Coast Is Enjoyed By Commissioners

Members of the Commissioners Court and Judge J. Lee Smith enjoyed a stay of several days recently on the gulf at Biloxi and other points and some deep sea fishing.

After several months of hard work, this was a well-earned rest for our county governing body. Judge Smith stated that he believed it was one of the best trips he had ever made and that the party enjoyed it thoroughly. Commissioner John Bean was the only Commissioner to attend this occasion. Commissioners Oden, Atchison and Duke with Judge Smith made up the party.

DEAR'S CHRISTMAS DOLL

By Helen Gaisford Waterman

DEAR was really too big to play with dolls. Yet, when she said that all she wanted for Christmas was a really nice doll, of course mama and everyone gave in.

People always were nice to Dear, probably because Dear was so nice. That was why everyone called her "Dear" instead of by name.

Such a doll, on Christmas morning, with real eyelashes, and long curls. It could walk, talk, and sleep. And it had a whole truck of lovely dresses and shoes, and a little fur coat.

Dear dashed down to see it first thing Christmas morning, and then, when breakfast was over, she got her wraps, dressed the doll in its fur coat, and set out with its trunk under one arm, and it in the other. "She's so proud," she has to show it to her friends," smiled mama.

But when Dear returned, she had neither doll or trunk. "Why, Dear," said mama, "where's your doll?"

"I gave it away," Dear answered. "I do hope you won't mind. You see, I knew a little girl who had never had a doll in her whole life, and I wanted to give her one on Christmas."

"But Dear, why didn't you say so? We could have bought one that would have been good enough, and you could have kept yours."

"That's why, mama," Dear explained. "It had to be just the nicest doll ever, to be fun. And oh, mama," she cried, her face beaming with happiness, "did you ever see a poor little girl with her first lovely Christmas present?"

"S'Matter Pop," By C. M. Payne, Proves A Great Favorite

C. M. PAYNE

Of all the comics that have been published in American newspapers, few have achieved the popularity enjoyed by C. M. Payne's "S'Matter Pop." This great comic, which has stood the test of many years, with its fresh, clean humor still bright, holds a definite place in the hearts of thousands to whom the Wimpus family are almost real people.

Some of the sayings of Desperate Ambrose, one of the characters of this strip, have almost become proverbial. There is a tang to his humor that is decidedly unique. Such observations as these are typical:

"Applesauce is all right, but as for me, I always watch there ain't no pill in it."

"Paw says aim attar star instead of shootin' down a well—ya kin never tell when a duck might be flyin' over."

Desperate Ambrose's sayings are not only humorous, but there is a basis of hard common sense that makes them doubly appealing. If you want more of them start reading this strip in this issue. We promise you'll never be disappointed.

Bill Is Sought For Sheriffs

Bill Allowing Re-Election Before Legislators Tuesday; Previous Defeat Recalled

Alabama sheriffs Monday centered their attention on the Alabama house of representatives where the lawmakers are expected to act Tuesday upon a proposed constitutional amendment to permit sheriffs to succeed themselves. The measure, introduced by Speaker Pro Tem M. L. Robertson, of Cullman, now rests on the 12-page house calendar and may or may not receive a final vote. If passed by the legislature, it would be submitted to the people early next year for ratification or rejection.

Under Alabama's constitution sheriffs are the only county officers who are not permitted to succeed themselves in office, although the same prohibition is leveled against the governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state, state auditor, treasurer, commissioner of agriculture, and state superintendent of education.

The proposed amendment to lift this prohibition against the sheriffs was passed by the legislature and submit-

Farm Problem Seen National

American Farm Bureau Federation Says National Plan Needed Despite AAA Ruling

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 14.—The American Farm Bureau Federation was on record today as considering the farm problem "as national in character," despite the supreme court's invalidation of the AAA. "We pledge ourselves to seek enactment of such measures as may be found necessary to maintain farm products prices in line with the American standard wages and living," read a resolution adopted in the closing session of the eighteenth annual convention. Other resolutions adopted were:

Recommendation that the soil conservation act be amended so its administration by states would be delayed until July 1, 1940, providing more time to grasp the essential factors that should be included in state legislation; support of crop insurance on a trial basis for not more than one or two commodities, embracing only voluntary cooperation and participation.

Continued development of rural electrification; support of the Tennessee Valley Authority's fertilizer program; federal survey of social security legislation and its relation to agriculture; support of the child labor amendment.

A Christmas Debt Paid
Blanche Tanner Dillin

"GRAND'THER, isn't that the most beautiful doll you ever saw?" The little hand tugged at the hand of the tall man. He looked down at the childish figure beside him. "I wish I had one like her," the child said in a low tone.

The man mused with a tender smile, "It is very beautiful, dear,—but I thought I heard you say that you had all of the dolls you could care for."

"Well—I did," came the faltering answer "but"—as though an inspiration had presented itself—"I could give some away I s'pose." The man's clasp tightened on the child's hand, and then he reminded her gently that they must hurry on if they were to be home in time for luncheon. Although there were many other interesting toys in the department of the great store, the child showed little interest in them, and managed to work their way back to the object of her affection, and stood enraptured before it until her grandfather again reminded her that they really must be on their way home.

As the child reluctantly followed, the man recalled another dark eyed Marcia standing before just such a doll and heard again almost the same words this Marcia had used today. "Isn't," she had said, "that doll in pink just beautiful? I wish I had one like it." And he heard the man beside her reply: You have more dolls now than you know what to do with," and he had added, "That is too expensive anyway." "Oh is it?" the child had asked in surprise. "Yes, every-thing in this store is." He hadn't known whether it was or not, but he had led the child away. Later he asked himself many times why he hadn't given the doll to the child, and he resolved that never again would he be the cause of a hurt look such as he had seen in the little one's eyes that day. From then on, he determined to grant her every wish that he possibly could and so atone for the unnecessary suffering he had caused.

Christmas night John Grant sat alone before the fire, his head against the back of the chair, his eyes closed and a smile of content upon his face. The door opened and a young woman's voice called softly—"Father."

"Yes, my dear," he answered as he turned toward her.

"Mother wants to know if you aren't coming to bed," the young woman said as she came into the room.

"Tell your mother I'll be there in just a minute," the man replied with a laugh.

"Do you know, father, I think that you have made Marcia the happiest little girl in the world to-night," Marcia Field said as she went and sat on the arm of her father's chair.

Her father put his arm around her. "I'm glad if I did," he told her.

"Do you know that doll reminds me of one I wanted many years ago. I thought that I never would be happy if I didn't have that doll," Marcia laughed at the memory.

"And I wouldn't buy it for you," her father frowned.

"Why father, do you remember that?" the daughter asked in surprise.

"I have never forgotten it, and I resolved never to be the cause of hurting you or anyone as I had you that day."

"Why, you old dear," Marcia laughed as she hugged him. "I haven't thought of it for years." And then she said suddenly as a light of understanding broke upon her, "That is why you always have done so much for me, and why you gave Marcia that doll today, isn't it?" John Grant's smile was the only answer he gave for a moment, and then he said: "If I have succeeded in making both or either of you happy, I shall be happy, too, for I shall feel that I have at least in part paid a Christmas debt long overdue."

"Dear, dear father," Marcia lovingly assured him, "you don't know how well you have succeeded."

"Then I am indeed content."

CHRISTMAS BUCKLES

By Luella B. Lyons

TIMOTHY BROWN knew not a soul in Hartsburg well to merit an invitation to a Christmas dinner, for he had opened the little shoe repairing cubby hole in the postoffice building only ten days previous to the holiday. And the little restaurant served no turkey either, for they had probably figured everyone would be eating elsewhere.

Rather blue and unhappy, Timothy slipped back to his workbench, there to get caught up on the avalanche of work that had poured in upon him. The first pair of slippers—yes, he remembered the pale, thin little girl that had brought them in. "My aunt bought them for 25 cents at an auction of second-hand things in the city and sent them to me; but they do need repairing before I can wear them. But I've only 25 cents to my name—could—would you repair them for that amount, Mr. Brown?" Of course, he assured her that it wouldn't cost that—not to her, of the sad and wistful eyes!

"Why, I may be a shoe re-builder, but if those buckles aren't worth a fortune then I'd better get out of this business," he shouted to the empty little room as he suddenly discovered the winking little buckles were not of the dime store variety.

Luck was with him when he sent a messenger for the poor girl owner of the second-hand slippers, and at the jeweler's home the pair were in luck—the expert in gems told them that the buckles would positively remove the girl out of the pauper class, for they were really worth a fortune.

Happy and merry Christmases may come and go, but Timothy will never be lonely again, for the lucky little girl later said "yes" to Timothy, not out of gratitude but because of love at first sight.

Christmas Carols

By Katherine Edelman

WARREN ELMORE was mad—angry through and through. For the first time in his business career he had had a quarrel with his partner. Of course it had been all Peter's fault, but even that thought didn't help so very much. The old saying, "It takes two to make a quarrel" kept bothering him.

What was it that his wife had told him to get at Grant's? He asked himself the question as he entered the big department store. Hosiery for Muriel, that was it! Better Christmas shopping, anyway; why didn't Beverly tend to things herself?

As he walked down the crowded aisles, he was conscious of music from the balcony. An orchestra was up there playing Christmas carols. Warren Elmore forgot his peeve against the world; he hurried up and joined the happy crowd. His voice joined in "O Little Town of Bethlehem." It was followed by the glorious "Adeste Fideles." Then came "Silent Night." As its beautiful strains filled the store Warren Elmore was conscious that all anger was disappearing from his heart. He wanted to get back to the office, to slap old Peter on the back, and tell him they were a pair of fools for letting such a small thing interfere with their friendship.

And man-like, he purchased six pairs of hosiery for Muriel instead of three on the way out. A store that took time and thought for Christmas carols should be rewarded a little bit, he believed.

KEEPING TREE FRESH

IF A Christmas tree is set in water when it first comes into the house and is kept in water while it is part of the Christmas decoration, it will remain fresh and green for at least a week longer. Water should be replaced as it evaporates. If the base of a Christmas tree is trimmed with a sharp knife just before it is mounted, the pores will be left open, allowing water to rise in the stem to the living cells which are still trying to provide the tree with food and moisture. Spruce and fir retain their needles longer than most other Christmas trees.

Popcorn Ball Decorations

Popcorn balls, wrapped in red and green tissue paper, silver paper or glistening cellophane, and piled in a decorated basket, make attractive centerpieces for Christmas dinner or party tables. A small favor may be placed in each ball, to add interest at a party. Hung on the Christmas tree, these balls make pretty ornaments for the strong lower branches that always seem to be neglected when the tree is decorated.

Santa All the Year Is Found to Be Good Idea

SANTA CLAUS comes to July as well as December to those who need him in Columbia, Mo. Last Christmas given anonymously by "a father of children" was used by the care society there to start a fund year-round needs. Instead of gorging people with too many baskets of gifts one day out of 365.

These are some of the things the fund paid for: glasses to replace those lost by a boy whose mother washes soap him in school; means of getting a crippled girl to and from school; a pair of the old horse used by the boy when there is hauling to be done; the cane a grandfather needed to help him get about; fares of a young patient and a tubercular who were sent to hospitals; soap and a razor for a young man who had to clean up so he could try for regular donations to the society may be used only for food, fuel, clothing and shelter; these all-the-year gifts, badly needed, would have been available but for the dollar from the "father" to use any way you want." gave welfare workers the idea of Santa Claus fund.—Frances Grinstead.

Christmas Shopping
by Katherine Edelman

KENNETH FOSTER hurried through the crowded streets. Everybody looked so happy, so eager, so good-natured. He wondered why he felt so out of tune with them all.

From counter to counter he went. He wanted to compare values, to get the best price on everything he bought. He was going to do his Christmas shopping in a sensible way, the way it really ought to be done.

Passing through the art department his eyes fell on a beautiful piece of pottery. Unconsciously he stopped and admired its exquisite art. A sudden thought flashed through his mind. "Wouldn't mother love something like this? Wouldn't she get a thrill out of showing it to her friends?"

His Eyes Fell on a Beautiful Piece of Pottery.

Quickly his resolution to buy nothing but practical gifts vanished into thin air. He would buy the piece for mother. For the rest of the family, and others, he would get the gifts he had planned, but mother must have something to bring that light into her eyes that he loved to see. He was quite sure this lovely pottery would turn the trick. He could almost hear her say, "Oh, Kenneth, I've wanted something like this all my life!"

The purchase thrilled him with a strange satisfaction. He knew that he wouldn't have got the same joy out of buying something ordinary. He wasn't going to sneer any more at people buying "gee-gaws." Christmas seemed to call for something different. There should be practical gifts, too; no Christmas tree was complete without handkerchiefs, sweaters, hose and gloves, and such things, but there should be other things, too. . . . Man did not live by bread alone, Kenneth was finding out; other things were necessary.

Suddenly his face broke into a grin. That's the very thing he would do. He would buy every last one of the family something practical, but he would also buy them something that he felt they would love to have: some bit of beauty or frivolity that they would not otherwise get.

The money that he was spending had come to him in a letter from his grandfather, a few days before. "Buy Christmas gifts for the family with this," the old man had written. "It is quite a sum for a young fellow to spend alone, but I am sure that you will do it wisely. And I want your report of what you bought after the holidays are over."

Kenneth had felt sure that his grandfather would want him to buy sensible things, but now, he felt differently. Something inside of him seemed to say that the way he was going to spend the money now was exactly as his grandfather wanted him to. What a letter he would have to write—surely he could put all the newfound joy that he was experiencing into every line.

For now Kenneth was really in tune with the spirit of Christmas. There was not a shopper on the streets as happy as he was. Every counter seemed to have taken on new interest; shopping was really a pleasure, the biggest thrill that he had known in a long time.

He hurried to the book counter. Jane was going to have those leather-bound volumes of essays that she had wanted for so long. And Jimmie—Jimmie was going to get that motion picture machine he had been talking about. Gee, he could see Jimmie's face on Christmas morning; wouldn't he get a thrill out of showing the thing to his friends. And dad, well, dad was going to get a new set of golf clubs, a brand new bag of drivers, mauls, and putters! And grandfather was going to get a letter about the shopping trip and its results that would lift him right out of his chair!

New, Attractive Floor And Large Range Are New Additions

Living up its reputation as one of the most popular and attractive cafes between Birmingham and Montgomery, the Dixie Cafe, of Clanton has recently made several improvements worthy of note.

Customers who enjoy the meals at The Dixie will now find an attractive checked linoleum floor, laid tile floor greeting them as they enter. This floor was installed last week and adds much to the appearance of the interior of the cafe.

L. D. Easterling, manager of the cafe, and who has had several years experience along that line, stated that they have just installed a new, large, two-oven range in the spacious and efficient kitchen. This range, which is new, will enable the kitchen force to give faster service at all times and will improve the taste of food cooked in or on it.

Step by step, Mr. Easterling is improving his cafe and each step makes a marked addition to the attractiveness of that place of business.

THE NEWSPAPER AND THE CAMPAIGN

Editorial From The Birmingham News Much has been said all over the country of the part that the newspapers played—or, as some would have it, that they failed to play—in the presidential campaign. The News has made several comments on the subject, and probably most other newspapers have done so. The comment has grown out of the fact that most of the country's newspapers supported Gov. Landon and the assumption on the part of some that his defeat was a blow to newspaper influence.

One recent comment on this subject from an excellent source is worthy of notice. It is an article by Arthur Robb in Editor & Publisher. Mr. Robb says that "the not-so-few who hope that the Roosevelt landslide may be turned to permanent disadvantage of the press should not find much comfort in the recent piece by Charles Michelson," who is credited with "an artistic job as publicity man for the Democratic National Committee."

Mr. Michelson does not attach importance to the statement that the majority of large newspapers opposed his candidate. He mentions that some 7-8,000 small dailies and weeklies accepted the Democratic clippings and cartoons and made liberal use of them. He also says that the committee spent $60,000 for newspaper advertising to offset the zero-hour pay-envelope barrage of the Republicans, "and while he does not credit this advertising with a share in the victory, the fact remains that it was considered necessary and it was used, and that its objective was attained."

"Mr. Michelson, in fact," writes Mr.
Robb, "closes on the note that the election result might have been no different had neither national committee functioned. He is over-modest. He did an excellent, and admittedly expensive, job on the radio, supplementing President Roosevelt's 100 per cent lead in that medium with direct rebuttal of charges that strategy and dignity demanded be ignored by Mr.
Roosevelt."

"And he should appreciate, though he did not specifically mention them, the aid he received from large newspapers not included in the 7,000 small dailies and weeklies using his stuff.
We noted, a couple of weeks ago, that Mr. Roosevelt's press support 12,000,000 copies per day and may have reached 15,000,000—30 or 40 per cent of the total daily newspaper circulation. The New Republic last week seemed to doubt the statistical accuracy of this statement; why, we can't guess.
The facts are easily available. In New York City alone, Mr. Roosevelt was supported by four, not three, newspapers, as The New Republic states—and these four had 55 per cent of the total daily circulation. Add to those 2,800,000 the 7,000,000 of the dominant Democratic South. And the 1,500-000 of the Scripps-Howard chain (less

The New York World Telegram, already counted in New York City.) Add upwards of 600,000 for The Philadelphia Record and The Chicago Times.
You can find another half million among newspapers of the class of The Hartford (Conn.) Times, Fort Wayne (Ind.) Journal-Gazette, Trenton (N.J.) Times, Hoboken Jersey Observer and Hackensack (N.J.) Bergen Record
none of which is covered by Mr.
Michelson's blanket of 7,000 "small" dailies and weeklies. If half of the latter were as intelligently militant in Mr. Roosevelt's cause as was The Hackensack Record, Mr. Michelson's refusal to get excited about lack of press support is understandable. It was certain of not less than 12,500,000 circulation in metropolitan and sub-metropolitan areas, including the Solid South, and he could count on another 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 a day in smaller publications."

As Mr. Robb says, that makes utterly ridiculous "the unkillable yarn that Gov. Landon had the support of 85 per cent of the country's daily newspapers, and its corollary that Landon's debacle is a back-breaking blow for the big-city press." Even so, extremely efficient an organization as that headed by Jim Farley, he adds, might have taken a licking if the press which supported it had been on the other side.

"The Democrats," he continues,
"with their superb organization in detail down to the last precinct, backed by newspapers in spots where newspaper support was a prime necessity, could afford to concede a considerable superiority in newspaper fire to the G. O. P.," which lacked efficient state, county, district and precinct organizations. It is this sort of organization that wins elections. Mr. Robb points out, and "the part played by newspaper editorials and news reports is, and always has been, supplementary."

"All this to do about the integrity and influence of newspapers," Mr.
Robb comments, "has thrown a cloud of dust about an important recent fact.
That fact is that sensational increases have been made by representative newspapers in national advertising during the past three months."

"They represent what Charlie Mich-elson's emergency purchase of $60,000 worth of newspaper space represented belief that the daily newspaper can carry the advertising story home more quickly and convincingly and perma-

Not nearly as many other known mediums.
"Newspapers can advocate unpopular causes—and frequently should—without endangering their franchise. They can also oppose popular causes—and frequently should, if only to insure against the errors of haste—without forfeiting their hold on their clients.
But, while the newspaper graveyard is full of journals that thought they could mislead and deceive their readers, room can always be made for any survivor which ignores history and betrays its trust. If that applies to the conduct of any or many newspapers in the campaign just closed, the facts will be determined and the penalty as-essed by readers, not advertisers. The process is slow, but there is no doubt at all that it works."

It does work, as every newspaper man knows. Mr. Robb's thesis is the same as that advanced by The News the other day in saying that the only restraint that is needed, or that can be wholesomely applied, to newspapers is the public judgement. The public judges newspapers day by day, and it will not be fooled by those that are unfair or deceptive.

Walter B. Pitkin, whose "Life Begins at Forty" has been widely read, is also the author of "Short Introduction to History of Human Stupidity."
It would take quite a staff of investigators to keep a history of stupidity up to date, we imagine.

NEWS FROM THE STATE'S CAPITOL

Montgomery—For the first time in the history of the State, it is claimed, a Governor has secured the passage of two important major measures through the lower House in the first six days of a special session of the Legislature. On the fifth legislative day a bill was passed imposing a tax of one and one-half per cent tax upon retail gross receipts, and on the sixth day a bill passed the House providing for the sale of alcoholic beverages through State-operated stores.

Both of the above bills were forced to withstand vigorous attacks from the opposition and it appeared for the time that the bill legalizing the sale of intoxicants in the State would go down in defeat. The tax bill is expected to pass the Senate before the end of the eighth legislative day, and the beverage bill will be close on its heels, sponsors claim.

The beverage bill, sponsors claim, will not increase consumption of intoxicating beverages in Alabama, but will produce approximately $2,500,000 in revenue from a source not now taxed. "It is not bringing liquor back," they say, "but deriving revenue from the liquor which is already here."

The chief burden of the argument of opponents of the tax measure, which they call "sales tax," centered around their contention that the Governor had promised "no sales tax and no tax sales," pointing to that part of his printed platform in which he promised to "balance the budget, pay the State's debts, run our schools and operate an efficient government by economy without further taxation," but overlooking what he said if conditions should make this impossible.

Friends of the administration point out that the Governor remembers that he said "I still promise to pay the debts, run the schools and provide an efficient government, and do so with the least possible burden on our people."

Political observers who remember things points out that in the campaign six years ago, Governor B.M. Miller promised "no taxes" and always added, "Alabama must pay her debts." Then when he took up his duties as Governor he found that the promise that "Alabama must pay her debts" could not be kept without additional taxes, therefore he proceeded to impose additional taxes and paid the debts.

Governor Graves is simply following in the footsteps of other Governors in meeting conditions as they arise regardless of what might have been his intentions during the campaign.

In this, his friends point out, he is following the example of President Roosevelt, who was elected on a platform of abolishing bureaus, then changed conditions forced him to add an army of employees to the already large force in order that the people might not suffer.

By a vote of 21 to 5, the State Senate last week adopted the following bill, offered by Senator Miller Bonner of Wilcox.

Section 1. That the holder of any office in Alabama, either State, County, or Municipal, who while such officer, violates any written campaign promise or pledge hereafter, made while a candidate for nomination or election to such office, shall be guilty of a felony and subject to impeachment.

Section 2. Any person who violates this act shall, upon conviction be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary of this State for not less than one year nor more than ten years.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many, many friends who so willingly and unselfishly have aided us during our recent loss in the storm.

We can never express our gratitude for what you all have done for us.

Especially do we thank Dr. Gragg and the nurses of the Hospital and Speigner Funeral Home who have so tenderly cared for the injured. We wish also to thank the CCC boys for their help in clearing away the wreckage, and the Red Cross for their help to those who were less fortunate than we.

May God bless each one of you in our prayer.
W. F. DOBBS and family.

That's What I Think

Saul M. Goldstein

One and one-half per cent sounds very small to the average person. Three cents from each two dollars is little enough in the popular fancy, and hardly worth making so much fuss about. But if you stop to analyze that one and one-half per cent when applied to a tax on gross retail receipts, you suddenly find that it is an almost prohibitive and confiscatory tax. Let us take as an example a merchant who does a quantity business in cigarettes. Such a merchant will sell the more popular brands for fifteen cents a package. He would receive for one hundred packages the sum of $15.00. He pays to the wholesaler the sum of $14.40 making a gross profit of sixty cents on the deal. Disregarding his overhead, which includes a high state license tax for the sale of cigarettes and tobacco, he has cleared a 4 per cent profit. If 1-1/2 is taken by the state in a retail sales tax, it becomes not the small, easily disregarded percentage it appears on the surface, but actually 37 1/2 or almost one-half of his gross profit. If we deduct from his gross profit his operating costs, we find that the 1-1/2 will not only consume the greater part of his net profit, but in many instances will exceed it, and leave his cigarettes sales in the red ink side of the ledger. If one stops to consider that of the fifteen dollars, five dollars goes to the Federal and state governments in cigarette taxes not including special licenses, there can be no other conclusion but that you have passed the point of diminishing returns and your tax system has become highly confiscatory.

Admitting for the moment that the price of 15c per package will be found only in stores doing a large volume of business, and therefore reducing the percentage of overhead; and admitting for the moment that cigarettes are one of the items not often found which carry an exceedingly small gross profit for the retailer, let us consider what would be the actual effect on the merchant of Alabama. If one and one-half gross receipts tax becomes confiscatory, a merchant has only two alternatives; either to pass the tax on to the consumer, or to absorb it and fail in business. If he passes it on, it means increased prices.

Almost every merchant whom you know or with whom you do business has at least one or more items in his store on which he must compete with a mail order house located in some other state. Exempt from local city county and state taxes in Alabama, the mail order house already has the edge on your local merchant in reduced overhead expense. If the merchant in Alabama passes the one and one-half gross receipts tax on to the consumer in higher prices, he will be giving the mail order house another one and one-half per cent price advantage; and the net result will be more Alabama-earned dollars going into the coffers of other states.

Alabama tax experts would do well to check the records of other states. Kentucky, with a population approximately the same as that of Alabama, and with a larger percentage of white population, has a seven-months school term for the grades and a nine-months school term for the high schools. It has no sales tax, and no real estate tax. Its gasoline tax is five cents per gallon, and its cigarette tax is 1c and 2c per package; automobile license tags cost uniformly $1.50. It levies a luxury tax on sodas, candy, cosmetics and similar items of from 15 per cent to 20 per cent, which it requires to be passed on to the consumer. It has other taxes on sources which can stand taxation, which are not confiscatory, and which—and this is most important—do not levy on the poor man for his food and clothing.

There is talk in the papers of a threat by a large portion of the merchants to refuse to pay the gross receipts tax should it be enacted into law. Mass meetings are being called, and the subject is so big that it is even beginning to displace the abdication of Edward VIII from the headlines. The only thing which can check taxation unpleasant to the people is aroused public opinion. Merchants alone will not sway the legislators—it takes the general public. In one county in Alabama, at the first hearing on the tax, 90 per cent of the merchants in the county went to Montgomery to protest against its enactment; and in the first vote cast in the House, the Representative from that county voted in favor of the law.

Most of us are inclined to take our government too lightly. We will complain every once in a while, but in the main we attend to our own personal affairs, and we consider the business of running the government of our state a matter peculiar to the activities of politicians and not for us to mix in. Democracy doesn't succeed that way. It can succeed only when the citizens take an active part in their government, and when their duly elected representatives in the legislative councils express the opinions of their constituents, and not the parrot voice of a political leader.

Think about that sales tax and what effect it will have on you and your neighbor; study it closely and form your own opinion. Then spend three cents on a stamp or a few cents more on a telegram and inform your legislature in Montgomery on what side of the fence you stand. If you do that, their subsequent legislation will reflect the voice of the people.

Anyway, that's what I think.

Tenant Problem Seen As Carucial

Jasper, Ala., Dec. 14.—Solution of the farm tenant problem was described today by Speaker William B. Bankhead as "the paramount challenge to the next Congress." Simultaneously, Senator John H. Bankhead, brother of the speaker, said he will re-introduce the bill jointly sponsored by himself and Rep. Marvin Jones, of Texas, designed to set up government machinery for financing farm purchases by tenants on a low interest rate and long term payment basis.

Preparing to take a train later today for Washington, Speaker Bankhead said: "Of course there are matters of an emergency nature which will engage the attention of congress immediately after convening in January, but I am talking now of matters of public policy. The farm tenancy problem goes to the very taproot of our permanent agricultural and economic well being. It is up to the congress to find a way to promote farm ownership and remove the evils of increasing tenancy."

The real optimist I know about, observes a local wag, was the fellow who tried to pick my pocket.

SAM LINCOLN walked slowly along the street gazing into store windows. An icy wind caught him at the corners but he hurried across to the next curb intent on his mental shopping.

He was thinking hard of Cora, too. Though not a word had been spoken between them on the subject, it was quite understood that he should buy her warm gloves, a warm sweater and stockings for Christmas. He'd saved a fair amount for this very purpose. When you gave up your city living for the country, you thought in terms of wool. Cora needed all these things. Her gloves were worn down to thin spots. Her sweater had been mended a good many times and her stockings—well, Cora just laughed about them. Cora would. She had made fun of every hard thing about changing their home, from the dreadful wheezy pump in the kitchen to the way the floors slanted in the bedrooms, so that no pencil would stay on a table, and books continually slid off on the floor. Cora was a thoroughbred and a good sport.

Sam looked at a green sweater. That would be becoming to Cora's light curls. Or that cheerful red one. Nice on snowy winter mornings. The very chickadees would sing with pleasure at sight of her in that sweater. He took a few steps toward the shop door when his eye fell on a black-and-yellow silk kimono.

Of course he would not get it; just inquire the price so that he might look at it.

The moment Sam touched a reverent hand to the exquisite silk he was lost. Thrifty, hard-working Sam! How could he have done such a thing? And so calmly, too. "Please wrap it up," he had said. The price had been reduced in order to sell quickly. He walked out of the shop with the light bundle under his arm, and slunk by windows filled with warm woolen clothes. . . the kind Cora so sorely needed.

All the way home on the train his heart sank lower and lower. He felt so chilled and miserable at the thought of his weak behavior, that Cora rushed at him as he opened the door, exclaiming, "My dear, what dreadful thing has happened to you?"

"You're So Lovely I Want to Kiss You Very Hard."

They had an excellent if frugal dinner. Cora chatted happily of this and that, looking unusually pretty and gay. Sam tried to meet her laughter, but actually shivered along his spine. Idiot! Fool! Wretched unspeakable lunatic that he was! Would a yellow-and-black Chinese kimono keep Cora warm? It would not.

Justice demanded that he confess. Cora would be kind, and that would hurt more than anything. Cora would be kind. . . and keep right on feeling cold on the crisp mornings after Christmas. But he must do it. . . muddle through it somehow.

After dinner he came close to Cora muttering something about a gift, and how damned sorry he was. . . and please, please not to look at him so sweetly.

Cora unwrapped the bundle. Sam waited. The lovely shining thing fell to the floor with the lights gleaming on it.

"Oh. . . I never in all my life saw anything so magnificent! For me? Surely, surely not for me, Sam? But how I'd adore it! I'm sure I wouldn't mind anything if I knew such a gorgeous garment were hanging in my closet. But of course you're teasing me. . . it's your Christmas present. I feel like a cad. I know you need the warm things. . . don't be so damned sweet about it!" he commanded crossly.

Cora flung on the robe, and threw her arms around Sam's neck. "I don't know why you're acting this silly way. . . but if you're so dead set on warm things. . . a whole box came this afternoon from Uncle Horace."

Sam sank weakly into a chair. "You're so lovely I want to kiss you very hard."

"Why not?" inquired Cora, resplendent in the yellow-and-black kimono. "This is simply the most wonderful thing you ever did for me."

An excellent example of this scientific balancing of each unit with all others is the Philco Balanced Super-heterodyne Circuit. . . used in all Philcos. . . and raised to new heights of performance by Philco engineers.

Other features included in all all models are complete metal shielding of circuits and tubes, patented live rubber condenser mounting, a built-in filter to prevent radiated interference, and perfect alignment of all circuits through assembly on rust-proofed steel.

By scientifically combining correctly chosen types of Philco Self-Centering Octal Base High-Efficiency Tubes, Philco achieves power and selectivity impossible with even a greater number of less efficient tubes. Another important feature on many models is Shadow Tuning, Philco's time-tested visual tuning meter which shows exactly when each station is tuned-in perfectly.

All American and Foreign Philcos are equipped with the Philco Foreign Tuning System, more fully described on another page, and the Philco Color Dial with foreign stations named and located. Two-speed Vernier Tuning provides a Fast Speed Drive for swift turning. . . a Slow Speed for fine tuning of short-wave stations.

Philco Electro-Dynamic Speakers, with the exclusive Philco Moving Coil, give faithful response from bass to treble. Fading of distant stations and blasting of local stations are counteracted by Full Automatic Volume Control. . . a feature of all 1937 Philcos with five or more tubes.

Christmas in the Air

By Martha B. Thomas

OLD MR. SADDLER had the most unique and delightful ideas. Unquestionably he was the happiest man in town, though he hadn't much money, and lived in quite a modest way, in quite the smallest house. People loved to drop in for a chat. Old men came for a smoke by his fire-side. Women brought their children to spend the afternoon when they were busy. Mr. Saddler welcomed everyone as if he were a king in a palace.

One snowy day when every footstep creaked underfoot, and the whole world looked buried under white wool, several people on their way here and there dropped in to see Mr. Saddler. A bright fire crackled on the hearth. A green wreath hung above the mantel-piece. There was a distinct smell of a rich pudding having been recently cooked.

"This place has more Christmas about it," declared one guest, "than any place I've seen. How do you do it? After all, there's only one green wreath."

"Well, I hardly know how to tell you," said the host. "I guess it's just that I feel Christmassy. . . and maybe it sort of fills the room like steam from a pudding. I know," he smiled at them, "you think me peculiar at times, but it's what goes on in your heart that makes the outside you live in, pleasant. And here's another thing. Laugh if you like, I shan't mind. I like to think that all the happy chimings of church bells at Christmas keep traveling around the world until it's time to ring them again. Why not? And the fine songs and anthems and all the joyous laughter of children. We speak of planets being so many 'light-years' away from the earth. . . and sound taking thus and thus a time to reach a certain place. Well then," he smiled at them, "I guess I just sort of hear those things. Maybe I have a good receiving-set in my head. And perhaps I sort of," he waved a hand around, "broadcast my happiness here in this room."

The guests nodded. "Maybe you do," they said. "Anyhow we feel chock-full of Christmas."

Mistletoe a Parasite

The mistletoe, traditional Christmas decoration much more in favor in earlier days, when the ardent swains were not so forward and the maidens were more reserved, is found most abundantly in the tropics, although it is widely distributed throughout the world. The mistletoe is a parasite, living on the sap of the trees around which it entwines itself. On the Atlantic seaboard of the United States the mistletoe is found as far North as the Jersey coast, but is more abundant farther South.

Living Christmas Trees

Longer life for Christmas trees is advocated by the United States Forest Service, in a note suggesting that a living tree with roots properly balled and packed in a box may be used indoors and later set out to beautify the grounds.

Italian Christmas Industry

Naples was the center of the Italian Christmas industry during the Fifteenth century and had whole hordes of artists, "figurari" as they were called, who did nothing but make dolls for Christmas.

The Genuine Christmas

Poets write beautiful Christmas carols, but a child's laugh is Christmas itself.

Beauty Hints

By Jane Heath

YES your Christmas gifts can be luxury gifts at a tiny price! Kurlash gifts to beautify the eyes are something every woman and girl of your acquaintance would delight in owning! Imagine the excitement of receiving gold and silver eye shadows!

And if you want to go more swank include a Kurlash eye beauty brush.

Then again we'll bet every young—and not so young—person on your list would "give anything" to have curly eyelashes. You can be sure that Kurlash, the famous little wonder that curls eyelashes to petal loveliness (and does it all in thirty seconds) will be received with loud whoops of joy!

Another suggestion is Lash-tint, the liquid mascara, to darken lashes to exotic beauty. It's waterproof, doesn't crack or smart, and comes in a divine little modern shaped glass bottle for her dressing table.

In Peabody, Mass., following the high school football team's third defeat, Police Chief William F. Pierce ordered patrolmen to visit each player's home every night to see that he went to bed by 10 o'clock.

Tales and Traditions from American Political History

MORE THAN A WHISPER

RARE indeed is the Presidential contest which does not bring out a "whispering campaign"—that attempt to discredit a candidate by circulating slanderous stories reflecting upon his morals or motives. So it is refreshing to learn that occasionally political partisans dare to speak out boldly against an opponent instead of working against him secretly and in the dark—to shout rather than to whisper.

One of the earliest examples of this kind of campaigning took place during the Adams-Jackson contest in 1828. It was a printed placard which read:

IMMORALITY

"Fellow citizens, can we vote for the man who openly sets the laws of the great Jehovah at defiance, thereby showing a bad example to our children? Some few Sundays ago Mr. Adams passed through Providence galloping and running his horse, and at every tavern stopping to receive the salutes or huzzahs of the Federal Party. I have always been an Adams man until he violated and trampled on the laws of God; now my conscience forbids my supporting him. I therefore shall choose Andrew Jackson, one who keeps holy the Sabbath Day.

A Professor of Religion. Kittery Point, Maine, Sept. 9, 1828."

WITH YOUR HOME Demonstration Agent CONDUCTED BY MISS META GRACE

How I Live At Home
First I grow sufficient foodstuff for our table at home. I have as many fresh foods for my table all the year around as possible, including vegetables of all sorts. In addition of producing enough for the table I can sufficient for the needs of my family not only for the table but some for sale and to be given as gifts, for showers, parties, etc. This year I produced enough cucumbers not only for the table but to can 107 quarts of dill cucumber pickles. I grow my own dill for the pickle. We can sufficient vegetables and other sorts of pickles, fruits and also can sufficient meats to do the family throughout the year. This year I canned liver, brains, spare ribs, roast of all kinds of specialties from the beef, including sufficient broth and soup mixtures to be used. My daughter and I specialize in making fruit cakes and we make the Japanese fruit ham in making men's handkerchiefs. Over $200.00 worth of these handkerchiefs have been made this past year and these were made during spare hours now and then while receiving or paying social calls and at parties, etc. Having seven in family this pen money is badly needed and of great benefit to our family. At a recent spend-the-day party by the Home Demonstration Club of which we are members my daughter and I displayed our special set of cooking utensils. Each piece carrying its own themometer and which we are very proud of. The Club was astonished at the lovely vessels we use and remarked "We understand now why they are specialists in foods," and I replied, "Yes, you must have good tools with which to do the work."

Health Play Story Given By The Baker Club
Our Home Agent, Meta E. Grace, asked that we have a health program at our next meeting, so the President appointed a committee to decide the program and finally a Health and Foods play was decided on since we were studying foods. This play was named "Mary Wakes Up." Mary was a shiftless, thoughtless girl who idled her time away or slept the greater portion of her time. She finally read an article how she could be a full fledged American girl. They pay her a visit bringing with them their aides representing the various characters essential for good health, and each of these explained to Mary how essential they were in playing an important part in any American girl's life. There was Uncle Sam, the doctors, the nurses and their aides in costume. Each giving their prescription. The play was so good that the Home Agent invited our club to have the play for the next rally to be held in the spring. I forgot to tell you that Mary afterwards made a first class American 4-H Club girl.

Santa Coming Around
Preparing for a special program to be used at our club for our next December meeting we are preparing to give a Xmas play, "Santa Comes Around." The characters were Santa Claus, his reindeers and six helpers. Each with a specific duty to do. The play has much action showing Santa arriving and the discussion of the list of 4-H Club girls that he is planning to visit and bring bringing out the good points here and there of the girls. The play has much life and action and the gifts are well distributed and it is learned that Santa has a new set of reindeers and a much faster cart for his circuit around the world on his new, modern carriage in three minutes. He says he is working harder than ever before because each one has tried harder than ever to do his or her part. We hope to give the play not only at the club but during the Xmas holidays for our school. We have had no sleep and feel proud that we are smart enough to do things ourselves. Our play lasts fifteen minutes.

What's Goin' On
The music goes 'round 'n round 'n it comes out here...
The Kiwanis Club is looking out some worthwhile things. Coming out after civic needs of Clanton and Chilton County. Finding ways to help the storm sufferers, disasters, promoting activities that are worthwhile as giving Xmas packages to the poor, assisting and encouraging Victor Norris and his splendid new magazine, "The Central Alabamian." And, too, they are finding ways of advertising and putting the "big city" on the map. Who else could do this better than a wide-awake Kiwanis organization.

Speaking of Victor Norris and the "Central Alabamian," a brand new magazine showing what's going on, who's who and what's likely to happen. Victor and Adelbert have something that should interest every citizen in the district. A paper chock full of ideas, facts and helpful information. They are to be congratulated on their splendid recent edition just off the press. If you haven't a copy get one and let's do our bit to establish permanently the future of "The Central Alabamian."

Clanton's Music Club is another progressive feature of "wide-awake Clanton." With splendid active officers this club is developing both interest and talent that gives lightness of heart and love for the good and beautiful. The writer had the privilege of enjoying one of their splendid programs recently consisting of Spirituals and the History of Music. Credit must be given for the services of Miss Della Latham for the Xmas church program she is developing. The public can't know the effort, the patience and the time one must have to be so generous in doing such things for the public's benefit. This is a true example of "free generosity." Mrs. O. B. McKinnis, likewise, to be commended. Practicing and working with the younger boys and girls on "Xmas Carols." Remember they are to visit you, too, if there is a candle in your window.

The Pilot Club with ulterior motives is quite an asset to Clanton. Even the working girls are organized these days and fine that they are. Even with short hours for pleasure they find ways of mixing both pleasure and business in a profitable way. Accepting an invitation to their club recently found these girls as generous in their club as they are known to be in their daily services. They had turned over their club to their "bosses." Dear me, thought I, what do they mean? But the bosses put it over with a bang, and before the evening was over these "bosses" realized for once the girls had them under their thumb. They had to be good. It was found these girls are sponsoring Girl Scout work, providing a business scholarship fund encouraging flower show, providing lunches for six needy children of Clanton grammar school, and to give music to a worthy and talented Clanton child. I ask you—is this club worthwhile? Other Clubs and activities will follow this article.

PASSING FOOTPRINTS
Of The Times
— Billy Smith —

Tomorrow we work. Thursday we work with a full day, and then Friday will have a day off. A day in which to pay our mite toward Him whose life brings us here. But, because we get into Friday, Christmas, we shall spend something over a year old, will wake up Christmas morning and find those things Santa would bring him—those things a little fellow, his first Christmas. It is the first Christmas we have had one like him for our own. Now we know what pleasure, what thrill there is to be had from such an event. Yes, it is his first Christmas and may he pass on in his merry age the thoughts we have now for those little fellows who await Santa Claus on Christmas morning after a night of visioning him coming down the chimney. And too, it is a thrill, a pleasure to know that we have made several other little fellows believe that Santa didn't forget them altogether this Christmas, even if the real Santa was running a bit short of toys and the makings of toys and Christmas cheer.

Do You Know?

We note, with some interest, and for amusement that the magazine "Alabama" prints an article, with pictures, about friend Marshall Johnson who calls him "the mystery man of Alabama" or "Alabama's mystery man extraordinary." They wonder who he is, his grins and other things about them. They print, handsome, intelligent, affable? Yes, and lots of it. Friend, Marshall, is truly a mystery man to Legislators on Goat Hill, especially when they are in session. He is no legislator to vote for or against a bill, he seeks no favors. True enough. Marshall is a friend of ours, and don't you know Hubert? Always, we know that Marshall is always the job, and we know too, that Marshall is thinking fast when he might be talking rather slow. "Alabama" might learn some things from Marshall as to the proper approach—and coaxing.

Bishop-Cagle Wedding Took Place On Sunday

The marriage of Miss Ethel Cagle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cagle, Mitchell, Ala., to Mr. Paul Bishop, Birmingham, was solemnized at 11 o'clock Sunday morning at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. Keller, in Birmingham. The Rev. S. Bishop, father of the groom, performed the ceremony in the presence of a few friends and relatives. The ceremony was beautiful in its simplicity. The bride wore a grey ensemble, carrying a lovely bouquet of chrysanthemums. She is one of the popular girls of this county, and has spent in this county's schools for years. She is a member of the Phi of the Isabella High School.

Mr. Bishop comes from a well known family and is connected with the Southern Railroad. He received his education at Simpson High School, Birmingham, and at Birmingham-Southwest College. They plan to make their home in Birmingham following the close of the schools.

To Everyone Of You

While it is an age old custom to extend Christmas greetings—a custom that however old, may it never grow small, light nor insincere. So, this Christmas the news, from the bottom of its heart, extends best wishes to you all—everyone.

As we look back over the year 1936, we are moved to a deeper, a more sincere appreciation of your friendship.

Each year we realize more fully that our friendships are what make life worth living and we, therefore, like to feel that there is a spirit of friendship underlying our business, social, religious and civic relations with you. Our daily experiences confirm this feeling.

We are particularly grateful for the privilege of knowing you, our county, our state and our nation. We are grateful for your friendship and your loyalty, and your loyalty you have expressed in this newspaper and our organization is deeply appreciated.

All of us here at the News join in wishing you and yours the best of good wishes for the holiday season, and hope you'll be the merriest ever. We extend to you our greetings.

OFFICERS FIND MANY VARIED ARRESTS HERE

Inroads Made Into Violators Of Law During Past Week By Sheriff's Office

The past week brought several varied charges to the office of J. R. Hardy and his deputies in their line of duty of nabbing violators of the laws in this county.

Two stills with a quantity of mash and beer were seized. One arrest for assault, two for public drunkenness, one for assault and battery, one for assault with intent to murder, one for hunting without license, one for rape and one for forgery.

Sheriff Hardy stated that so far they have seized very little liquor which had the earmarks of being saved for the holiday season.

PROBATE OFFICE WILL BE OPEN AS USUAL SATURDAY

Although several of the county offices will be closed Friday and Saturday for Christmas, the office of the Probate Judge will be open as usual Saturday, according to Judge J. Lee Smith.

CLANTON LAUNDRY TO BE CLOSED FRIDAY, SATURDAY

F. L. Thompson, manager of the Clanton Laundry & Cleaning Co., announced Monday that his place of business would take two days for Christmas observance. This means that they will be closed Friday and Saturday of this week, and ask their customers to please keep this in mind.

John Hollis Honored By Kiwanis Magazine

Special.—The current issue of the Alabama Kiwanis Courier is dedicated to John L. Hollis of Clanton, Alabama, retiring lieutenant governor of this division, in honor of the outstanding record his district has made in 1936.

The club at Auburn was the winner of the agricultural cap with the Dadeville club a close second. The Dadeville club also did excellent work in soil conservation under the leadership of Fletcher N. Farrington, county agent for Tallapoosa county.

The Montgomery club ranked high in work with boys and girls. This club gave particular attention to underprivileged children by providing professional service. The Clanton club is determined to have a combined airport grounds, swimming pool, and other facilities. The airport is now a reality and the Clanton Kiwanis club is developing a community center with the other facilities named.

The Selma club has emphasized work with children both privileged and underprivileged. Their Camp McGee has become a community institution each summer with many children enjoying the camping facilities. The Opelika club staged a "country store" to raise money for conducting an eye clinic for children and giving them surgical and medical attention.

Mr. Hollis, in accepting the honor, gave full credit to the clubs in his division.

Miss Lucile Edwards is at home from College to spend the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Edwards.

TO YOU

Throughout the pages of your News this week will be found advertising space used by merchants and business men of Clanton to extend to the people of this section cordial wishes for a very Merry Christmas. # OFFICES OF COUNTY WILL TAKE 2 DAYS

Commissioners Order Gives Three County Officials Two Xmas Holidays

An order, passed by the Commissioners Court Monday will enable three county offices to be closed Friday and Saturday of this week for Christmas.

When the offices of Tax Collector, Tax Assessor and Circuit Clerk close Thursday night, they will not open again until Monday morning. The law requires these offices to remain open except on legal holidays unless the Commissioners pass an official order that they may close.

City Hall Will Be Closed For Two Days

Among the offices in Clanton to take Friday and Saturday of this week for Christmas is included the office of the Mayor and City Clerk, according to C. H. Pipes, clerk.

Mayor Jones stated that he hoped it would not be necessary to reopen his office to have someone face charges of any violation during the Christmas gayety, and extended every-one wishes for a happy day.

That's What I Think

Saul M. Goldstein

It was cold. Tall trees, stripped of their warm green foliage and blackened in the darkened sky, spread away from the roadside like gaunt soldiers of despair in a routed and retreating army. A cold, biting wind drove rich white flakes of gritty snow into the trees, and deeply into the ground. As far as one could see, on all sides, the vivid contrast of white snow and black trees was blinding in its portrayal of the vast expanse of nature.

The road was long. It came from somewhere, and wound its weary way through forests and plains, alongside rivers and lakes, up and down hill, to somewhere else. Along the road two people trudged.

In that great panorama of white and black, they seemed like two tiny dots moving almost imperceptibly into nowhere. If you would come closer, you would distinguish size, features, differences. There was a great difference in their ages. The elder of the two, passed thinly by a longworn overcoat studded clumsily through the thick-fallen snow. His hair and beard matched white for white with the snow, and his tall, thin form reminded you somewhat of the tall trees spreading away into the distance. His walk was the unsteady tread of uncertain years, the feet of the blind groping for the next step.

Beside him, the younger walked steadily but questioning. He looked from side to side, and straight ahead, but never backward. His little feet, anxious to move forward faster and faster but restrained by the leading steps of his older companion, showed little sign of weakness. His tongue kept up a steady stream of questions and observations, to which the older had long before given up all hope of ever replying satisfactorily.

"Grandpa, is it much farther to where we are going?"

"I don't know, Sonny. The road seems all alike to me, no matter how far we have come. Beside, even if I knew how far it is, it would not bring us one whit closer."

"Grandpa, is it warm where we are going?"

"You will find warmth, Sonny. There are places ahead of you where it is ever warm. And others where it is cold again, with white snow and black trees. But the road is long, and there will be many summers and winters alone the way."

"Have you seen many summers and winters, Grandpa?"

RED CROSS ON JOB HERE IN RECENT STORM

Immediate Action Is Taken Following Tornado On December 6th

The American Red Cross was right on the job as usual in this county, aiding those in need, following the tornado which swept through the southwestern section of the county on the night of Sunday, December 6th, according to J. M. Martin, who was appointed local disaster relief chairman.

Following a visit made by Stone J. Cramm and Mrs. Beatrice Vines, representing the American Red Cross following the storm, twenty-four persons were found to be in need of relief. Three hundred dollars were appropriated for immediate relief at that time for these people. This covered clothing, food and necessary household goods, Mr. Martin stated.

Five of those sent to the hospital were in care of the Red Cross with proper finances and an extra appropriation. It was stated that rehabilitation will take place later for these families in the storm section. Anyone wishing to give toward these stricken families may do so through J. M. Martin.

MEMBER OF ONE OF OLDEST FAMILIES DIES

Mrs. Roberta Wilson Laid To Rest Monday Afternoon In Local Cemetery

Mrs. Roberta Wilson, a member of one of the oldest and most prominent families of this county, died Sunday morning at the age of 67, after an active life in social, religious and civic affairs of her town.

Mrs. Wilson was taken seriously ill last Thursday night, and was rushed to a Birmingham hospital where she died Sunday morning about five o'clock. The body was brought to Clanton Sunday where it was prepared for burial by Spigner Funeral Home.

The deceased is the daughter of the late Dr. Joe Johnson, who was at one time widely known in this section, having practiced his profession as a medical doctor in the Mulberry community and vicinity for many years.

Many older residents of this county will remember the daily life of Mrs. Wilson and her family, her brother and sister, William and Mamie, who died several years ago. And a sister, Mrs. Dave Campbell, who now resides in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Approximately forty years ago, the deceased was married to the Hon. Tipton Mullins, who became one of the most widely known attorneys of this section and who is a brother of Reed Mullins and Reid Mullins, two of Clanton's prominent citizens. From this union two girls and one son were born and now occupy worthwhile positions. They are Hon. Joe Mullins, well known attorney in Clanton; Mrs. Sophia Mullins-Nelson of Chattanooga, and Dr. Tipton Mullins Joliffe of New York City.

Several years ago following the early death of Hon. Tipton Mullins, her (Continued to Back Page)

C.H.S. WINS FROM MONTEVALLO BY SCORE OF 20 TO 16

The local high school won its first basketball game of the season last Wednesday night from the Montevallo High School by the score of 20 to 16. Both teams showed early season lack of form, but the prospects for the local team is not so dark as they appeared. Most of the basketball material of this school graduated last spring, but with a good sized squad reporting regularly a winning team should be developed before many weeks of the new year.

A team from the local CCC camp defeated the high school in an exciting game Thursday night.

The Community's Greatest Asset

Great metropolitan centers are located where natural conditions, either of today or in times past, favored their growth. Good harbors, excellent water transportation facilities, good railroad connections, and an abundance of available natural resources all account for the development of our great cities.

But the difference between a live and progressive community and a dead town involves entirely a matter of vision, of enterprise, and a spirit of co-operation on the part of its citizens, either of today or of years gone by.

Many a fine, progressive community has none of the natural advantages of our great metropolitan centers. They are live-wire communities because their citizens for the past fifty years or more have so willed it.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. BAKER

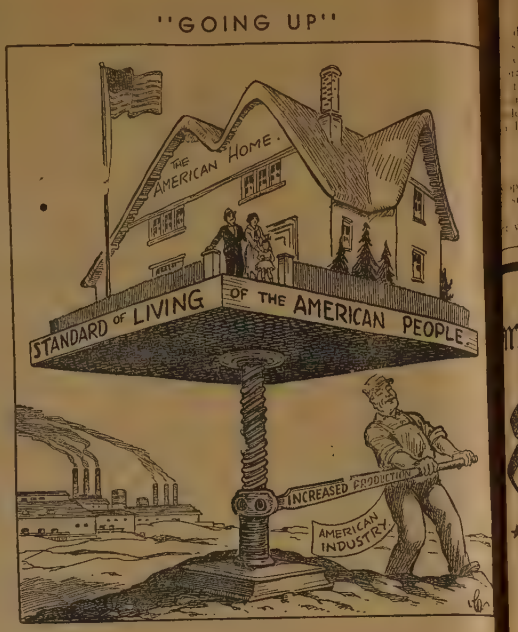

Having to make a trip to town in a downpour of rain I went to the hall tree for the family umbrella. On reaching the front steps I pushed open my hope for protection and found that it had five broken ribs. It was practically useless on account of its condition. The covering was all right but the ribs were broken and the covering had no support. Many a time have I gone to this and that church member to find help for a certain task. The members of my flock had a good reputation and without seeing them in action I thought them to be just what was needed, but I saw differently when they were called to face the need. They had broken ribs of character, they were indifferent to the task, they had a blundering way of doing things. They were almost useless in the place to which they had been assigned. Verily, I say unto you, many are needed most; they reveal their useless characteristics.

While passing in front of the picture show building early one morning I noticed a gathering of small boys as they had stopped on their way to school. One poorly dressed little lad stood before the picture of the hero advertised in the picture and he studied the face closely. Then he advanced to a large looking glass that was near by and started to looking himself over. He piled his feet one on top of the other so as to kinder hide them out. Then he adjusted his overalls and set his cap to one side on his head. I fancied that the boy was trying to make himself look like Tarzan. He was just an underfed, poorly clad little fellow, but he saw wonderful possibilities in himself. He looked at that unkept form of himself in the looking glass and forgot all about everything but becoming a great actor some day. That boy revealed a fine philosophy of life. It may be that you are low down on the ladder of life, but it is well for you to think of what you can become if you will do your best. See something in yourself.

While watching the ball game I saw a player make a wonderful hit. Like a greyhound he went to third base. The game went on and this man who was now in sight of the home plate became careless. He was sure of his ground for there were no outs. Just then he directed his attention to the grandstand and before he knew it the pitcher shot the ball to the third base and he was out. I thought of what a pity it was for the man to be so near the end of a successful play and yet lose out because of a lack of attention and concern. Many a time have we witnessed a like play on the diamond of life. Think now of some young man, some young woman who started out well in life and made a spectacular dash toward success, and yet who were put out of the game with success in sight and all because they failed to be on their guard.

It was show day in the automobile shop. Many had gathered about the new model and I pressed in among them to see all that was to be seen. The men were talking about the new model and cars in general. I said nothing but listened in on the conversation as they freely expressed themselves as to the kind of car that each one liked to drive. They were making many demands of the car. Then I started a silent conversation with the car before us. Said I unto it: "These men here are saying what kind of a car they like to drive. Now tell me what kind of a man would you like to have at the wheel when you are carried out of this room?" It seemed that I could see the car shake its head when I pointed to this one and that one. The car would shake its head and behold and it objected to men driving it when we all knew that the men were drinkers. Friends, if you do not want to drive a crazy car, then it is up to you not to be a crazy nut at the wheel. If cars had will power they would refuse to turn a wheel when certain folks come to crank them up.

A stoker came ashore in Mobile and having no personal pride and no care for other people, he wore his sooty clothes out on the crowded sidewalk. It was a gala occasion and many ladies were out clad in white. This stoker crowded among the throng and that night many a poor pedestrian looked with dismay upon white garments that were hopelessly soiled. The stoker had rubbed against them and the soot and grease of his garment had ruined those whom he had touched. They did not see the man who had rubbed against them, but his touch was there. Listen to me, folks, young and old—you had better be careful of whom you touch along the way of life. There are many people who have the blackness of the stoker on their character and you can not comrades with them and stay clean. You are not only known by the company you keep, but your company will leave signs of their comradeship on your character. Beware how you let black characters rub against you.

The Season's Greetings

To our subscribers and friends it is indeed a pleasure to take advantage of this occasion to extend our sincere greetings of the season. May your Christmas be merry, may the family be assembled in a spirit of happiness and good will, may you enjoy that glow of pleasure which comes with the knowledge that you have done something to make the lives of others just a little more pleasant, just a little more comfortable and just a little happier.

But we cannot permit the occasion to pass without a few serious thoughts on the subject of Christmas. It is right that this should be the greatest of all holidays, that it should be devoted to a sincere desire on the part of us all to make life more pleasant for others.

It is also fitting that we should give some serious thoughts to the high idealism of the occasion. "Peace on Earth to Men of Good Will." Two thousand years ago that vision of a world of peace was given to men by the Great Leader whose Nativity we observe with due reverence. And though men have paid lip service to that lofty ideal since that date what do we observe in this present world of jealousy, hatred and animosity.

Nations are arming for the irrepressible conflict. Across armed borders they hurl diplomatic insults and threats and most observers are wondering when the spark will strike and the conflagration will begin to roar.

And leaving international issues we still observe that greedy men are willing to extort the last ounce of personal gain from every transaction. Little can Christmas mean to them other than another holiday or an opportunity for commercial profit.

On this holiday occasion which we trust you will observe in all its traditional form, please pause for a moment and consider the true significance of the day. The precepts of Him whose name we revere on this occasion offer the solution to all the issues and all the problems which perplex and distress our time.

So with due reverence and sincerity we again extend our wishes for a Merry Christmas and a happy holiday season.

A Rule of Success

"Learn to be tolerant toward others." "This is the first rule of success I would offer to any young person," observes a friend of the writer's not long ago. "Learn to be tolerant of the other fellow's personality, learn to overlook his petty faults, learn to respect his views."

The more we have considered this idea the more weight we give it. Thrift, ambition, industry, initiative are all vitally important. They alone may lead you well along the pathway to financial success. But true success goes farther than that. To become a useful member of society and of your associates you must develop a spirit of toleration. You must realize that the faults you find in others may be balanced by other faults you know not of which you possess yourself.

This rule of success, of course, must include some definition of success. And we consider the person who enjoys the companionship of many good friends, who serves a useful function in his community, who sees the best in his associates and makes the best of his circumstances, who supports himself and family in a reasonable degree of comfort and security—that person we consider successful.

When you get to worrying about the future effect of present day fads, just recall what happened to the real estate boom, Mah Jong, and Technocracy. It's well enough to save for a rainy day but you should also try to enjoy today's sunshine too.

Security For Agriculture

The promise of assured economic security for farmers contained in the recent address by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace should be read with pronounced interest by every citizen of the country.

Whether the methods to be adopted will meet all expectations, whether there can be an elimination of inequities and ineffective effort is a matter of little concern at the present moment. The program in its bare outline and the motives which impel it will, and should, meet with almost universal favor.

Depression years have taught us that the farmer's welfare is of vital importance to every citizen. When his income is forced far below the general level of industry, when he cannot possibly buy the goods offered by industry and business we experience national distress. The pronounced determination of the Secretary of Agriculture, who in matters pertaining to agriculture serves as the spokesman for the administration is significant. We trust and hope that his program will meet with success.

In this connection we like to call attention to the fact that the Chilton County News will open its columns to news and information relative to the new program. From past experience we know that a vast amount of detailed information must be distributed to farmers to enable them to co-operate in any agricultural adjustment program. It has been a pleasure to us in the past to do our part in this way to aid the cause. It shall be our desire and pleasure to continue to serve in the cause of equality for the greatest of industries, namely agriculture.

Support Your Community

We recognize that there are times and occasions when it may be reasonable and logical for a citizen of Clanton to buy something outside the community. Even in large metropolitan stores one cannot always get just exactly what one wants or needs for some particular purpose or occasion.

But it is possible to direct the great bulk of your retail buying through local establishments. The stores of Clanton have excellent stocks of merchandise all priced right. The merchants of the community support its varied public activities.

They contribute heavily to our local government, our school system, our local institutions. They make possible our service clubs and social activities. They deserve your first consideration.

You Serve Yourself

He maintains our community's activities; he supports all worthy local enterprises, he contributes to our churches and public institutions, he pays taxes to support our schools and civic institutions. He's your local merchant.

But we don't ask you to support him for these reasons alone. We merely advise you to help maintain the business life of the community because you thereby serve your own interests.

If you own property, if your children attend schools, if you are interested in one of our churches or our civic institutions, if you are drawing your pay check from the community, obviously you should give your fellow merchant first consideration when you spend your money.

The value of your property, the character of the public service given in Clanton and the nature of the social and fraternal life of the community all hinge upon the prosperity of local business. When you do your bit to help make it better you are merely furthering your own interests. Think it over. Then give the home town business man a break.

KICKING TEDDY UP-HILL

IT IS certain that Theodore Roosevelt would never have become President in the manner he did if it hadn't been for Sen. Thomas Platt, then the political boss of New York state. In order to insure the presence of a Republican at Albany, but with inner misgivings which were soon to be realized, he prevailed on the popular Rough Rider to become the gubernatorial candidate, shortly after the Spanish war.

Roosevelt was elected and showed immediately that he could not be controlled by Platt or any boss. Platt's embarrassment was only that of a politician. But the discomfort of his friends, thoroughly disturbed by Teddy's big stick gestures, became a problem.

The solution, finally arrived at by a devious route, appeared before the primaries of 1900. The Republican party in New York was to name a candidate for governor—perhaps Roosevelt again—in September. But the Republican party in the United States had to name a running mate for President McKinley and the latter convention would be held in June!

Platt decided that Teddy would be the vice-presidential candidate. He would kick Roosevelt up-hill, and out of New York state.

Roosevelt himself realized the move had been launched to shelve him, for so he regarded the vice-presidency. Moreover, neither Mark Hanna of Ohio, a president-maker in a big way in those days, nor McKinley wanted Roosevelt on the national ticket.

But Platt persisted. He was aided by Roosevelt's growing popularity, particularly in the West.

These Westerners carried their Roosevelt enthusiasm to the convention with them. The boom reached proportions that Hanna could not ignore and in a conference with Platt the night before the nominations the president-maker capitulated.

Hanna issued a statement advocating Roosevelt for the vice-presidency and told the newspapermen: "Boys, you can't stop it any more than you could stop Niagara."

Soon to become President at the unfortunate death of McKinley, Roosevelt won the election. And when the gleeful Senator Platt was asked if he would attend the inauguration he replied: "Yes, I am going down to see Theodore Roosevelt take the veil."

LEGISLATORS GO HOME

AS RECESS PAY VOTED

State Lawmakers Adjourn Until Jan. 5-When Liquor And Sales Tax Battles Faced; Rogers Committee Plans Meeting

Members of Alabama's special session legislature scattered to their homes over the state Saturday for a Christmas recess until Jan. 5 after ringing down the curtain on the pre-Yuletide session by voting themselves and the legislative clerical forces full salary during the adjournment.

Voting down opposition to the plan, which started in the house rules committee, those favoring the holiday on pay broke a three hour deadlock Friday by a vote of 42 to 39 in the house and 17 to 13 in the senate. The cost to the state—$24,786.

Tax and Rum Fight Looms

Chief question in the minds of department lawmakers—would there be a serious effort after Christmas to enact the two per cent general sales tax bill introduced yesterday as a repealer for the gross receipts tax enacted into law Thursday. And ranking only a step below was this poser—would the wet forces consolidate their divided ranks and push through to passage a state-store system liquor control bill that was side-tracked in the senate this week after passing the house? Senator Max Rogers of Mobile, chairman of the senate temperance sub-committee assigned to study the house repeal measure, said that this group would meet in Mobile during the holidays to start their work. Others on the sub-committee are Senator Floyd Mooneyham of Montgomery.

The holiday-on-pay resolution will give each of the legislators $102 for the recess at their $6 daily compensation rate. Top pay of $187 will go to Lieut. Governor Thomas E. Knight, Jr., senate president and Speaker Pro Tem M. L. Robertson of the house—neither of whom voted on the proposals. The resolution also provided salary for all legislative officials, committee clerks, pages, messengers, doorkeepers, and the sergeant-at-arms.

Foes of the plan declared there was no justification for the continuance of salaries during the recess except for the office force of Secretary of Senate Earl Speight and House Clerk Ed Taylor, but they were voted down. A check today showed that the house expense for the 17-day recess will be $17,097, and the senate will be $7,089.

Before swinging into the adjournment fight, the senate passed appropriation bills providing $382,000 for Auburn's experiment stations and ex-

Auburn, Ala.—The American Farm Federation resolves that a national farm policy must provide: for restoring and maintaining a high degree of soil fertility; a schedule of agricultural tariffs to protect the domestic market from competing imports that hold or force American prices below parity levels of industrial and agricultural commodities; aggressive efforts to develop new domestic farm products; state and federal marketing agreements; the holding of surpluses from market channels in the most economical way under a system of federal loans based on warehousing or trust receipts.

Clanton Namesake Of L. & N. President Sees Centenary Mark Bring Mention In Magazine

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Employees magazine of this month carried an article regarding the centenary of the birth of Milton Hannibal Smith, former president of the railroad. In Clanton, Milton C. Smith, superintendent of waterworks for the city, and a namesake of the former railroad employee, finds he had almost forgotten that it had been sometime since the birth of the outstanding man for whom he was named.

Following is a comment on this centenary:

"September 12, 1936, according to the December L&N Employees' Magazine, marked the centenary of the birth of Milton Hannibal Smith, who for 32 years was the chief executive officer and president of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, and to whose patient handiwork, constructive deeds and mighty genius is attributed much of the growth of the L&N and the southern territory it serves.

"Born in Greene County, New York on September 12, 1936, Mr. Smith came south at an early age and began his railroad career at Holly Springs, Miss., prior to the Civil War. He accepted an offer to become agent for the L. & N. railroad at Louisville, Ky., in 1866, left it in 1878 and returned in 1882 as third vice president and traffic manager. A few months later he was made chief executive officer, and on June 11, 1884 became president. "It was then that Mr. Smith began to aid in opening up the resources of the South, according to the magazine. It states that he offered sliding scale freight rates to enable infant industries in the Birmingham district to get a foothold and develop the rich mineral deposits, recommended that his company invest in small industrial adventures that were crying for the necessary capital; that he opened up timber lands, sent agricultural agents throughout the land to advise the farmers, made analyses of the soil and brought immigrants to settle the unoccupied acres, etc.

"Mr. Smith served the L&N until his death in 1921 and was widely known as one of the nation's ablest railroad executives."

When his car was tagged for illegal parking, Judge Merle Chapman of Shawnee, Okla., fined himself $1 but remitted $250 costs.

Accusing her husband of throwing her out of a window of their home, Mrs. Nadia Degroff of Rock Island, Ill., filed suit for divorce.

POWERFUL FERTILIZERS BEING PRODUCED BY TVA

Atbun, Ala.—The Tennessee Valley Authority is producing superphosphate fertilizers, two to five times more powerful than those generally used, and farmers and agricultural experiment stations in seven valley states are giving them a thorough testing, says the Associated Press.

The authority is striving still further toward higher concentration of plant food, maybe phosphorus itself, an element in which 90 per cent of all soils are deficient. Utilizing giant electrical furnaces of the big, war-time plants at Wilson Dam, the Authority has already produced fertilizer material with phosphorus content as high as 60 per cent.

In spite of all these statistics on accidents in the home, says, we would still prefer to take a little chance on bathtub soap rather than a grand ton truck.

POULTRY NEEDS FEED TO REPLACE GREENS

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers can improve the health of their hens and increase their egg production during the winter months by adding five per cent alfalfa meal, good grade ground limestone, or soybean hay to their mash, advises John E. Ivey, extension poultryman.

This advice is given by Mr. Ivey after calling attention to the fact that it is harder to give hens a well balanced diet in cold weather when little, if any, green feed is available. Even if some green feed is available, the birds usually do not have access to it, as most of them will be confined in houses to protect them against severe cold, he points out.

Keep a close check on the body weight of layers, as heavy autumn egg production tends to drain their weight and vitality.

Give more scratch feeds if they are under weight, but reduce the amount of scratch feed if they are too fat. Excess fat is not good for the birds. Neither is it advisable to waste money on overfeeding.

Ivey added that it is not too early to start thinking about next year's feeding program. "If you have land suitable for growing scratch feeds plan to raise your own and save the expense of buying it. This will increase your profits."

"This year's high prices should point out more strongly than before the importance of producing scratch feed at home when possible. Producing seventy-five per cent (1 bushel corn per hen) of the poultry feed at home should become a regular farm practice."

Almost Unanimous

"Ha, Ha, observed the stunting pilot as he ushered his passenger out at the air port, I'll bet fifty per cent of the people frown here thought we were falling."

"Well, no doubt about it. Fifty per cent of those up there thought so, too."

BLACKSTRAP MOLASSES GOOD FEED FOR CATTLE

Auburn, Ala.—Blackstrap molasses is one of the cheapest feeds available to Alabama livestock producers this winter, advises F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist.

"One pint of blackstrap per head per day will cheapen the ration of either beef or dairy cattle and will replace an equal weight of corn," he says. "Ensilage is one of the best substitutes for pasture for dairy cattle. Three pounds of ensilage and one pound of hay per 100 pounds of live weight of cattle fed daily will supply their roughage requirements."

"THANK goodness," said Martha Goodwin, bustling about her kitchen, "Christmas comes but once a year." She wiped back a loose wisp of graying hair with a weary gesture. "But it will be fine seeing you again, Lad," she murmured, thinking of her distant son. "Now, let's see. Those star cookies you're so fond of—" She glanced at the hurrying clock.

Loud shrieks of laughter under her window interrupted her thoughts. Those new neighbor children again. If they were dirtying up her freshly swept walk! She strode grimly to the porch. There was a path in the snow from their yard, around hers, and back again to their own, where all four of them had apparently trudged, pushing a snow ball, across her walk in two places. A tussel started suddenly, and they were all tumbling about in the snow, shrieking at the top of their voices.

Martha scolded shrilly at them, and they stood up, an abashed little line of stair steps. "The idea!

On Christmas, too!" Martha chided. "Whatever is the matter with your ma, that she lets you make such a racket?"

"She's sick," answered the oldest girl.

"Sick! Then all the more reason why you should keep still. Shame on you." The little group stood like statues.

Martha tucked in the wisp of hair. "You children come in here and sit still while I work, and I'll tell you a story," she invited. "Mind you wipe your feet."

"I suppose it should be a Christmas story," Martha began. "Do you know about the shepherds and the wise men?"

"Yes'm," they chorused. "We go to Sunday school," added the oldest girl.

"Then," Martha asked her, "shall I tell you about Santa Claus?"

Her face clouded a little. "Mother told us that," she answered soberly.

"Oh," said Martha. She dusted the flour from her hands and turned to baste the turkey. Four pairs of eager eyes watched her every move. The doorknob rang.

"Laddie! Good heavens," cried Martha, slipping off her apron, and rushed to the door.

But instead it was a telegram: "AWFULLY SORRY DARLING BUT I JUST CAN'T GET AWAY STOP DO TRY TO HAVE A MERRY CHRISTMAS STOP GO ON A SPREE AND I'LL FOOT THE BILL STOP EXPECT TO BE ABLE TO GET DOWN FOR NEW YEAR'S AND WILL EXPLAIN EVERYTHING THEN LOVE LADDIE."

Martha Goodwin read it twice. Then she smoothed the straying wisp of hair and went back to the kitchen.

"Well," the older girl was explaining, "it's sort of like a chicken, I guess, only ever so much bigger." The four children looked up as Martha entered. "Why what's the matter, Mrs. Goodwin?"

"My son—I was expecting him—he isn't coming."

"Gee," came a sympathetic chorus. "And you'd fixed everything so nice and—and Christmas—"

"I'm not going to have it spoiled," Martha decided. "Here," she said, and draped the holly wreath over the youngest's arm. "You," she said to the next one, "carry the potatoes, and you take the mince pie—careful, it's hot—and you," to the eldest, "take the vegetables. I think I can manage the turkey."

"But where are we going?"

"Over to your house. Weren't you about to miss out on Christmas dinner?"

"Dinner first, then presents," she suggested, and when, having eaten all they could hold, they gathered about the holly, she found a crudely wrapped present for herself. It was a picture scrapbook, somewhat smudged.

Were those tears in Martha Goodwin's eyes? Surely not, for she was smiling.

"Why, thank you," she exclaimed. "Such a lovely surprise! My," she added, "I do wish Christmas came more than once a year."

Indications are that the total world supplies of beef and veal during 1937 will be somewhat lower than in 1936 with prices continuing on the upward trend.

It is especially wise for farmers to keep lice off their brood sows during the winter months, advise livestock specialists of the Bureau of Animal Industry in recommending that farmers apply crude petroleum or used crankcase oil to kill the lice on the sows.

Pure or nearly pure white corn is prized by corn millers and premiums often are paid for such corn, reveals a study conducted by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Elimination of filler from fertilizers would save farmers of the country about $7,500,000 annually, reports the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils.

GILTS PRODUCE PIGS CHEAPER THAN SOWS

Auburn, Ala.—Gilts are more economical breeders than mature sows, according to results obtained in a 8-year breeding experiment completed by the United States Department of Agriculture. Pigs from gilts were raised at less cost per pound of marketable weight than pigs from mature sows.

"The health department has been doing its work very efficiently," states an article in an exchange, "as indicated by several epidemics in the community during the past year."

YOU will find, in countless American homes on Christmas morning, eloquent evidence of the place railroads and railroading hold in the hearts of folks throughout our land.

In the memory of elders still living, the railroads completed the bold and romantic enterprise of binding the nation together with bands of steel from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

And by their enterprise, the railroads continue to challenge the interest and stir the imagination of youngsters born and reared in an age of wonders.

Today, with undiminished vigor, the American railroads, in providing cheaper fares, faster freight and passenger schedules and marvelous records of safety, are writing new chapters into their romantic history.

Next time you take a trip, go by train.

Luke's Christmas Money

by Martha B. Thomas

LITTLE LUKE, watching his father splice rope, was suddenly struck with an idea. "It's just one strand after another, isn't it dad?" "Yes, just one strand after another that makes the rope that holds the ship. It's the way most things are accomplished, boy, when you come to think of it."

A cold wind blew around the fish shed back of the wharves. Other men were busy, too, tying snood-knots on trawls, hoping a good day would come for fishing tomorrow.

Luke walked away and up the hill. Christmas coming in a week! He knew his father and mother had been busy planning something for his happiness then. But what had he done? Nothing at all. He stood stock still, his thoughts all mixed up in a queer way, with the strands of rope that made the line, the hundreds of snood-knots the fishermen were tying. "Just one thing done, and then another to make the whole," he reflected.

Then, walking slowly again he seemed to see two one-dollar bills folded away in his pocket-book. And trailing back from the money a row of different pictures of himself, working hard to earn those two dollars. Planting seed potatoes in the spring, hoeing them, weeding in the hot sun, even watering his own plot when the weather was dry. Then, in the fall digging them up. Selling them . . . for two dollars. One bit of work after another. What next? He took more steps. Money was earned by the work of one person to buy something which was the work of another. Luke smiled. He knew "what next," very well indeed.

So, on Christmas morning, though Luke was delighted with his own gifts, he had an almost dizzy pleasure in watching his father and mother unwrap a pair of bedroom slippers and an apron he had given them. "My potato money!" he shrieked. "I got it by doing one thing after another . . . just the way the rope grows, strand after strand."

Luke's father looked puzzled, but his mother kissed him and said "Merry Christmas, dear!"

The Man Who-o-o

Tales and Traditions from American Political History

by FRANK E. HAGEN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THAT TWO-THIRDS RULE

IN 1832 a Democratic President decided to have his party's convention (the first it had ever held) renominate him and along with that decision he directed that the nomination of his running mate should be made by vote of two-thirds of the convention delegates.

One hundred and four years later a Democratic President decided to have his party's convention renominate him and along with that action he brought about the abolition of the century-old "two-thirds rule."

The man who originated that distinctively Democratic institution was Andrew Jackson. The man who ended its existence was Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Jackson had selected his secretary of state, Martin Van Buren, for the position of vice-president. The senate had only recently rejected Van Buren's appointment as minister to Great Britain and "Old Hickory" thought it would square accounts with that body to have the "Red Fox" preside over it. Also vice-presidents in those days usually succeeded to the Presidency through regular election and Jackson wanted Van Buren to be his successor.

So when his party prepared to hold its first convention in Baltimore in 1832, Jackson wrote out this resolution which he gave to one of his lieutenants to present to the delegates:

"Resolved, That each State shall be entitled, in the nomination of a candidate for the Vice-Presidency, to a number of votes equal to the number to which they will be entitled in the Electoral College under the new apportionment in voting for President and Vice-President; and that two-thirds of the whole number of the votes in the convention shall be necessary to constitute a choice."

The Baltimore convention was as completely dominated by Jackson as the recent Philadelphia meeting was controlled by Roosevelt so the delegates obediently adopted the resolution. During Jackson's lifetime several efforts were made to abolish the rule but all of them failed. After his death it became all but sacred and for the next hundred years the shadow of Andrew Jackson, in the form of this rule, hung over every Democratic convention.

MRS. GULMA EASTERLING DIED SATURDAY NIGHT

Mrs. Gulma Easterling, age 23, wife of Preston Easterling died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Minor, last Saturday night.

Funeral services were held at Sunshine Church the same afternoon with the Rev. M. Lockhart, assisted by the Rev. Orange, officiating. She is survived by her husband, her parents, three brothers and two sisters. Martin & Sons were in charge of burial.

"Yes," said the farmer, "well you just call here in a few months from now and you'll see the fattest, sleekest, nakedest farmer you ever saw."

Was Mother Pleased

"You must be awfully strong," said little Johnnie to the attractive widow who had come to pay a visit to his mother.

"Why do you think so, Johnnie?"

"Because my Daddy says you can wrap any man in town around your little finger."

HE WAS a small boy named Tim who had never been more than ten miles from his home in the Ozark hills. His teacher said he couldn't even bound Arkansas, his own state, but what his teacher didn't know was how well he knew the mountain "crick" and the hill slopes circled with green-gold pine trees that bounded his father's tiny farm. He also knew what it took to keep a family of six children and that for as long as he could remember his father's farm had scarcely been able to produce enough to stretch over every need.

It was just before Christmas time that he heard his father tell his mother that if there was to be anything "extra" to give the day its meaning for the children, he'd have to get the ax and hack out a few trees. Her face went white, for she knew what that meant. So often had they been forced to remain on the hacking of a few trees to be sold to the railroad for dire necessities that practically all their timber available for that purpose was gone. And trees don't grow over night. She could tell by the look on her husband's face that he was taking a desperate ate and back-breaking chance of finding a few logs tough enough for the commission man to buy.

As she looked out of the window and saw the passing cars of winter "tourists" on the new scenic road the government had built through the hills, she wondered by what magic folks could come to own automobiles and take time off like that to go traveling. But she hadn't many moments to spare on such thoughts, for her husband had returned to say that the ax was gone. Could one of the children have taken it?

The father had borrowed an ax from a wagon peddler but on the day before Christmas he was silent as he unhitched his team in the wagon lot. Christmas tomorrow and he had been forced to bring back the load from town. The commission man had been truly sorry, for he did need ties; yet none of these were large enough.

He crept up to a window, lost in the sense of failure that made him ashamed to walk to his own door. There an odd sight straightened him. Inside were Tim and his mother joyously trimming a Christmas tree. Tim raced to the door to keep the younger children from bursting gleefully into the room and learning its great secret.

When the father entered the house, no one asked him about the ties. "Dad, dad!" Tim shouted. "Do you know those red berry trees that grow way up the crick? Awful hard to get to, but when I found 'em I thought they were so purty I took some to the school. The teacher said, 'that's holly' and then I read about holly and learned that folks will pay for it to have it for Christmas. So I gathered a lot of it and made me a holly stand up on the new road just hopin' they would. And dad, they did buy it! Stopped their cars and said, 'Why it's holly; who would have thought we'd find it here!' They wanted so much I had to work awful hard getting it, but gee, it was fun! I wanted to surprise mom and you, and now I'll tell you both that I made $27.82. There's $20 right now in that bureau drawer left after buying our Christmas. Gee dad, I love this old farm! It's got lots of surprises on it yet. This one ain't the last one."

The father brushed a tear from his eye and kissed his wife. Then he shook hands with Tim. "You're the kind of son a man can be right proud to own," he choked.

"But dad, will you forgive me?" the boy suddenly implored.

"Why Tim, forgive you what?" the father asked in surprise.

The boy led the way to the kitchen. "You see dad, I just had to have it!"

The father pretended to frown as Tim pointed and then he winked. "Well, being as it's just about Christmas for us, as well as the rest of the world, I guess I'll have to overlook it." For there in a far corner of the room stood the ax. It was Tim who had borrowed it.

DECEMBER AND JANUARY
BEST FOR BREEDING COWS

Auburn, Ala. — Dairymen should breed a majority of their cows in December and January for fall freshening, states F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist in pointing out that Dairy Herd Improvement Association records show that cows that freshen in the fall produce more milk and return more profit above feed cost than cows that freshen in the spring.

FOR many years Marelu had not been exactly happy on Christmas; somehow she had never received the pretty things bestowed upon other girls. "If they all only knew how I have secretly longed for those soft, dainty luxuries," thought Marelu, as she sat before the fireplace, just three days before Christmas.

"There are those kitchen aprons, for instance, from dear old aunt Lucia. Every year, as far back as I can remember, it has always been aprons. I must have almost a dozen by now. Then there is cousin Marie, who has been sending the inevitable handkerchiefs right along, year after year. There must be quite a collection of them, too."

While she had been grateful and thankful for these kind remembrances, she had not been exactly thrilled. A happy Christmas thought suggested itself to Marelu as she gazed out at the slender icicles shining like silver in the moonlight. "I know what I'll do. I'll start right now and wrap up all these things into pretty Christmas parcels and give them to someone who really needs them."

When Christmas day arrived Marelu started out with her basket brimming full of beautifully wrapped and tied Christmas gifts. Every step she took over the holiday carpet of snow represented a kindly thought of cheer.

"Merry Christmas," she cried, as she handed a bright colored parcel to dear old Linda Larsen.

"The very same to you," said she, with a questioning look of surprise. The next moment she was proudly unwrapping a pair of pretty bath towels. Marlene and Dolly, two little girls around the corner, danced up and down with joy when they saw the snowy handkerchiefs with colored borders. Marelu smiled happily as she left the little girls and proceeded to her next stop. Effie Lynn was overwhelmed with surprise when a gift was handed her. She explained that it had been years since she had received a Christmas present.

After several other interesting calls Marelu started for home. The street lights flashed on and the glimmering Christmas trees joined in the ceremony on all sides of her. As she drew near her own home she stood still a moment and admired the grandeur of the dark pines encircling the house under a white burden of snow. The variations of colors gleaming from the windows seemed to be stretching out to meet the pines.

Inside the house was warmth and joy and Christmas cheer as the family gathered about the Christmas tree, pointed with the star of Bethlehem. Marelu was just in time for the celebration. Bobby had been chosen to read off the names upon the gifts and all eyes were centered upon the huge basket containing them.

"First on the program," shouted Bobby, "is for mother." All wondered what it could be.

"A gorgeous lamp shade," cried mother, as she held it up for all to see.

While still admiring this thing of beauty, Bobby shouted louder than ever, "Something for the governor, himself. Get ready, pop, for your surprise."

"What can the strange package be, for goodness sake?" said father, his eyes popping with interest. "Well, I do declare, if it isn't a golf set. Just what I have wanted for a long time," as he started to examine it.

"Oh boy, hold out your hands and catch. Dot, a ducky package for you, all tied with silver cord. What is it? Open it quick!"

Dot removed the bright red tissue and disclosed a white wool skating outfit. Marelu had been so absorbed in what the others were receiving that she had forgotten all about herself. For the first time in many years she had received the things she really adored. With a heart full of appreciation and joy, she suddenly shouted, "Merry Christmas!" The others did not quite comprehend the extent of Marelu's enthusiasm, but she, herself, felt, somehow, that this had been the very happiest, merriest Christmas she had ever had.

Chevrolet Sponsors
Safety, Economy Run

Harry Hartz, famous racing driver, left Detroit December 12 on a 10,000-mile safety and economy test tour around the rim of the United States in a Chevrolet commercial pick-up truck. With him was Stanley Reed, official observer for the American Automobile Association, which has issued its official sanction for the run.

The truck was selected from the assembly line at Chevrolet's Flint plant several days ago by Reed and Eric Von Hambach, regional representative for the A.A.A. The truck carries a certified 1000-pound load of iron.

Chevrolet officials expect Hartz will establish new records for truck economy in the arduous tests to which the truck will be put. It was Hartz who established new highs in economy on a 3,511.5-mile test run from Los Angeles to New York in a one and one-half ton Chevrolet truck carrying a 10,000-pound load a year ago.

Hartz's schedule calls for a route that will take in such cities as Chicago, Minneapolis, Great Falls, Mont. Spokane, Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Yuma, Ariz., San Antonio, Houston, New Orleans, Miami, Key West, Fla., Jacksonville, Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Portland, Me., Buffalo, and Cleveland. He expects to return to Detroit in approximately 60 days. The truck will have touched at the farthest points at all four corners of the United States.

Speaking in his picturesque style observed that a certain acquaintance was about as reliable as a weather forecast based upon the thickness of the hides on fur bearing animals.

That's What I Think

"Like leaves on a great oak tree, Sonny. One by one they fall and rot away into the past, until at last the tree is bare and there are no more leaves."

"You mean, Grandpa, that sometime there will be no more summers and winters to see?"

"For me, Sonny. But for you, there will be another great oak tree with many leaves, and another autumn to bring the leaves down, one by one."

"And after autumn, what?"

"Winter, and then a new spring and another great oak tree to spread its green leaves over the earth."

"Is Winter always cold and bare like this, Grandpa?"

"Always white snow and black trees, spreading away from the road in retreat."

"Then I don't like Winter. I like Spring, with green leaves and flowers. Don't you Grandpa? Don't you think Winter is an ugly time?"

"I used to think so." He paused to catch his breath, and rest his feet awhile. "But now, I think Winter is a beautiful time. It was in the Winter Sonny, that Jesus came to the earth."

"Like it is now, Grandpa?"

"Like it is now, with snow on the hills of Judea, and black trees spreading away from the road in retreat."

"Did Jesus come with the snow, Grandpa?"

"Jesus was the white snow on the black trees, Sonny. He was white and pure and clean, and He came among the fleeces of black and evil and despair." He paused again, at the top of a slight hill, and peered into the twilight. "Today is His birthday, Sonny, and we call it Christmas."

"Will there be candles, and a birthday cake to celebrate it, Grandpa?"

"There will be candles, and cake, and nice drink, Sonny, with joyful music and light hearts."

"Where will it be, Grandpa, and when will it be?"

"It will not be far, Sonny. Tell me, do you see a light ahead?"

"I see many lights, Grandpa, like a great house with many people."

"Is it far away, Sonny?"

"No Grandpa, it is just across the field, and there is a little white lane from the side of the road to the great house with many people."

"We will go in, Sonny, and celebrate the Birthday party."

Together they walked slowly up the lane, the old man stumbly more clumsily than ever. With slow steps, they finally reached the great house with many people, and softly knocked at the door.

"My grandpa and I come to celebrate the Birthday of Jesus. May we come in and join you?"

"Come in, come in, out of the cold, and make yourselves merry. Here, Father, take my hand."

The old man leaned heavily on the arm of the host.

"You lean heavily Father. You must be tired, and sore of foot."

"It is the weight of many years, my son."

Suddenly the weight became heavier, and the host could not hold the old man up. He fell to the floor, and lay there in a heap.

"Grandpa, grandpa, what has happened?"

"The many years are gone, Sonny," replied the host, as he bent over the old man. "Your grandfather is not with us any more."

"Then the last leaf has fallen, and winter has come!" The child sobbed bitterly.

"Whatever can the child be saying?" remarked one of the party. "The cold and the long walk must have affected him."

"No, no, no," wailed the boy. "He is now like one of the black trees, spreading away from the road in retrear."

"Don't worry, Sonny. Winter has come and all the leaves have fallen, but there will be a new Spring, and new leaves."

"Then I shall see many summers and winters, too?"

"Again one of the party interrupted. "The boy is upset, my dear host. He doesn't know what he is saying."

It is you who does not know what he is saying. "Out of the mouths of babies and sucklings."

Music Appreciation Club Held December Meeting.

Mrs. W. E. Huddleston was hostess to the Music Appreciation club at the December meeting on the 15th.

An attractive setting was accomplished in the use of pretty Christmas decorations in the living room and dining room.

Mrs. Ed Glasscock, president, presided. The Federation Hymn sung in unison opened the meeting. It was followed by reading the club collect. Roll call was answered with current events.

Following a short business session a delightful program was presented by the program committee with Mrs. J. M. Shepherd and Mrs. Reid Mullins in charge.

Mrs. Reid Mullins told interesting newspaper articles of Alabama people noted in music. Miss Beverly Hester was included in the list.

Mrs. Barney Roberts made an enthusiastic talk on the Federation musicians.

The club was delighted in having as guest Miss Jane McClure who sang two Italian Ballads and as an encore sang a Tango. She was assisted by Miss Ruth Mullins Shepherd at the piano.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. Huddleston served a tempting salad plate in Xmas colors with hot coffee.

Mrs. G. C. Powell is at home recovering from a serious operation at Highland Baptist hospital four weeks ago.

Of The Times

— Billy Smith

In Years
We pause this morning, while attempting to put something interesting in this column, to allow our mind to drift back over the past ten years. On January 1st, 1927, we walked into the News office to go to work. What to do, we didn't exactly know, except that we knew we had to do some kind of a job. It was on Monday morning and we had never had a piece of type, wrote a news story, operated a press before. In fact, was just about all Greek to us. Eventually after having been driving a truck for two or more years. But, our friend, J. B. Atkinson, who owned the News at that time, thru his kindness and patience, allowed us to get bearings, and after a long period of time we eventually found that running a newspaper was no position, but a job. We are a bit wiser in the ways of the world.

Today, with this issue of the News, and ten years later, the newspaper business in Clanton. Those have been years full of experience, pleasantness, and if we may say so, progress. Each year brought some kind of forward step. The News and we now look forward to the coming ten years. We believe we are a bit wiser in the ways of the world.

We are not ready just now to express feelings from our heart. In fact, we rather feel of feelings, so to speak, in years to us is a long time. Yet, seems only a short time since we went to work for the News.

At Of Luck
Yesterday, our good friend, Pete Jarman, left for Washington where he has been harnessed up for the task of a Congressman for two years. It is possible for many years to come, we are glad to see Pete up there in the nation's capital. He is not through in the business of being a congressman and we believe that if he is in a little breathing spell when he is in office, he will be one of those gentlemen we will want to send to represent us in Washington after two years are up. So, here's to Pete. We're wishing you the best of luck and we are with you. (P. S. — an extra bed ready. We might be up for the President's inauguration.)

Pink Sections
You receive two pink magazine sections in your News this week, it's right. One is for last week and the regular section for this week. We didn't want you to miss an important item in the interesting story that we are in that section, and anyway, we think you'll like the Christmas spirit and didn't put the magazine in.

Links
We are being overwhelmed at the press of the Big Subscription Campaign we are conducting. Our subscription list is mounting weekly and the fact that hundreds on top of hundreds of old subscribers are re-joining. That is most pleasing because it makes us believe that the News is being read and liked.

Wide Threat
Now that Christmas is over and everyone is back to work, or play, as we wish, we are heading into what is termed "the last round up" of renewing your subscription. After this week we will look over the subscription list and any of those whose subscriptions are not properly marked will be taken from the list. We must do this now. The postal regulations require that all subscriptions be paid up or taken from the list. So, rather than have Uncle Sam after us, we will have to discontinue all unpaid subscribers. This is selling now, during the special design for only one dollar. After that it jumps back to its regular price of fifty. Give your subscription to one of the ladies who are trying to get that new car.

Charles Moore
Charles Moore comes to town. We can't know him when, and now we are proud to say that we know Dr. Charles Moore who opens his offices tomorrow in the Dr. Arthur Johnson Building. Miss Dewey Branch will be his assistant and a good one she makes. So, here's congratulations and best wishes to both of you.

TIFFIN GRADUALLY IMPROVING AFTER TRANSFUSION

J. B. Tiffin, wife of the owner of Tiffin Furniture Co., of Clanton, is improving in a Montgomery hospital following a blood transfusion. Tiffin and the family requested ways to express their deep appreciation to those who offered aid to Mrs. Tiffin in this emergency and especially to the champion, of Verbera, who acted from a large number of friends for the transfusion. They express their thanks also, members of the department, Mayor Jones and others who rendered aid.

and Mrs. J. M. Martin of Birmingham spent several days here with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Martin.

In Bibb, Shelby and Chilton Counties the Public Works Administration, Harold L. Ickes, Administrator, has thru grants encouraged and participated in construction programs amounting to over three hundred thousand dollars, either completed or underway, during 1936.

Bibb County has just completed new schools at Woodstock and Eoline. An addition to the Brent brick school and the additions to and modernization of the County High School at Centerville are almost completed. A twelve-room brick school and a waterworks system for West Blocton are under construction.

In Shelby County a $47,000 program of repairing and equipping school buildings has been completed. At Alabama College, Montevallo, two greatly needed plants have been built costing $60,000. They are a water filtration plant and a large modern steam generating plant which will furnish power and heat for the College during its anticipated growth for future years. A waterworks system for Wilton has been approved by the Public Works Administration and the construction of it will start at once.

Chilton County has completed two large schools this year costing $55,000. They are an eight-room school at Collins Chapel and a fourteen-room school at Isabella, both have large auditoriums and are fully equipped.

Applications to the Public Works Administration for aid to finance the construction of more projects during 1937 are being prepared. The above programs are in addition to other benefits under government aid such as bridge and highway construction, W. E. A. work, Farm Credit, C. C. C. etc.

NEAT SUM IS TAKEN AT NOON HOUR MONDAY

Daylight Robbery Leaves No Clues; Officers Are Investigating

While all was quiet at the courthouse and the city hall Tuesday at noon, thieves stepped into the office of T. L. McKee, tax collector and after forcing open the cash drawer took $166.07 in cash.

The office of C. H. Pipes, city clerk, was also entered Tuesday at noon and $3.00 in cash was taken.

The thieves waited until both offices had closed for lunch and apparently entered by unlocking the doors or by going into the office at some time during the morning, pushing the thumb-latch, preventing the doors from locking when they were closed.

No checks were taken. Mr. McKee and Mr. Pipes stated. The thieves overlooked something over $400 which was in another part of the tax collector's office. A description of a person seen loitering around the tax collector's office after it had been closed for lunch was given officers immediately after the robbery was discovered and Sheriff Hardy stated he is investigating several clues. The money from both offices was not covered by insurance.

officials make a good government in our county is helping ourselves and as long as they are representing the best interest of the people it is our duty as good citizens to aid and encourage them.

We disagree politically often times and there is a time for political disagreement and when that time is over there then comes a time for a solid support of the officials elected for the best interest of ourselves.

Let us enter the New Year with our prejudice and ill will forgotten and face the future which is far more important.

Personally, I am thankful at this time for the restoration of my eyesight and health and I wish for you all a happier and more prosperous New Year and I am hopeful that our county will continue to go forward and maintain the high position that it now holds.

Respectfully yours,
L. H. REYNOLDS.

Interesting Message From L. H. Reynolds

Editor Chilton County News:

It is well that we should pause at the threshold of the New Year and express our gratitude for those of us who have been allowed the privilege of seeing another year and to express our sympathy for those who have not.

Generally speaking the financial condition of the people of our county was greatly improved in the year passing and from all indications, the coming year will bring better times.

Collectively we suffer or prosper, and whatever is of benefit to our county will be to the benefit of the county as a whole and it therefore behooves all of us to assist the officials of our county in every way that we possibly can in fostering any movement to better our conditions.

If our officials fail we all suffer, if they succeed we benefit; to help our

Taxes By Installments

"Why can't we pay our taxes on the installment plan, or at frequent intervals throughout the year. Say we paid every quarter or better yet every month, the burden wouldn't seem so heavy then."

This observation made to the editor by a local citizen the other day raises an interesting point. Why can't we plan our public affairs so that taxes may be collected at more frequent intervals? It is easier for most of us to pay four $25 payments at the beginning of each quarter than one lump payment of $100 at the beginning of the year. The cost, to be sure, is the same, but the burden would be less.

Today most of us are accustomed to monthly payments on all of our accounts. At the end of each month we receive our bills, check them over, and then mail our remittances. Our just share of the cost of public service might well be handled in the same way.

We realize that there may be reasons why this procedure cannot be put into effect immediately and instantly here in Chilton County. Fiscal affairs of our community, and a sudden change would be empty have long been handled on a yearly basis. But the idea is worthy of consideration, and we recommend it to the study of those who are actively engaged in administering public business in this community.

The income taxpayer has an opportunity to make remittance in four installments. The real estate taxpayer might well receive the same consideration.

Happy New Year

To our subscribers, business associates and friends in this community we extend our sincere wishes for a happy New Year, accompanied by the hope and prophecy that it will be a prosperous twelve month period.

A word of sincere appreciation is due for the fine support and friendly co-operation we have received during the past year in our effort to provide the community with a wide-awake and up-to-date newspaper. Without this friendly support our efforts would have fallen far short of our hopes.

During 1937 we propose to serve our community as we have endeavored to serve it in the past. The News will be essentially a community newspaper. We shall endeavor to report all of the activities of our citizens and of our civic organizations. We shall seek to acquaint the public with the trend of public affairs in our community and keep our readers informed on what our elected officials are doing. We shall support every enterprise planned to further the commercial, social and intellectual life of the community and shall be ever on the alert to emphasize those thoughts which promote community well being.

We shall stress the need of co-operation among our citizens and the part this spirit plays in promoting the welfare of the community. We shall urge and emphasize the need among our citizens of extending financial support to local business establishments. We shall seek to further the work of our commercial organizations, of our service clubs, and shall try to encourage all educational activities which are being carried on constantly in Clanton and Chilton County.

We shall welcome constructive criticism and maintain an open mind toward those with whom we cannot agree. In all controversies, political or non-political, our columns will be open to both sides. Sensationalism and private scandal have no place in our columns, and we shall exert every possible effort to keep our paper above reproach in this respect.

By maintenance of this policy we hope to merit your support during the year 1937, and thereby we also hope to do our part to help make the twelve months ahead a more happy and a more prosperous New Year for all of our citizens.

Co-operative Movement Gains

The year 1936 witnessed substantial gains in membership and volume of business of farmers' cooperative marketing associations, according to a report of the Farm Credit Administration. This, we regard, as a wholesome and healthy trend.

We recall in this connection a recent statement by C. C. Teague, President of the California Fruit Growers Exchange, who asserted:

"The future of the nation and the perpetuity of our present form of government may depend upon the development of the cooperative movement in agriculture."

The quickest way to wreck our system, he continued, would be to convince the average citizen that his position is hopeless unless the profit motive and property rights are to be destroyed. When farmers or producers enter business for themselves, and engage in active marketing of their own products they do not lend a willing ear to every agitator and mal-content who would urge the complete destruction of American institutions.

When producers are organized and underake the task of moving their product direct to the consumer, they arrive at a better understanding of the economic machinery which maintains America and are not ready converts to every wild-cat scheme to alter the entire system.

Co-operative marketing, in its general principle, seeks to secure for the producer the greatest possible share of the consumer's dollar. It does not aim to establish monopoly, to gouge the consumer, to increase unreasonably the cost of living for the worker. Instead it endeavors to eliminate waste in distribution and give the producer all the benefit possible.

Sound and sane cooperative marketing enterprises formed in Chilton County have always received the support of this newspaper, and we still stand ready to give this essentially American movement all possible help and encouragement.

Let's Get Together

We mortals are essentially jealous beings. So deeply bred into our blood is this feeling of distrust, suspicion, and envy that we cannot eliminate it without an effort.

For this reason it is not easy for competitors to work together for the enhancement of the community's interests. But work together we must as a united community and the sooner we realize that we must make every effort to co-operate with those we may not like, with those who compete against us for business, the greater will be our progress as a community.

After all there is more to be gained by co-operation than by personal antagonism. Let's resolve for 1937 to be more co-operative minded in matters pertaining to the welfare of Chilton County.

Migrator Human Beings

The motor car is rapidly transforming many Americans into migratory beings. In the summer the movement proceeds from the South to the North. In the winter it moves from the North to the South and West.

In resort centers trailer camps and trailer communities blossom into existence almost overnight. Tourist cabin proprietors still do a thriving business. There is a demand for tourist rooms. Thus travel over the highways becomes an industry of first rank importance.

In some communities there is concern because of this nomadic tendency which has become more pronounced with the advent of the modern trailer. Some states and communities are talking about higher license fees. Others are serving notice that trailer dwellers are not welcome. Who, they observe, "will pay the taxes, maintain schools and public institutions when a large proportion of our citizens become trailer dwellers?"

Other communities, notably those located in resort centers, are not concerned about the broad social and economic consequences of the trend, but see benefits in providing facilities for tourists and particularly trailer tourists. We learn of regular trailer cities which suddenly mushroom into existence when the tourist season starts.

We hold that these communities which extend a welcome to the visitor are not endangering the future social or economic stability of the country. A trip and a brief sojourn in a trailer may be a pleasant experience, but the trailer will never supplant the permanent home for the vast majority of Americans.

A lot of us applaud because we're glad the speech is over.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

It is said that there are long legged sheep on the Himalayan Mountains that can easily run forty miles an hour. It is my honest opinion that we should send for many ship loads of these sheep and import them to America that we may have a lamb that can keep up with our modern Marys during their school days. Many of our American Marys are so swift that it would be impossible for a lamb to follow her to school. The poor little thing would be long lost when Mary reached the school room. Our Marys know more at fifteen than our mothers knew at thirty. Information that caused our mothers to blush at thirty, is now the common knowledge of every high school pupil. One trouble with our American life is that we have out-distanced Mary's little lamb that should follow us around. We are too swift for the steady, safe feet of purity and right living.

A young lady sat in my presence reading a magazine and eating an apple at the same time. Finally she threw the core of the apple into the grate and I said to her, "Mary, what have you been reading?" She stammered and sputtered about but could tell me nothing. That leads me to say that it is evident that most people are trying to do too many things at once. If you are going to eat, stop everything else and eat. If you are going to read, stop everything else and read. You have plenty of time and why not stop this doubling up and do just one thing at a time. It is just as sensible to try to sing and sleep at the same time as it is to read and eat. It is a fact that when a person is trying to do two things at once he never does either thing very well.

Bill's cafeteria was sliding and he went to Tom, his best friend and asked him: "Tom, tell me what is wrong with my cafeteria." Tom replied: "Bill, try putting a red cherry on every salad plate." This meant quite an additional expense but Bill resolved to do it. Customers coming into Bill's cafeteria met a smile from behind the counter and saw a red cherry salad plate, went away to tell their friends and soon his cafeteria was the most popular place in town. A smile and a cherry were two small things but they brought success. If things are not moving with you as you desire, try putting a smile and a red cherry in your serving and see what they will do. They will help you in the home, in society, in business.

My neighbor's dog had a litter of pups. For days I could hear them yelping in a box. Weeks passed and one day I looked out and I saw the pups as they had followed their mother into the yard, and I could see the mother and the little dogs as they followed their mother about and worried her a great deal. One morning as I looked over that way I saw a sassy little dog lift his head into the air, curl his tail over his back and trot away toward the street end of the world. I knew then that he had ideas of his own and that he had determined to risk himself with the world. That picture is true to human life. At first the babe is so dependent on mother. The child clings to mother's skirt and must be continually under mother's eye, but the time comes when life asserts itself. The child that has been so dependent now becomes independent. That something that stirs in every human breast, causes the child to lift its head and with an air of confidence risk itself in the traffic of the world. No wonder mothers cry in great concern, "My child, beware!"

The Syrian river, Albona, courses its way near unto Damascus and then it is divided into seven smaller streams. These small rivers flow into the desert. These small rivers never reach the sea. All alike are swallowed up in the sands of the desert. If the river Albona would keep all of its force and water within one bank, it would surely battle its way to the deep blue sea. Many a time have I looked upon a life that was strong and purposeful. It moved like the waters of a flowing stream and everything indicated that the man was doing something and going somewhere. In the passing of the years that life would divide its interests spread itself out in all directions, become shallow and thin and then disappear? Have you not seen many a life that promised well at first, and then that life would become uncertain in purpose and plan and go up in smoke, dust and fog and then be blown away into nothing. If you want to reach the deep blue sea of success, know your course, keep your powers concentrated and be larger and stronger than the forces that would absorb you along the way.

Department Of Commerce

Expects Income To Top Expenditures Next Year

Washington, Dec. 27.—Calling the development one of "paramount significance," the Commerce Department said today that business and industry in the aggregate probably would be "out of the red" this year for the first time since 1929.

Estimating a national income of at least $60,000,000,000 this year, the department said in its annual report that it "appears probable" income produced might equal income paid out.

Whether industry as a whole operates at a profit or a loss is determined by the relationship between national income produced and national income paid out. When the latter exceeds the former, it means the total expenditures of industry are more than the ag-

CHRISTMAS DINNER

A large crowd gathered at the home of Mrs. Mary Deason on Christmas day to spend the day with grandmother.

Those who enjoyed the day are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Ratliff and children, Margene, J. M., T. J., and Carlos; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Ratliff and children, L. W., Floyd, Jr., Daniel, Sarah and Annie Gene; Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Ratliff and children, Dorothy and Ottis; Mrs. Zula Davis and daughter, Allie; Mrs. Mary Boddie, Misses Elaine Deason, Levern Crane and Willie Pearl Roseberry; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Davis and daughter, V. L., and Mrs. Mary Deason.

All enjoyed a bountiful dinner at the noon hour. Late in the afternoon everyone left wishing grandmother a happy and prosperous New Year.

gregate value of its products.

At $53,587,000,000 last year, national income paid out exceeded income produced by $628,000,000, causing industry to borrow or draw upon reserves to make up this sum.

The gap between the two types of income opened in 1930 and reached almost $9,000,000,000 in 1932, but has been narrowing since.

Reviewing economic conditions during the fiscal year ended July 1, the report cited "marked improvement." It added:

"Economic recovery broadened this year with acceleration of activity in the durable goods industries and in construction lines, the further rise in farm income, the increase in the number of persons employed and the expansion of industrial payrolls.

"The upward recovery was especially noteworthy in the late months of the fiscal year."

Asserting an unemployment census is needed to give an accurate check of the jobless, the department said "the desirability of decreasing Federal expenditures to relieve unemployment and at the same time protecting those who would be without work if Government assistance were withdrawn is recognized by all who are interested in this subject."

The report described nine new trade agreements concluded during the last fiscal year as "a major step toward the recovery of our foreign trade on a definite and equitable basis."

40th Anniversary of Diesel Power

(1) Diesel engine, first ever to finish 500 mile Indianapolis grind without stopping for fuel.
(2) B. C. Heacock, President, Caterpillar Tractor Company, world's largest builder Diesel engines.
(3) New 10-car Diesel driven Denver Zephyr.
(4) Plowing with a Caterpillar tractor, one of hundreds of "Dieselized" farm jobs handled at low cost.
(5) 48-foot cruiser powered by twin Diesel engines.

Diesel power is 40 years old in the United States. More than 300 of the country's leading engineers and industrialists met at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, recently to celebrate the anniversary—and to honor the memory of Dr. Rudolf Diesel, inventor.

Diesels are internal combustion engines, but they operate on cheap low grade fuel oil which is fired by the heat of compression rather than by electric ignition.

Modern lightweight zephyr type trains, capable of sustaining speeds of 100 miles per hour or more, are diesel powered.

A small diesel powered passenger car has been driven from Los Angeles to New York on $7.63 total fuel cost. A 32-passenger bus has made the same trip East to West on less than $25.00 fuel cost!

Trans-Atlantic liners, ferries, tug boats, large and small yachts, fishing vessels, freighters, naval craft, and others employing diesel power to extend operating ranges and to lower fuel cost.

Nearly 180 American manufacturers are building these economical "power giants" in units of from 10 to 20,000 horsepower. One of these, Caterpillar Tractor Company, Peoria, Illinois, has in five years become the world's largest producer of diesel power, employing a continuous assembly line for the purpose.

With American production this year 21 times greater than the 1932 output, the future of Diesel power is brilliant indeed according to Charles F. Kettering, Captain Edward V. Rickenbacker, B. C. Heacock and other well-informed experts who attended the anniversary meeting.

Cotton Prices Gain In Week's Trading

New Orleans Up $1 A Bale With Buying And Speculative Stimulation

New Orleans, Dec. 27.—Stimulated active buying by trade and speculative interests, the cotton market moved up nearly a dollar a bale in the days of trading last week.

Instead of the customary lull that meets the holidays, trading was actually an acute shortage of goods in the volume of year-end liquidation, it ended 17 to 19 points above the week ago.

Reports that a barter arrangement would be worked out for the sale of cotton to Germany and that a plan under way to liquidate foreign cotton in Italy helped cotton prices. Trade believes that if the way can be opened to sell more cotton to Germany and Italy and the domestic cotton keeps at current rates there will be an acute shortage of goods in the near future.

January closed at 12.29 at New Orleans, March at 12.32, May at 12.26 and July at 12.18.

Cotton continued the strong advance in the entire cotton picture. The basis remained high with many bales unavailable and both domestic foreign spinners in the market in January.

Movement of the Lancashire textile in England helped foreign market with the Manchester cloth market steadily advancing prices. This feature was quickly reflected in the market of Liverpool.

Cotton continued to be the big factor facing traders. When and if the government will liquidate its 100 bales of mortgaged staple was the key to price movements the next few months.

A three-day holiday last week in England prolonged holiday this week. The trade did not look for any price movement until after January 1937.

It would like to say a few words of appreciation to Mr. T. V. Mims discharged from the duties of Sheriff.

We all have known him all his life and can honestly say that he has helped this community and did not pick the crowd, he took the law. He went to work around up northern part of this county dangerous for ladies to travel. Liquor was plentiful. We are really, indeed he is no more sheriff. Really, thank him for what he has been one of the best of have ever had. We all know violators intended to do everything could to knock him out of but still we can look back on the good work he has done.

PURE CORN BETTER FOR SALE THAN MIXED CORN

Auburn, Ala.—The United States Department of Agriculture now confirms statements of R. J. Goode, Alabama Commissioner of Agriculture, J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, and Dr. M. E. Jackson, farm produce agent, that Alabama farmers will profit by growing pure instead of mixed corn for sale.

"Pure or nearly pure white corn is prized by corn millers, and premiums often are paid for such corn," says the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

FARMERS ADVISED OBTAIN "REAL TRUTH" ON VARIETY

Auburn, Ala.—Cotton growers planning to grow a new variety of cotton in 1937 are likely to suffer a heavy loss unless they obtain the "real truth" about the variety before buying the seed.

This warning comes from officials of the Alabama Experiment Station and the State Extension Service who advise that the safest guide for farmers in buying cotton seed is the cotton variety tests of the State experiment station. The results of the 1936 tests will be made ready to farmers and others early in January, states H. B. Tisdale, plant breeder.

Farmers desiring to purchase seed of a new variety are being advised to confer with their county agents who have the results of tests conducted over a period of years. It has been found that these tests remove the "guess" in selecting a suitable variety of cotton.

MINOOKA HOME DEM. CLUB MET RECENTLY

Minooka Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mrs. G. W. Johnson Monday, December 21, with 17 members present.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. B. B. Mann, after roll call by secretary. Old business was in order which was awarding the quilt blocks. Mrs. Harry Anderson was awarded the quilt.

Two new members were added to our club.

Mrs. Harry Anderson and Mrs. Brady had charge of the program, which was a Christmas pageant rendered beautifully.

Presents were exchanged from a beautifully decorated tree.

Miss Grace showed us many beautiful, hand-made presents which gave us many new ideas.

Mrs. Lillie Busby was elected county council representative in place of Mrs. Brady, who is leaving the community. Refreshments were served by the hostess. Souvenirs were tiny Christmas trees decorated with candy.

Fattening hogs should receive from one-half to one pound of protein supplement, such as tankage, daily, in addition to all the corn they will gain for most rapid and economical gains.

Livestock Reminders

F. W. Buras, Auburn

A couple of inches of good clean sand should be used in either trucks or cars in which livestock is being hauled. It gives maximum protection against sprains, spreading joints and kindred evils so commonly found where livestock is hauled without having a good footing.

Creep feeding a mixture of 100 pounds of corn meal, 100 pounds of ground oats, 100 pounds of wheat bran, and 50 pounds of cottonseed meal puts quick and cheap gains on lambs.

Good grazing crops during the gestation period require the sow to exercise and provide the vitamins needed for the proper development of the unborn pigs. Fall planted rye or oats is excellent for the purpose during the winter months.

Dairy cows should receive 3 pounds of ensilage and 1 pound of legume hay for each 100 pounds live weight of the cow. In addition she should receive 1 pound of grain for each 2-3 pounds of milk produced.

Breeding dairy cows to purebred bulls is one of the cheapest and surest means of increasing production and lowering costs per gallon of milk in our future herds.

FARM TENANCY PROGRAM IS BEING FORMULATED

President Roosevelt's committee on farm tenancy expects to report a tenancy program to the President by February 1, 1937, reports the United States Department of Agriculture.

The importance of legislation being passed to solve the farm tenancy problem in the South is emphasized by a report of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in which it is pointed out that the highest rate of tenancy exists on cotton farms. In 1930, 73 percent of the cotton type of farms, as classified by the census, were tenant operated.

The Friendly Service Idea

A few weeks ago on the invitation of my good friend, J. W. Patton, of the L. & N. law department, I had the pleasure of going down to the Union Depot and addressing the employees of the L. & N. Friendly Service Club, the Montgomery unit of an organization that is founded on the right idea and that is destined to bring about, all over the lines of the railroad, a better relation between the road and the traveling and shipping public.

We had a fine meeting, and the assembly room at the Depot was crowded. The employees of the L. & N. from President Hill on down to the humblest negro section hand, are solidly behind the idea of giving friendly and courteous service to those who patronize the road and make it a success.

Public Judges Road By Employees

J. B. Hill, the very competent and able president of "The Old Reliable," in authorizing the organization of friendly service clubs among the employees of the road, and in the cities and towns reached by the lines of the road, has stated that the objective of the road is "to drive home the truth that the highest possible degree of good will toward our road and its employees from the public through the constant practice of friendly and courteous relations."

In all of its advertisements, and in all of its circulars to its employees, the L. & N. is driving home the truth that "railroad patrons judge the railroad as a whole by the treatment that they receive from the individual employee."

Many years ago the railroads of the country inaugurated a "safety-first" campaign that brought about results far beyond the most sanguine expectations of the railroad authorities. Accidents among the employees were reduced to practically nothing, and it was indeed a rare occurrence that a passenger was injured. I recall that for several years the road had the reputation of no fatal injuries on its lines to a passenger.

As Courteous As The Old South

The employees of the road are making the appealing slogan "As Courteous As The Old South" their motto and every day in all of their dealings with the patrons of the road, the employees are giving, in addition to their usual prompt and efficient service something more—a friendly service.

The railroad is supplying each of the members of its friendly service clubs with various little helpful pamphlets giving useful ideas and suggestions as how to better improve the service and to make the patrons feel that the service being given them is a friendly one.

The L. & N. Railroad Company has had a big part in building up the South. Especially has the L. & N. been of material assistance in developing Alabama, and one of the finest chapters in the history of our State is that chapter which tells of the work of the great and lamented Milton H. Smith in building up the mineral region of the State. Milton H. Smith was one of the ablest railroad presidents the United States has ever known. He had, to go along with his ability, vision, high character, and a dauntless courage. The management of the railroad company feels that it is a product of a great civilization, that of the Old South. For almost a century the Old Reliable has shared the destiny of the South, prospering when it prospered and suffering when it suffered. The railroad has always been noted for its fair and honorable dealings with its patrons, and it is to be commended upon its idea of organizing all of its employees into friendly service clubs to inspire them to practice constantly friendly and courteous relations with those who make the railroads by their passenger and freight business.

Novel Advertising

One of the slogans of the Old Reliable is "The L. & N. is your Home Sweet Home on the rails," and then the advertisement goes on to show how the road makes it possible for its patrons to travel in comfort and feel that they have on the road the same livableness they have in their homes.

Another advertisement depicts a big human arm attached to an engine, with the face of a man, shaking hands with one of its patrons and calling him "neighbor," and the ad says: "Why shouldn't you, and we—The Louisville and Nashville Railroad—call each other Neighbor? Isn't your town, our town? Your problems and your welfare interest with ours?"

"Our family is a large one—26,000 of us spending over $40,000,000 in wages annually among you. Perhaps some of us live near you. Perhaps you or your friends sell us supplies, the equipment and other materials for which we spend additional millions of dollars yearly. "Like you, we pay taxes—taxes that help support your schools, your institutions, and other functions of government. Coal? We buy hundreds of thousands of tons every year. Furniture? Food? Household gadgets? We buy all of these, so that we can give service and make our guests feel fully at home.

"You strive for a good home. So

Rails—a cool, clean, comfortable

"Rails"—a cool, clean, comfortable, courteous, safe home, to which thousands of travelers turn every day. "We aren't just buildings and steel and trains. We aren't just the roaring locomotive, sound and kindly whistle to tell the traveler that danger is passing. We aren't just the most comfortable and safest means of travel. We are home folk, spending our money with you . . . for your products, in your community . . . furnishing a necessary service and adding your patronage only if we merit it. We are your Neighbor . . . Let's be better friends."

Public Relations

happening in the history of our country is the "come-back" of the railroads. For years and years, in many states of the Union, the railroads were made the football of politics, and any cheap-skate demagogue who wanted to get into office and who had no worthwhile platform, made his main line of argument an attack on the railroads. To carry out the spite and hatred of small-bore politicians, and to try to further the political ends, Legislatures in many States passed all sorts of discriminatory and unfair legislation against the railroads. The railroads are bigger than the politicians, and of course the railroads survive. The politicians are forgotten.

Then the changing conditions which came with the building of great highways throughout the nation with hundreds and hundreds of thousands of miles of paved roads connecting every city and hamlet, brought the bus, and for several years it seemed that railroad transportation would be a thing of the past except for long hauls of heavy freight. But the railroad companies have solved the bus problem, the roads have air-conditioned their trains, they have stepped-up passenger schedules so that many trains average a mile a minute speed, they have reduced fares, and they have made their trains the safest form of transportation, public or private, so that today one is far less likely to be hurt on the modern railroad train than he is in his own home. In fact, not a passenger has been killed in any L. & N. train accident in over 18 years, and many other roads have magnificent records of safety.

The great railroads of America have the respect and confidence of the American people. The American railroad worker is a fine citizen and a good man. He represents the highest type of our citizenship. The relations between the manager of the roads and the employees of the roads is better today than it ever has been. The employees are whole-heartedly behind the management in all their plans to better railroad conditions.

The railroads are developing and maintaining a wonderful spirit of friendliness and courtesy to all who have business with them, and it is the writer's belief that the idea of the formation of friendly service clubs is one of the most constructive ideas ever put into practical operation in the railroad business.

Courtesy an Asset in Business More and more business men are beginning to realize that courtesy is an asset of incalculable value in their business. People don't have to do business with concerns which are not courteous in their dealings, and they won't do business with such concerns. Today people trade with the stores where their patronage is appreciated and where every effort is made to treat them courteously. Fresh and sassy employees, who know it all, and wish to impress the prospective customer with the fact, do not attract business for their employers. A very large per cent of the businesses which went into bankruptcy during the years of Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, the Depression Years, can trace to discourteous and unfriendly treatment of the buying public one of the big causes of the receivership of the business.

Thomas Fuller put it well when he wrote the words: "All doors open to courtesy." The courtesy and friendliness of a business house opens the doorway to the trader and buyer's money and causes the latter to spend it with the merchant.

There's no reason on earth why business should not be conducted along courteous and friendly lines. The business that forgets civility and good manners in its workings, will soon find that it has no business to attend to. The railroads of this country are setting a good example.

Let's Read During the Holidays

There are many arguments about reading—What to read, Where to read and how much to read, but laying aside these arguments, the question is—Do you read. In the hurry scurry of the times I'm told it's harder to concentrate than there is time to enjoy the old-fashioned form of recreation but lets notice what some of our great authors have to say about reading and then lets think twice and use the coming holidays with lots of readings and have the old fashioned family reading brought back to life—with the members reading aloud and discussing the choice book later.

1. "Get a habit, a passion for reading; not flying from book to book, with the systematic caprice of a literary epicure; but read systematically, closely, thoughtfully, analyzing every subject as you go along and laying it up carefully and safely in your memory. It is only by this mode that your information will be at the same time extensive, accurate, and useful."—Wirt.

2. "You may glean knowledge by reading, but you must separate the chaff from the wheat by thinking."—Wirt.

3. "The pleasure of reading without application is a dangerous pleasure—useless books we should lay aside, and make all possible good use of those from which we may reap some fruit."—Foster.

4. "Read not to contradict and confute, nor to believe and take for granted, nor to find talk and discourse, but to weigh and consider—Some books are to be tasted, others to be swallowed, and some few to be chewed and digested; that is some books are to be read only in parts, others to be read, but not curiously; and some few to be read, wholly and with diligence and attention."—Lord Bacon.

5. "Always have a book at hand, in the parlor, on the table, for the family; a book of condensed thought and striking anecdote of sound maxims and truthful apothegms. It will impress on your mind a thousand valuable suggestions, and teach your children a thousand lessons of truth and duty. Such a book is a casket of jewels for your household."—T. Edwards.

6. "Reading maketh a full man; conference a ready man; and writing an exact man; and therefore, if a man write little, he need have a great memory; if he confer little he need have a present wit; and if he read little, he had need have much cunning, to seem to know that he doth not."—Lord Bacon.

7. "By reading, we enjoy the dead; by conversation the living; and by contemplation, ourselves. Reading enriches the memory; conversation polishes the wit; and contemplation improves the judgment of these readings, is the most important, as it furnishes both the others."—Calton.

DAIRY HERD GAVE $212 FOR $1 WORTH OF FEED

The McLean-Stewart dairy herd of Montgomery County returned $212 worth of milk for each $1.00 worth of feed it consumed during November this year, announces F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist, in reporting that the herd averaged 548 pounds of milk and 302 pounds of butterfat.

The second highest producing herd was owned by R. B. Kent, Birmingham. It averaged 548 pounds of milk and 296 pounds of butterfat.

"A study of dairy herd improvement association records made in Alabama on over 3,000 cows shows that cows that freshen in September and October produce the most milk and butterfat and show the greatest returns over feed costs," he advises.

"Breeding cows to purebred bulls with plenty of production back of them is one of the cheapest and surest means we have of increasing production and lowering our feed cost per gallon of milk or pound of butterfat."

DIVIDING A HERD

This story of dividing a herd of cows is not new, but it may interest those who have not heard it. Anyway, it is a neat problem in trick mathematics.

A farmer died possessed of a herd of 17 cows, of which he willed his wife one-half, his son one-third, and his daughter one-ninth. The executor of the will was stumped, but called a mathematical shark to his aid, with this happy result:

A cow was borrowed from a neighbor, making 18. The widow was given 9, which was one-half; the son got six, which was his one-third; then the daughter received 2, or one-ninth. This totaled 17, the number to be divided, while the borrowed cow was left. She was returned to her owner, and everybody was satisfied.

FAIRVIEW HOME DEM. CLUB

The Fairview Home Demonstration Club met at the schoolhouse on December 22 at 6:30 o'clock with a Christmas tree and program. A large crowd was present and all seemed to have a nice time. We had several new members which we welcome into our club. They are as follows: Mrs. E.L. Henley, Mrs. Rhsa Jackson, Mrs. Sallie E. Hoxey, Mrs. Allen Foshee, Mrs. Alice Durbin. We will meet at the home of Mrs. Ola Edwards on January 19, at 2 o'clock. We urge all members to be present.

The plate supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E.H. Devaughn on December 12 was quite a success. It was sponsored by the Home Demonstration Club women. They sold all of their plates which they are very thankful for. We want to thank every one who helped us in our work.

We feel greatly indebted to the good people and friends who participated in sharing with us of their means and sympathy during our loss in the terrible tornado.

Especially do we thank the Red Cross the merchants of Clanton, Pletcher, Billingsley. We are grateful to the Vermont school. They played a great part in helping. We thank the ones who made the drive in collecting food and clothing for us.

May the richest of blessings rest and abide with you is our prayer.

—Oliver Smith and Family.

That's What I Think

Saul M. Goldstein

Last week I invaded the very sanctum of Ye Editor to compose this column—even worse, I used his own personal typewriter. I sat down to the journalistic altar, ran a sheet of paper through the roll, and began to seek inspiration. John Ponder Lawrence came in and obligingly turned on the radio. I always work better under the influence of music. Laboriously (I use the famous "Hunt and Peck" system of typewriting) I typed out across the page my usual heading, "That's What I Think," affixed my name underneath it, and waited patiently for the proper time. At this moment, the program on the radio changed, and the booming voice of a new announcer came cold and clear across the ether waves: "WHAT DO YOU THINK?"

You can draw your own conclusions on my reaction; but as for the truth of the story, I call on Ye Editor himself as a witness; and you can check on your radio any Monday evening, for it is a regular weekly program introduced by those words. Anyway, coincidence does have a long arm.

This must have been a merrier Christmas than any for many long years. Not only in Chilton county, but all over the United States, the Yuletide season was more joyous, and you can trace it to its origin step by step. Christmas is a season of giving, and anybody's pleasure in giving is measured by how much they can give. People gave more this year because they had more to give. Nicer and more expensive gifts were the order of the day, and many a depression bride is at last wearing the beautiful engagement and wedding rings she had almost given up hope of getting. In districts declaring new and larger dividends, and paying higher wages, increased labor staffs let loose a flood of Christmas spending that caught business houses short of merchandise.

If the new prosperity on which the country is now embarking is to be shared in by Chilton County, we also must have industries that will pay higher wages to increased labor staffs. Our agricultural population can expect a greater return for their produce than they have been getting for these seven lean years, but that isn't quite enough. We must bend our efforts these days to secure new industries for Clanton and Chilton County.

That reminds us of some new developments that are in the way, if certain experts haven't missed their guesses. We have been so long accustomed to considering the Birmingham district as our chief mineral and industrial center that we have been overlooking possibilities under our very noses. Now we have it on reliable authority—and as soon as documentary proof is available we are going to spill it in full—that underneath the soil of this county lies a fortune in valuable minerals and clays. Just to convince some folks who haven't heard about it, there is one man in this county who is loading a carload of pure iron ore every day in the week and shipping it to the Birmingham furnaces; and in another part of the county an associate of his is loading a carload every two days. And iron doesn't begin to tell the story. Other minerals less prominent in the daily news stories, but just as important in providing us our twentieth century civilization, are being discovered all over the county. 1937 will open the eyes of many Chiltonians who have resigned themselves to the idea of being purely agricultural.

And 1937 is almost here. Tonight at midnight we shall all turn our faces with big, broad smiles to a New Year and a new era of personal and social happiness. The sound of the bells and the strains of "Auld Lang Syne," will be welcome to the ears of a people who have wondered for a long time if bells would ever ring again.

The New Year will have a greater significance for most of us. It will for me personally. I feel like a prodigal.

Chevrolet Advises On Auto Batteries

While the proper maintenance of a car's battery and electric system will do much to assure quick starting in the winter months, there are also a few simple suggestions which all drivers will find helpful, says a bulletin issued this week by Chevrolet.

"Remember," says the bulletin, "that the battery has two functions: one, to operate the starting motor, and two, to furnish the spark. The engine always turns over harder in cold weather, and unless the battery is in good condition, there may not be enough current left, while the starter is operating, to provide the necessary spark."

"Operation of the starter places a heavy load on the battery, and so every precaution should be taken to assure the quickest start once the starter is depressed."

One way of doing this is to turn the engine over two or three times with the starter before switching on the ignition. This preloads the combustion chambers with gasoline mixture, and the engine usually starts the moment the ignition is turned on.

"The throttle should be opened slightly throughout the operation, but not far enough to make the engine race when it starts."

"In cars with manually-operated choke, it is an easy matter to find the precise point to which the choke should be opened for winter starting. Once the engine is started, close the choke slightly to prevent dilution of crankcase oil through admission of raw gasoline."

"Never under any circumstances should the warm-up process be hurried by racing the engine. The reason for this is that lubricants flow slowly when the engine is cold, and they should have a chance to warm-up before the engine is subjected to higher speeds."

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Jones are spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Cox.

PETE JARMAN

In Congress, responsible duties which you so very kindly imposed upon me. As I do so I desire to again thank you most sincerely for the confidence evidenced by your magnificent support and to reaffirm my determination to prove worthy of it, and cause you to desire that I continue to represent you for a long while, until the seniority so valuable to a Congressman, and much more so to his District, is gained.

"I repeat that it will be my purpose to represent the whole people of our excellent District to the best of my ability, squarely meeting all issues as they arise. Toward that end, I have requested assignment to Committees, selected after very mature thought and numerous conferences with senior Congressmen, on which I believe I can best serve our District, and I confidently hope that the strenuous efforts I have made in that direction will result in my assignment to one or more of them.

"I fully realize that it will prove quite impossible for me to invariably please all of my friends and constituents because of conflicting wishes and views. However, it will be my purpose to serve you all to the best of my ability at all times. I also realize that, being human, I shall make mistakes, but when the book is written and the record made I hope and believe it will be a fruitful one to which my keenly appreciated friends and constituents can point with pride. Toward that end, I respectfully and sincerely solicit the thoughtful cooperation of all patriotic citizens of our District. The campaigns are water over the dam. Let us look to the future rather than the past. I shall be the Congressman of you who did not support me as well as those who did.

"It is my purpose to spend next summer in our District, and I look forward with pleasurable anticipation to seeing and enjoying a conversation with you at that time. In the meantime, may God bless you and keep you healthy, happy and prosperous."

REPORT SHOWS HUNTERS ARE NOT CAREFUL

Number Of Accidents In Two Months Ahead Of Last Season

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 23.—With the 1936-37 hunting season but a little more than two months old, Alabama has witnessed almost as many hunting accidents as were reported for the entire 1935-36 season.

Carelessness on the part of hunters up to December 15 had resulted in 13 accidents, five of them fatal to the victims. One of the five fatal accidents was the drowning of a hunter weighted down by a string of squirrels around his neck.

This steadily mounting list compares with nine fatalities out of 15 accidents during the 1935-36 season, and, if hunters fail to exercise more caution in the fields, bids fair to eclipse the high of the 1933-34 season when 31 accidents and 17 fatalities were recorded.

Hunting accidents reported to the State Conservation Department through Dec. 15 included:

T. R. Long, Uniontown, fatally wounded when he accidentally discharged his gun while crawling through a fence.

Dudley McNatt, 15, Russellville, fatally wounded while hunting alone near his home.

George Leonard Scarborough, 19, Winzer, fatally wounded when his gun was accidentally discharged as he leaped from a stump.

Robert Fulton, Mobile, drowned by the weight of a string of squirrels around his neck when his hunting boat capsized in Mobile river.

Rufus Layton, 51, Enterprise, fatally wounded by the accidental discharge of his gun while he was attempting to cross a fence.

L. D. Collins, Birmingham, wounded by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of a hunting companion.

Patton Brasfield, Grove Hill, high school teacher, accidentally shot in the face while hunting near Demopolis.

William McLean, TVA construction superintendent at Wheeler Dam, accidentally shot in the face by a hunting companion while shooting birds near Florence.

W. C. Hall, member of the Selma city council, suffered the loss of two fingers from his right hand when the gun he was carrying was accidentally discharged.

William A. Bryant, watchman for the Baldwin County Hunting Club, suffered an injury to his eye when struck in the face by a low-hanging limb.

Autrey England, Butler, shot in the shoulder by a companion while hunting near his home.

Bonnie Jean Lott, West Butler, struck in the head by a rifle bullet fired accidentally by a hunting companion.

Percy Nixon, Birmingham, negro, shot by a negro hunter while picking up coke near Birmingham.

A Good Salesman

By Clayton Rand

It is a splendid thing President Roosevelt has done—this good will tour to the Latin Americas. He is at his best when captivating his public, and the Latin is a responsive and sentimental people.

There is no single challenge so commanding as that of cultivating the practical friendship and foreign trade of our Southern neighbors.

At the close of the World War the United States had the business of the Latin Americas in the hollow of her hand, but, in her stupidity, she let a great commercial opportunity slip between her fingers.

When we finally get around to the tariff again we shall find one barrier to world markets. President Roosevelt being primarily a good salesman may even smash some tariff walls while breaking other precedents.

Motorists Association Called On In Fight

Birmingham, Ala.—Motorists of the state were called upon by the Alabama Motorists Association today to rally to the support of the Welch bill introduced in the House recently which called for an election upon a Constitutional Amendment prohibiting the diversion of automobile taxes for any purposes other than for the building and taining of highways and bridges and for the retirement of highway construction bonds.

The measure, House bill 112, was placed in the hopper last week and Frank E. Spain, president of the association called upon all motorists to contact their lawmakers in an effort to get the measure passed before the legislators go home for the Christmas holidays.

"The measure is one of the most vital that has faced the motorists of the state in a number of years," Spain said. "Each year there appears to be a leak or seepage in the gasoline and automobile taxes to purposes other than for construction and maintenance of highways. This practice is already endangering the Federal aid funds if continued will seriously interfere with the completion of the state's much needed highway system."

"Only last week the motorists association and other civic organizations in Birmingham sent representatives to the Central and midwest states in an effort to get more tourists to come through Alabama. One of the best drawing cards we can offer tourists is good roads and we should rapidly complete our highway system."

"In passage of the Constitutional amendment preventing the diversion would do much to help Alabama complete her highway system. The amendment means that all automobile taxes would go to the highway department and be used to build and maintain roads and bridges and to retire the indebtedness on bonds, already outstanding and would prevent the diversion of these funds where they are used for any purposes that the city or county officials desire."

"Several states have already passed an amendment preventing the diversion of funds for other purposes. I predict that Alabama voters will be unanimous in their favor of the Amendment if the measure is submitted to them. In this democratic state it is only fair that the people should be permitted to say whether their automobile taxes, one of the heaviest in the nation, should be used on the roads and bridges or should be converted into treasuries and used to pay political officials or other hangers-on. The bill will probably be introduced in the Senate by Senator Carver Woodall and motorists of the state should rally behind the Welch-Woodall measure to see that it is enacted into law and the people of the state have a chance to say how their motoring taxes shall be spent."

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express our sincere thanks for the help that the people in this community and other community did for us during the storm that came through three weeks ago. May God bless each and every one in our prayer. —Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wilson.

Hints to Gardeners

by Harold Coulter Vegetable Expert
Ferry Seed Institute

Prepare Soil Early

IN gardening as in Christmas shopping an early start is important. Size up your garden plot now to determine what can be done to improve the soil.

Spade or plow early. Any soil is enriched by manure. Clay soils are improved in texture and sandy soils are improved in water-holding capacity by spading under manure, rotted leaves or lawn clippings or rotted garden refuse.

Complete commercial fertilizers are everywhere available. Ask your dealer for fertilizer suited to your soil and get from him definite instructions on how to apply.

It is important to use fertilizer cautiously, for an excess is often harmful, particularly so when dealing with production of such vegetables as tomato, cucumber, pepper, etc.

To gardeners who like to maintain an excellent lawn, seed may be sown anytime between October and March when conditions are right and the air is calm.

Sow about a teaspoonful of seed to 100 square feet of lawn.

Garden preparation effort is wasted if you do not plant seeds from dependable sources. Select your favorite varieties at the nearby store before the supply is depleted. Make sure they are freshly packed.

In planting, a primary consideration is to have the soil favorably moist, that is, damp but not wet. If circumstances demand that you plant when the ground is dry, moisten trenches or drills before dropping the seed using enough water to wet the soil, but not enough to cause soaking.

HOME MAKERS CLASS ENJOY CHRISTMAS PARTY DEC. 21

A most enjoyable Christmas party was held in the social hall of the Baptist Church by the Home Makers Class Monday night, December 21. It is a custom of long standing for this class to meet together for an evening of social fellowship and a Christmas tree during the holidays.

This was one of the most enjoyable of these events ever held. The attendance was very large. The room and trees carried out the class colors, white and green. Tall white standards burning green candles shed a soft glow on the lovely scene. The President, Mrs. Luther Little, and her helpers did a fine job of the decorations.

The program committee, Mrs. Joe Calloway and Mrs. Marion Smith, provided much fun with contests and games of various kinds, then the beautiful story of the origin of Christmas was told in a most interesting way by Mrs. J. W. Fant, after which all joined in the singing of Christmas carols, and enjoying the fruit of the glistering Christmas tree. Delightful salad cake, and coffee was served by the hostesses Mrs. S. J. Ezell, Mrs. G. C. Walker, Mrs. Horsley White, Mrs. Flora Sims, Mrs. Spurgeon Calloway, Mrs. Curtis Billingsley. Forty or more members were present.

"The Man Who O-O"

Tales and Traditions from American Political History
BY FRANK L. HAGEN AND ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE FIRST PLATFORM

ONE of the essentials of a modern political convention is the adoption of a "platform" upon which the Presidential nominee is to "take his stand" during the campaign. Whether or not he stays on it is quite another matter but few candidates would think of going before the "peepul" without one.

The first platform appeared during the campaign of 1840. In that year the Democrats, holding their convention in Baltimore, set forth what they considered the fundamental principles of their party. Asserting that the federal government was one of strictly limited powers and that all grants not expressly made to it were reserved to the states, the platform denounced against the assumption of state debts, contracted for local improvements, by the federal government.

Denied the power of the federal government to foster one industry, or section, to the detriment of another.

Asserted that the federal government exceeded its authority when it raised more revenue than was required to defray the ordinary expenses of administration.

Denied the power of congress to interfere with or control the institution of slavery.

Declared against the handling of public funds by private banks. Denounced restrictions upon the privileges of citizenship and of ownership of land with respect to foreign immigrants.

They then unanimously renominated Martin Van Buren for the presidency and got ready to fight the battle of ballots along the lines of policy they had laid down. But if they expected their opponents to meet them on that ground they were grievously disappointed. The Whigs not only failed to adopt a platform but they failed to put forth any statement of principles for the very good reason that they didn't have any. They disregarded issues entirely and launched their whirlwind "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too!" campaign.

The bewildered Democrats stood firm on their platform and watched the procession go past—a triumphal procession for the Whigs!
